PROSECUTOR DENOUNCED POLICE.

Anti-police Crusaders Win a Victory at New Brunswick.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, July 13.—Henry Ruck and his wife, Rosa Ruck, were convicted yesterday afternoon of keeping a disorderly house at the corner of Somerset and Nelson streets. The jury was out only twenty minutes. The complaints against the Rucks were the outcome of an anti-saloon crusade, and their conviction, after a bitterly fought trial, is considered a great victory for the crusaders.

The Rucks had been before the court a number of times before, but had always escaped with nominal fines. William Reed, a member of the local police force, testified that prior to December the saloon was disorderly and kept open after midnight on Saturday, but that after that time there was no disorder and the saloon closed promptly at midnight. Prosecutor Voorhees, in summing up, denounced the police department of the city for its laxity betrayed by the policeman's testimony.

TROLLEY ROAD INSPECTION.

Officials Make Tour Over Westfield and Elizabeth Route.

Yesterday morning a party comprising David Young, vice-president and general manager of the North Jersey Traction Company; Chandler Riker, president of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company; Colonel E. W. Hine; Vice-President Williams, of the Central Railroad Company; Superintendent J. H. Olhausen, of the same company, together with Superintendent Smith of the North Jersey Traction Company, and others, started out on a special car on an inspection of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway as far as Westfield, and from Westfield over the Rahway branch as far as Boynton Beach, where a clambake was enjoyed.

Another Sale of Lots at Lincoln.

An Athletic Exhibition.

At a meeting of the Gesang and Turn Verein, held last evening, it was decided to give an athletic exhibition July 23d for the purpose of raising funds to enable the members to attend the Brooklyn Turn Fest, which is to be held next month. There will be two wrestling matches for the championship of the State, Prof. Truxler, the heavyweight lifter, of Newark, and several other features. The Newark Turn Verein will also be present and give a turning exhibition.

Laid it to City Water.

Pure, sparkling city water was the harmless beverage which Harry Moncton claimed he had drank when he was arrested by Marshal Kleiner on Somerset street, Wednesday night. From Harry's actions there must have been something in the water which had a peculiar effect upon him. When brought before Mayor Smalley last night he was given his choice of $3 or two days in jail. He took the latter.

Dr. Brakeley was summoned and found the man to be in a deathly stupor. After working over him for some time, Hague finally regained consciousness and was assisted to his home. The sudden attack was due to weak heart action caused by chills. Another engineer was secured and the train left Dunellen on time.

REPUBLICANS IN NO HURRY FOR CAMPAIGN

Local G. O. P. Workers Willing to Rest on Their Oars for Some Time Yet.

TO INTEREST YOUNG MEN.

REPUBLICAN CLUB TO BE ORGANIZED IN THE BOROUGH.

The Activity and Aggressiveness of the Campaign Will Depend to Some Extent on What the Democrats Do.

While reports of renewed activity on the part of the workers of both great political parties are to be heard on all sides, Plainfield has seen nothing of it as yet. The Republicans are greatly in the majority in this city so they are naturally expected to make the largest fight here during the National campaign. The renewal of life among the Democrats during the last year or two promises a livelier campaign from them than has been made in the past.

New Jersey is not one of the States selected by the National leaders as the seat for the hottest campaign as far as the G. O. P. is concerned. The Republicans believe that they will have no difficulty in carrying the State by a good fat majority. Union county is expected to go Republican and Plainfield will undoubtedly do so.

The result is that the Republicans here will merely feel the need of holding the party together and their campaign is likely to largely depend on to what extent the Democrats work. If the Democrats start early and make a great effort, the G. O. P. machine will hold the same pace.

As far as Plainfield is concerned, the campaign of the Republicans is likely to be one chiefly of education. The glamor and spectacular effect of torch-light processions is not counted as being particularly effective here. There will be any quantity of literature distributed and a series of mass meetings at which the State candidates and some of the prominent Republican speakers will talk.

The Young Men's Republican Club will be reorganized and put on a working basis. They may arrange some kind of a demonstration to stir the blood of the younger element of the party to the proper enthusiasm. An effort will probably be made by that organization to have Gov. Theodore Roosevelt, of New York, address a mass meeting here.

The campaign in the city will be in charge of a special campaign committee, which will be composed of the members of the regular city executive committee, with a few additions. The work will probably be done by wards, the city committee and the Young Men's Republican Club looking after the mass meetings. As already stated, the bulk of the effort to secure Republican votes will be through the medium of campaign literature. The National campaign committee and the State committee have both gone deeply into that department and the Plainfield Republicans will have any quantity of printed matter to distribute.

It is not likely that the Plainfield Republicans will take up the idea inaugurated by some of the cities of forming "Rough Rider" campaign clubs. There will probably be no attempt to form any uniformed club for parading purposes unless the campaign should develop into a red-hot one.

A hundred invitations have been sent out in the borough for a meeting which is to be held in Spencer's Hall, Somerset street, Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock. The object of the meeting is to organize a Republican campaign club. Those who have started this movement are the ones who were interested in putting up the Republican banner over Somerset street. It is not yet known whether or not the Republican county committee will form another campaign organization or unite with this one.

Enlarging the Culvert.

The culvert at the intersection of Woodland and South avenues is being enlarged so as to drain the streets more satisfactorily at that point. The work is being done by the city and the Street Railway Company jointly. On the occasion of every severe storm the water has gathered there in great puddles. The improvement is expected to do away with that state of affairs. Residents in that neighborhood are much pleased.

Guide Installed.

At the meeting of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W., Thursday evening, the recently elected guide, W. H. Lunger, was installed by the district deputy grand master and staff. Several candidates were initiated.

HEIRS IN CONTEST.

Attempt to Foreclose a Mortgage is Objected to Until an Accounting is Made.

A contest is now on hand between the Johnson heirs over the property left by the late Eliza Johnson. A mortgage was made, it is alleged, over twenty years ago by her to her son, John Wesley Johnson. Recently he assigned the mortgage to his son Harry, who brought foreclosure proceedings.

Alfred C. Johnson, one of the brothers, defends and files a cross bill against John Wesley Johnson, claiming that the latter is the real owner of the mortgage, and that he has had the rents and profits of the property for many years and that he should account for these monies to the other heirs. That if the mortgage was ever made it has been liquidated and paid by the receipt of these monies.

This promises to be an interesting fight in Chancery. Messrs. Bruce & Runyon appear for Alfred C. Johnson, and Messrs. Nelson and William N. Runyon appear for the complainant, Harry F. Johnson.

NOT QUITE NINETY.

Sudden Death of an Old Lady in Raritan—Her Right Arm Broken.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 13.—Jane S. Wyckoff, aged 89, died yesterday at the residence of her son, James C. Wyckoff, at Raritan. Thursday afternoon Mrs. James C. Wyckoff went out to call on some friends, leaving her mother-in-law in good health. When she returned she found the old lady lying unconscious at the foot of the stairs. Help was obtained and the injured woman carried to a bed while medical assistance was summoned. An examination showed that the old lady's right arm was broken near the shoulder and head injured. It was thought that she had a stroke of apoplexy while descending the stairs. She never regained consciousness.

NAVAL RESERVES AFLOAT.

Jersey Boys Start on Prairie for 'Annual Seven Days' Cruise.

With twenty officers and 174 men of the New Jersey Naval Reserve on board, the auxiliary cruiser Prairie sailed away from Hoboken yesterday on the annual seven days' cruise.

During the cruise Commander Irving will be in charge of the three divisions of the Battalion of the East, and Commander Potter will command the divisions of the Battalion of the West. Commander Irving will be assisted by Lieutenant Commander Mc Lean, Lieutenants Davenport, O'Rourke and McGovern, Ensigns Patton and Soper and Paymaster Colby.

Captain Swift is in command of the Prairie, and will report the work of the Reserves to the Navy Department.

No Permanent Driver Yet.

Since the illness and death of Driver James E. Bailey, the position as driver of the wagon of Chief Doane, of the fire department, has been filled by Bert Townley, a brother to William Townley, driver of the chemical engine. No permanent appointment of driver for the chief's wagon has yet been made but Townley seems to be doing very well.

Iron-workers Strike at Phillipsburg.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Phillipsburg, July 14.—Moulders, pattern makers and blacksmiths, employed at the Vulcanite Works, have gone on strike. They had been getting $2.50 per day and struck because they were asked to work piece work, whereby they claim they could only earn $1.50 per day. Nearly one hundred men are idle.

Hydrophobia Fatal to Cow.

A valuable cow belonging to Assessor Chas. Alpaugh, of Flemington, died from hydrophobia after two days' suffering with the disease. It is not known when the cow was bitten. A dog suffering with the rabies was shot by John Hoppock, near Flemington, after biting his dog recently, and it was probably bitten by the canine.

The "Last" Sale.

The sale of Plainfield property under the provisions of the Martin Act will take place Friday, July 27th, at Collector Smith's office. This will be the last sale of the property.

DIDN'T PULL OFF FIGHT.

SCRAP HAD BEEN ARRANGED BETWEEN LOCAL PUGILISTS.

Trouble Between the Principals and the Man Who Owned the Place Where Fight Was to be Held.

There were twenty-five disappointed sports last evening that gathered at a certain place not far from the heart of Plainfield for the purpose of witnessing a prize fight for $50 a side between two well-known local men. The arrangements for the fight were all made and each man had posted his $50. The referees and timers were engaged and on hand and everyone looked for a good time.

At the last minute there was a hitch between the principals and the man who owned the place where the fight was to take place. This trouble could not be adjusted and the fight was postponed for one week, when every precaution will be taken to prevent any interference or a hitch in the programme.

Previous to the time for the fight last evening a great deal of money changed hands and each man was well represented by numbers of supporters. Although the affair was kept exceedingly quiet it was feared by some that the police would get on to it. They did not, however, and the sports do not look for any trouble in this direction next week.

ENJOYED THEMSELVES.

Members of Iona Council Entertained in a Royal Manner at Perth Amboy Last Night.

If Mohawk Council, of Perth Amboy, will extend a second invitation to Iona Council, D. of P., of this city, it is almost a certainty that the members will break all previous engagements to accept. This willingness comes from the enjoyable time which the Perth Amboy Council gave to the local members last evening, who left here by stage about 7 o'clock. Iona Council assisted in the installation of officers, after which an informal dance was held and an enjoyable evening was concluded by the serving of refreshments. So well did the visitors enjoy themselves that it was nearly 2 o'clock this morning before they reached home. Among those present from this city was Mrs. Dilkes, of Junietta Council No. 40, of Bridgeton and also of the Great Council. Mrs. Dilkes is visiting relatives on West Fourth street.

NO NEWS FROM WESTBROOK.

Official Statement Says He is Ill and on Vacation.

No word was received yesterday as to the whereabouts of L. E. Westbrook, of Westfield, the Grand Trunk agent, who mysteriously disappeared Monday. Manager Dwyer left for Montreal Thursday night. A Montreal dispatch to The World last night said the general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk had made this official statement:

"All we can say is that L. Westbrook has been ill for some time and has been away on a vacation."

A Matter of Salaries.

The average salary paid to Methodist ministers in the United States last year was $473.35. It may be readily inferred that this doesn't give any encouragement to "riotous living," but provides only for the necessities of life, one of which, as any experienced Methodist minister will tell you, is a pair of reliable glasses; they don't cost much at Collier's, and their scientific adjustment is guaranteed.

Assisted Somerville Brethern.

A number of members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., assisted in the initiation of two members and the installation of officers at the Odd Fellow Lodge of Somerville last evening. Refreshments and a social time followed and the members reached home about midnight.

Borough Mayoralty Possibilities.

Among the possibilities mentioned to succeed Mayor N. B. Smalley in the borough next year are Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., and Former Borough Clerk James K. Arnold. The friends of each are urging them to allow their name to be put before the people at the next election.

Adjourned for a Week.

The contract case of John M. Scorb, Sr., against William Trust and Wm. A. Scorb against William Trust were called in Justice Mattison's Court this morning and adjourned for one week from next Monday.

To Install Officers.

Miss R. H. P. Boles, high worthy lady grand, and Mrs. James, right worthy lady grand, of Boston, Mass., will install the officers-elect of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, U. O. of I. O. L., Monday evening, July 23d.

THOUSANDS THERE TO HEAR BAND CONCERT.

Great Success of the First of the Open Air Concerts Held in Front of Hotel Kensington.

THE MOON WAS PRESENT.

A DELIGHTFULLY COOL EVENIMG ENHANCED THE PLEASURE

Throng Was so Great on North Avenue That Police Had Trouble in Keeping Passage Open—Crowd Was Orderly—A Fine Programme Rendered

Even the moon was there last evening. He rose above the eastern horizon in his full, yellow roundness and peeped over the housetops at the great crowd that assembled on North avenue. Naturally the moon was surprised. But he saw Ben LaVere standing up on the platform in front of the Hotel Kensington and the rest of his band sitting before him under the control of his baton and, having read the Daily Press of the day before, his Lunar Majesty remembered that it was the first of the series of open air concerts that LaVere's band is to give this summer.

As far as the band was concerned, the concert was a decided success. The Plainfield public showed its approval in no uncertain manner. During the evening over two thousand people stopped near by or wandered up and down listening to the music.

The band occupied a stand right in front of the Hotel Kensington. Shortly after 8 o'clock the first selection was given and "Home, Sweet Home" was played at 10 o'clock. The programme was an excellent one, combining the popular airs with the more classical numbers. Some of the best of the local musicians, assisted by other professional talent from New York, made up the band. Although it was their first time together, the result was eminently satisfactory and promised still better for future concerts.

It was really wonderful to see the crowd stream in the direction of the concert even before darkness came. They came from every direction to crowd North avenue from Park avenue to the station. The wheelmen were out in force and lined the gutters and appropriated part of the street. Carriages came by and stopped to hear the music. Soon North avenue was so choked that the police had the greatest difficulty in keeping a passage way through the throng. Everybody was good natured, however, and took the crowding as a joke.

The young folks were out in force, the young women in their light summer gowns and the young men any old way. A laugh burst out here, a giggle there and all seemed delighted with the concert. It was delightfully cool and when the moon peeped out the effect was complete.

The concerts are to be a regular feature of summer life in Plainfield this season. They will be held every Friday evening, or in case of rain that night on the following Saturday evening. To the enterprise of Benjamin LaVere, leader of the band, the people of Plainfield are much indebted for this weekly concert. He planned the concerts and Proprietor J. H. Staats, of the Hotel Kensington, made it possible to carry out the plans. The public spiritedness of the latter in thus giving the people of Plainfield a musical treat brought forth many congratulations for the genial hotel keeper.

SHOT WHEN HE RAN.

So Murphy Stopped and Let Highwaymen Despoil Him.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 14—John Murphy, a trackwalker of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was robbed by three highwaymen last night. A watch, some money, and a passbook, representing $1,755 deposited with the Elizabethport Banking Company, were taken.

When the men confronted Murphy he started on a run, but a shot from a revolver, the bullet grazing his head, caused him to stop. His wound was dressed at the General Hospital.

Wedded in Trenton.

The marriage of Mrs. Eleanor J. Geisinger, of 126 West Fourth street, this city, and Julian C. Edgerley, night editor of the New York Journal, took place yesterday afternoon at the Trinity M. E. church, Trenton. The ceremony was quietly performed by Rev. C. H. Elder, pastor of that church. The bride was a member of Rev. Mr. Elder's church when he was located at Newport, N. J., and she desired her old pastor to marry her. She has been located in this city for several years. A party of friends and relatives were present at the wedding.

SAID 'TWAS OTHER MAN.

JUDGE RUNYON DISMISSED THE COMPLAINT AGAINST VANBLAKE.

Hotel Waiters Said That Mrs. Bishop Picked Out the Wrong Man—Mrs. Bishop Sure She Did Not.

The trial of Edward H. VanBlake, the colored waiter at the Hotel Netherwood, who was charged with insulting Mrs. Lillian F. Bishop on North avenue Thursday afternoon, was continued in the City Court before City Judge William N. Runyon this morning. The case first came up yesterday morning when Mrs. Bishop and her witness presented their case. The defense was made this morning, and proved so strong that the Judge dismissed the complaint.

VanBlake and three of the other waiters at the hotel all testified to the same story. They agreed that VanBlake and another of the party, who somewhat resembled VanBlake, had been talking about two colored women on the opposite side of the street. This same man admitted asking Mrs. Bishop what was the matter when he passed her at Lister's store as he heard her say something about having that "nigger" arrested.

Mrs. Bishop remained positive in her identification of VanBlake as the man who spoke to her. Counsellor W. K. McClure represented the prisoner and explained that it was merely a case of mistaken identity.

The Judge decided that the evidence was not sufficient to prove that VanBlake was the man. The preponderance of evidence was, he said, in favor of the defendant. So he dismissed the complaint.

A FRENCH GAME THIS.

A Queer Device Intended for Amusement, in Which a Frog Plays a Big Part.

A queer looking device was to be seen at the U. S. Express office this morning and it attracted considerable attention. It had every appearance of being a French game of very old style, and was billed to F. Chambon, who resides over the mountains. It was in the shape of a box about a foot and a half in height. In front were several openings and beneath each one there are marked figures from 20 to 2,000. On top there are several holes and in the centre is a cast-iron frog, directly in front of which is a small cast-iron wheel with flanges. So far as can be learned the idea is to stand off some distance and throw a heavy weight and try to put it either in the frog's throat or in any of the various holes on top. By putting the weight in the throat it counts 2,000. All of the openings on top lead to the openings in front through small channels. No doubt the game is an interesting one. For lack of a proper name some of those who looked at the thing this morning called it "leap-frog."

Apples are Scarce.

Samuel Boss, of Craig place, who has been absent from home four months, during which time he has been south looking after the fruit crop for the New York market, says that there will be an abundance of most every kind of fruit excepting apples. He says that the peach crop will be the finest in years, and this is also true of watermelons, tomatoes, etc. He predicts that the prices for fruit will be quite reasonable, that is for the best kind.

To Send Flowers to Poor Sick.

The members of the Charity Circle, King's Daughters, who were to meet every Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of Mrs. L. H. Biglow, Jr., on Madison avenue, to pack flowers to be sent to the poor sick in New York, will meet next Wednesday with Miss Randolph, corner of Central avenue and West Sixth street, as Mrs. Biglow and family will be away for a time.

Died Without a Will.

Thomas B. Greene, who died last Wednesday at his home on East Front Front street, did not leave a will as many supposed. Mr. Green was to have made a will the day previous to his death, when he expected his brother in New York to visit him. The brother was detained for some and could not come to Plainfield, thus Mr. Greene died intestate.

New Fire Extinguisher.

E. J. Swan, the inventor of Swan's dry powder fire extinguisher, will give an exhibition of putting out a fierce fire 40 to 60 feet high, of fats, oils, tar and wood, corner of Park avenue and Front street, next Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Officers to be Installed.

When the officers of the Union Veterans' Union are installed next week Wednesday evening by the National officers from Washington, a supper will be served by the Women's Relief Corps.

JOY FOR FINGERHUTHS.

Father and Sons Were Working With Might and Main to Pay Fine When Pardon Came.

When the news of her pardon was told Mrs. Catherine Fingerhuth she could hardly believe it, but she finally accepted it with joy, manifesting the first emotion since her sentence was imposed. She expressed a desire to remain until Friday with Jailer Anderson's family in order that she might notify her husband and sons, and her request was granted.

Mr. Fingerhuth is living on a farm about a mile from the scene of the tragedy, and has been working like a beaver to raise money to pay his wife's fine. The two Fingerhuth boys are both working in New York and have been saving their money for the same purpose. They would walk to Somerville to see their mother in order to save car fare, and generally lugged along a big basket of things for her. There will be great rejoicing in the family and the public as well are pleased over Mrs. Fingerhuth's release.

The league will meet in New York July 17th, and will have its second day's session here on the site of the home. Delegations from Baltimore and Boston will be present, and Mrs. Marian L. PALISADE COMMISSIONERS

Jerseymen and New Yorkers Meet and Organize—View the Palisades.

The Palisade Commissioners of New York and those of New Jersey met yesterday in Hoboken at the residence of Col. E. A. Stevens. The Commissioners wanted to make ex-Mayor Hewitt, of New York, President of the board, but Mr. Hewitt insisted on Col. Stevens taking the place, and the Colonel was elected. When the meeting adjourned the Commission took a trip up the Hudson abroad the steam yacht Aileen and got a close view of the Palisades. The Commissioners will meet alternately in New York and New Jersey. Yesterday's meeting was chiefly for the purpose of organization.

Cake Sale Held on the Lawn.

The cake sale that was held Thursday evening and continued last evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace M. E. church, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard R. Ross, 11 Coddington avenue, was fairly well attended and quite successful. The affair was in charge of Mrs. Willard R. Ross, chairman; Mrs. Hoffman, Mrs. Stine and Mrs. McGinnis, and they arranged an attractive place under the large trees on the lawn. The proceeds of the sale will be given to the Deaconess' Home at Newark.

Laborers Laid off.

As the work on the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway is about finished, all but forty of the Italian laborers were discharged and paid off yesterday. Owing to the suits pending against the continuation of the cross country road from Westfield to Springfield, it is hardly probable that that part of the line will be built this summer, though the company is ready to go on with it.

Suicide Interred Here.

The funeral of Josie Concoran, the young girl who committed suicide Tuesday morning by drowning herself in the Morris canal at the rear of Greenville Schuetzen Park, was held at the home of her father, 212 Sea View avenue, Bayonne, yesterday morning. The body was brought to Plainfield yesterday and interred in the family plot.

Hand Badly Gashed.

Charles Carlson, of Grant avenue, an employe at Pond's, had his right hand badly gashed yesterday by getting it caught in a planer bed. He had the injury dressed and was able to continue his work.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM A GRAVE IN THE BAY

Thrilling Experience of Two Plainfield Boys in the Storm Thursday.

THEIR BOAT WAS CAPSIZED.

STRUGGLED IN THE WATER NEARLY HALF AN HOUR.

Finally Picked Up by a Steam Launch and Landed on Staten Island, Where They Remained Over Night.

Those who remember the ominous clouds which circled around Plainfield Thursday and seemed to meet towards the south, knew little of the havoc that meeting caused along the Jersey shore and on Staten Island. Pleasure parties and fishermen who were on the water, in many instances, narrowly escaped with their lives, while boats were lost without number.

Among those who had narrow escapes were two young men of this city who had been fishing opposite Perth Amboy, but having poor luck had sailed well out past the Great Beds lighthouse in Raritan Bay. These young men were William Pearson, of Vine street, and Wilbur Bentliff, of East Seventh street. They had ridden over to Perth Amboy on their wheels and, renting a boat, had spent the day on the water.

They saw the storm approaching and attempted to get in shore, but on account of the strong wind and roughness of the water, progress was very slow. When midway between the light-house and the Staten Island shore the storm was upon them and it required all their efforts to prevent the boat from swamping. As the storm grew in force, they saw that the boat was likely to turn any minute and they prepared for it by taking off all their clothing but sweaters and trousers. They were none too soon, for suddenly a huge wave rose over the boat and filled it with water. Before they could right it, or bail the water out, another wave struck it and it sank almost immediately.

The boys were left struggling in the water nearly half a mile from land. Being good swimmers they struck out for the light-house which was the nearest point to them, but they were nearly exhausted before getting half way to it. They then gave up all hope of reaching land and used all their efforts to keeping afloat.

After being in this situation for nearly twenty minutes, their plight was seen by a party aboard a steam launch who picked them up and carried them to Bay Cliff, Staten Island, for which point they were bound. Here they were landed without coats, hats or shoes. As it was still raining they resolved to stay at a boat house until morning, when they would be able to ride home.

They were kindly taken to Perth Amboy in the morning by the crew of the ferry boat which plies between that place and Bay Cliff. The owner of the boat had given them up for lost as no one had seen them picked up. The boatmen loaned them each a hat and pair of shoes and they reached home about 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Besides their clothing they lost two costly fishing rods and a number of valuables, which in the excitement of the moment they neglected to take from their coats.

Had the boys been unable to swim or had the launch arrived a few minutes later there is no doubt but what they would have been drowned. As it is they still feel the effects of their long swim and of the hard night passed in the boat house.

Mad dogs in Hunterdon County.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemmington, July 14.—The citizens of Upper Hunterdon had another exciting mad dog chase yesterday. The dog first made its appearance at John Hoffman's, where a large English mastiff was bitten. The rabid animal then ran toward Potterstown and Bissel, biting several more dogs, and at Oliver Shurt's bit two dogs, after which he was dispatched by John L. Shurts. Many dogs have gone mad in Hunterdon County recently, and scores of canines have met untimely deaths because of coming into contact with them. Several cows in different section have gone mad after being bitten by dogs having hydrophobia.

A Place for Improvement.

New that the upper end of Watchung avenue has been macadamized it is time the borough officials turned their eyes to the upper part of Westervelt avenue. This avenue is used a great deal and since it opens directly to the Park Golf Club course it should be made to correspond with the macadamized part of that avenue.

FAILURES EXPLAINED.

Adjustment of Values Has Caused No Alarming Conditions.

If the great increase in failures to $100,570,134 in the first half of 1900 against $49,664,661 last year, and especially to $43,893,079 in the second quarter against $21,695,635 last year, gave no occasion for diligent search, failure returns would be worth nothing. But today it is shown that 30 banking failures for $25,822,682 against 31 last year for $7,601,728 accounted for much of the difference; that 265 brokerage and real estate failures for $22,122,340 against 145 last year for only $2,328,215 accounted for another part, and that in building and lumber working and trade other large failures distinctly connected with those in real estate explain much more of the difference between manufacturing and trading failures last year and this. In these and much less important changes in a few other lines are seen substantially all the commercial disasters as yet resulting from an amazing rise in prices last year, followed by weary but largely successful efforts during the past few months to get back to a normal state of business.

Rarely has there been more rapid change toward normal prices than of late, and yet July failures thus far show not one of $100,000 or more except in real estate, building, lumber and cycles or automobiles, leaving a few manufacturing failures for $262,973 and trading failures averaging hardly $5,000 each. The volume of domestic trade continues greater than in any previous year outside New York and Boston, at those cities exceeded only by last year in the heat of excitement about securities. Foreign exports, for the first time exceeding $1,400,000,000 in the year just closed, are in July 4 per cent more than last year, with imports 1.4 per cent larger. Heavy loans to other countries cause rumors of gold exports to pass without notice.

To Rebuild Hoboken Piers.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Director General Christopher Leist, General Agent Schwab and Superintendent Moeller of the North German Lloyd Steamship company have made a survey of the burned piers at Hoboken, accompanied by Engineer Beul of the company. At the conclusion of their tour of inspection none of them would positively outline the plans for reconstruction, but it was said that the work will be begun immediately. The old piles and debris which litter up the water front will be torn out as soon as it is possible to make contracts for the work. In all probability the new piers will be constructed of steel and stone. Until the new piers are replaced the express steamers of the line will sail from pier 52, Manhattan, which the Cunard line has turned over to the Bremen line.

Sunnyside Sold.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., July 14.—Sunnyside, famous as the home of Washington Irving, has been sold by Mrs. Charlotte C. Graves to Mr. Henry Graves, Jr., of New York for $125,000. Mrs. Graves has occupied the place for several years. She is in no way related to the purchaser. The homestead is on the corner of Sunnyside avenue and Broadway at Irvington and looks out upon the Hudson. Since Washington Irving resided there there has been no change in the premises except that a new three story brick house has been built upon the property. The grounds, which retain nearly their original appearance, consist of nine acres, running along the east side of the Croton aqueduct. It is said that Mr. Graves will occupy the place as a summer residence.

Plot to Destroy the Palace?

PARIS, July 14.—The origin of the two boxes of explosives discovered by a watchman in the cellars of the Grand Palace of the Champ Elysees is still a mystery. The police believe they were left by workmen when they excavated the foundations of the building or were hidden there by thieves who intended to recover them later. The feeling in other quarters, however, is that a plot existed to burn the palace, and a connection is made between the discovery and the recent fire at the Chateau d'Eau, which investigation showed to have been the work of an incendiary.

Sage May Buy Railroad.

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 14.—Messrs. Russell Sage of New York and H. H. McLean of St. John have been appointed receivers of the Shore Line railroad at the instance of the Metropolitan Trust company of New York. The management of the road needs $100,000 for operating. Mr. Sage holds two-thirds of the bonds and is willing to advance the money, but it is said the other bondholders will not. The road will be foreclosed and sold for Mr. Sage, who, it is believed, will bid the property in.

Captain Coghlan Dangerously Ill.

COLORADO SPRINGS, July 14.—Captain Joseph Coghlan is dangerously ill, the result of pneumonia. An operation was necessary, and his recovery is doubtful. Captain Coghlan was commander of the Raleigh under Dewey at Manila. Captain Coghlan and his wife arrived here on Tuesday from Seattle. The captain has been a sufferer from pleurisy. He came here from nine months of invalidism in a hospital.

BRIDGE WORK

In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

Consul Goodnow Sends Discouraging News.

SLAUGHTER OF FOREIGNERS BELIEVED

Boxers and Soldiers Bombarded Legations For the Final Attack July 7—No Details of the Horrible Massacre.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The state department has received a bulletin from Consul Goodnow, at Shanghai, indicating that the worst had happened at Peking. His information is indefinite and comes through the governor of Shangtung.

The governor of Shangtung wires that the Boxers and soldiers were bombarding the legations for a final attack upon the 7th of July.

He is extremely anxious for the safety of the ministers and our Chinese friends in Peking. The consul adds that fears of the worst are generally entertained.

As a result of the news from Consul General Goodnow hope for the safety of the legations at Peking has been abandoned here.

The reasons assigned by the state department for believing that all of the foreigners at Peking have been murdered were yesterday summarized as follows:

MINISTER CONGER.

"Consul Goodnow's information comes from the governor of Shangtung, who has heretofore used every means to conceal the real condition of affairs at Peking.

"All of his previous dispatches to Goodnow have tended to minimize the danger to the legations at Peking. It was done to cause delay.

"The governor of Shangtung did not wish the world to know the horrible atrocities that were being enacted at Peking. He has tried to picture the situation in the best possible light. He now realizes that the horrible slaughter at Peking can no longer be concealed and wishes to break the news as gently as possible.

"The details of the massacre will only be got by degrees."

This country is now powerless to take any immediate action. The officials here say that everything is being done that is possible. The United States has to wait for the co-operation of the allied powers in any forward movement.

The troops to be sent to China are being forwarded as rapidly as possible. The delay of an immediate forward movement on Peking is said here to be no fault of the United States, as this country has urgently requested the powers to commence operations looking to the investment of Peking at once.

BARON VON KETTELER.
(German Minister.)

It is rumored here that positive news has been received at the war department confirming the press reports that Minister Conger and all other ministers at Peking have been murdered. The news, it is understood, has been received from army sources in China.

LONDON HEARS LITTLE.

Li Hung Chang to Wait In Canton Incessant Fighting at Tien-tsin.

LONDON, July 14.—The scanty cable dispatches received add nothing to the knowledge in London of the Chinese situation.

The Central News says that an official telegram received in London announces that all the foreigners in Peking were murdered on July 6. The telegram is said to have reached one of the legations and to have emanated from a Chinese official source. The Exchange Telegraph company made inquiries at the Japanese legation concerning the report. The legation officials said that the rumor had been heard by an attache, but that no telegrams had been received by the legation.

It is stated positively from Canton that Li Hung Chang will remain there until the allied troops have defeated Prince Tuan's forces and will then go north to lend his powerful aid in arranging terms of peace, co-operating with Prince Ching Yung-Lu and the other proforeign viceroys. For the present Li Hung Chang considers that he can best control and direct the viceroys from Canton and also keep in check the turbulent province of Kwang-tung.

All the foreigners and missionaries have evacuated Wen-chau and have arrived at Ning-po. Large bodies of Boxers appeared at Wen-chau and threatened to exterminate the foreigners and Christians. They also distributed banners, badges and inflammatory antiforeign appeals.

The Tien-tsin correspondent of The Express, telegraphing under date of July 9, asserts that the Chinese are daily driving in the allies. They have mounted, says the correspondent, 12 fresh guns in advantageous positions, with which they are sweeping the streets of the foreign settlement, the incessant fire rendering position after position quite untenable.

The Daily Mail's St. Petersburg correspondent says that in the last six hours battle outside of Tien-tsin the Cossacks captured six Krupp guns and killed numbers of fleeing Boxers. The Chinese lost 3,000 killed, including General Kek.

Rebels Defeated Near Peking.

BRUSSELS, July 14.—M. de Faberau, minister of foreign affairs, has received a telegram from M. de Cartier de Marchienne, secretary of the Belgian legation at Peking, dated at Shanghai stating on the authority of a Chinese source that troops faithful to General Nieh-Si-Chang had defeated the rebels near Peking and that they recognized the authority of Prince Ching and General Yung-Lu, who strived to defend the Europeans.

Italian Troops For China.

ROME, July 14.—A contingent of troops for China will leave Naples July 18. According to the Tribuna, a second contingent, which, like the first, will be composed of two battalions, will be sent. The expeditionary corps will thus be raised to 5,000 men.

POWERS CASE ON.

Jury Secured and Evidence Begun In Goebel Murder Case.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., July 14.—The jury was completed in the Powers case yesterday, and the first evidence was heard.

Before the hearing of evidence began Colonel Campbell stated the case for the prosecution. He reviewed the political events of last fall and especially the events following the election and the instituting of contests by the Democratic candidates for state offices. He said that Caleb Powers was the most aggressive among those who sought to settle the contest by violence and that to him largely was due the importation to Frankfort of the band of mounted men, 175 of whom were retained in Frankfort regularly. He charged that a majority of them had killed from one to several men each. He claimed it was put in evidence that on Jan. 28 Mr. Powers made use of a statement that "Goebel has not as many days to live as I have fingers on my hand." He reviewed the facts in connection with the assassination and claimed that the statehouse yard had been cleared in furtherance of the conspiracy, cited the closing of the executive building against the police officers, the calling out of troops and other matters which have already come out in the examining trials as further proof of the conspiracy.

D. Meade Woodson, ex-city engineer of Frankfort, who made the measurements by which the prosecution through mathematical demonstrations attempted to prove that the shot was fired from Powers' office, was the first witness placed on the stand.

TRAIN ROBBER CAUGHT.

One of the Gang That Looted Illinois Central Express Car Confesses.

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—Charles W. Barnes of 4300 West Bell place, this city, suspected of being one of the robbers who looted an express car on the Illinois Central railway of several thousand dollars near Wickliffe, Ky., Wednesday morning, was arrested at his home yesterday.

John Nelson of 3658 Finney avenue, Barnes' alleged partner, escaped, leaving a trail of blood. Forty shots were exchanged between the fugitive and the officers, who pursued him to Vandeventer station, where he disappeared.

Special Agent George Murray of the Illinois Central railway detective bureau was shot by Nelson, but will recover.

Barnes was taken without bloodshed At police headquarters Express Messenger Hickox, whose car was robbed, partially identified Barnes, who, he said, resembles the robber who saved him from death at the hands of the others.

Late in the afternoon Barnes confessed to Chief of Detectives Desmond and Chief of Police Campbell that he, together with John Nelson and a man named Dyer, alias Conley, robbed the Illinois Central railroad train in Kentucky. Barnes stated that Dyer came from San Francisco four months ago and that the plot was all arranged in this city.

New Commemorative Stamps.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The inscription "Commemorative Series, 1901," instead of "Pan-American Series, 1901," will be borne on the stamps issued by the government in commemoration of the Buffalo Pan-American exposition. This is in accordance with an opinion rendered by Assistant Attorney General Tyner on the question submitted by Third Assistant Postmaster General Madden. Mr. Tyner decides that section 3,708, revised statutes, in all probability was intended by congress to prevent the use of postage stamps from becoming a medium of advertising ordinary business transactions.

The Charges Against Rathbone.

HAVANA, July 14.—The fiscal says that former Director General of Posts E. G. Rathbone will not be arrested until all the papers in the Neely case shall have been received from Washington and that the only absolute criminal charge certain is that of the misappropriation of $1,000. He also says that a civil suit for more than $25,000 will be instituted against Rathbone's bondsmen, but as Rathbone is already held as a witness the fiscal thinks it better to await the developments of the Neely case in order to see if the claim of Deputy Auditor Reeves that Rathbone received $15,000 can be substantiated.

Railway Shops Burned.

ST. PAUL, July 14.—Fire which broke out in the Chicago Great Western railway shops at South Park yesterday afternoon destroyed the entire plant. The shops of the railroad company have been moved to Oelwein, Ia., and the buildings were used as storehouses. The loss, it is estimated, will be from $100,000 to $150,000. The buildings were filled with shingles.

A Horrible Death.

TOLEDO, July 14.—Clifford Billsy, a son of Charles Billsy of Norwalk, died a horrible death from lockjaw caused by jumping on to a thorn which penetrated his foot. His body was drawn into horrible shape during his contortions, his heels touching the back of his head.

BRITISH LOSS HEAVY

Late Reports Confirm Defeat at Nitral's Nek.

LINCOLNSHIRES BADLY SHATTERED.

General De Wet's Force of 10,000 Men Have Taken Up a Strong Position In the Hills—President Steyn With Them.

LONDON, July 14.—Lord Roberts has sent nothing further concerning the Nitral's nek affair. Pretoria dispatches, however, show that the Lincolnshires lost half of their officers, including Colonel Roberts, who was wounded and taken prisoner. Stragglers continue to arrive at the camp, but few further details can be gathered. The British fought stubbornly until nightfall, when the cavalry turned their horses loose.

The Boer report of the engagement places the British casualties at over 200.

In the Derdepoort affair mentioned in Lord Roberts' dispatch the men in the front rank of the Boers wore khaki uniforms and helmets, and the dragoons passed them unsuspectingly under the impression that they were the hussars. The mistake was not discovered until the Boers opened a heavy fire, when the dragoons were within 400 yards.

British prisoners who have escaped to Kroonstadt report that General De Wet's force of 10,000 men, with ten guns, expelled from Bethlehem by General Clements and General Paget, have taken up a strong position 15 miles to the southward in the hills around Reteif nek. President Steyn is reported to be with them.

Another case of the Boers' wearing khaki is reported to have happened at Lindley on June 26, when they surprised a picket of 25 men of the Yorkshire light infantry, 18 of whom were killed or wounded.

Clery at Witpoort.

WITPOORT, Transvaal, July 14.—General Clery's column, which has moved easterly, is now camped here. During the march the mounted infantry engaged 200 Boers, shelling a ridge occupied by the burghers. It is anticipated that this movement will clear the country from Standerton to Heidelberg, as the troops found but one remaining laager, from which the Boers retired hurriedly.

Universalists Against Prohibition.

ATLANTA, July 14.—A heated discussion was precipitated in the third day's session of the Young People's Christian Union of the Universalist church by the introduction of a resolution against the liquor traffic. The resolution imposed total abstinence on the members of the union and enlisted their efforts to secure laws, municipal and national, that would prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. Rev. F. W. Perkins of Connecticut protested that the resolution was a restraint on the liberty of individual action. Rev. A. C. Grier of Racine, Wis., made an impassioned speech in favor of the resolution. It was defeated by a majority of 26.

New Japanese Minister.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The state department has been advised by the Japanese legation of the appointment of Mr. Kogoro Takahila as Japanese minister at Washington. He is due in Washington about the middle of next month, when he will present his credentials to the president. Mr. Takahira is one of the most prominent members of the Japanese foreign service and until his appointment has been vice minister of foreign affairs. He has had extended experience in diplomacy, his official career beginning in this country some 25 years ago, when he was an attache of the legation here.

Must Not Slight Bryan.

CHICAGO, July 14.—The Post says: "The fact that William J. Bryan had not been invited to attend the Grand Army encampment to be held here next month was brought to the attention of Mayor Harrison yesterday, and the mayor at once addressed a letter to the encampment committee pointing out the omission. Unless at the meeting of the G. A. R., which President McKinley is to attend, the same attention is paid to the presidential candidates of both parties Mayor Harrison said the encampment would pass without the official recognition of the city."

Dead at 107.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., July 14.—Michael Maloney of Glenwood, Susquehanna county, is dead, aged 107 years. He was one of the pioneer residents of northern Pennsylvania. At the age of 104 years he underwent a very critical surgical operation. Until within a very few years he was in possession of all of his faculties. He was probably the oldest person in Pennsylvania.

Riot In Belfast.

BELFAST, July 14.—A riot occurred here last evening, when a party of Nationalists tried to demolish the Orange triumphal arch. The attempt was followed by a fight, in the course of which the women tore up paving stones and handed them to the combatants. The police charged the rioters and dispersed them. A sergeant and several constables were severely injured.

Strikers Hoist the Black Flag.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 14.—Four hundred strikers paraded at Bell island yesterday headed by a black flag. They are determined to do no work and to permit none to be done while their leaders are imprisoned. The strikers have induced all the men who came to work to throw down their tools, the nonstrikers being unable to obtain lodgings or goods on the island.

President Zelaya For a Third Term.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 14.—Many of the most prominent natives of Leon banqueted President Zelaya on the termination of a general and enthusiastic celebration of the seventh anniversary of Zelaya's party's control of the government of Nicaragua. During the proceedings he was urged to accept a third term as president.

Chain Works Burned.

PITTSBURG, July 14.—The Garlatie Chain works at Rankin, Pa., were destroyed by fire last night. Loss, $100,000. The fire was caused by the explosion of a tank of chemicals. No one was injured.

Ice Still Blocks Navigation.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 14.—A coastal mail steamer which has returned from Labrador reports the straits of Belle Isle still filled with ice.

THE ST. LOUIS STRIKE.

Transit Company Makes a Statement—Strike Leaders Active.

ST. LOUIS, July 14.—General Manager George W. Baumhoff of the St. Louis Transit company gave out a signed statement yesterday in reply to the published charges made by the strikers, in which the latter charged that Baumhoff had violated the agreement entered into on July 2. General Manager Baumhoff denies that he violated in the slightest degree the agreement between the strikers' committee and the Transit company. He says he has strictly adhered to the agreement and endeavored to act fairly with the strikers at all times. The general manager's statement, which is a very lengthy one, is a denial of all the charges made by the strikers against him. The statement closes as follows:

"Had the present organization been conducted in the interests of the street railway employees instead of for the benefit of a few imported self chosen leaders there would have been no strike, and all the differences existing between the company and its employees would have been cheerfully and promptly settled on."

President W. D. Mahon of the Street Railway Men's union arrived here yesterday from Detroit. He will take charge of the strike at once. Two thousand solicitors engaged by the trades and labor unions to canvass the city and collect funds for the striking street railway men's bus lines began work yesterday.

Floods In Galveston.

GALVESTON, July 14.—Thirteen and sixty-three one-hundredths inches of rain has fallen in Galveston in 23 hours. Most of it fell in less than 15 hours. This surpasses all previous records. Water 12 and 15 inches deep filled the streets from curb to curb in the business part of the city and in some places from house to house, flooding the lower floors and doing considerable damage to goods stored thereon. In some parts of the city the water was three feet deep. It came down in such torrents that the sewers and drains were inadequate to carry it off.

Christian Endeavorers In London.

Americans are greatly in evidence at the convention, the chairman, the Rev. Francis E. Clark, president of the organization, being an American, as is also John Willis Baer, the general secretary.

REPORT FROM NOME.

A New Yorker Tells of the Gold Coast.

VERY POOR PLACE FOR A POOR MAN

Papers and Transportation Companies Blamed For Misrepresenting Conditions—Yellow Metal Not Plenty—Cost of Living Great.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Gustav Rudolph, who has just returned from Cape Nome, was seen at his home, 826 Broadway, Brooklyn, last night, and he gave a detailed account of his trip to the Alaskan country and the condition of affairs there.

Mr. Rudolph is 39 years of age and was formerly in business in this city. He has spent the greater part of his life in mining, having gone to the Black hills in 1877 and later to the Klondike. He left Brooklyn May 16 last and Seattle on May 24, arriving at Cape Nome June 12. Soon after his arrival there he sprained his right leg. Being practically crippled and finding the conditions there were no incentive to stay, he left Cape Nome on June 20. He left Seattle on his return home on July 1 and arrived here in Brooklyn on Monday last.

He does not consider the prospects of the people in the mining regions for the coming winter promising and thinks there will be much suffering.

Mr. Rudolph blames the coast papers, together with the transportation companies, for misrepresenting the condition of affairs there, thus inducing people to flock to the cape, and these included numbers of stowaways on the various vessels, who when they arrived there were practically penniless. Mr. Rudolph thought that about 3,000 people could make a living at the cape and in the vicinity, but no more. He says Alaska is not a poor man's country. In a letter to the secretary of the treasury Mr. Rudolph says:

"A meal costs from $1 to $1.50; coffee and pie or three crullers, 25 cents; a bed, from $2 to $3, or when you furnish your own blankets, from $1 to $1.50. Canned goods are 30 cents a can; bread, 25 cents a loaf; fresh meats, from 75 cents to $1 a pound, and other things in proportion. There was only one toilet for the public, and there you had to pay. For water the cost was 25 cents for four buckets, and wood was nearly all gone except at a point several miles down the beach. Even the little to be found there was half rotten and water soaked. Coal oil is $7 a case and lumber $150 for dry and $125 for green per thousand and is scarce at that. The water wells I saw were from 12 to 18 feet deep and are sure to be contaminated by all of these people being huddled together. When I left, there were tents 20 deep and about three miles long. Now, you don't want to forget that it took more than 50 vessels to bring all of these people to Nome, to say nothing of over 5,000 coming from the Yukon country. There are no inducements for the steamship companies to send their vessels back again for a 'busted' mob. You may think that I am a cold foot miner, but ask any miner who was in that country whether he saw any gold dust in circulation. That is the way to tell a good camp. In eight days I saw only one man pay for a purchase with dust. When asked about it, he said that it was from the Klondike."

Democrats Getting Ready For Work.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Mayor James K. McGuire of Syracuse, who is managing the Bryan campaign in this state, was in conference at the Democratic club yesterday afternoon and at the Hoffman House later with Richard Croker and ex-Senator Murphy. Mr. Croker was invited to serve as a member of the executive committee of the state committee, and he accepted. David B. Hill has also accepted to serve as a member of this committee, as have also Hugh McLaughlin and ex-Senator Murphy. The headquarters will be in the Hoffman House, and the business headquarters will be in the St. James building, where the committee has taken five rooms and will start to work on Monday morning next.

Army Movements.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Arrangements are making to send the squadron of the Third cavalry at Fort Myer, Va., to San Francisco in a few weeks in order that it may embark on the transport Meade, scheduled to sail from that port on the 1st prox. A battalion of the Fifth cavalry ordered home from Porto Rico will take the place of the Third cavalry at Fort Myer. Owing to the urgent need of troops in the orient, however, the Third cavalry will not await arrival of the Fifth cavalry. The troops of the Fifth cavalry and the Eleventh infantry will be brought from Porto Rico to New York on the transport Sedgwick.

Brazil Wants Coal.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Minister Bryan, at Petropolis, writes under a recent date that he is in receipt of an answer to a note which he sent to the Brazilian foreign office, asking for information as to whether a contract could be secured by American people to furnish pit coal to the Central railroad of Brazil. The minister was informed that no doubt the United States coal would be used if it be shown that it is better quality than the coal already submitted for trial.

Heath's Successor.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—So far as known here the appointment of a successor to First Assistant Postmaster General Heath has not been decided upon. Mr. Heath's retirement from the postoffice department following his selection as secretary of the Republican national committee has been contemplated for some time, and there has been some informal discussion as to his successor.

Quiet Day In Canton.

CANTON, O., July 14.—After the crush of people and the exciting incidents of Thursday comparative quiet prevailed at the McKinley home yesterday. The lawn itself was disfigured for this season, but near the house the gardeners have already effected a decided improvement. President McKinley, with Mrs. McKinley and several friends, went out during the day.

Roosevelt Lays Cornerstone.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Governor Theodore Roosevelt yesterday laid the cornerstone of the new county courthouse of the new county of Nassau at Mineola, on Long Island, in the presence of a great crowd of people.

McKinley's Speech of Acceptance.

In his speech at Canton formally accepting a renomination for the Presidency at the hands of the Republicans, as officially conveyed to him by the notification committee appointed by the Philadelphia convention Mr. McKinley has pointed out the issues which he believes to be most important for the Republicans to wage their battle on for the majority votes of the country.

The President has always been an felicitous talker and his speech of acceptance, one of the most important to which he has ever given voice, adds to his reputation for political sagacity and ability. His view of the Republican administration, for which he is responsible, is naturally one of great approval and optimism, and the prospect that he holds out to the country, if he is re-elected in November, is a rosy one judged by the astute word picture he has drawn.

Of course, as to the truth of his statements or the probability of his prophecies being fully realized by the American people, there his political opponents violently disagree with him and are prepared and ready to argue the question with same degree of partisan discrimination and shrewdness that the President himself has resorted to in making his official debut as the Republican standard bearer of this momentous campaign.

Summarized, President McKinley's arguments in behalf of Republicanism are as follows:

The gold standard has been reaffirmed and strengthened.

The tariff, which protects American labor and industry and provides ample revenues, has been written in public law.

The world's markets have been opened to American products, which go now where they have never gone before.

We have prosperity at home and prestige abroad.

The menace of 16 to 1 still hangs over us with all its dire consequence to credit and confidence, to business and industry.

Our political adversaries condemn the tariff law, which at once stimulated our industries, opened the idle factories and mines and gave to the laborers and farmers fair returns for their toil and investment.

A just war has been waged for humanity.

A beneficent government has been provided for Porto Rico.

The Philippines are ours, and American authority must be supreme.

No outside interference blocks the way to peace and a stable government. The reconstructionists are here, not elsewhere.

The sudden and terrible crisis in China calls for the greatest consideration.

My best efforts shall be given to protect the lives of our citizens in peril.

The President has handled the subject of campaign issues in a clever manner for the Republicans, but just how effective they will be cannot be determined until Colonel Bryan has formally declared himself beyond the platform already adopted—giving vent to his personal views in the same way that Mr. McKinley has.

Riding Two Horses.

It is not often that a New Jersey editor is able to ride two horses running against each other with such ease and grace as our esteemed friend, Editor Cloke, of the New Brunswick Fredonian. Mr. Cloke is not only the editorial director of The Fredonian, but he is also the New Jersey political writer for the New York Herald, his column in the metropolitan journal being signed "Trenton." Within the last few days "Trenton" has sprung a vigorous boom for Colonel William Barbour, of Paterson, for the Republican nomination for Governor. In The Herald Mr. Cloke pictures Col. Barbour as the personification of ability and strength necessary to G. O. P. success, and urges his claims with all the talent that his editorial experience permits.

Now, however, Mr. Cloke is observed doing his double-riding act in The Fredonian—this time on a horse of another color. Mr. Cloke's editorial column in The Fredonian pays attention to Mr. Cloke's editorial column in The Herald in the following vivacious manner:

The New York Herald is giving us a midsummer political sensation by starting a boom for Colonel William Barbour, of Paterson, for Governor. And it seems to be exciting considerable attention and interest, not altogether free from uneasiness. There is no doubt that Colonel Barbour would make a fetching candidate and a capable and popular Governor, but the executive chair has been upholstered and prepared for Franklin Murphy this time. Colonel Burbour's time may come; he is deserving and popular; but not next year. Some other year, Colonel.

Mr. Cloke is a political equestrian of prepossessing ability.

The Coming Elections.

This fall State elections are to be held in thirty-nine States, in addition to the vote for President, Vice President and Congressmen, common to all. No State election is held in 1900 in California, Florida, Mississippi, New Jersey and Maryland, notes the Trenton True American. The States which will elect a Governor and State ticket are Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Pennsylvania will elect on the State ticket only the Auditor General, but the next Legislature will be chosen.

Delaware will elect a Governor and a State Legislature, which will choose two United States Senators. The only State officer to be chosen in Ohio and Iowa this year is Secretary of State, and Kentucky will, on account of the tangled condition of affairs arising from the killing of Goebel, elect a Governor to succeed Beckham, and a Lieutenant Governor. Nevada will select a Supreme Court Judge, and Wyoming will choose members of the State Legislature only. Oregon elected Congressmen and a partial State ticket last month, and both Louisana and Rhode Island elected full State tickets last April. Several States hold their State elections prior to the Presidential contest. Alabama's State election is held in August, Arkansas elects its State's officers in September, Maine's State election will be held on the first Monday in September, Vermont's a week later and Georgia votes on the first Wednesday in October.

The Peking Massacre.

Although the morning reports are mainly circumstantial, it seems to be generally accepted as truth that the foreigners—including many Americans—have been slaughtered at Peking by the Boxers, a band of brutal fanatics upon whom the sober impress of civilization has utterly failed to curb into decency.

The lack of information, in face of the ominous reports from the threatened section, would indicate that the worst is be expected when the truth becomes known. The massecre that is believed to have been committed is one of the most appaling tragedies that has ever confronted the march of christianity and civilization. The killing of all of these defenceless and innocent people is a terrible thing, and is stirring the civilized world to a passion of righteous indignation that is of serious portend.

Just what the definite confirmation of the slaughter will bring about, cannot now be told, but it is certain that desperate steps will have to be taken to subdue the Chinese fiends.

If any considerable proportion of newspaper readers skip an advertisement it is because the announcement is less attractive than other parts of the paper, says the Philadelphia Record. A little study of the art will enable the merchant to prepare a readable advertisement; and readable "ads" are always read.

—The new addition to St. Joseph's church, in the borough, and the other improvements that have been under way for some time past, are about completed. The new part will be used for the Sunday-school.

Gentlemen:—My mamma has been a great coffee drinker and has found it very injurious. Having used several packages of your GRAIN-O, the drink that takes the place of coffee, she finds it much better for herself and for us children to drink. She has given up coffee drinking entirely. We use a package of Grain-O every week. I am ten years old.

Westfield, July 14.—James Johnson, of Westfield, made complaint yesterday against Michael Spiliane, also of Westfield, on a charge of petty larceny in taking a crate of tomatoes from Johnson's wagon. Both are peddlers. Spiliane was held to answer the charge.

If Westfield people who leave their houses locked up will notify the policeman in whose beat the house is locate, the place will be looked after. C. P. Wilcox is the day officer. John Knapp is on the south side of the track at night and Elmer Woodruff on the north side.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Among the possessions of Ernest R. Ackerman, of West Eighth street, is an umbrella which has traveled over two hundred thousand miles. Mr. Ackerman has, during the last few years, taken the umbrella abroad with him whenever he went. Umbrellas are generally very easy to loose but Mr. Ackerman has been quite fortunate in retaining possession of this one until it is now quite an experienced traveler.

The bon-fires that were built the night before the Fourth to celebrate the beginning of Independence Day have proved decidedly unpleasant for a number of local wheelmen. The boxes and barrels that went to swell the blaze contained a number of nails. After the fire went out the nails remained in the roadway and have since managed to find their way through the tires of a number of bicycles. The largest connection of nails is on the Grove street hill, near West Front street. There are a few more on West Front street near Madison avenue and others are scattered about the city streets. The debris of the North avenue fires were cleaned up the next day and the nails were thereby prevented from doing much damage.

Now that Boynton Beach can be reached by trolley, hardly a pleasant day passes but there are some Plainfielders to be seen at that popular resort. There are always a few who wheel over by the way of Rahway but bicycle ridling on a hot day is not very tempting and the cool ride on the trolley cars had proved far more popular. Every evening sees a party of young men from this city en route for the beach. Some of them have learned by dear experience the necessity of making an early start for home. The last car has the unhappy faculty sometimes of missing the connection at Picton, which requires a long and tiresome walk to Westfield or a longer or more tiresome trip by rail to Elizabeth and thence home. A great crowd is to be found at Boynton Beach every Sunday when the trolley road accommodations are hardly sufficient to care for it all.

Almost every one in Pennington, Mercer county, has heard of Major Dent. He is a turtle, and according to his custom he has once more appeared at the home of B. Frank Lewis, in that town. Speaking of the visitor, the Pennington Post says:

"This turtle, which was given its name because of a dent in the centre of his back, always arrives Sunday and has not missed coming that particular day until this year, and no doubt he would have been on hand at the usual time if it had not been for Mr. Lewis' nephew, who found him in a field close by Saturday, when his turtleship was on his way to the house. Major Dent takes up his abode in Mr. Lewis' yard and makes himself at home until October, when he leaves for other quarters. He will follow Mrs. Lewis around the yard, and eat from dishes that she prepares for him. He is very fond of raspberries, and with his feet will lift them out of a bowl and eat them with a relish. How the turtle knows Sunday from the other days of the week is a question that has puzzled Mr. Lewis and which he has not been able to solve."

A LONDON TRIUMPH.

The Author of "Smoking Flax" Meets With Social Success Abroad.

Not satisfied with her remarkable success in the literary field, Miss Hallie Erminie Rives, the talented southern novelist, has gone abroad and achieved social triumphs. Miss Rives is one of the American favorites of the present London season, perhaps the leading one. Doors at which ambitious American women have often knocked in vain have swung open to the charming Kentuckian who writes such fascinating stories.

Mrs. James Brown Potter has Miss Rives in charge. On the day of the author's arrival in London the actress telegraphed her to join a party for the Oaks at Epsom. Miss Rives missed connections and although she had never been in England before started out for Epsom alone in a pouring rain. There were 30,000 persons at the race, and to find so notable a being as Mrs. Brown Potter in such a crowd was like looking for a needle in a haystack. But Miss Rives managed to do it, although, as the actress exclaimed when she greeted her friend, no one but an American girl could have succeeded in such a forlorn enterprise.

MISS HALLIE ERMINIE RIVES.

Gallant Sir Thomas Lipton was one of Miss Rives' first callers. One of the pleasant features of her visit to London was the yachting party which the noted yachtsman gave in her honor. Many notable Londoners were present.

Miss Rives has been the guest of Mrs. Potter at Burlington House, St. John's Wood, London, and at her country house on the Thames. Lord Londonderry, postmaster general of Great Britain, and Sir George Murray have also entertained her. Miss Rives, Lady Randolph Churchill and Mrs. Potter were in charge of the "American bar" at the fair given under the patronage of the queen in aid of the wounded soldiers in South Africa.

While at the races at the Grand Prix in Paris the author met with an unpleasant adventure. She occupied a seat on a coach beside President Loubet's box. A Frenchman seeing that she wore at her belt a miniature of England's war hero, Baden-Powell, which was given to her by the colonel's family in London, sprang up on the wheel during the excitement of the last race and tore it off. Her smart gown was utterly ruined in the struggle.

At present Miss Rives is the guest of the Countess of Warwick at her castle.

The author has just completed a new novel of apparently a rather sensational character. It bears the title of "A Furnace of Earth" and will be brought out in the fall by the Camelot company, New York. Miss Rives is in London to arrange for its publication simultaneously in England. She says London has the appearance of being mildewed, but she likes the town none the less for that. She is the latest American author to win that social success in London which the American girl calmly takes as her right.

ETHEL DE VERE.

NOTES OF WOMAN'S WORK.

A young woman who believes herself the reincarnation of Plato is arousing wonder among less inspired people by her remarkable knowledge of Socrates, Plato, Kant and Schopenhauer, whose works she has never read.

Miss Marguerete Cassini, the niece of the Russian embassador at Washington, with whom originated the idea of the Fencing club which has just been inaugurated in that city, says the reason that Russian women are such magnificent specimens of womanhood is that they are imbued with the health argument from earliest childhood and that their lives are regulated to conform with health principles.

The National Patriotic society, which is now forming for the relief of American sailors and soldiers, was the idea of Mrs. Richard Henry Savage, the wife of the novelist. Mrs. Savage is a Russian by birth, a Washingtonian by adoption and a New Yorker by preference. She is wholly American in thought and feeling.

Miss Virginia D. Young of South Carolina is the only woman in the world who runs a newspaper on which not a single man is employed in any capacity. Even the traditional "devil" has been banished in favor of nice little office girls in white aprons. The editress of this novel paper claims that her office is the cleanest of its kind in the world. The only freak feature of the paper is that the first four columns of each edition are devoted to a love story.

Miss Alice Serber appeared in the west side police court of New York recently and announced her intention of practicing criminal law in that court. The magistrate received Miss Serber cordially and expressed himself pleased to see that the Russians would henceforth be represented by a woman of their own nationality. Miss Serber is a graduate of the New York University Law school.

A pretty Philadelphia belle, when preparing for her summer vacation touring, declared that one of the most important things that she put into her trunk was a package of Ripans Tabules. "Last summer," said she, "in spite of the heat and weariness of travel, I always found a Ripans Tabule would help me when I felt depressed. After any unusually hearty meal at the Atlantic City hotel, where I remained a large part of the summer, a Tabule invariably did away with any tendency to indigestion. During the winter I always use a Tabule after a dance or a theater party that has been followed by a luncheon or supper such as are usually so injurious because they lead to the eating of rich food and too much of it at late hours."

ANCIENT AMERICAN PIPES.

The Varied Forms of Bowls Found in Indian Mounds and Elsewhere.

The custom of smoking tobacco, which Columbus and other European pioneers in the invasion of America found well established here, imparts a peculiarly American interest to the pipes which antiquarians have collected. A special report on the smoking customs and pipes of the aborigines of this continent has been published by the Smithsonian institution. It was written by Joseph D. McGuire, of Ellicott City, Md., and is copiously illustrated.

The pictures, as one might expect, afford a good idea of the richest and most curious finds of sundry tribes, partly of stone or wood, partly of terra cotta and clay, a large number of them having been found in the mounds of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys. The shapes of the bowls are of all descriptions; some represent birds, heads of birds, mice and other rodents, toads, frogs, lizards, men in a recumbent, sitting or squatting posture, and human hands and faces. The tubular shape was widely in use in ancient America. Mr. McGuire shows stone tubes with bone mouthpieces, sandstone tubes, pottery tube pipes, red pottery tube and bowl pipes, steatite tubular pipes, copper tubes, bone pipes and others. There are also stone urn shaped bowls, stone bowls with thong holes, antler pipes, fossil pipes, various kinds of trade pipes, brazed iron pipes, tomahawk and monitor pipes. The feathered calumet pipe of the west looks artistic and attractive, and the vase shaped Micmac pipe has at least the merit of curiosity.

A contributor to Science, who supplies some of the foregoing information, adds:

"The author has with consummate industry collected passages referring to pipes and smoking in the historians of past centuries and given his ideas about the formation of types in smoking implements. There are but few articles of Indian manufacture that will give a clearer idea of the artistic sense or genius in fashioning ruder material than pipes, although they all manifest that they originated in the stage of barbarism. Probably the oldest instance, historically traceable, is the richly-dressed shaman or chief represented upon the Palenque tablet of Chiapas state, Guatemala, who makes use of a long tubular pipe to produce huge clouds of smoke issuing at the wider end, and seems to enjoy the smoking intensely, to judge from his very characteristic grimace. This bas-relief is reproduced in Mr. McGuire's publication; he thinks that the use of tobacco for snuffing was peculiar to South America, and the habit of chewing is but seldom and indistinctly referred to in any part of this western world."

No Food or Water.

Eight hundred people live on one of the West India islands, where there is no water nor food, nor towns nor villages. Anguilla is the name of the island, and the government has to send food to the inhabitants every year to keep them from starving. The only water they have is tainted by the sea and not fit to drink.

She Was a Dream.

Tom—Do you believe in dreams?

Dick—I used to, but I don't any more.

"Not as superstitious as you were, eh?"

"O! It wasn't a question of superstition. I was in love with one once, and she jilted me." — Philadelphia Press.

The Real Victim.

TALK ABOUT CRABS.

They Have a Longer Pedigree Than Any Other Creature.

Once They Used to Eat Everything That Came Within Reach of Their Claws, Now They Are Hunted to Be Eaten.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"WITH April goes the oyster," is one of the time-honored sayings of the people of this section. The belief prevails that "only in those months in which the letter 'R' is found should oysters be eaten." Consequently the oyster season every year begins with September and ends with April. However, at the seaside resorts oysters are served at the hotels during the summer months, but they are taken directly from the salt water to the table.

With the departure of the oysters we are accustomed to having crabs and clams. Little neck clams are at the top of the bill of fare in all first-class hotels. We have clam chowder, and clam broth, and clam patties, hashed clams and stewed clams, and clams in all styles. To most people they are palatable, and also almost indigestible; that is, to most people in cities. But by the dwellers along the seashore, who take a great deal of physical exercise, they are regarded as an almost indispensable article of summer diet, and nobody complains that they are indigestible.

But all of our people eat crabs, the soft shell variety being exceptionally popular. They furnish food to suit the palate of the most fastidious of epicures, and they are so delicate that digestion is a part of the pleasure of their consumption. They are usually served broiled, on toast. The hard shell crabs are usually boiled, picked, minced and served as deviled crabs.

The crabs caught and utilized to-day are comparatively small, very few of them being more than six inches in length. If you get one a foot long it is a giant. And yet, in comparatively modern times, about 20,000,000 years ago, they used to attain great size. In those days frogs used to be six feet long, bigger than most men, and they thought nothing of hopping two or three blocks at a single leap.

Calcareous mud covered the entire continent of North America, once upon a time; say about 20,000,000 years ago. This mud was at the bottom of the sea, and when the mountain ranges of the east and west were volcanically upheaved the muddy sea bottom became dry land. There is an average of 65,000 feet of thickness of the sea bottom deposits on this continent. The lowest and oldest layer was the calcareous mud, in which certain animals were embedded as the hardening process went on. Consequently the scientists of to-day find those animals hermetically sealed in the rocky layer which was once muddy sea bottom.

In the Smithsonian institution there are many specimens of these ancestors of the crabs and lobsters of to-day. They have turned to stone, with the mud, but they have been perfectly preserved, even to the facets of their eyes. The professors who study these matters say that with just a little bit of calculation they can tell how old these specimens are and they talk of a hundred thousand centuries just as mothers talk of the ages of their babies.

They say that the very learned Bishop Pontoppidan was the first to describe the crab as "a red fish which walks backwards," when, as a matter of fact, it is not a fish, is not red, and does not walk backward at all. Crabs and lobsters are green or dark brown. Their skeletons are outside of them, and their meat is so delicate and like jelly that, if their shell is broken in any part, it oozes out like thick molasses. They are not killed as other animals or fishes are killed. They are put into boiling hot water and killed that way. When taken out of the water they are red on the outside, but their meat becomes very firm and it is white.

COCOANUT CRAB AT DINNER.

The ancestors of the crabs of the present day are said to be the oldest creatures in the world, particularly the horseshoe crabs. They were slightly modified trilobites, and the specimens on exhibition here represent the most ancient family on earth. They existed long before man was created, thousands upon thousands of years before the creatures from whom some scientists have made bold to say that mankind was evoluted. But when they begin to talk of thousands of centuries they are leaving the domain of positive science, and are trenching upon the domain of philosophy and theology; and into those domains we will not follow them.

To describe all of the specimens on exhibition would be the work of a lifetime; and to even make mention of all of them, by their scientific names, would fill several columns without giving any description of them whatever. The ancient horseshoe crabs were tremendous fellows, almost as big as modern whales. Those were the days of the titans of the deep. The largest lobster found in recent years weighed 18 pounds, and its skeleton has been preserved. It is a very ugly looking beast, and would have been able to clasp a man's body in one of its claws and crush it in two. The claws of the average sized crab of to-day are sharp enough and strong enough to bite off your fingers.

Along the Atlantic coast the business of catching crabs and lobsters has increased during the past 25 years to such an extent that almost all of the big ones have been taken and eaten. But there are specimens here from the Pacific coasts of Asia which are of enormous size. There is one preserved Japanese crab which has a spread of 12 feet with his claws. That fellow could have taken two men, in the water, and killed them at once. So long as those fellows are in those waters, it is fair to presume that the Japanese ladies and gentlemen will not disport themselves in the surf, as hundreds of thousands of our people do at the famous coast resorts of this country.

In a four gallon jar, tightly stowed away, there is what is called a "cocoanut crab. This fellow, with his companions, was in the habit of going ashore, climbing cocoanut trees, tearing off the outer husks with his tremendous claws, then knocking in the shell at one of the eyes, and drinking the milk. Then it would crush the shell and scoop out the meat. It has a long pair of pinchers, created manifestly for this very purpose. The cocoanut crabs inhabit the waters and islands of the Indian ocean. They pick the fibers of cocoanuts and make beds for themselves.

Almost all crabs are fighting animals, ready for battle at all times, and with all kinds of sea dwellers. But there are varieties which will not fight if they can avoid it, and nature has provided them with Quaker habits, so that they can avoid trouble. One specimen looks as though it was covered with whitish moss, which is something part animal and part vegetable. Another kind is covered with growing sponge, all but its eyes and the tips of its claws. So covered, the crab hides in crevices where sponge is growing, and he becomes as much like the sponge as he can. There is a California crab who has a beautiful snuff box beneath his body, for carrying eggs. This box closes with a snap, exactly like a manufactured snuff box.

"The messmate" is a little bit of a crab which is usually found inside of the shell of an oyster. Epicures regard these as great delicacies. The men of knowledge who study these and all other crabs say that the "messmate" does not feed upon the oyster, but simply makes its home in the oyster's shell, and eats a part of whatever the oyster finds to eat. Oysters have been appropriately termed by some good people as the "scavengers of the sea," and on that account they will not eat oysters. These little "messmates" are similar scavengers.

Cows "chew the cud" and are called ruminating animals. In one respect crabs are like unto them. They have ten legs, eight pairs of jaws, a heart in the middle of the back, and teeth in the stomach. With his jaws the crab catches and kills his food, and digests it while chewing it in the stomach. Originally crabs had tails, but they have learned to dispense with caudal appendages by evolutions which have required centuries.

In order to keep pace with the demand, thousands of men have for many years made crab and lobster catching a regular business. Their success has been so great that the Atlantic coast has been dredged and trapped almost to depletion. For the past 12 years the fish commission has been artificially hatching and planting along the coast countless millions of little fellows; and a majority of them are gobbled down by varieties of fish having tastes as epicurean as that of man. Besides, the little fellows are cannibal-like, and will kill each other off, the stronger feeding upon the weaker. It takes a year or two for young crabs to attain sufficient size and strength to defend themselves or hide away from their enemies. Hence the fish commission is confronted with difficulties which are disheartening.

The next time we indulge in soft shell crabs on toast we will know more about what we are eating; likewise about deviled crabs and lobsters.

THE LAND QUESTION.

A Subject That Will Be Agitated for Some Time to Come.

Bona Fide Settlers Protest Against the Hoggish Methods of Foreign Syndicates and Mining Adventurers.

[Special Cripple Creek (Col.) Letter.]

THE public land question promises to be a lively issue for the next few years. The issue is between the intending settlers and the land-grabbing syndicates. Several bills are before congress for the leasing of the public domain at a nominal rental for a period of years. Settlers throughout the west oppose some of these measures, and have held meetings and deluged congress with petitions of protest. In some sections their mass meetings have been little short of vigilance committees in tone. They have passed resolutions denouncing such leasing measures as land-grabbing schemes in the interest of capitalists, and propose blacklisting congressmen who favor them.

WESTERN LAND SQUATTERS.

Of the several bills before congress one is to cede to the several states all of the public domain in each state. Intending settlers oppose this, on the alleged grounds that the syndicates could the better secure control of the domain through local politics, and by influencing the state officials. Why they should presume that all state officials could be corrupted is not clear. Texas is an illustration of a state which controls its own public lands, and is cited as an example why the lands could be better controlled in the interest of settlers than under the present system. Texas is the only state in the union, by the way, which did not cede its public land to the general government, as a price for statehood. The Texas system seems to work well, argue those who favor ceding government lands to the states. The states would be enriched by a large revenue from the sale of the lands, and thus relieve the general land office of a great deal of work.

Another scheme is for the general government to lease the lands by means of an appointed commission in each state and territory, at from one to three cents an acre, for a period of from 20 to 30 years. This would, it is claimed, place the land under the control of the large syndicates, as ranchers would not care for large tracts. Still another project is to permit the states to control the lands by a system of taxation, thus bringing in a revenue. It is argued that the lands are unproductive, and a burden upon the government. This taxation, on the other hand, would naturally force the lands upon the market to be sold for taxes, and the large tracts would consequently be sold for a song, the syndicate purchaser pitching the tune.

Thus it will be seen there are several sides to the public land question, and our congressmen are now called upon to solve the problem to the best interests of the people who are directly interested in the public domain.

From the measures before congress it seems that the present public land system is generally unsatisfactory, and that the lands should be preserved for actual settlers, and placed beyond the reach of the stock syndicates. Some of these control millions of acres, used for grazing purposes. The general government is thus deprived of sales, and the settlement of the country is retarded. The land, being denuded of vegetation, is practically valueless for several years after its abandonment by the stockmen. The syndicates use the lands as long as there is vegetation, and after the abandonment it is about three years before the vegetation grows out, and thus the lands are practically out of the market for a series of years.

The settler, or rancher, is content with a tract of 160 acres, and as his crops improve he may want an additional tract to suit the needs of his growing family, but the syndicate has got control of everything in sight, and there is no room for progress and development.

The leasing system, it is thought will partly remedy this evil, as the syndicates could not then grab such large territories. Others, however think that it would be more favorable to the syndicates. Under the system of ceding lands to the states, and taxing them, it is thought that the wholesale land-grabbing would be checked entirely. Yet objection is made that the land question would then be brought into state politics, and be a matter of local favoritism. Of the several schemes it seems difficult to decide which is the better, and public opinion seems to be divided upon it. The only deduction that can be made is the precedent furnished by Texas.

Statistics show that an astonishingly large area of the public domain in the west is unoccupied, and the facts show that many people are landless, while others possess or hold principalities in extent, for which they have paid nothing. Only about 40 per cent. of the total land area of California is occupied, and that is the most populous of all the western states. Colorado is not quite as populous. Of the other sections, about 25 per cent. of the public lands in Montana and Arizona are occupied; about 20 per cent. of Utah; about 15 per cent. of Wyoming, and only about five per cent. of the sagebrush borough of Nevada, which has two senators in congress, and polls only 10,000 votes. These sections have total areas, as follows: California, 99,000,000 acres; Arizona, 72,000,000; Montana, 95,000,000; Idaho, 52,000,000; Utah, 52,000,000; Wyoming, 62,000,000; Colorado, 75,000,000; Nevada, 65,000,000. A very large area of this land is mountainous and desert, but the mountains are good for grazing purposes, and are so used. The settlers object to the grabbing of the lands available for agriculture. Much of the mountain land is rich in timber, and this is also being grabbed by the syndicates, denuded of the timber, thus lessening the rainfall, to the detriment of the farming lands in the valleys.

The Indians also raise a howl against the acquisition of the lands by the syndicates. They claim that the forests naturally belong to them for hunting purposes. This lessens their game supply and they must move elsewhere. No sooner does the noble red brother find another forest reserve, where there is plenty of game, than the pale face land chief claims everything, and soon there is no more game for the Indian. He desires to have a big talk with the big chief at Washington, to know if he is continually to be disturbed by the land grabbers, but it is not likely that his talk will be effective against the marauding syndicates.

There are a number of these syndicates throughout the west, which are acquiring immense tracts of land, not only to the detriment of the Indian and the white settler, but to the tax payers and the general government. Most of these are English, with English representatives. They do not pay taxes, neither do they buy the lands, as the government lands are free to all for grazing purposes and mining prospecting. They occupy immense tracts of lands, and at the same time send out experts to prospect for gold. These desert lands generally are good placer mining sections, and when gold is found the syndicates locate the land as grazing lands, thus acquiring 100 times the territory they could under the law regulating mining locations. Their mining experts are constantly prospecting for gold on these lands, hence the miners have also a just cause for complaint. This abuse is about as great as the other, and in both cases—the grabbing of agricultural or mining lands—the government and the public are alike swindled; and mining development and the settlement of the country are retarded.

J. M. SCANLAND

St. Katherine Docks.

These docks are famed as an important part of London's great commercial highway. Carlyle refers to them in this expressive paragraph: "This London City, with all its houses, palaces, steam engines, cathedrals and huge immeasurable traffic and tumult, what is it but a Thought, but millions of Thoughts made into one—a huge immeasurable Spirit of a Thought, embodied in brick, in iron, smoke, dust, palaces, parliaments, hackney catches, Katherine Docks and the rest of it." It is said that over 1,200 houses had to be razed and 11,000 inhabitants removed to make room for the construction of the docks, which cost £1,700,000. They were opened for use in 1828, and are now a part of the London docks, the two having been united under one management.

MUCH TIME WASTED.

New Congressmen Do Considerable Unnecessary Running Around.

Don't Know Where to Look for Information—Professional Private Secretaries Indespensable to Success.

[Special Washington Letter.]

"THERE is room for a new line of business in this city," says Congressman Brundidge, of Arkansas. "Any good and efficient man ought to make at least a hundred dollars a week at it, and an industrious man of capability might make even double that amount.

"When I first came here I received letters from my constituents asking me to see this, that and the other member of the cabinet for them. For example, a prominent political friend of mine would want a commission in the army for his son. I would go to the office of the secretary of war, and find other senators and representatives ahead of me. I would wait an hour or more for my turn, and finally go away without having a chance to talk to the secretary. Then I would be obliged to go again and again. Inasmuch as I had to see other members of the cabinet on other missions for my people, I found it to be practically impossible for me to get around and attend to congressional business at the capital.

"Finally a young man came to me for employment. He had letters showing that he had been private secretary to Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, for 12 years. I told him that I had brought a private secretary here with me from my district, and that I could not employ him. But I told him that I could occasionally give him some letters to write for me. On the very first occasion, while I was dictating letters to the young man, I stated to one of my constituents that I had been five times to see the secretary of war about his matter, that I had been disappointed every time; but promised to continue to do my best.

"The young man suggested that I let him look the matter up for me, telling me that I need not see the secretary of war at all; but that a certain obscure chief of division would know all about it. I gave him that letter and a number of others, and he did in half a day what I had been trying to do for more than a week.

"I learned that the members of the cabinet, when called on for information on various subjects, send for their subordinates and get the information from them. I learned that it is easier for a private secretary who is familiar with the executive departments to go directly to the obscure men who actually handle the official papers, and it saves so much time.

"Any good man of well-established reputation might get to be private secretary to four or more congressmen and attend to all of their departmental business, and receive from each congressman the sum of $100 per month, which every congressman is allowed for a private secretary, thereby making a good income, and doing the congressmen and their constituents a great deal of good. There is room here in Washington for the business of a professional private secretary."

This is a new idea of a new congressman, but it is not a new idea to the writer. The trouble is that every congressman feels that he must bring some man here as his private secretary, some man who has rendered and can render political service at home All of the congressmen entertain this idea, and hence they bring men here who know no more of the executive departments than they do, and hence their political private secretaries are of little value to them in the line of their actual work.

One of the best secretaries the writer has known in many years was Frank Flenniken, who was with Senator Plumb, of Kansas, for many years, and remained with him until the death of that great congressional worker. The amount of work which Senator Plumb did, with Flenniken's aid, was regarded as phenomenal by his colleagues. The writer once had an opportunity to ascertain something of Plumb's enormous departmental business; and it might be interesting to narrate it here:

One day in May, 1890, Senator Plumb asked me to take lunch with him, in the senate restaurant, saying that he wanted to have a business talk with me. "I am going to Montana, and may be farther west, to be gone several months," said he; "and Frank is going home to look after business at Emporia. Now that congress is not in session, and your newspaper business is not so pressing, it has occurred to me that Frank might send all letters to you, and you could attend to my departmental business. It would be a great favor to me, and I will pay you well for it."

The senator was one of the best of friends, and his proposition was accepted. Two weeks later I received from Emporia one large envelope containing about 50 letters asking for information of all sorts. From that time on, for about five months, every morning's mail brought big batches of letters; sometimes as many as a hundred. I sorted all those letters. May be ten of them would be about post office appointments, ten more about pensions, ten more about patents, or land office matters, and others referring to the other executive departments. I would first go to the post office department and get information concerning the post office; making shorthand notes on each letter. Then I would go to the pension office, and attend to all of the pension cases before leaving that place. And so on, every day the various departments would be visited systematically, and the work of every day was cleared up before bedtime. It became necessary to hire a stenographer, finally, and take him about the departments, where the letters would be dictated until noon, or one o'clock. Then I would send the stenographer off to transcribe the letters on a typewriter, while I would continue in the departments until every letter had received attention. Finally, I would write a lot of letters myself, and dictate others, until the work of the day had been completed.

For example, on the 1st of June, I would write the letters, dating them "Emporia, Kan., June 4." They were mailed to Flenniken, reached him in three days, and, on June 4, at Emporia, he would sign Senator Plumb's name and mail the letters to the constituents. Each man thus presumably received a letter from the senator; although the senator was more than 2,000 miles distant from Washington, and about 1,000 miles distant from Emporia. But the business was going on, although he was absent. Good business men having large interests to look after cannot do everything with their own hands. They can select their assistants, and supervise; and that was what Senator Plumb did, and his constituents all believed in him and loved him, because all of their business received his attention promptly. It was not necessary to explain to them what methods he employed to accomplish the result, nor how much it cost him. This brief story would not be complete without saying that the dear old senator did by me as he did by all others. He paid me liberally; much more than I had expected or desired.

Now, to illustrate what Congressman Brundidge has found out. I never went to the postmaster general, nor to the first assistant postmaster general, nor to any chief clerk, for information concerning Plumb's post office business. I knew that Dr. Brumbaugh was the clerk in charge of Kansas postal affairs, and I went directly to his desk every day and secured the information without delay.

By the way, George Fenton was the clerk in charge of the Ohio post offices. Often have I seen Congressman William McKinley sitting by the desk of that subordinate and obscure clerk, getting information concerning the post office appointments in his district. Congressmen did not have private secretaries paid for by the government in those days, and William McKinley did his own department work. Poor Fenton is dead now. If he had lived McKinley would have done well by him, for he was a splendid clerk and did lots of things for McKinley, because he liked him; things which were not necessary for him to do, and which the Ohio congressman highly appreciated.

Now you see how the departments are arranged. The members of the cabinet know very little about the details of their departments, and when they are called upon for information, they send for the quiet plodders in the civil service. In the navy they call the men who do the actual work, "the men behind the guns." These clerks who carry on the real work might well be called the men behind the scenes; for they are they who handle all official papers, while the higher officials direct the general policies of their departments. Not one letter out of 10,000 addressed to the postmaster general is ever seen by him. The same may be said substantially of all other cabinet officials.

The suggestion of Congressman Brundidge that there should be a professional private secretary in Washington is a very good one; but it will be many a day before it is carried out, because the politicians at the homes of the statesmen will it otherwise; and few congressmen realize what an advantage a professional private secretary would be to them and to their constituents.

GOLF

The "duffers" will apparently have everything their own way on the links of the Park Golf Club this afternoon. Six of the best players are scheduled to go to Morristown to meet the Field Club of that place, in a friendly match.

Frank O. Reinhart, who is captain of the St. Paul's School team, which defeated the Hillside Club, the Morris County Country Club, and the Baltusrol Golf Club teams, during the last two weeks, is a great golf player. He is reasonably steady, drives well, does fine work in the fair green and is particularly accurate in his approaches and putting. Reinhart is a young man yet but if he continues to improve his game in the future as he has in the past, he promises to best one of the best players in the east as well as in the State. His present game puts him among the best players of the Hillside Club and he is likely to give Wadsworth and Glenney a lively chase.

The challenge of the Morristown Field Club, of Morristown, N. J., to a six-men team match this afternoon on the links of the Field Club has been accepted by the Park Golf Club and a lively game is anticipated. Heretofore, the Park Club players have only met the Hillside team and a team from the Somerset County Country Club. While the Hillside boys are as good as any in the State, there has been a general desire to see the team from the borough club line up against some of the other prominent clubs of the State and see what show they have. This chance has now come. The Park Golf Club will probably be represented by the following team: Morgan T. Townsend, G. W. Faber, W. J. R. Thiers, W. de la R. Anderson, J. H. Simpson and Edgar I. Serrell.

Some thirty of the friends and neighbors of Mr. Cadmus were of the party and they enjoyed a delightful day. Mrs. Carner's children were with her and they soon became acquainted with the other youngsters of the party.

GOLF HONORS FOR SAMUEL TOWNSEND

Won Weekly Competition for President's Cup at Park Golf Club Saturday Afternoon.

MADE "BUTTERNUT" IN TWO.

WILLIAM R. FABER NOW A CLOSE SECOND FOR PRESIDENT'S CUP.

Eight of the Best Players Were in Morristown so Few Players Were Out—Day Fine for Golfing—H. C. Wells Doing Good Work.

The honors of the day at the links of the Park Golf Club Saturday easily went to Samuel Townsend. Beside making the lowest net score in the weekly competition for the President's cup, he succeeded in accomplishing the remarkable achievement of doing "Butternut," the fourth hole, in two. He drove up to the bunker, which is 143 yards away, then dropped the ball squarely in the hole with the aid of his cleek. The hole is 230 yards long. He was making the round in company with George T. Rogers and S. St. John McCutchen.

As eight of the best players were in Morristown with the team in the match with the Morristown Field Club, there was not as large a field of competitors in the weekly play for the trophy. W. J. B Thiers and Morgan T. Townsend played their rounds in the morning but neither did anything brilliant. The other players on the team did not take part at all.

Samuel Townsend made a 55 and a 53 which gave him, thanks to his handicap of 25, the lowest net score for the day. He won easily. His achievement on "Butternut" was the talk of the afternoon. S. St. John McCutchen, who played with him, tied for third place with Henry C. Wells. George T. Rogers was just one stroke behind them.

Wells has taken to the game in excellent shape since his recent introduction to it. He played carefully Saturday and made a 121, which, with his handicap of 30, put him well down.

The day was an ideal one for golf and the breeze was not strong enough to trouble the golfers, while the mercury kept down within reasonable limits. There was the usual informal tea at the clubhouse after the afternoon's play.

The scores for the president's cup, handed in, were as follows:

	Gross.	Hand.	Net.
Samuel Townsend	108	25	03
Wm. R. Faber	105	18	87
S. St. John McCutchen	116	25	91
Henry C. Wells	121	30	91
George T. Rogers	107	15	92
H. D. Hibbard	110	15	95
W. J. B. Thiers	99	0	99
Morgan T. Townsend	103	0	103

Wm. R. Faber's chances for the trophy are very bright at present. Second play Saturday gave him two more points, so that he is now only half a point behind Morgan T. Townsend, who leads for the trophy. A first place for a bunch of half a dozen players, who now have three points each, will make them a factor in the race. The contest is still too young to get any idea as to the possible result. At present the points are scored as follows:

Morgan T. Townsend	6
William R. Faber	5½
Samuel Townsend	3
George C. Worth	3
Meredith Dryden	3
J. H. Simpson	3
W. de la R. Anderson	3
Allan B. Laing	3
Herbert S. Rogers	2½
Edgar L. Sewell	2
Charles A. Reed	1½
Gustavus W. Faber	1½
Donald A. McGee	1
Charles B. Morse	1
Henry C. Wells	1

Miss Saidee Mae Howell could not be at the links Saturday, so the green committee allowed her to compete for the Hooley cup Thursday. She turned in a round in 73. As she was the only one to try this week, she was awarded three points for first place. She is now far in the lead. The competition for the Hooley cup is now over until September, when the weekly play will be resumed.

The standing for the Hooley cup is now as follows:

Miss Saidee Mae Howell	17½
Miss Daisy Elsberg	9½
Miss Laura G. Long	3
Miss Adelaide G. Ball	2
Miss Nellie Valiant	1
Mrs. J. H. Howell	1

As W. de la R. Anderson, holder of the green committee challenge trophy, went with the club team to Morristown in the afternoon and could not play in the morning, and as J. H. Simpson, the next challenger, was out of town, the weekly match for the trophy was postponed.

The standing for that trophy now is as follows:

Morgan T. Townsend	3
W. S. J. Thiers	2
W. de la R. Anderson	1

—There will be a meeting of the Sons of Veterans tomorrow evening, and every member is urged to attend.

CLUBBED WITH A GUN

EDWARD VERITY AND "COUNT" VAN NESS HAD A LIVELY TIME.

Verity Appeared with a Gun to Compel VanNess to Move, But He Failed to Carry His Point.

The troubles which have been brewing for some time between "Count" VanNess and Edward Verity, who are neighbors on East Front street, were renewed again yesterday morning in an exciting manner. The result was that Verity was pretty well broke up.

Several weeks ago Verity and his neighbor had some trouble over the hay crop on the Wiley place where Verity lives. Verity had sold the crop to Levi Bird. VanNest wanted the hay and started in to harvest it, notwithstanding Verity's remonstrances. The Count had part of the harvesting done when Bird put in an appearance and stopped him, making him pay for what he had taken.

Since that time the neighborly breach has been widened more and more and yesterday morning the opposing forces met in battle array. VanNess' horse had strayed over on to the land controlled by Verity, who immediately started to drive it back. VanNess put in an appearance and hot words ensued. The "Count" was ordered off the place but refused to go. Verity then went to the house and procured his gun to impress upon the "Count" the necessity of obeying. Instead of doing this it had directly the opposite effect upon VanNess, for he closed in on his neighbor and a fight started for possession of the weapon.

The "Count" came off victorious after a fierce struggle. As soon as he gained possession of the gun it is alleged he started in to use it upon Verity's head. When he got through his victim's head was a mass of cuts and bruises from which the blood poured down his face and clothes. Without waiting to attend to his injuries, he started for Scotch Plains to swear out a warrant for the "Count's" arrest. He was advised to wait until today. So it is quite likely the trouble of the two will be aired in one of the justice's court in the near future.

LIGHTNING'S HAVOC IN A STORM.

Burns Farm Buildings and Darts Between Scared Persons.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Flemington, July 16—During a severe thunderstorm which passed over this section last Thursday, lightning struck the barn belonging to Mrs. John Dilts, three miles west of Flemington. The barn and outbuildings were destroyed, together with their contents. The loss is covered by insurance.

M. C. Mulligan's residence, at Clinton, was also struck by lightning. The bolt tore two large holes in the roof and then ran down the chimney into the parlor, where the family had congregated. The fluid blazed across the room, scorching the carpet and tearing the keys from the piano. Only two of the members of the family were affected by the lightning, which set the house on fire. The blaze was extinguished before much damage was done.

Honors to a Rutgers Professor.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, July 16.—Dr. Jacob Cooper, in whose honor Prof. Albert Cook, of the English department of Yale, has founded the Jacob Cooper prize in Greek Philosophy, of $500, is the oldest member of the Rutgers College faculty. He occupies the chair of Collegiate Church professor of logic and mental philosophy. He has always been considered one of Yale's most distinguished alumni. Dr. Cooper was a constant correspondent of the late William E. Gladstone.

Eighty Car Loads of Crushed Stone.

The Central Railroad has taken out about eighty car loads of crushed stone last week from the crushers at Chimney Rock. There are four large new crushers being placed in position, and also a new engine. In a week or so they expect to be running full force with these new crushers, and the place will be a busy scene, employing quite a number of men.

Valuable Deposit of Clay.

A party of capitalists has offered a large price for Jacob C. Mowder's farm, between Port Colden and Changewater, Warren county. This land contains a valuable deposit of fine clay of the best quality. It is probable that a large pottery will be erected there.

To Abandon Search for Gold.

It is said that the search for gold at the Woodglen gold mines is about to be given up for the present and the promoters are now giving their attention to working the iron ore mine on the Hann farm, near Anthony.

CONCERTS IN THE PARK.

MOVEMENT TO ARRANGE THEM FOR EVERY SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Board of Trade and Street Railway Officials Interested—Want City to Erect Band Stand.

The large crowd which attended the first Friday night band concert has clearly demonstrated that they will become popular and that the people will endure a great deal of discomfort to hear one. The business men of the city have seen this and now, with the help of the Board of Trade, the Street Railway Company and others they hope to have concerts in the city park every Saturday afternoon. As most every one knows the park has a number of conveniences for concerts, which will be increased as soon as they are started.

The Town Improvement Association has promised to have more benches placed at different points, and the city will be asked to erect a suitable band stand. Colonel Hine and Chandler Riker, of the Street Railway, have been seen regarding the matter and have declared their intention of doing all in their power to make the concerts a success if the city and business men will do their part.

Ben LaVere, the leader of the Queen City Band, has generously offered to furnish the music every Saturday during the months of August and September, for his expenses only. The band is now in first class shape and thoroughly up to date, using all the latest popular music.

The Board of Trade will hold a meeting this evening when it is expected that definite action will be taken at once towards securing the necessary expenses and to have the concerts inaugurated as soon as possible. There is no reason why the concerts cannot be made a success as there is usually no other attraction in town on Saturday afternoon.

They will not only tend to keep the Plainfield people at home, but will also bring visitors from neighboring towns who will undoubtedly remain in the evening and visit the stores, thereby increasing the trade of the merchants. These Saturday afternoon concerts are a feature in New York, Newark and other places and are always attended by large crowds. When two or three thousand people will stand patiently on the public streets for two hours without a place to sit down or rest comfortably, as was the case Friday night, it remains to be seen with what success the new concerts will meet.

AT T. B. GREENE'S BIER.

Funeral Services Attended by Many of His Associates in the Insurance Business.

The funeral services of the late Thomas B. Greene were held Saturday afternoon from the house on East Front street, and were largely attended by friends and relatives, including about thirty associates from the Home Insurance Company office, New York, where the deceased was engaged in business for forty-seven years. Beautiful floral tributes were offered by the associates, comprising the officers of the company, including a wreath, a pillow and a large bunch of cut flowers. There were many other handsome floral tributes.

The services were conducted by Rev. Joseph Orr McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, who, after reading appropriate Scripture selections, spoke in a touching and impressive manner concerning the life of Mr. Greene. His words found a response in the hearts of all present who felt the force of them and knew that they were truly spoken.

After the services at the house interment took place in the family plot at Hillside cemetery, where the remains were placed by the loving hands of the business associates who served as bearers. They were: E. D. LaTourette, G. W. Volk, I. L. Doughty, J. H. Hayes, S. B. H. Townsend and H. D. Janes.

PARIS GREEN SPREAD ON NOONDAY LUNCH

Joseph Schwalbach Accuses Frank Sabbino of Trying to Poison Him.

HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

BOTH MEN ARE EMPLOYED BY THE CENTRAL RAILROAD.

An Ill Feeling Said to Exist Between the Men, but the Accused Protests His Innocence and Says He is Victim of a Job.

If the charge sworn to before Judge Clark, of Scotch Plains, yesterday by Joseph Schwalbach can be substantiated before the October Grand Jury Frank Sabbino, an Italian, living near the water work in Netherwood, will have to stand trial for attempting to poison Schwalbach by putting Paris green on his noonday lunch. Schwalbach and Sabbino are both employes of the Central Railroad and work in the section gang at Fanwood of which Henry Schwalbach, a brother of the defendant, is foreman. Sabbino is employed as trackwalker and has a key to the tool house near the station. The only other key known of which will fit the lock in the shanty is carried by Schwalbach.

Saturday morning the dinner pails and coats were left at the house as is customary before starting out for their daily work. When lunch time arrived Schwalbach went for his pail and prepared to eat his lunch. His eye detected a very small speck of green upon one of his sandwiches. This led to an investigation of the rest of the contents of the lunch pail. He found that several of the sandwiches had been opened and nearly a spoonful of what is supposed to be Paris green had been spread between the meat and bread. The coffee had also received some of the mixture as the top of the can holding the liquid still had some of the deadly stuff about the tin.

Several who saw the contents decided that the article was Paris green, but it was decided to let the thing rest until Dr. Westcott could be seen and give an opinion. The Doctor arrived home about 4 o'clock and was shown the lunch. He decided that to the best of his knowledge and belief the article used was Paris green.

Schwalbach had suspected from the start that the guilty party was Sabbino. But before preferring such a serious charge against a man it was decided to make a more careful examination for proof of guilt. Dr. Westcott and several others visited the tool house to see if any of the poison had been left about the place. None was found until it was thought by one of the party to examine a coat hanging against the wall. Here was where the evidence against Sabbino was found. The coat was said to be his, and on the side of one of the pockets was found some of the green powder. In the pocket was a letter with the suspect's address upon it. This was also smeared with the stuff.

This was sufficient proof for Schwalbach, so yesterday morning he went before Judge Clark at Scotch Plains and swore out a warrant for the arrest of Sabbino. The warrant was placed in the hands of Marshall Taynor, of Fanwood, and the suspected man was soon behind the bars in the town jail. Judge Clark decided to give the prisoner a hearing during the afternoon.

Several witnesses were sworn and told of seeing the poisoned food at the station; also as to the finding of the same stuff in a coat, said to be the prisoner's, hanging in the shanty. Dr. Westcott was called and swore that although he had made no analysis of the stuff, he believed it to be Paris green.

Sabbino, when asked to plead, said he was not guilty of the charge and that he was the victim of a trumped up charge, as there was a grudge between he and Schwalbach over his getting the position as trackwalker, a position formerly held by the defendant.

Judge Clark thought the evidence produced warranted him in holding the man in $300 bail to appear before the October Grand Jury. Matthew Wade, of Elizabeth, immediately went the prisoner's bonds and he was released from custody.

KNOX WAS FINED $20.

CITY JUDGE RUNYON RENDERED A DECISION IN SPITTING CASE.

Case Was Tried Friday—Lawyer Coddington Immediately Gave Notice of an Appeal.

After giving the case several days consideration, City Judge Runyon announced his decision this morning in the case of Hugh R. Knox, who was charged by William Loizeaux with spitting in his face at the North avenue station, Saturday afternoon, July 7th. The case was tried before Judge Runyon in the city court Friday morning. After hearing the testimony of both sides, the Judge stated that he would reserve his decision until today.

It will be remembered that Mr. Knox admitted spitting at Loizeaux's face but, through his counsel, Former Judge W. A. Coddington, claimed that the circumstances which led up to the trouble were of an extenuating nature.

In announcing his decision, Judge Runyon said that Mr. Knox could have found means in another court to secure redress for any insult that he might receive and that, therefore, the Court would have to look upon this act without considering its bearing to past events. As the defendant had admitted the charge, the Judge found him guilty and sentenced him to pay a fine of $20 or go to jail for forty days.

Lawyer Coddington gave notice immediately that he would apply to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari to have the case reviewed and asked for time to file his papers. The Judge allowed the payment of the fine to be delayed pending action by the higher court.

DEATH WAS SUDDEN.

Mrs. Edna Johnson Taken With Hemorrhages and Died in a Short Time.

While attending to her household duties Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Edna Johnson, of West Third street, was suddenly siezed with a hemorrhage and fell to the floor. Her mother, who was nearby, ran to her assistance and raising her up spoke to her, but received no answer. Dr. Anderson, who lives nearly opposite, was summoned, but she died in a few minutes. She has not been in the best of health for some time, but nothing serious was noticed in her condition.

She was born in Virginia but has lived in Plainfield for the past thirteen years, where she has a large circle of acquaintances. Beside her husband she leaves four children by a former husband to mourn her loss. They are Benjamin G., John A., and James A. Perkins and Mrs. Lewis G. Peterson.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the house and 3 from Calvary Baptist church.

Accused of Violating Health Ordinance.

Piney Yettman and Fernando Brown, two colored ash carters, were arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning, charged by Health Inspector Addis with violating the health ordinance. Their specific offence, according to the complaint, was for dumping garbage in the wrong place and carting garbage without a proper license. The Judge set their trial down for tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

Nellie is No More.

"Nellie," the Fourth, the valuable fox terrier owned by John Powers, the Somerset street druggist, met her death this morning at an early hour in a horrible manner. This is the fourth canine owned by Mr. Powers that has been killed, and he has not decided whether he will get another dog or not.

SISTERS CHANGED ABOUT

SURPRISE FOR PARISHONERS OF ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH.

Sisters Mary Raymond and Mary Cecelia Transferred to Convent—New Sisters at St. Joseph's Church.

The Mother Superior having in charge the various homes and schools for girls in the Trenton diocese has just made a change of importance in the management of St. Joseph's Home on Manning avenue, which is conducted by the Sisters of Mercy. For nearly three years Sister Mary Raymond has had charge of the home, and through her earnest efforts has made it a great success. Announcement of the change has just been received and today she left for Bordentown, where the convent is located, and will assume her new position as Mistress of Novices at the convent, a position she is well qualified to fill in every way. Sister Mary Cecelia, who has been associated with Sister Raymond at St. Joseph's Home, has also been transferred to Bordentown at Mother Home. She has accomplished a good work in the borough home and her new position will allow for a wider field of usefulness.

Mother Raymond's place in St. Joseph's Home has been taken by Sister Mary Aloisius, of Raritan, who has had considerable experience in the work. She assumed the position this morning after the departure of Mother Raymond. The changes have caused a great deal of disappointment among the members of St. Joseph's church, who have learned to love Mother Raymond and Sister Mary Cecelia. Sister Mary Aloisius has been given a cordial welcome and she will undoubtedly carry on successfully the work at the Home.

MR. MARTINE HOME.

The "Farmer Orator" Returns After an Extended Trip Through the Western States.

James E. Martine returned home this morning from his trip through the west after attending the Kansas City convention as one of the delegates-at-large from New Jersey. One week ago today Mr. Martine was in a snow storm up on the mountains a few miles from Denver.

Mr. Martine has enjoyed his trip very much, but he says that in all his travels he has not seen a place that he likes as well as Plainfield. Among the cities he visited were Denver, Omaha, Lincoln, St. Louis, Council Bluffs, Cincinnatti and Washington.

While at Lincoln he was the guest of Mr. Bryan at the latter's home and spoke with the Presidential candidate at the big ratification meeting in Lincoln last week.

Mr. Martine comes back enthusiastic over the prospects of Democratic success this fall. If Mr. Bryan spends any time in the east this fall he will visit Mr. Martine's home, "Cedar Brook," and probably speak in Plainfield.

HOME FOR THE WAIF.

City Will Employ Some One to Care for the Little Fellow.

As yet no permanent place has been secured for the little waif found on Farragut avenue Thursday night, but for the present he is being taken care of at the home of Assistant Overseer of the Poor Hewson. It is expected that arrangements will be made tomorrow to place him with a family who will keep him for a nominal sum paid by the city. The general impression has been that the child was about four months old, but he is only five or six weeks. As yet the police have no definite clue to the identity of the heartless person who so cruelly abandoned the little fellow.

SENATOR KEAN'S RAILROAD SOLD.

Now the White Deve of Peace Broods Over the Scene of Trolley Warfare.

INTERESTS ALL UNITED.

TO BE CALLED ELIZABETH, PLAINFIELD AND CENTRAL JERSEY.

The Riker Syndicate in Control of the Trolleys of Union County, Including Rahway—A Great Combine.

According to the Newark Call, the trolley railroad owned by Senator John Kean, and extending from Elizabethport to El Mora, with franchise to Cranford, has been acquired by the Plainfield Street Railroad Company, through a combination, and the warfare between the Kean interests and the so-called Riker Syndicate is at an end. The Plainfield Railroad people had previously acquired full control of the Rahway Street Railroad, and the lines under this syndicate, built or under way, will cover the Central Jersey territory from Dunellen, through Plainfield, to Westfield, Cranford, El Mora, Elizabeth, Elizabethport to Staten Island ferry, to Woodbridge, Rahway and Sewaren, about sixty-five miles of track altogether, with a traffic arrangement connecting the system with Perth Amboy. It is probable the names will be changed to "Elizabeth, Plainfield and Central Jersey."

For three years there has been a contest between the Plainfield Railroad Company's owners, who include the Messrs. Riker, E. W. Hine and other Newark and neighboring capitalists, and the owner of the Elizabethport line, Senator John Kean. They were rival bidders for franchises, and at times the contests have been quite bitter. Senator Kean last fall at last equipped his road with electricity after using horses for a long time, and he had obtained extensions of his route until it covered the distance from Staten Island ferry, in Elizabethport, to Elizabeth union depot, through Morris and Westfield avenues to El Mora, with the right to extend the lines to Cranford, a distance of seven miles in all. Meanwhile, the Plainfield Railroad, which ran from Dunellen to an through Plainfield, with fifteen miles of track, has extended its route to Westfield and Elizabeth; and the same owners recently obtained full control of the Rahway City and Woodbridge road, with extensions to Sewaren, about ten miles of track.

It has long been supposed that some arrangement would be made between the Kean and Riker interests, but no agreement seemed practicable after repeated talks of compromise which followed the numerous conflicts between the companies. Somewhat to the surprise of all, the end came last week. An agreement was made between the parties, the papers were signed, money paid to bind the bargain, and the deal was completed. All the parties have been very quiet about the matter and the details of the transaction are firmly locked in the respective bosoms of the dealers. It is understood that Mr. Kean received a fair stock interest in the new combine, and turned over his interests in payment for it, and all the persons concerned seem to be very well satisfied with the result.

By this combination, and the traffic arrangements made in connection with it, there will now be through trolley facilities from Dunellen to all parts of the shore of Staten Island Sound, a popular and populous resort district, to Perth Amboy and through Elizabeth and Rahway, thus linking the Central New Jersey towns. As a businesss enterprise the new company is said to have exceptional prospects of great prosperity, the existing lines being profitable, while the connections and extensions are certain to increase the income very largely. The routes will be especially attractive for the summer. The new company has satisfactory arrangements with the North Jersey Railway, and convenient access by trolley, at comparatively low fares, will now be possible from Paterson on the north, Jersey City on the east to Plainfield and Dunellen on the west and Perth Amboy and Rahway on the south. The North Jersey controls Newark and all its environs and the greater part of the Elizabeth routes; the Central Jersey will have the northern central district described; the Krueger Syndicate takes in New Brunswick and Metuchen, and the Trenton Syndicate reaches toward Princeton. These several interests, while all distinct, and friendly, and eventually all the more populous part of New Jersey will be closely linked by the trolley lines.

WU GETS BAD NEWS.

Chinese Minister's Dispatch Gives No Hope.

PRINCE TUAN DISOBEYS ORDERS.

General Goodnow's Report of the Final Attack on Legations In Peking Confirmed—Massacre of Foreigners Seems Assured.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The latest news from China is distinctly bad. It consists of a cablegram to Minister Wu from Sheng, the imperial director of posts and telegraphs at Shanghai, and, according to the minister, is in reply to the urgent message he himself had sent to that official asking him to try to secure some news from the Chinese capital. This cablegram Minister Wu regarded as of sufficient importance to carry in person directly to Secretary Hay, who was waiting at his home for news. The message as resolved from the cipher is as follows:

"Peking news of July 7 says that General Tuan Fuh Siang in disobedience of imperial orders was about to use guns. Legations and the government will be in peril."

This news is corroborative of that contained in a recent cablegram from Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai, although the consular general's dispatch gave his Peking news the date of the 6th, saying that the final attack upon the legations with guns was about to begin on the 7th of July. It is surmised here that Mr. Goodnow got his news from Sheng, who is certainly in position to secure the first news from Peking.

Aside from the gloomy forecast given of the end of the terrible struggle of the legationers against the inevitable the significant feature of the message is the coupling of the fate of the imperial government with that of foreign ministers. Officers here derive some satisfaction from this portion of the dispatch, as it sustains them in the position they have held from the first, that the Chinese government is not at war with Christendom, but is confronting a formidable insurrection.

There still remains a suspicion that, while Mr. Wu is undoubtedly acting with perfect sincerity, Sheng, who is represented to be a clever and adroit man, may know more of the actual happenings at Peking than he is willing to reveal at once. It is feared that he is trying to prepare the way for the disclosure of terrible news, hoping that by letting it come out gradually the blow will not fall with such severity and perhaps with such disastrous results to his own people as might be the case if the whole story were imparted to the world at once. This news, it may be noted, comes entirely from Chinese sources.

It is now 21 days since a word has come directly from any of the unfortunates besieged in the legations at Peking. The last message from there was from Sir Robert Hart, the Englishman in charge of the Chinese customs service, and was of undoubted authenticity. It represented the situation of the legationers as desperate and implored help. The last word from Minister Conger came to the state department from Peking under date of June 18. At that time he asked that Seymour's international relief column, which was even then doomed to fail, should signal its approach when near Peking. That was just one month and three days ago, and it would be an unprecedented defense for such an inadequate and ill fitted and provisioned force as was at the command of the foreign ministers to hold out for that length of time.

Minister Wu's cablegram from Sheng, above given, should not be taken as an answer to the cipher message he forwarded at Secretary Hay's request to China in the effort to get it through to Minister Conger. That message went to Yonan Shih-Kai, the governor of the province of Shangtung. That official has replied informally that he has no news himself, but it is assumed that he will take prompt steps to forward the cipher message. His status at this critical juncture is unfortunately not beyond suspicion, though Mr. Wu retains full confidence in him.

Secretary Long had two cablegrams yesterday from China, but he was inclined to set a negative value upon them because they made no mention of a massacre of the legationers in Peking. He reasoned that Admiral Remey was in a good position to get as early news as any one of such an event. The admiral's message was from Chefu, of yesterday's date, though as he is supposed to be himself at Taku, it is assumed that it was sent from that place Saturday. The admiral stated that he had ordered the Buffalo to Taku. She was coming out to the orient by way of Suez and was to report for orders at Singapore, where she was to be directed to proceed to Manila or be deflected to north China. She is carrying out a cargo of coal and a number of sailors to recruit the American fleet.

The second dispatch came from Captain Bowman of the gunboat Castine, which is stationed at Shanghai, and also was dated Sunday. It was as follows:

"Rodgers sends word Oregon passed Chefu 12th, Nashville convoying."

It is supposed at the navy department that Captain Rodgers of the Nashville signaled this information from his ship as he passed Chefu.

The distance from Chefu to the Kure docks, where the Oregon is bound, is about 700 miles, and as Chefu was passed last Thursday it is estimated here that the crippled battleship is now nearing the strait of Chimonlseki, through which she must pass to get up to the docks.

The Japanese legation here has received the following telegram from the Japanese foreign office under date of Tokyo, July 9, transmitting advices received from Chefu under date of July 7:

"Tien-tsin telegram of July 6 reported that 10,000 Chinese army with artillery under Ma (name of a general in the Chinese army) made appearance near Tien-tsin July 4, and the arsenal taken by allies a week ago was captured by them. Chinese city of Tien-tsin fortified by Chinese soldiers. From north report comes that Chinese forces are moving and Tien-tsin considered critical. Communication with Tong-ku threatened. On July 6 by steamer Sakuramura Japanese residents left for Taku."

LEGATIONERS' TERRIBLE FATE.

Details of the Slaughter of the Foreigners In Peking.

LONDON, July 16.—It seems impossible to entertain any longer the least doubt as to the fate of the Europeans in Peking. It is learned that Lady Hart, wife of Sir Robert Hart, director of Chinese imperial maritime customs, on July 5 received the following telegram from her husband:

"Our people, including the women, are in the legations. Prepare to hear the worst."

The European governments have received from their representatives at Shanghai a dispatch from the governor of Shangtung, dated July 7, reporting that the European troops made a sortie from Peking and killed 200 of General Tung Fuh Siang's forces and that the Boxers were mounting guns to make a breach in the defenses.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"I can assert positively that the Chinese authorities had the dreadful news from Peking a week ago and that Sheng knew that all the foreigners in Peking were dead when he asked the American consul to cable to Washington a proposal to deliver the foreigners in safety at Tien-tsin on condition that the allies would suspend their operations to the north of Peking."

The correspondent then gives details of the events at Peking after June 25. The members of the legations made daily sorties, sometimes by night, and so successfully as to compel the Chinese to retreat from the immediate vicinity.

These reverses had a disheartening effect upon the Chinese, and there soon began to be open signs of disaffection, followed by desertions to Prince Ching's army, which was endeavoring to co-operate with the besieged. Ultimately Prince Tuan decided to make a night attack in three powerful columns.

"At 6 o'clock on the evening of July 6," says the correspondent, "fire was opened with artillery upon the British legation, where the foreigners were concentrated. For two hours the walls were battered with shot and shell, and huge breaches were made in them. Then a general advance was ordered, and the Chinese infantry, volleying constantly, moved toward the gaps. The fire of the defenders, however, was so accurate and steady that hordes of Chinese soldiers and Boxers broke and fled in the wildest confusion, leaving large numbers of dead and wounded around the legation. They could not be rallied until they were out of the rifle range of the foreigners.

"Then Prince Tuan, making a desperate appeal, induced them to stand and return to the attack. Artillery fire was then resumed, and at the middle watch a second attack was attempted. But before the attackers could accomplish their object they were met by Prince Ching and General Wang-Wen-Shao with their troops, who were going to the aid of the foreigners. A desperate battle ensued between the various forces of Chinese and Mantchoos.

"Unfortunately, many of Prince Ching's troops deserted to Prince Tuan. Prince Ching fell and was supposed to have been killed, but as the search for his body was unsuccessful it is now believed that he was only wounded and was carried off and secreted by his faithful retainers.

"General Wang Wen Shao, although gray haired and 70 years old, valiantly led his troops in person. He was killed, and his force, which was completely outnumbered, was routed.

"Throughout the night repeated attacks were made on the legation, but these were invariably repulsed with heavy losses. Toward the end of the third watch, about 5 a. m., the allies had practically defeated the besiegers, who were wavering and gradually withdrawing.

"But just then General Tung Fuh Siang arrived from the vicinity of Tien-tsin with a large force of Kan-Su braves. By this time the walls of the legation had been battered down, and most of the buildings were in ruins. Many of the allies had fallen at their posts, and the small band that was left took refuge in the wrecked buildings, which they endeavored hastily to fortify.

"Upon them the fire of the Chinese artillery was now directed. Toward sunrise it was evident that the ammunition of the allies was running out, and at 7 o'clock, as the advance of the Chinese in force failed to draw a response, a rush was determined upon.

"Thus, standing together, as the sun rose, the little remaining band, all Europeans, met death stubbornly. There was a desperate hand to hand encounter. The Chinese lost heavily, but as one man fell others advanced, and, finally overcome by odds, every one of the Europeans remaining was put to the sword in the most atrocious manner."

Admiral Seymour's dispatches give the latest news regarding the situation at Tien-tsin. Telegrams received show that the operations on July 11 were a brilliant success. The Japanese cavalry and a mobile mounted battery did splendid work. It was unfortunate that the allies did not have more cavalry to pursue the flying enemy. Four hundred Chinese were killed and six guns captured. At noon the settlements were again viciously shelled from the native city, and the hospitals and other buildings were repeatedly hit. The moral effect of the successes of the allied forces upon the Chinese is believed to be very great.

General Gaselee and staff, with a force of Punjab infantry, arrived yesterday at Hongkong and proceeded for Taku.

The following is the text of an appeal of Americans in China assembled in mass meeting in Shanghai to their fellow citizens at home:

"Urge the government to send adequate forces to act effectively in concert with the other powers. At present the American forces are quite disproportionate to the interests involved. Our commercial interests in the northern provinces are paramount, and we consider it a humiliating policy to intrust to other powers the chief task, that of protecting Americans.

"Antiforeign outrages are multiplying daily. Officials and missionaries are massacred. The fate of the ministers and their families in Peking is not known, but a general massacre is apprehended. Wholesale massacres of native Christians continue. The whole country is terrorized. Trade is paralyzed.

"The speedy restoration of order and retribution are duties pressing upon all civilized powers. The consequences of delay will be disastrous. Not only are foreign lives and property placed in jeopardy, but the loss of influence will be incalculable.

"Give no credence to statements of the situation sent by the Chinese government to its ministers abroad. The present outrages are the result of the weak and vacillating policy of the powers in the past. We urge immediate energetic and concerted action."

The following dispatches from Admiral Seymour were published last evening:

"Tien-tsin, July 9.—The enemy's position southwest of the settlement was attacked at 4 this morning. The Japanese by a flank movement drove the enemy out and captured four guns. Cavalry pursued and completed the rout of the enemy, killing large numbers of soldiers and Boxers.

"The allied forces shelled and occupied the western arsenal, capturing two guns. The arsenal was burned, as the allies were unable to hold it. The enemy's loss was 350 killed. The loss of the allied forces was small."

Facing Death In Peking.

MUNCIE, Ind., July 16.—A letter has just been received by Mrs. Mary F. Howell from her niece, Miss Nellie Russell of Chicago, dated Peking, June 7, in which the young woman states that the legation was surrounded by rebels, who were seeking to murder all foreigners and Christian Chinese. She writes that this probably will be the last letter received from her. She states that the lives of Minister Conger and his family were in great danger and that within a few weeks from that time at the most they would all be dead owing to the impossibility of getting relief to them from the foreign nations in time to save their lives. The writer seems to have little concern for her own safety, expressing great pity for "our people," meaning the converted Chinese. Miss Russell is a Presbyterian and has been in China five years.

Italian Missions Destroyed.

ROME, July 16.—The Italian consul at Shanghai cables that the Italian mission in Hunan has been destroyed and Bishop Fantosati and two missionaries killed. He also reports that the Italian missions in Honan and Hupe have been assaulted.

TROOPS ORDERED EAST.

Government's Policy Outlined—Recruits Want Chinese Service.

ST. PAUL, July 16.—The war department has ordered the battalion of the Eighth infantry now stationed at Fort Snelling to rejoin the regiment and proceed to the Philippines with the Second battalion now en route home from Cuba.

In its order the war department gives out a policy with regard to foreign service. It says:

"Department battalions and squadrons having a year's duty at home will at the earliest practicable moment be relieved and ordered to duty with their regiments, when, in turn, the next battalion or squadron will return to the home station, bringing in each instance the men from the regiment having less than six months to serve, excepting those who have declared their intention to re-enlist. This rule of exchange of battalions and squadrons will be strictly enforced, so that officers concerned can make preparations accordingly."

The men of the returning battalions of the Eighth having less than six months to serve will remain at the fort, and enough of the regiment to fill two battalions will be picked out to go to the Philippines or China.

Major McCammon, in charge of the recruiting office, is having difficulty in securing recruits because he cannot promise them service in China. About half of the applicants when told that service in China cannot be guaranteed decline to enlist.

Large Encampment Promised.

CHICAGO, July 16.—Colonel Albert D. Shaw, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, who is in Chicago on business connected with the annual encampment to be held here Aug. 27 to Sept. 1, says that from reports he has received he believes that fully 1,000,000 visitors will come to Chicago during the encampment. This year's encampment, he says, promises to be the largest ever held by the Grand Army of the Republic. Colonel Shaw goes to Atlanta to attend the reunion of the blue and the gray which is to be held July 20.

To Arrest Milk Dealers.

TRENTON, July 16.—State Dairy Commissioner McGuire will cause the arrest this week of a number of milk dealers for adulterating milk by using formaldehyde as a preservative. Most of those who will be arrested are in Atlantic City. The state dairy commissioner says that the use of this preservative is resorted to in order to keep the milk from souring. He considers formaldehyde very dangerous, however, if used in large quantities, and even when used in very small quantities it is very dangerous to infants.

Killed by Falling Down Stairs.

HOBART, N. Y., July 16.—Mrs. R. Degray of New York, who, with her daughter, came into the Catskills on Thursday to pass the summer, fell down the main stairway at Churchill hall, Stamford, fracturing her skull, and she died two hours later. As Mrs. Degray approached the stairway she caught her foot in her dress skirt and fell headlong before she could catch hold of the handrail.

The Kentucky Primaries.

CINCINNATI, July 16.—In its summary of the Democratic county conventions in Kentucky on Saturday The Commercial Tribune states that Beckham has not a majority over all, while The Enquirer's returns indicate that Beckham has a majority of the delegates. It is believed the result on the nomination for governor will depend on the settlement of contests.

Remains of Senator Gear.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The remains of the late Senator Gear of Iowa, who died early Saturday morning, left here yesterday at 3:30 o'clock via the Pennsylvania railroad for the Gear home at Burlington, Ia., where funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 o'clock.

Erne and McGovern to Fight.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Two of the greatest little fighters in the world, Frank Erne of Buffalo and "Terry" McGovern of Brooklyn, will meet in a ten round bout tonight under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Athletic club at Madison Square Garden.

Baseball Manager Dead.

HARTFORD, July 16.—William Barnie, manager of the Hartford baseball team of the Eastern league and probably the best known baseball man outside of Nick Young in the country, died in this city yesterday afternoon of pneumonia after a brief illness.

Arizona Drought Broken.

TUCSON, A. T., July 16.—Mining and cattle interests, which have suffered untold loss from lack of water, have been relieved by a heavy rain. The drought had almost destroyed vegetation in the southern part of the territory.

Watch Your Kidneys!

They are Filters For the Blood. Impure Blood Causes Disease.

Few people understand the important part performed by the kidneys in filtering the blood. As the blood in its circulation through the body passes through the kidneys, its impurity is left in the kidneys, which in turn empties the secretions into the bladder in the form of urine.

If the kidneys are blocked and filtration of the blood from poisonous or diseased germs is prevented thereby, the result is one or all of the following: Sleeplessness, Nervous Prostration, Weak Back, Pains in the Back and Loins, Scalding Dark and Cloudy Urine, Dizziness, Rheumatism, Diabetes, Congestion of the Kidneys, Bright's Disease and Inflammation of the Bladder.

Unhealthy Kidneys Must Be Treated

A medicine is needed that will properly promote the filtration of the blood and check the over-secretion of urine.

AFFAIRS IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Results of a Week's Scouting—Troops Sail For China.

MANILA, July 16.—During last week's scouting three Americans were killed and two wounded, and 35 of the rebels were killed. Fifty rebels were captured and 25 rifles and 14 tons of powder and ammunition taken.

It will become necessary under the new code of procedure which the commission expects to adopt to secure the services for the higher courts in Manila and the provinces of American judges knowing Spanish.

Two battalions of the Fourteenth infantry and Daggett's battery of the Fifth artillery left for China yesterday by the transports Indiana, Flintshire and Wyefield. The expedition, which will join the Ninth infantry, will carry 500 rounds of ammunition to a man and a reserve of 1,000,000 rounds, together with medical and subsistence stores and clothing for 5,000 men for three months. It will take also two 7 inch mortars and two 6 inch howitzers, with ammunition. The hospital ship Relief is going to China.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

Great Gathering In London—Americans Delayed.

LONDON, July 16.—The original programme of the World's Christian Endeavor convention for yesterday was seriously interfered with by the delay in the arrival of the 600 American delegates. Again, however, the convention was favored with glorious weather. The Rev. Charles M. Sheldon addressed meetings and overflow gatherings at the Alexandra palace, everywhere being received with great enthusiasm.

Mr. Peter Bilborn was also present. He has charge of the vocal music during the convention. Thus far all the meetings have been largely attended, and the inspiring strains of the Christian Endeavor hymns could be heard all over the ground until long after midnight. Indeed, soon after 3 o'clock Sunday morning the secretary himself and many others resumed singing.

A Report Denied.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—High military officers place no credence in the published report that the military department of the gulf is to be re-established for the purpose of giving Major General Otis a command commensurate with his rank, though General Miles has recommended its re-establishment. General Otis is now on leave of absence, and there is no prospect of his being assigned to duty immediately. He came home from the Philippines to take a rest, and the president is disposed to accommodate him fully in that respect. Unless present plans miscarry, General Otis will not resume active duty until the command of the military department of the lakes at Chicago becomes vacant in September next by the statutory retirement of Brigadier General Joe Wheeler on account of age. He then will have his choice of vacant commands.

Governor Allen Sees the President.

CANTON, O., July 16.—Governor Allen of Porto Rico and General Russell Hastings of Bermuda were guests at the McKinley home yesterday. Governor Allen came to talk over a number of matters connected with the administration of the island and left last night for Washington. Later he will go to his old home in Lowell, Mass., for a rest before returning to Porto Rico. General Hastings was on his way west and stopped for a social visit with the president. President McKinley attended morning services at the First Methodist Episcopal church. Governor Allen accompanied him. Comptroller of the Currency and Mrs. Dawes joined the party at dinner, after which the men took a short drive about the city.

All Cut and Dried.

LOUISVILLE, July 16.—Everything will, it is expected, be done unanimously at the Republican state convention which will meet in this city tomorrow afternoon to nominate a candidate for governor. John Marshall, who was Taylor's lieutenant governor and was unseated, will be temporary chairman. Either T. Z. Morrow of Somerset or Judge John W. Barr of Louisville will be permanent chairman. Ex-Governor W. O. Bradley will place in nomination for governor John W. Yerkes of Danville, who, it is believed, will be unanimously nominated.

BRIDGE WORK
in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. But the advantages of a bridge over a plate are many times more than the cost of one compared to that of the other.

FIRE SWEEPS A TOWN

Prescott, A. T., Has a Million Dollar Blaze.

FIVE BUSINESS BLOCKS WIPED OUT.

Hotels, Banks and Newspapers Suffer—Plucky Citizens Begin at Once to Rebuild and Resume Business.

PRESCOTT, A. T., July 16.—Tottering walls and piles of charred and burning debris are all that remain of the large portion of Prescott's business district.

Fire which wrought over $1,000,000 damage started at 10:45 o'clock Saturday evening and burned unchecked until 3 o'clock yesterday morning, when the fire fighters went a considerable distance in advance of the flames and blew up the buildings on the south side of Goodwin street, preventing them from crossing that street.

The burned district embraces five blocks in which were located the principal mercantile houses, both banks, both telegraph offices, three newspaper plants, four hotels, every saloon and every restaurant except one in the town, besides scores of private residences. To add to the prevailing gloom a high wind prevailed yesterday, sending smoke, dust and burning embers in every direction. Only the greatest vigilance prevented another outbreak of the flames.

Owing to the chaotic condition existing it is impossible to obtain an accurate account of the loss or individual insurance.

Insurance agents estimate the total insurance does not exceed $350,000.

The heaviest losers are: Bashford-Burmeister company, $250,000; Sam Hall, $75,000; Hotel Burke, $60,000; D. Levy & Co., $40,000; Jake Marks, $25,000; R. H. Burmeister & Sons' company, $20,000; C. A. Drake, $20,000; Edward Block, $25,000; J. W. Wilson, $20,000; Kelly & Stephens, $10,000; Journal-Miner, $12,000; Bank of Arizona, $10,000; Prescott National bank, $10,000; Prescott House, $9,000; W. H. Smith, $10,000; The Courier, $6,000; Golden Eagle hotel, $8,000; Scopel block, $15,000; F. G. Becht, $10,000; Windsor hotel, $10,000; Mountain City drug store, $6,000; Brinkmeyer hotel, $8,000; Cabinet saloon, $10,000; Palace saloon, $10,000; Prescott Electric Light company, $5,000.

In addition to the above there were 14 saloons with losses ranging from $1,000 to $3,000.

Five restaurants, five barber shops, two meat markets and 60 residences were destroyed. In many cases the above losses do not include buildings.

At daylight teams were hauling lumber to the public plaza, which was soon covered with tents and temporary frame buildings. The occupants will be ready for business today. Both banks have had temporary quarters located and opened today.

Hon. W. A. Clark of the United Verde Copper company, who was visiting the works at Jerome, wired a draft for $500.

All the sufferers from the fire have been provided with food, shelter and clothing, and it is not thought any outside assistance will be required.

Of the business houses only three dry goods stores, three grocery stores and two drug stores remain. The express and post offices were both out of the fire limits.

All the official statistics of the census of the territory, in the office of the supervisor of census in the Prescott National bank, were removed to a place of safety.

The Western Union Telegraph company has opened a temporary office in a grocery store. The Postal company has opened an office at the railroad depot. The electric light poles and wires were destroyed in the burned district and th town will be in darkness until they ca be replaced. Over half the telephone instruments were destroyed and the service was paralyzed.

Company Criminally Negligent.

TACOMA, July 16.—The coroner's jury which has been holding an inquest over 43 victims of the street car accident July 4 rendered a verdict charging that the Tacoma Railway and Power company was grossly and criminally careless and negligent in permitting its motorman, F. L. Boehm, to go out on the car without any previous effort to ascertain his efficiency on the grade. The verdict adds: "And we further find the Tacoma Railway and Power company was grossly and criminally careless and negligent in making said dangerous grade without installing any safety appliances, when the necessity of such appliances had been fully demonstrated by a previous accident."

Michael and McFarland Matched.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Jimmy Michael and Floyd McFarland have been matched for another race to determine the middle distance championship. The unsatisfactory ending of their 20 mile paced race at Manhattan Beach Saturday, in which McFarland was beaten by the breaking of his motor in the seventeenth mile, made this the desire of the two men. McFarland and Michael met after the conclusion of their race and after a long argument made a match for $1,000 a side and the gate receipts. It was decided to hold the match on Saturday, July 21, at Woodside park.

Captain Healey Insane.

PORT TOWNSHEND, Wash., July 16.—Upon complaint of Dr. Gardner, in charge of the United States Marine hospital, Captain M. A. Healey of the United States revenue cutter McCulloch was examined by the county board of physicians, who pronounced him insane. A commitment to an asylum was issued. The examination developed the fact that during four years while on waiting orders he was subject to many attacks of insomnia lasting from a week to ten days. It is understood Captain Healey will be sent to the national asylum at Washington.

A Chinaman Mobbed.

KANSAS CITY, July 16.—A crowd of men and boys gathered about the laundry of Ah Sing, a Chinese laundryman, and started a demonstration that caused Sing to call on the police for protection. The crowd threw stones into the laundry and threatened to kill the inmates. A squad of police finally dispersed the crowd and guarded the place during the night.

Kansas Editor Shoots Himself.

EMPORIA, Kan., July 16.—C. V. Eskridge, editor of the Emporia Republican and former lieutenant governor of Kansas, died at his home in this city yesterday from self inflicted wounds. Mr. Eskridge had been ill several months. He told his wife that he was tired of living in ill health.

Troubles Of a Minister.
To benefit others Rev. J. T. W. Vernon, of Hartwell, Ga., writes: "For a long time I had a running sore on my leg. I tried many remedies without benefit, until I used a bottle of Electric Bitters and a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me sound and well." Sores, Eruption, Boils, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum show impure blood. Thousands have found in Electric Bitters a grand blood purifier that absolutely cures these troubles. Satisfaction is guaranteed or money refunded by L. W. Randolph. Large bottles only 50c.

THE PROBLEM.

DOROTHY in the nursery can calculate the price of Ivory Soap per cake, but it would take a mathematical genius to calculate its true value. For he must take account of time, labor, and materials. He must deduct from the apparent cost the saving in the longer life of the cake, in the longer life of the washed fabric, in the labor required, in the time consumed, in the strength expended, in the results obtained. When all is finished, Ivory is the cheapest soap in the world. It floats.

OUR ATHLETES WIN.

American Youth In Paris Leads the World.

ORTON TAKES THE STEEPLECHASE.

French Officials Break Their Agreement In Regard to Sunday Contests, and Many Americans Are Thus Shut Out.

PARIS, July 16.—Although deprived of the services of some of her best athletes, who declined to contest in yesterday's events of the world's amateur championships in the Bois de Boulogne, objecting to Sunday competition, America won eight out of ten of those decided, gaining five second positions and four third.

Weather conditions were perfect. The sun was just warm enough to make the muscles supple, and the sky was cloudless. The track and field events were run off quickly. One incident caused an unpleasant jar. The terms of the agreement were reached with the French officials at a joint meeting held in the rooms of the Racing club Wednesday night. At that time it was certainly understood by the Americans that the French had agreed that the field events in which they had entered and in which it was proposed that the finals should come off Sunday would be so arranged that the Americans objecting to Sunday competition could contest alone on Monday and that the records then made would be counted in reaching the final awards. Saturday night the French held a meeting and decided that events set for Sunday must be concluded finally on the grounds on that day, but that records made in the preliminary trials Saturday would stand.

This action was taken, it appears, on the ground that other contestants objected to such an advantage being given the Americans. The decision was not known to the Americans.

The grandstand was largely occupied by Americans, who cheered their champions with much vim, especially when Mr. George W. Orton of the University of Pennsylvania, after seeming to be out of the long steeplechase, made a magnificent spurt, beating an Englishman who looked a certain winner as they came down the stretch. The enthusiasm at this point was intense.

The games began promptly at 2:30 p. m., but it was 7 o'clock before the last event was over. The first heat in the 60 meters flat went handily to Kraenzlein, with E. J. Minahan of Georgetown university second and Pritchard of the English team third. Time, 7 seconds. Klingelhoefer, French, and Westeragen, Swede, also ran. In the second heat Walter B. Tewkesbury managed to breast the tape just ahead of Rowley of New South Wales, with William J. Holland of Georgetown university third. Time, 7 1-5 seconds. Koppan and Schubert, Hungarians, also ran. The final was a pretty contest, the men being breasts apart at the finish, with Kraenzlein first, Tewkesbury second and Rowley third. Time, 7 seconds. Minnehan also ran.

Mr. Richard Sheldon of the New York Athletic club was the only American to strip for the final in the shot putting, as J. C. McCracken of the University of Pennsylvania and Robert Garrett of Princeton university refused to compete on Sunday. Crettier, Hungarian, and Paraskevopoulos, Greek, took their places. Neither of these could oustrip the puts made Saturday by McCracken and Garrett, and the final resulted: Sheldon first, with 14 meters 10 centimeters, which is said to beat the world's record. McCracken, second, with 12 meters 85 centimeters, and Garrett, third, with 12 meters 37 centimeters.

Only three started in the final of the 400 meters flat, as Messrs. Lee, Frederick G. Maloney of the University of Michigan and Dixon Boardman of the New York Athletic club, who had also qualified, refused to run yesterday. This left Messrs. Maxwell Long of the New York Athletic club, William J. Holland of the University of Georgetown and Schulz, a Dane. At the crack of the pistol Holland set a merry pace and held it well into the stretch, where Long caught him. The two had a heartbreaking run to the finish, which Long reached a yard in advance of Holland, Schulz being 15 yards to the rear. The time was 49 2-5 seconds, beating the French record of 50 3-5 seconds. Had the other Americans started America would undoubtedly have gained first, second and third.

Although Messrs William P. Remington of the University of Pennsylvania and Carroll entered, I. K. Baxter of the University of Pennsylvania was the only American in the running high jump. He easily retained his reputation, winning first place with 190 centimeters.

The Frenchmen were loud in their shouts as the contestants for the 400 meter hurdle race came upon the track, as M. Tausin, who has held the French record for years, was considered a sure winner. There were only three in the final. Tewkesbury went to the front as soon as the pistol was fired and was never headed.

The 2,500 meter steeplechase handicap, which included stone fences, a water jump, hurdles and other obstructions, created greater enthusiasm than all the other events of the day. Six men came to the scratch. With Messrs. Alexander Grant and Edward R. Bushnell of the University of Pennsylvania declining to participate the duty fell upon Mr. Orton or Mr. Newton to win the event for America, and right well the former did it.

The Americans swept the pool in the first event Saturday for the world's championships. Pretty nearly everything in sight was taken by Uncle Sam's plucky athletes.

Gold From the Klondike.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 16.—The steamer City of Topeka has arrived here from Lynn canal having on board between $750,000 and $1,000,000 in gold dust and several rich Klondikers, including Clarence Berry of California and George Carmack, the discoverer of the Klondike. Blaze In a California Town.

NEW CASTLE, Cal., July 16.—Fire yesterday destroyed all the fruit warehouses and principal business houses of the town. The loss will exceed $100,000. Over 10,000 boxes of fruit were burned. The Southern Pacific Railway company sustained a loss of $35,000 in fruit and rolling stock.

Baptist Young People.

CINCINNATI, July 16.—The features of the last day of the tenth international convention of the Baptist Young People's Union of America were the annual sermon by the great Spurgeon successor, Dr. E. G. Gange of London, and the missionary services. Even the overflow meetings did not satisfy the demands to hear the many distinguished visiting missionaries, and extra meetings were arranged for them between the afternoon and evening sessions. In the afternoon Music hall was packed to hear Dr. Gange.

The Saale Floated.

NEW YORK, July 16.—The North German Lloyd steamer Saale has been floated out of the mud cradle which surrounded her. Work was continued on the removal of the decomposed provisions, and over five tons were taken out. The wrecking company has begun to float the Bremen. Most of the cargo has been taken out, and as all the big pumps are ready for use it is expected that the ship will be pumped out very shortly.

A Terrible Crime.

BALTIMORE, July 16.—Poverty, coupled with ill health and a weak minded wife for a helpmate, were probably the causes which impelled Louis Eisen, a shoemaker, to kill himself, his wife and 13-month-old babe and to wound almost unto death his 3½-year-old son. The tragedy occurred at the squalid apartments which the family called home at 1208 East Lexington street, but the exact time is not known.

Heath's Successor.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The position of first assistant postmaster general, to be vacated by the resignation of Hon. Perry Heath, has been offered to Mr. Curtis Guild, Jr., of Boston, who was a member of the Porto Rico insular commission. The postmaster general has not received any word from Mr. Guild indicating whether or not he will accept the position.

A Great Trolley System.

The consolidation of the trolley interests of Senator John Kean and the Riker-Hine syndicate, as reported in the news columns of today's Press, is one of the most important deals in street railway enterprises consummated in northern New Jersey in some time. Of course, the first effect of the deal will be to put an end to the bitter rivalry between the Kean and Riker companies. In the enterprise of establishing trolley connections between Elizabeth and Plainfield the competition between the two lines has been very strong, but when the great project of widening the county road and establishing Senator Kean's trolley line at one side of it failed to materialize the Rikers forged ahead and succeeded, after considerable trouble, in securing a series of franchises that permitted them to build and put their line in operation.

Following the example set by Plainfield in dealing with this trolley syndicate, nearly all the towns from which it secured privileges were able to obtain terms that in time will compel the corporation to pay liberal taxes. But not withstanding that the Rikers have had to give more than most of other trolley companies for their franchises, they have one of the most valuable street railway systems in the metropolitan district. And the acquisition of Senator Kean's trolley interests adds still more strength to their position in the street railway world.

The affiliation of these trolley interests undoubtedly means the effective ending of the scheme to construct a county boulevard even as far as Cranford.

The Springfield Republican sarcastically says: "The Palisade-movement has got so far along, after these several years, during which the destruction has been going merrily on, that the Interstate Commission of New York and New Jersey citizens is going to hold a joint session, some day or other, and settle down to devising means." The Republican is probably at a loss to understand this inaction, and the Newark Advertiser say: "The reason is that strong corporate influences are opposed to any dedication of the Palisades that shall prevent their future use for commercial purposes. The New Jersey Riparian Commission has indirectly promoted the destruction of the Palisades by its dereliction of duty. It gave leases to the contractors, allowing them to destroy the picturesque cliffs, and it has taken no step since to protect them. The indifference of the State government to this shameful vandalism has the same inspiration. There is little to be hoped from the Interstate Commission. The Palisades are apparently doomed."

The studious mathematician of the New York World counted in President McKinley's speech at Canton 77 words devoted to money and silver, 313 to "imperialism" and Philippines, 242 to praise of the Republican record, 126 to protection, 82 to China, 75 to the Hague Conference, 66 to Hawaii, 58 to the Spanish war and 23 to Cuba and Porto Rico.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Westfield avenue boulevard project is in part a success, in part a failure. Senator Kean's unprecedented offer of $250,000 for a widened avenue from Elizabeth to Plainfield has been rejected; not by the county, not by the Board of Chosen Freeholders, but by several towns and a number of land owners along the proposed improvement. The opposition to this splendid and progressive plan has been so great where least expected that it has been abandoned over the larger part of the route. The avenue will be widened, however, from the Elizabeth city line to the Cranford line, the trolley tracks will be laid and the cars will be run. For this privilege Senator Kean pays $73,000, and is freed from his former contract. The effect of this will probably be to make the towns and property beyond the Cranford line regret their opposition, and, in time, beg for the boulevard as hard as they formerly opposed it.—Elizabeth Journal.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The last issue of "The Christian Banner," of Philadelphia, publishes a fine half-tone picture showing Rev. E. E. Jackson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, as he stood on the platform at his church during the recent New England convention receiving baskets and bunches of flowers from his many friends. The paper also gives a highly interesting sketch of Pastor Jackson's life which will be read with a great deal of profit and interest by his friends.

So well and thoroughly does the trolley cover Plainfield and vicinity that it will not be a long time before the ever-present hackmen will be a thing of the past. This is the statement made recently by one of the prominent hackmen doing business at the North Avenue Station. He remarked that when the Arlington avenue trolley line was opened it was a terrible blow to the hackmen, who have depended a great deal on the travel in that part of the city. They seem to think, however, that when winter arrives with some of the heavy snows the trolley will be blocked and people will have to use carriages or walk.

Firemen Right at Hand.

The oil in a lamp at the home of Frank Burk, who lives on East Second street next door to fire department headquarters, overflowed late Saturday night and came very near starting a lively conflagration. But for the quickness of the firemen who were hurriedly summoned, the house would have been all ablaze.

A Still Alarm.

A still alarm was sent into fire department headquarters Saturday evening at 8 o'clock, for a chimney fire at the house corner West Third street and Madison avenue, occupied by Thomas Marley and owned by Mrs. Manning. No. 2 hose wagon responded. One extinguisher was sufficient to put out the fire.

A MODEL LITERARY CLUB

Kentucky Women Make a Constitution That Might Well Be Copied.

BY BESSIE DOW BATES.

Clubs are being formed almost daily by ambitious American women. Many of these clubs have high aims, while others seem comparatively trivial, but there is one club known as the Nomads in Maysville, Ky., which besides serving as a stimulus to active minds possesses a model club constitution that might well be emulated by other clubs whose purposes are less clearly defined.

In some features the constitution of the Nomads does not differ from that adopted by the average society when sensibly directed, but in this particular constitution the crying evil of nonattendance is treated with a dignity and firmness which argue well for the future of the club.

The responsibility of membership is treated so vigorously and so well that it cannot be other than of interest to the readers to have me quote all of that part of the constitution which relates to it. So here it is:

"Members: Section 1. All members shall pay an annual fee of 50 cents at the first regular meeting of the club.

"Sec. 2. Any members coming in after roll call shall pay a fine of 5 cents at the following meeting. In cases of sickness or absence from the city members shall be fined 10 cents, otherwise 25 cents.

"Sec. 3. Any member absenting herself from the club for three consecutive meetings without cause for such absence shall no longer be considered a member.

"Sec. 4. Any member failing to perform her duty at the specified time to provide a substitute in case of her own inability to attend to it or to arrange for it in such manner as may be entirely satisfactory to the programme committee shall be subject to a fine of $5 or to loss of membership in the club.

"Sec. 6. Each member shall respond to roll call with a quotation or be fined 5 cents.

"Sec. 7. The membership shall be limited to 25.

"Sec. 8. All excuses for absence must be presented to the president in writing, or a fine for unexcused absence will be imposed.

MRS. ELEANOR DUNCAN WOOD.

"Sec. 9. Members of the club have the privilege of inviting only visitors in the city to the regular club meetings.

"Sec. 10. Any member wishing to resign her membership is expected to hand in her resignation in writing that it may be acted upon by the club."

The object of the Nomads is distinctly literary. A glance at the programme of the past season shows that much has been accomplished by these ambitious women who have worked in the true spirit of progress. During the 15 meetings of the club, beginning Oct. 4 and ending on the 25th of April, the works of Thackeray, Browning, Tennyson, Charles Reade, Mrs. Humphry Ward, Hawthorne, Lytton, George Eliot, Carlyle, Arnold, Irving, Howells and Kipling were studied and discussed. The club is limited to 25 members, and each one has taken some part in the programme of the year. Club teas have given variety to the programme and encouraged the social purposes of the meetings.

To Mrs. Eleanor Duncan Wood the success of the programme is partly due.

Mrs. Wood is the author of several magazine stories of marked merit and has a promising literary career before her, being a young woman with a decided talent for the writing of fiction.

In the prettiest section of the Berkshire hills Mrs. Mary E. Benemelis has located what she thinks will turn out a Klondike. She is preparing to mine gold on her property and has been assured by a government assayer that the ore assays from $160 to $175 a ton. The find was accidentally made, but notwithstanding that Mrs. Benemelis and her family are nothing loath to benefit by their good fortune.

Up to the time of the arrival of Miss Ella Scarlet in Korea all the wives of the emperor had been without medical attendance. Miss Scarlet, who holds degrees from both London and Brussels, has left her home in England to look after their physical well being. What success she will have remains to be seen, for she is the only doctor among those 11,000,000 inhabitants.

The beautiful heiress Miss Mary Crocker of San Francisco is to marry Mr. Francis Burton Harrison, the son of the novelist.

"Having occasion, one day, to dictate to a stenographer in the business office of one of the great Philadelphia newspapers, I remarked that his duties must be tiresome and difficult from being obliged to write down notes of what so many different persons said and, therefore, compelled to accustom himself to all sorts of articulation. "Yes" was his reply, "very few people realize the exacting labor such a position entails. A clear head is absolutely necessary and the least illness often seriously affects the correct performance of my work. For instance, I at one time suffered from a stomach trouble brought on, I suppose, by eating cold lunches hastily, as is necessary with me, and I finally felt that the trouble would break me up. You know a disordered stomach is invariably the root of any head trouble and of all things a stenographer's head must be clear. I finally found an effective remedy in RIPANS TABULES which I saw advertised in our paper. They are magical in their effects, and, by the way, did you ever see anything of the sort put up in such superb shape? I have found that they seem to rectify nearly every ill, for several of my friends have taken my prescription of a Tabule now and then with results for which they have heartily thanked me. The dull, heavy headaches I sometimes had are all gone now. If I take dictation from a man who annoys me and makes me nervous I always take a Tabule at the time, and if his breath is not sweet I give one to him."

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

STYLES IN ANIMALS.

The Bear and Cat Family Are All the Rage Just Now.

Chicago's Smart Set Has Discarded the Long-Eared Dachshund and Adopted Bruin and Other Strange Pets.

[Special Chicago Letter.]

NOW that women are through discussing spring bonnets, they are turning their attention to the new summer styles in cats and dogs and other animals that are idolized as pets. Styles change every season among the animals, just as they do among dress patterns, hosiery, shoes, carriages and a few other things, animate and inanimate, of more or less importance. The animal that was fortunate enough to be in full favor last season may be tabooed as utterly passe this season. For instance, the foolish-looking little dachshund, which was petted last year by fashionable women to such an extent that folks began to believe he amounted to something, has been completely ignored this season. Whether it is on account of the English prejudice against all things Dutch, or simply because he is a dog which has had his day, no one seems to know. At any rate, he has taken his place among the forgotten former favorites of capricious society. With him has gone the monkey. The "40" has decreed that the monkey is not a proper individual to grace polite circles. A few years ago he was a shining light in society. Now only his Darwinian descendants may be seen in the "smart set." Among the list of out-of-date pets may be accounted parrots and crows, which were not long ago considered to be quite the proper thing. Canary birds are still in fairly good demand, but thrushes are the favorites.

QUITE OUT OF VOGUE.

It may seem rather strange, but it nevertheless is so, that among the richest of the swell women bears are the latest fad. This fancy probably had its origin in the fact that oriental royalty has for many years included in the pets of the household wild animals from the jungles.

"Why have the ladies expressed a preference for bears this season?" was asked of Dr. A. C. White, who is an authority on all matters relating to animals.

"Only a passing fancy," said he. "I do not believe it will last long, but just at present they appear to be quite the rage in high society. I understand that four or five bears have been ordered by Chicago women who are close followers of the fashion in the east. I hardly think that Bruno will make an enjoyable pet. A clumsier beast could not be found if one were looking for one. But then the ladies are having all kinds of queer notions. As if to reach the greatest possible contrasts as to size many of the gentler sex are securing as pets black squirrels, spotted mice and Japanese waltzing mice. From bears to mice is a pretty long step But then there is no accounting for tastes. It would not surprise me in the least to see some delicate young lady of the ultra fashionable set leading an elephant with a pink ribbon."

MR. AND MRS CAT STILL AU FAIT.

Of course dogs are still the standby. They are always pets. It is only the variety that changes. This season the dog that is the greatest in demand is the little Pomeranian. His original is the French bulldog, but he has been bred down to such an extent that his own mother would not recognize him. The English fanciers have got him so that a good specimen will not weigh more than four pounds. The real importation comes in solid colors—brown seal, black, cream and blue. He somewhat resembles the Boston terrier, except that he is a much handsomer animal and that his ears extend out broad, like a bat's. Then there is the Japanese spaniel. He is still a favorite, as he has been for some time. The other varieties of dogs remain in about the same relative positions that they did last year. Blankets will only be worn by the little shivering hairless creatures. When covering is used it will be of fancy silk, lined with quilted lamb's wool. The pet's name will be embroidered on the back. A great variety of collars have been displayed. The newest style consists of patent leather—generally in black—studden with brass-headed nails.

Cats are more fashionable than ever. There are two cat clubs in Chicago, and the membership in each is increasing very rapidly. In the Beresford club—named after Lady Beresford—there is a membership of over 200, and in the Chicago Cat club of nearly 100. Then, of course, there are hundreds of women who are cat fanciers that are not connected with either of these associations. Some of the most valuable cats in the world are owned here. There is Mrs. Clinton Locke, who has two Siamese cats—there are only three all told in this country—valued at $500 each. She is also the owner of the celebrated black Persian cat, St. Tidno, worth $600. Mrs. Mattie Fiske Green, of the North side, is the possessor of a blue Persian which $500 would not purchase. Mrs. Leland Norton, of the Drexel kennels, has tortoise shell Angoras worth $200 each, and Mrs. Charles Lane has a number of Persians of a variety of colors. These are only a few of the fine cats owned in Chicago. Good authorities say that a better display was made here at the last cat show than in any other city in the United States.

One animal always is staple, and that is the horse. Bicycle nor automobile cannot drive him away. And this season is no exception to the general rule. There is little or no change in his general make-up. Docked tails are still in fashion, and for the heavy carriage the mane is cut square. Good horses are exceedingly difficult to obtain, and are more in demand than they have been at any time since the year 1890. The reason for this is that the breeders stopped breeding during the hard times and the demand has been steadily increasing. On three different occasions recently $3,000 was paid for a span of carriage horses. Single horses for traps are equally scarce, and Chicago dealers have more orders than they can fill. Inquiries for family horses are also very numerous, and there is no difficulty in making sales when the animal is up to the standard. Saddle horses of the proper breed readily bring good prices here. Several fashionable riding clubs have been formed in the city, and extensive arrangements for an enjoyable summer have been made by the equestrians and equestriennes.

This unusual demand for horses seems strange, too, when it is understood that several automobile establishments are in full operation and all are doing a good business. In addition to this a great many automobiles have been purchased by private persons, and the horseless traps, runabouts and phaetons may be seen everywhere upon the boulevards.

BRUIN IS RIGHT IN IT NOW.

An old liveryman, when asked the reason for this, said:

"Well, it is simply an exemplification of the old saying that 'competition is the life of trade.' When steam cars were first introduced and railroads were being built all over the country the horse dealers threw up their hands and said the days of the horse had ended. But they soon found out that the railroads made a greater demand for horses than before, and prices went up. It was just the same with the bicycle. When that first came into use some people predicted that horses would be relegated to the rear. But the horse was still in demand. And so with the cable street cars and the trolley—they didn't retire the house. The automobile will turn out the same way. No, sir, the horse is here to stay, and no new-fangled get-up-and-go-thing can drive him off the face of the earth."

So, you see, animals are of considerable importance. They have their fashions and their popularities, the same as folks. And folks need them all, too—all except the poor little Dachshund and the monkey.

FREDERICK BOYD STEVENSON.

The Lesson Was a Failure.

A gentleman reproached his son for the careless way in which he carried his watch, but the young man persisted in the practice. One evening in a crowd at the theater, the old gentleman asked his son what time it was. The young man was distressed and mortified to find his watch had been stole "I took it myself," said the father, severely, "to show you how easily you could be robbed. Here it is." He put his hand into his pocket to restore the watch, but it was gone. Some thief, more adroit than himself, had appropriated the property. The lesson was a total failure.

Man Born Minus Ribs.

Remarkable among anatomical wonders is the case of Francisco Brashella, which has just been brought to the attention of the surgeons in Long Island college hospital, Brooklyn. Brashella's claim to distinction lies in the fact that he was born minus three ribs on the right side over the lung, and has reached the age of 42 years without the supposed to be necessary bony protectors. He is an Italian, and is engaged in the fruit business in Hazleton, Pa.

DRIVING THE CARABAO.

American Soldiers in the Philippines Have a Hard Time Managing This Clumsy Beast.

The American soldier is equal to all sorts of transportation problems; but the strangest one he has yet had to meet is presented by the ordinary beast of draught in the Philippine islands, the water buffalo. This animal is called the carabao in the Philippines, and the name (pronounced carribow) is retained by our soldiers; but the Philippine carabao does not differ greatly from the common buffalo of India, China and other oriental countries.

Mr. R. H. Little, a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, says that the carabao is slower than a camel and more obstinate than a mule, and has a hide "like the armor of a battleship." He "has but one hope, but one ambition in life, and that is to lie down in a puddle of water with just his nose and horns sticking out." In doing this he will, if he can, also give a bath to all the supplies loaded on the bull-cart which he is drawing.

Consequently a wild commotion rules along the wagon train when it approaches a stream which has to be forded. The soldiers, who are walking behind the carts as guards, lay aside their rifles, and begin to belabor each animal and objurgate him in three languages—English, Spanish and Tagalog. The Chinese drivers jump off the carts and also pound the poor carabao, yelling in Chinese.

As the middle of the stream is reached the excitement grows. The carabao begins to stretch his neck, and bend his knees, and grunt—sure signs that he intends to lie down.

"Hi, there!" yell the soldiers. "Chop-chop! Pranto! Git out of that! Seega, blame you, seega, pronto, hi, there!"

Possibly all this may get the carabao over the stream without his lying down, but this is usually good fortune. To keep him in good trim, the carabao must have a bath every few hours.

Often the desire to bathe will come upon him in the middle of the night, and he will break his rope and start out across country in search of water. This practice is very disturbing to recruits who are on guard.

"I remember," says Mr. Little, "an incident which occurred one evening while we were camped at Santa Cruz. The shack in which we were lodged was well out toward the outposts. Suddenly we heard a crashing in the jungle and then the challenge, in trembling tones: 'Halt! Who goes there?'

"'Now,' said an officer, 'that boy is going to shoot that poor carabao. I wish he wouldn't, but he will. Listen.'

"'Halt!' commanded the sentry. 'Who-o-o's there?'

"No response but the crashing in the bushes. Then the Krag-Jorgensen spoke up with a roar, and we heard the carabao crashing away, mad with pain, into the underbursh.

"'It's all well enough, you know,' said an English captain, who was present, 'to tell a rooky to challenge twice, and if he receives no answer, to fire. But how can a carabao answer, you know? He might challenge 50 times, you know, and the poor beast wouldn't answer.'"

Trees and Plants Sleep.

Trees and plants have their regular times for going to sleep as well as boys and girls. They need the same chances to rest from the work of growing and to repair and oil the machinery of life. Some plants do all their sleeping in the winter, when the ground is frozen and the limbs are bare of leaves. In hot countries, where the snow never falls, and it is always growing weather, the trees rest during the rainy season or during periods of drought. They always choose the time when they cannot work the best for doing their sleeping, just as mankind chooses the night, when he cannot see to work.

Bats Have a Game Pouch.

The bat when walking carries its tail curved downward and inward, so that the membrane joining it to the hind legs forms a pouch or bag, into which a large insect can be pushed after it is snatched. This is done by slightly spreading the folded wings, bringing the feet forward to increase the capacity of the tail pouch, and then bending the neck and thrusting the head beneath the body. In spite of violent struggles, the insect rarely escapes, and a somewhat similar method is employed by the bat when on the wing, and it has been noticed to always bend up its tail so as to form a receptacle for its prey.

Burglary Is Not Profitable.

A Sing Sing prisoner says the remuneration of burglars of average industry and intelligence is not more than $15 or $20 a week, with enormous expenses involved in the maintenance of two places of abode, the necessity of dressing well and similar requirements of the profession. Then, too, there is the expenditure involved in keeping out of jail.

THE DEWEY CURIOS.

Admiral Has Deposited Them in the Smithsonian Institution.

Swords, Medals and Other Rare Tributes to the Hero of Manila Are Now Under Care of the Government.

[Special Washington Letter.]

THE National museum contains not only objects of scientific and philosophic interest, but also mementoes of great men and of great events.

Prominently placed on the first floor and near the main entrance are the relics of Gen. Grant; the swords, medals and other valuable and beautiful things presented to the great soldier by princes and potentates of the world, as well as by the people of our own republic. It will be remembered that at one period in his career Gen. Grant was so impoverished that he felt obliged to pawn all of these valuable presents in order to raise money with which to pay his debts and meet his daily expenses. Fortunately for Gen. Grant and for the country, there was a rich man in New York who bought the Grant mementoes and gave enough money for them to relieve the financial distress of the disappointed ex-president. Thus it happened that the Grant relics were not scattered throughout the land, as they would have been if they had fallen into the hands of speculators. After the death of Gen. Grant the relics were given to the National museum, where they will remain forever, the treasures of our whole people.

In the Smithsonian institution, which adjoins the National museum in a great park, Admiral George Dewey has recently placed a collection of the choicest and most elaborate articles which have been presented to him since the great event in his life, which was also a great event in our national life, the adventurous entrance into Manila bay and the successful naval battle on that morning in May, 1898. The admiral felt that his valuable mementoes were not safe in a private house, and he realized that they must some day become the property of the people, so he concluded to place them under the care of the government.

First in order of time, and maybe also of merit, is a piece of the cable which Dewey caused to be cut, immediately after the victory. This bit of cable has been handsomely mounted and is engraved with the words: "Hispano-American War. Hong-Kong-Manila cable, cut by U. S. S. Seafiro, 2d May, 1898." Concerning this cable-cutting incident, the admiral has said to the writer: "I sent word to the governor general that I wanted to use the cable. He refused me permission to do so. I determined that he should not use it to send false reports, and so

THE DEWEY HOUSE.
(Presented to the Admiral by Enthusiastic Friends.)

I promptly ordered the cable to be cut, and it was done."

The sword which was purchased with an appropriation made by the congress, and which was publicly presented to the admiral on the steps of the capitol building, is exhibited in a glass case. Beside it, in another case, is the costly and beautiful sword presented to him by the people of Boston through popular subscriptions. In the same case rests the handsome and valuable watch, glittering with diamonds, which the people of Boston also gave at the same time.

There are two loving cups of great value, one of silver and the other of gold. The gold cup is a magnificent bit of engraving, as well as of solid gold, and was presented by the city of New York upon the arrival of the admiral in that city last year. The silver cup is about nine feet high, and was presented to the admiral by a New York newspaper which collected 72,000 dimes by popular subscription from the children of the entire country. This cup is held in high esteem by the admiral, who regards it as a present from the whole people, 72,000 children representing in his mind the 72,000,000 of our population.

There is also another silver cup, much smaller, but very beautiful, which was sent to Manila by the Piccadilly club of Cincinnati. Upon this cup is the inscription:

O Freedom's viking of the seas,
Whose battle banners stood unfurled
Far, far beyond the Caribbees
And signaled victory to the world.
You carried safe through smoke and fire
The emblem that we love to-day,
And 'mong its bright stars wrote our name

The club that gave this cup did not know, nor did the man who wrote the verse know, that the flag of the commodore which flew at the peak of the Olympia that morning was not the pennant which ought to have been there. According to custom, the bunting pennant was run up every morning at sunrise, but in its stead at sundown a pennant of painted canvas was always substituted. When the American fleet entered Manila bay that morning in May everybody was so busy and so alert for the coming battle that nobody attended to the pennant, and so the painted canvas remained at the peak until after the battle had been fought and the victory won. Commodore Dewey then laid aside that canvas pennant and kept it as a relic of the historic battle; and a singular relic it is, for never before was such a pennant used in naval warfare in battle. Upon this painted canvas there rests a little written statement concerning it, and this is in the handwriting of Mrs. Dewey.

The city of Philadelphia sent the admiral an invitation to visit that quaint old Quaker town, and it was beautifully engrossed by an expert penman. It is a beautiful book de luxe, making an attractive volume, and it rests in a very pretty case which was made of wood taken from Independence hall; and that makes the relic all the more valuable.

There are medals from many sources, gold and silver plates bearing appropriate inscriptions, one of the most attractive being a plate presented by the city of Columbus, O., engraved: "Christopher Columbus, October 12, 1492, made possible the achievement of George Dewey, on May 1, 1898; and the capital city of Ohio, which perpetuates the name of the great discoverer, requests the honor of the presence of the great admiral as its guest at such time as his pleasure may designate." There are invitations from many cities, some of them engraved with exquisite designs, all of them of intrinsic value as well as of artistic merit. To have responded to all of these, without considering the hundreds of more formal and less pretentious character, would have required a great deal of time.

It has been generally understood that before sailing to Manila and entering the bay the commodore in command of our fleet had given careful study to the details of the work before him. But among these relics there is evidence of the fact that he did so. Here is a piece of the flag taken from the Spanish forces in Manila bay, in 1762, by the British forces commanded by Sir William Draper and Admiral Cornish. This bit of bunting passed through the hands of several distinguished people, and was finally given by Edward Everett, of Massachusetts, to the American commander who fought a similarly successful battle, and a great one, in the same waters and against the same foe.

There is also along with this bit of flag a map of Manila bay and contiguous territory, inscribed: "Plan of the reduction of Manila and Cavita by the British fleet and army under the command of Rear Admiral Cornish and Brig. Gen. Draper." The map shows the positions of the vessels of the British fleet and of the land forces on the evening of September 24, 1762, and their changed locations on the evening of the following day, after the battle had been fought. It also designates the gates, bastions and gun mounts, the cathedral, treasury, custom house, town hall and other points of interest, many of which are still occupying the same positions in and about that well-nigh ancient city.

It is assumed that Dewey not only studied these plans of the battle of more than 200 years ago, but also the plans of the operations of other fleets and armies in that vicinity. It is now known that he had accurate information concerning the size, ammunition and fighting capacity of each ship in the fleet of the enemy, and also information concerning the location of the dangerous torpedoes. Hence he went about his business that day in a businesslike manner, and in a few hours accomplished a feat which brought about changes of marvelous importance to the entire world.

Everybody knows that by popular subscription a handsome residence was purchased for Dewey, and that soon thereafter he was married. Well, nearly all visitors and sightseers inquire at the hotels where to find the admiral's home, and many of them not only go to look at the house, but ring the bell and ask permission to inspect its interior. Of course this is asking too much, and permission is not granted. It is hoped by the famous sea fighter and his wife that the people will be satisfied and gratified when informed that they can see the Dewey collection at the Smithsonian institution, so that the doorbell will cease to tingle at the behest of the curious hero worshipers.

RICH IN TREASURES.

Senate Library Is Full of Rare Documents and Tomes.

Of Greater Value to Historian and Statesmen Than the Larger Library of the House of Representatives.

[Special Washington Letter.]

TENS of thousands of visitors to the national capital never see nor hear of the library of the senate. They pass along the broad corridors with its entrances into the south galleries, but they seldom ever notice the door leading into the senate document room; and the library is concealed far back of that room.

The corridor referred to marks the beginning of the senate wing of the completed capitol building; and the door leading into the document room is a part of the old building, which was occupied by the senate previous to 1859. On the floor below is the room of the supreme court, which was formerly occupied by the senate; and the rooms upstairs, where the library is located, were used for the committees of the senate. Those now occupied by the library used to be the rooms of the committee on military affairs and the committee on territories.

When the senate moved into the new and palatial quarters which it now occupies, the last chairman of the committees in the old building, now used for the library, were Jefferson Davis, of Mississippi, chairman of the committee on military affairs, and Stephen A. Douglas, of Illinois, chairman of the committee on territories. These distinguished democratic leaders were intimate friends; both of them were great men, and natural leaders of men; but in the great crisis which was to determine the fate of the federal union they separated, Senator Davis becoming the leader of the forces of the confederacy and Senator Douglas remaining as one of the foremost leaders of the defenders of the union. It was because of the changes made in committees, when Senator Davis and other senators from southern states resigned from the senate, that Douglas was made chairman of the committee on territories, and thus happened to be the last chairman of that committee while its sessions were held in the old capitol building. This interesting bit of history was looked up in official documents for the writer by Cliff Warden, assistant librarian of the senate.

In another room, adjoining the one formerly occupied by Jefferson Davis, the committee on judiciary held its meetings when Henry Clay was chairman of that committee; and in another room, just north of that, the committee on foreign relations held its meetings, when Senator John N. Clayton, of Delaware, was chairman of that committee. That was long before he was secretary of state, and negotiated the famous Clayton-Bulwer treaty. These two rooms last mentioned are still used as committee rooms, but ultimately they will become necessary for the use of the library, which is growing all the time, in value as well as in the number of its tomes.

ALONZO M. CHURCH.
(Chief Librarian of the United States Senate.)

Fully 20 years elapsed between the first agitation concerning the crowded condition of the congressional library and the building of the magnificent structure within the walls and beneath the roof of which the literary treasures of the republic are now systematically stored. Many years will necessarily pass away before the politicians, who are dubbed statesmen, will awake to the necessity of providing room for the library of the senate, which is destined to become a sine qua non for the upper house of the congress. The library is now of more importance and of more value to the senators than they realize.

Previous to 1870 there was no private library for the senate. In that year Senator Foote, of Vermont, introduced and secured the adoption of a resolution which provided: "That there shall be collected the political history, the whole national legislation of the country, including reports, bills, resolutions, debates, proceedings, votes, acts of congress under the constitution, and proceedings of the congress of confederation, the acts and proceedings of the executive departments; the intercourse with foreign nations, illustrating the American policy and its views of international law and principles, based upon the constitution; the statistics of population and immigration, of the finances, commerce and navigation, the post offices, relations with the Indian tribes, the public lands and private land claims, the military and naval affairs, and all the various branches of the public service; the writings and papers of eminent American statesmen and patriots; books and compilations containing national and international laws and principles; the decisions of the supreme court, and many books of a public character which go to make up a collection peculiarly adapted to the use of senators and statesmen."

That latter clause indicates that the Vermont senator did not concede that all senators are statesmen; and he was right. Very few of them are statesmen, but all of them are politicians, primarily, secondarily, and all the time.

The growth of the senate library, since the adoption of that resolution, has been steady and systematic. The library of the house of representatives, which is much older, is of less value, and always will be, for a very obvious reason. The senate is a continuing body, and its employes in library and other work of similar character are seldom changed. The employes of the house are constantly subjected to changes for purely political reasons, because a new house is elected every two years. Consequently the employes of the house library, feeling that their tenures of office are precarious, cannot take such interest in their work as can be taken by the senate employes, who realize that they are likely to retain their positions; and consequently can become interested in their work, and take pride in it.

JAMES M. BAKER.
(Assistant Librarian of the United States Senate.)

It is well to call attention right here to the fact that in no library can there be found a complete collection of the documents of the congresses, from the First to the Fourteenth congress; that is, from 1789 to 1817. This unfortunate condition was caused by the vandalism of the British troops who destroyed the capitol, with all of its contents, in 1814. Literary men and women will always look upon that deed as an unpardonable sin, and they will not feel disposed to find reason to condone the crime. The Goths and Vandals never did any more ruthless deed. It was the laminated villainy of knaves and fools.

Hon. George C. Gorham, of California, was secretary of the senate when the Foote resolution was adopted. He was a superior executive officer, and to him is due the credit for performing the original work of the collection of documents, books and papers which formed the original library. He did not merely form a nucleus for a library, but during his term of office he gave his time and talents to this important work, and when he left the public service he turned over to the senate a well-organized library, which has since systematically grown to its present proportions.

Alonzo W. Church, the present librarian, was born at Athens, Ga., February 16, 1829, and is therefore 71 years of age, but still in the vigor of intellectual strength. He is the eldest son of Rev. Dr. Alonzo Church, who was 40 years president of the University of Georgia, in which university, and under the tutelage of his distinguished father, he was educated. Judge Church studied law, began the practice of his profession in 1850, and in 1858 removed from Cassville, Ga., to Davenport, Ia., where he continued to practice until 1862, when he went to Chicago as general counsel of the Chicago & Alton Railroad company. He held that position for 14 years, and was obliged to resign because of a stroke of paralysis which for a time completely disabled him. In 1875 he removed from Chicago to Washington, and in 1881 was appointed assistant librarian of the senate, which position he held until 1887, when he was appointed librarian. He has held this position now for 13 years, and has given complete satisfaction to the senate.

James M. Baker, the assistant librarian, was born at Loundesville, S. C., and was graduated by Wafford college. He studied law in New York. In 1885 he became official stenographer of the Fifth judicial circuit court of South Carolina, but declined the position. In 1893 he came to Washington and received the appointment of assistant librarian, and will probably devote his life to the work in which he is now engaged.

Clifford Warden, second assistant librarian, is the son of one of the ablest journalists ever known in the national capital, and has been himself a correspondent of excellent capabilities. For a number of years he had charge of the senate press gallery, and was popular with all of the newspaper correspondents. Three years ago the position of second assistant librarian was offered to him, and he accepted it upon the advice of some of his best friends.

These gentlemen constitute the staff of the senate library, and that great work is in good hands. Judge Church is a man of superior ability, great learning and excellent executive ability. The younger men are energetic, proud of their work, devoted to it and exerting every endeavor to increase the efficacy and value of the library.

When you come to Washington and are viewing the more pretentious places, do not overlook the senate library.

MODEL TOWN IS IN KANSAS.

Lost Springs' Population Does Not Use Liquor or Tobacco and Few Swear.

From the standpoint of morals Lost Springs, Marion county, Kan., is the most remarkable town in the world.

Lost Springs is a village of 250 souls. Every inhabitant is a teetotaler, only two men swear and not more than a dozen use tobacco. The entire adult population belongs to the church, and all the children attend Sunday school. The town has never had a saloon or gambling house, and there hasn't been a game of cards played in ten years. Two years ago a couple of young men got up a horse race, but the community made such a fuss about it that the event was declared off. Dancing has not been indulged in for five years.

Lost Springs is without municipal government, having never been incorporated. The early settlers of the community were Methodists of great piety, and, as they explained: "Got started right and kept right." The Methodist church at Lost Springs and the Presbyterian and Christian churches near town have taught in season and out of season that the "wages of sin is death," with the result that the people avoid even the appearance of evil as they would an epidemic.

At the Methodist prayer meeting a short time ago one brother deplored the fact that so many of the inhabitants of the village used tobacco. He prayed that the evil might be eradicated. A venerable citizen of the town, aged 80, arose and said that he had been chewing tobacco for 60 years, but it never before dawned upon him that the habit was sinful. "I'll give it up," he said, and, going to the door, threw a plug of tobacco into the street. Five other tobacco users followed his example, and the congregation rejoiced with exceeding joy.

C. F. Shupe, the leading merchant of the village, on the day after the meeting, boxed up his stock of tobacco and shipped it back to the factory. "I have no scruples against selling tobacco," Mr. Shupe explained, "but the sentiment of the community is against the traffic, and I have decided not to sell any more of it. I do not use tobacco myself."

One other merchant keeps tobacco in stock, but as he has sold less than a dollar's worth since the crusade was started at the prayer meeting he likely will send his stock back to the factory.—Chicago Chronicle.

Harrison's Most Famous Case.

"It is doubtful," said an Indianapolis lawyer the other day, "whether Gen. Harrison recalls a certain case which he tried out in Indiana that was more remarkable in its way than the session of the Venezuelan arbitration. Of the four counsel only one had ever been heard outside of his own state, and the judge had merely a local reputation. Yet within 12 years one of the quartette had been elected vice president of the United States, another one president, still another United States senator, and the judge had risen to the circuit bench and had filled two cabinet posts. It was a political case, and each party chose its most famous representative to represent it. Mr. Harrison aided the United States district attorney, and Senator David Turpie and Vice President Thomas A. Hendricks appeared for the democrats. The judge was Walter Q. Gresham, who had been appointed district attorney for Indiana less than nine years before."—Philadelphia Post.

SPORTING.

GOLF

There has been a wholesale cutting down of the handicaps of the members of the Park Golf Club. Edgar I. Serrell's handicap has been reduced from 15 to 6. Serrell is a decidedly erratic player. At times he puts up a wonderfully clever game playing under the even 100 and then again he slices and pulls and tops until his score is run way up. When Serrell has learned to play careful, steady golf he will give some of the best players a lively time to hold his pace. Other players have had more or less clipped off of their handicaps and the result will be beneficial, particularly to the low handicap men. The scratch men are seldom able to do better than a 90 at best and more often a 92 or 93, and when the "duffers" run their score down to 85 with the aid of a fat handicap, the others do not stand any show. A number of the "duffers" have shown marked improvement this year and are in a fair way to get out of that class.

The team from the Park Golf Club went to Morristown Saturday afternoon and met an overwhelming defeat at the hands of the players of the Morristown Field Club. The Park Club boys were fairly outclassed. While they put up a fair game, an excellent one considering that they have never played over the course before, the home team was playing great golf and had everything their own way.

Two from the St. Paul's School team and several of the Morris County Country Club cracks were included in the Morristown Field Club eight. The Park Club team was composed of Morgan T. Townsend, W. J. R. Thiers, G. W. Faber, W. de la R. Anderson, Wm. M. McCutchen, Edgar I. Serrell, Dr. F. C. Ard and William A. Townsend.

All the Morristown men played under 90, Max Byers, the opponent to Morgan Townsend, making a 76. Townsend did 84, but was defeated 8 down. Wm. A. Townsend was high man for the Parks with a 91. The course was a fairly easy one, but in fine shape and well arranged.

The teams were as follows:

MORRISTOWN.		PARK CLUB.

M. Smith	2	W. J. R. Thiers	0

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Club team added another victory to the already long list Saturday afternoon last, when they defeated the team from the Newark A. C. on the home course in the East Jersey Golf Association tournament. The visitors were simply outclassed and throughout the game they were only able to score two points, and they were made by Conklin. This player made the course in 81, which is within one of the record for the 18 holes. All of the scores were below 90, and the home team played it their old-time form. Frank Reinhart, who has been playing great golf, seemed to be a little off Saturday, and was the only one of the home team failing to score. Howard Wright gave his opponent a severe drubbing, scoring 13 points. Below is the summary:

HILLSIDE.		NEWARK A. C.
Reinhart	0	Conklin	2
Glenney	1	Todd	0
Talmage	5	Moody	0
Dament	3	Halsey	0

The fact that so many of the members of the Hillside Club are away enjoying their vacation, accounts for the comparatively small attendance on the course these days. However, the course is visited every day by a certain number of the stay-at-homes, and they enjoy the full freedom of the links without being molested by the more expert players. The experts will not begin to return before the last of August, when they will get in practice for the fall play, which to them is the most delightful season of the year on the course.

The Glen Ridge Golf Club team will come to Plainfield next Saturday and contest with the Hillside team in the East Jersey Golf Association tournament.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Robert A. Fairborn's new trotting track at Westfield was opened Saturday under the most favorable auspices and with a large crowd in attendance, among which were a great many women. There were also at least 150 carriages on the ground. Horsemen were present from Plainfield, Rahway, Elizabeth and other places, all of whom declared the opening to be a decided success. The races went off without an accident to mar the day's pleasure, and all proved exciting especially at the finishes. There were six events in which most of the well-known horses in this vicinity participated. It seems surprising from the number of Plainfielders present that there is not a larger attendance at the Saturday matinee races at the Driving Park.

ON THE DIAMOND

After playing against great odds for eleven innings with the Y. M. O. A. S., of Newark, at that place Saturday, the St. Mary team, of this city, was defeated by a score of 5 to 4.

The Pond Tool Work's team and the A. O. H. nine played a game of ball on the Washington avenue grounds Saturday. The former team was defeated by a score of 20 to 18. The batteries were Scott and Owens and Scott and Taylor. A feature of the game was a home run made by Michael McNamara, of the Pond team.

DOUBTS ABOUT PEKIN.

Contradiction of One Shanghai Report—Consuls Not Notified by Sheng.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, July 16.—Consul-General Goodnow cables to the State Department from Shanghai, under today's date, that there is nothing more to report since his cable dispatch of the 13th last.

That dispatch reported the attack on the legations at Pekin as about to begin. Mr. Goodnow's statement is a direct contradiction of the Shanghai story that all foreign consuls were informed Saturday by Sheng that the legations had fallen and the Ministers were killed.

Secretary Hay call a Cabinet Council this morning to consider the Chinese situation. Few Cabinet officers are in the city, and the only attendants were Secretaries Hay, Root, Long and Gage. The Council was in session at noon.

HUMOROUS.

"Yes, I caught a beautiful string," said the sun-blistered banker. "Many of 'em weighed four pounds." There was a brief silence. The voice of the insurance agent broke it. "About how many did it take to weigh it?" he mildly asked. "Not over ten," replied the unabashed banker.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

BICYCLE THIEF AGAIN.

The bicycle thief took a stroll downtown Saturday evening. He saw a Dayton wheel, belonging to Herbert Alberts, in the rack in front of Hepburn's pharmacy, corner of Park avenue and West Second street, and evidently took a fancy to it. Alberts is a clerk in Hepburn's. At 9 o'clock the wheel was there, an hour later it was gone. That is all that Alberts knows about the disappearance of his bicycle. The matter was reported to the police.

The missing wheel was a Dayton special, No. 25,629, racing handle bars, green enamel frame and red rims. There was a Cyclone lamp on it. The pedals were not mates, one was old and the other new.

They are Mrs. John Day, of East Fourth street; Mrs. Edward Connors and Mrs. John Kane, of West Third street. Mrs. Gibbons was not seen around and it was imagined she was spending a few days in Plainfield, until two nephews broke open a door and found her lifeless body lying on the floor.

They were locked up and Sunday morning they agreed between them to deposit $25 for their appearance before Mayor Smalley this evening at 7 o'clock. The police, when questioned about the arrest and the names of the violators of the law, stated that they did not get the names of the men and don't know who they are. They feel sure they will appear tonight rather than forfeit the $25.

SUNDAY ROWDYISM ON TROLLEY CARS.

Present Facilities of Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company Are Inadequate.

GREAT RUSH FOR SEATS.

NEITHER SEX NOR AGE RESPECTED BY DISORDERLY ELEMENT.

Great Crowds on the Cars Last Sunday—People Fought for Seats at North Avenue Station—Poor Service on Dunellen-Bound Brook Line.

The summer traffic of the Plainfield-Elizabeth line, of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company, has developed so fast that the present facilities to accommodate it are utterly inadequate. While a great majority of the passengers are law-abiding citizens, there is a certain percentage of the disorderly element which, if not checked, promises to make all sorts of trouble for Plainfield and the other municipalities along the line. Trolley company officials have said that they were powerless, city officials say that something must be done before long, and meanwhile the disorderly element continues to make Sunday on the trolley line anything but a day of rest and quiet.

Last Sunday way a day when trolley riding was particularly pleasant. The weather was fair but almost unbearably hot and the swift trip over the roads offered by the trolley promised much relief from the heat and sultriness. There was, in consequence, a great crowd on the cars all day and well into the night. The new open cars, so long promised and so long delayed, were urgently needed, as the present rolling stock of the company was simply swamped by the crowd.

As each car rolled up to the transfer station at North avenue, a crowd of men and boys rushed at it. The shouts of the conductor and motorman to wait until the other passengers alighted were completely ignored. There was a dash and a scramble and only those of considerable agility were able to fight their way to a seat. The women and children were pushed and buffeted about, often being compelled to stand for part or all of their journey.

The back platform was usually the favorite rallying place of the disorderly element. There they gathered and shouted at each other and the passengers. The conductors were so occupied in trying to keep the complicated system of fares and tickets straight that they rarely made any attempt at all to restrain the boisterous passengers. Sex or age elicited no regard from the disturbers. They guyed and shouted at one and all, sometimes in language that was far from polite.

An elderly man with grey hair boarded one of the cars at Scotch Plains. He was compelled to stand up as the car was crowded. Three young men on the back platform made all manner of insulting remarks to him and when he left the car at Plainfield, their gibes and jeers followed him for some distance down the street. There were other instances of a similar character.

When the representatives of this class of characters reach this city they usually calm down while they are actually off the cars, but their own peculiar kind of "fun" is resumed as soon as they start back on the trolley again. Through the lax observation of the Sunday closing law, there are many places between Plainfield and Elizabeth where liquor is dispensed freely Sundays. These establishments furnish their quota of half intoxicated men who take a principal part in the disturbances on the trolley cars.

There is more or less of this rowdyism every evening, but it is particularly noticeable Saturday evenings and Sundays.

The trolley company has so far received five out of the ten of its new open cars. One now runs from the junction near Westfield to Picton. The other four are in use between Picton and Boynton Beach. Five more cars are now long over due. Sunday the crowd was so great that closed cars were run on the "Plainfield-Elizabeth" line between the open ones. The crowd objected to closed cars but they were well filled all day.

The opening of the Elizabeth-Plainfield line has played havoc with the size of the traffic between Dunellen and and Bound Brook. Until the line to the east was opened those who wanted a long trolley ride were compelled to look to the system of the Brunswick Traction Company for it. The ride to Elizabeth now has greatly

MISS DUMONT WEDDED.

QUIETLY MARRIED TO COL. MORRIS B. BELKNAP YESTERDAY.

Although a Quiet Affair, the Wedding was a Very Pretty One—Bishop Scarborough Officiated.

Very quiet but charming, indeed, was the wedding of Miss Marion S. Dumont, only daughter of Councilman and Mrs. John B. Dumont, of East Seventh street, to Colonel Morris B. Belknap, a wealthy and influential citizen of Louisville, Ky. The ceremony took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents. Only the families of the bride and groom and a few intimate friends were invited to be present.

Bishop Scarborough, of Trenton, who has long been a friend of the Dumont family through their connection with the Grace P. E. church, officiated at the ceremony, assisted by Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of Grace P. E. church. It was the Episcopal service and was impressively performed in the parlor in a floral bower of white. The bride was gowned in white and was attended by a single bridesmaid, Miss Louise VanIngen, of New York. The best man was John B. Dumont, Jr., a brother of the bride.

The whole house was profusely decorated with flowers, white and green being the prevailing colors. After the ceremony an informal reception to the bridal party and the gathering of guests was held and the wedding supper was served. After spending several hours among their friends the couple left for New York. This noon they sailed for Europe on the North-German Lloyd steamer, "Kaiserin Maria Teresa." A party of friends were at the pier to say goodbye.

Although the wedding was such a quiet one, Colonel and Mrs. Belknap were remembered with a host of wedding gifts of beauty and value. On their return from abroad they will take up their residence in Louisville, where Col. Belknap is interested in a flourishing business He is well-known and highly-respected there, having served as president of the Board of Trustees of that city and as Lieutenant-Colonel of the First Kentucky Regiment before and during its first campaign in Porto Rico.

DEAL NOT COMPLETED.

North Jersey Street Railway May Absorb Both the Hine-Riker and Kean Lines.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 17.—A report was made public yesterday that the trolley road owned by Senator Kean had been consolidated with the lines controlled by the Hine-Riker syndicate, which operates the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company.

John W. Whelan, who is Senator Kean's representative here, said yesterday that the consolidation had not yet taken place, that no sale had been made by Senator Kean and no price had been fixed. Mr. Whalen, however, would not deny that negotiations were in progress to bring about a consolidation of two roads. It is known that Senator Kean not so long ago was engaged in an effort to purchase all the shares of stock in the Green line which were held by others besides himself, and, while he held the controlling interest, this action would be a preliminary to placing him in a position to dispose of the road to another company.

It is generally believed here that the North Jersey Street Railway Company will eventually absorb the Hine-Riker syndicate as well as the Kean road, and that this will be in the not far distance future.

Maybe No Baby Show.

That Asbury Park may not have its annual baby parade this year is among the possibilities. "Founder" Bradley, who a decade ago originated the idea of lining up the specimens of young America on this coast and parading them up and down the plank walk, says he cannot direct the parade this year. Dr. George F. Wilbur, who superintended it last year, hasn't time to serve again. The right man for the position is not yet fixed on. L. H. Johnson, of Trenton, has been suggested for the place.

Shot Himself.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 17—Henry Nerousky, a 14-year-old boy, living in East Somerville, shot himself through the hand Saturday night, while fooling with a revolver. He first told a sensational story of someone shooting him from the bushes on Fairview avenue, but when pressed hard by Officer Holmes he admitted that the story of someone shooting him was a fake and that he accidentally did it himself. He is doing as well as could be expected.

MAD BULL KILLS BOY.

ANIMAL ATTACKED TWO COUSINS, CAUSING DEATH OF ONE.

Boys Teased the Bull, Which Attacked Them in a Ferocious Manner at Once.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, July 17.—William Arnold, 8 years old, of New York, and Edward Morgan, son of Samuel Morgan, of Zion, were attacked by a bull yesterday, and the latter boy was killed and the other boy injured seriously.

The Arnold boy came here a short time ago to spend the summer with his uncle, the father of the boy now dead. Yesterday afternoon the two cousins were playing in the fields, and came upon the bull. They teased the animal, and the bull set upon the Arnold boy, and, knocking him down, gored him and trampled on him. The child would have been killed but for his cousin, who tried to beat the bull off. The animal was diverted by this attack, and, leaving his first victim, turned upon the other boy, who was thrown high into the air, and when he fell the bull tossed him again and again.

A farm hand came running up with a fence rail and attacked the bull. The animal then turned upon the man and a hard fight followed, but the man leaped a fence and got away.

The Arnold lad was found to be bleeding and cut by the hoofs and horns, but was not in as bad a condition as his cousin. The latter boy was unconscious when picked up. He was carried to his home and died there.

ONLY THE TIRES MISSING.

Wheel Stolen From Herbert Alberts Recovered on Monroe Avenue Yesterday Morning.

William Gray, of 1008 West Third street, was hurrying along Monroe avenue early yesterday morning after a physician. He noticed a wheel standing by the curb. It was all there except the tires. He took charge of the wheel and subsequently turned it over to the police. Yesterday afternoon the wheel was identified by Herbert Alberts, a clerk in Hepburn's pharmacy as the Dayton special that was stolen from in front of Hepburn's store Saturday night. The wheel was not injured. Only the tires were missing.

BISHOP WIGGER'S NEW PLAN.

He Will Help Rectors in Building Churches and Schools.

Bishop Winand M. Wigger, of New Jersey, has adopted a new system of supplying funds for church building purposes that will enable rectors to procure money at a lower rate of interest than formerly. It has been customary for a rector who wished to erect a church or school to go to some banking house and make the best terms possible, often paying six per cent. interest.

To obviate this Bishop Wigger has made terms with a life insurance company to furnish such funds at four per cent interest. This will result in a saving of about $15,000 a year to the Newark diocese. The Bishop also advocates a plan whereby the insurance on all diocesan buildings may be carried in a central, independent company, to be managed by the church authorities.

DID ITS WORK OVER.

Roselle Borough Council Had Been Passing Irregular Resolutions.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Roselle, July 17—The Roselle Borough Council has been passing resolutions in an irregular manner for over a year past, according to a legal opinion from Borough Attorney Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth. As a result, a special meeting of the Council was held, when it was discovered that several of the most important offices had been filled by appointments made by resolutions which were passed upon not strictly in accordance with the letter of the law. The same rule applies to the salaries of these officials, and before the meeting was over a Borough Clerk, Marshal, Attorney, Engineer and Inspector of Street Work were appointed and their salaries fixed in accordance with Attorney Bergen's advice.

$320,000 INCREASE IN TAX VALUATIONS.

Total Valuation of the City for This Year is Reported to be $8,320,000.

COUNTY ASSESSORS MEET.

UNIFORM ASSESSMENT TO BE MADE ON TROLLEY TRACKS.

Plainfield Taken to Task for Reporting Less to State Board Than to County—Assessor Hubbard Explained the Cause of It.

The county Board of Assessors met yesterday in Elizabeth to report the assessed valuations and to fix the proportions for the county and State school taxes. All the cities and townships were represented.

The books of the different assessors were examined by a committee as follows: C. C. Pollard, Elizabeth; J. M. C. Marsh, Westfield; and John J. Coffee, Rahway.

The committee reported that Plainfield and Summit had not made full returns of their books of assessment. They had brought from some wards the field books instead of the regular tax books. Plainfield was also taken to task for a tangle in figures, which demanded some explanation. It was discovered that in 1898 Plainfield reported in the county $190,000 less valuation than was reported to the State board, and in 1899 over $300,000 less than reported to the State board.

Assessor Hubbard, of Plainfield, made an explanation, which showed the fault to be in a peculiar system in force in Plainfield, which allowed the City Council to increase the valuations after the assessors had reported to the county board. This advance in valuation kept down Plainfield's city tax rate, but it seemed to be unfair to the county.

The explanations were accepted, and it is understood there has been a remedy adopted, so that this tangle of figures will not again appear. This year Plainfield reports in increase in valuation of $320,000, making its total $8,320,000, as against $8,000,000 in 1899.

The absence of the tax books was also satisfactorily explained, and the field books, which were exact duplicates, were accepted.

On suggestion of Chairman Eckerson it was resolved to make a uniform assessment on the trolley companies of $7,000 per mile for single track in all towns and boroughs. In Elizabeth the assessment is $8,500 per mile.

BOY DROWNED IN POND.

Jacob Nick, of Unionville, Disappeared While Swimming at Springfield With Two Companions.

Jacob Nick, Jr., seventeen years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Nick, of Unionville, was drowned while swimming in the Milltown Pond on the Rahway river at Springfield shortly before noon Sunday.

Young Nick was in the water with two companions of his own age—John Moore and Stephen Merringer. While some distance from his companions Nick sank without uttering a cry. The body was recovered about an hour after the accident happened by drawing the water from the pond. It is supposed that Nick was seized with a cramp.

A Bad Fall.

While coming down the Netherwood hill Sunday Patrick Flaherty, of Pond place, ran over a stone which caused him to lose his balance and fall from his wheel. He struck on his face receiving several bad bruises, one of them being directly over the eye. It was nearly an hour afterward before he was able to remount and continue his ride.

Fined $5 Each.

Robert Donelly and Patrick Donelly, of this city, are the two men who were arrested in a borough saloon last Saturday night for fighting and resisting arrest. They deposited $25 for their appearance last evening before Mayor Smalley. The men appeared as they promised and after hearing the evidence, His Honor fined them $5 each.

Too Much Heat.

Last evening heat proved to be too much for the majority of the members of the Board of Trade and they failed to put in an appearance. The few energetic members who did come, however, waited patiently in the hopes of securing a quorum, until half past nine, when they decided to adjourn.

Arthur Miller, brother of Dudley S. Miller, of Orchard place, who formerly lived in Plainfield, is now located in North Carolina, where he has an excellent position. He expects to come to Plainfield about the last of this month.

EDITOR TAKEN TO TASK.

REV. E. E. JACKSON OFFENDED AT A NEWS EDITORIAL.

The Colored Pastor Indignant at the Treatment of His Race by Editor Runyon.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I read an article in Saturday's issue of the News headed "Negroes May Insult White Women With Impunity." I don't believe that the time has come, north or south, for the superior race to be so close in touch with my race as to let them go unpunished for anything they may do of a vile nature, but the time has come for the courts of our land to give credence to and act upon evidence, be it black or white, rich or poor. Wealth and color should not influence the law. If the action or conduct of those young men were true, was it any worse than the News editor's reporter who entered my church June 15th and said, because he could not be intelligently informed respecting the convention's doings at a morning's session, "you can go to hell," and when he, the employe, was reported by myself to his employer, the latter replied that the convention was not important enough to claim the attention of a reporter. Is this not much worse than the reported conduct of the Negroes on the highway? I say that if those Negro boys were talking to the lady referred to they should be punished; but if the lady overheard them and wrongly applied their language to herself, the Judge was right.

I am opposed to any such characters, be they white or colored, insulting or using profane language in the presence of ladies. But the author of Saturday's article seems to predicate upon the Negro; and argues that a special revision of the city ordinance should be made on account of the Negro. I say if such is done, do it for the transgressor be he white or black. The editor of the News seems, from his treatment of the Negro, to have no room for him. He should be impressed with the importance of trying to lift him up like many of our Christian white friends of this city.

The New England convention which met in this city at my church passed a resolution condemning the present administration. I was opposed to such resolution, but the action of the editor of the News in opposing justice strengthens me where I was weak.

This is the chief reason why the colored conventions all over the country passed such resolutions—because of discrimination in law and equity under this administration.

If such men as the author of that article are to control the Republican administration in this country or city, tell me what will the political status of the party be the next twelve years? I think it would be worth much to the party and city if the imitating editor did get out of the business.

E. E. Jackson.

MISSION WORK IN CITY.

MR. AND MRS. E. R. TAYLOR TELL OF THEIR WORK HERE.

Interesing Meeting Held in Trinity Reformed Church Under Auspices of Endeavors.

One of the most helpful and interesting missionary services yet held under the auspices of the missionary committee of the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church, was that of last evening. Notwithstanding the oppressive warm weather, the attendance was excellent. Miss Mary Pugh, a member of the missionary committee, conducted the devotional exercises, after which Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Taylor, who have for some time past been doing missionary work in this city, were introduced, and related some of their experiences in the work.

Mr. Taylor was the first speaker. He told how he and his wife commenced the mission work in Ohio, and were then led to continue it in Plainfield. Their aim and purpose has been to work in harmony with the churches and to especially visit among people on the outskirts of the city. An idea of the territory covered by Mr. and Mrs. Taylor on their wheels since December last in their house to house visitation can be learned when it is known that the cyclometers on their wheels now register nearly three thousand miles.

Another feature of their work is the holding of cottage prayer meetings in the outskirts. These have been conducted successfully and many have been converted. Mr. Taylor told of many direct answers to prayer, of how money, food and clothing had been sent to them to be used in making others comfortable.

After Mr. Taylor's interesting remarks, Mrs. Taylor spoke briefly telling more in detail of the work. She reported several conversions and related many interesting incidents in connection therewith.

During the service Mrs. J. H. Manley sang two beautiful solos which were greatly enjoyed by all. At the close many remained to meet Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and thank them for their talks, also to give them encouragement in the grand work they are doing among Plainfield's poor and needy ones.

DRY FOWDER DID IT.

An Effective Demonstration of a Fire Extinguisher Last Night.

Fully five hundred people gathered at the corner of Park avenue and Front street last evening, for the purpose of witnessing E. J. Swan give a personal demonstration of his dry powder fire extinguisher, of which he is the inventor and owner. There were two exhibitions given with a large box, about fifteen feet high, constructed of highly inflamable material and soaked with oil. As the fires were lighted and the flames mounted high in the air, the heat became so intense as to force the crowd back for fifty feet, but in from five to ten seconds the fire was absolutely extinguished. Everyone was delighted at the success of the exhibition and cheered the operation loudly. Mr. Swan was congratulated by a number of prominent citizens upon the "wonder" he has created and which is pronounced a marvel wherever it is seen.

This was the 2,250th exhibition personally given by Mr. Swan in this country and Europe. The extinguisher is simplicity in itself consisting only of a plain tin tube 22 inches long, two inches in diameter and weighing only 3½ pounds. The powder is absolutely harmless to everything except fire and to this it is instant death. Messers. Case and Dwyer representing Mr. Swan will be at the Kensington for a few days, during which time they will be glad to show the extinguisher to anyone desiring it.

WARM WAVE IS HERE IN ALL ITS GLORY.

DRINKS ARE IN DEMAND.

THE PITILESS SUN SHINING ON A CROWD OF HOT HUMANITY.

Second Day of a Record-Breaking Hot Wave is in Force—Prospect of Relief in a Day or Two.

With sad-eyed weariness the iceman embraced his precious dripping burden this morning. The ice was cool, but that was more than can be said for that portion of sweltering humanity that is making its abode in Plainfield at present. Even the iceman felt the overpowering heat despite his close proximity to the wagon load of chilliness. Yesterday was a warm day, to put it mildly. Some people declared it was hot and used a lengthy string of adjectives to emphasize their opinion. Today promises to be fully up to the standard set by yesterday.

It wasn't so bad early in the morning when most of Plainfield's population tossed wearily on their couch. But when that pitiless determined stare of the sun swept across the sleeping city, the mercury jumped up several degrees from sheer fright.

From that time forward the mercury has been advancing by some progressive system until it dances about the hundred mark as this edition goes to press.

At 7 o'clock the thermometer registered 72 degrees. Two hours later it was wandering about the ninety point. At 11 the mercury had thrown propriety to the winds and was making a strong effort to get out the top of the tube. Some say it was only a hundred in the shade at noon. The hot weather had gone to the head of the thermometer, however, as well as to the brains of mankind and it said all sorts of things that it didn't mean.

As the morning progressed men began to find an increasing dislike for coats. The coats were left hanging in the office while the owners wandered about coatless. Collars succumbed and took on a listless appearance. The desire to dress well began to wane. Comfort and coolness were the only two aims of the perspiring folk.

Anything that had the slightest claim toward coolness found instant favor. The soda water fountains in the drug stores found very many new patrons. The glaces became wonderfully popular. The ice cream parlors had many customers. The saloons and bar rooms were crowded with those who wanted something cool to drink. The liquid refreshments were all right, but they only gave temporary relief from the heat. One visit necessitated another. Meanwhile the dispensers of such beverages gathered in the cash as they wiped away the streams of perspiration that flowed unceasingly.

So far, only two thermometers have been overcome by the heat, but others may be reported later. One was the property of Henry VanName, of East Front street. It gave a despairing cry yesterday afternoon and burst. Another, belonging to Chas. Conover, of Elmwood place, sighed loudly three times during the afternoon and then collapsed.

The hot wave is going to break with considerable noise. According to the weather forecasters this section will be treated to a series of young and sprightly thunder storms this afternoon or tonight which will somewhat reduce the humidity and make life more endurable. Tomorrow promises to be showery and cooler.

Garret Dunham, of Sandford avenue, was overcome by the heat yesterday and is confined to his home today.

BROUGHT BACK WHEEL.

Graff Simmonds Bicycle Was Only Gone for a Little While.

A Crescent wheel, model 15, belonging to Graff Simmonds, was left leaning against the side of his home on Watchung avenue, Sunday afternoon. When he came home from Sunday-school the wheel was nowhere to be found. Its loss was immediately reported to the police.

Yesterday afternoon the wheel was found by young Simmonds leaning against the house. No one was seen to leave it there. The same mystery shrouded its return as rested on its disappearance. The thief evidently became frightened and brought the wheel back.

NEELY'S DEPOSITS.

Washington Seeks Information—Salaries of Officials Withheld.

HAVANA, July 17.—In response to a request received from Washington for definite information respecting the amount of money deposited by C. F. W. Neely, late financial agent of posts, with the treasury and the North American Trust company Treasurer Ladd and the assistant cashier of the company left last evening for Washington by the United States transport McClellan.

Since May 1 the salaries of the postal employees throughout the island have been withheld pending the result of the investigation into the postal frauds. Before his departure General Wood, fearing that hardships would arise from a further continuance of this regulation, gave instructions that payments should be made this week, and the disbursement will begin in Havana today.

The local representative of the Fidelity and Casualty company has protested against a further withholding of salaries and has threatened to withdraw the company's bonds unless payments are made regularly hereafter.

La Lucha has begun a strong campaign against judicial corruption. It says:

"At the very outset of the intervention a great failure of the Americans attended their organization of the personnel of the tribunals. The judges they appointed lack legal capacity and honesty. Ninety per cent of our people would rather not appeal from a decision, however unjust, as the appeal would inevitably mean no satisfaction and the loss of more money."

The board of education has initiated a subscription among the muncipalities of the island in behalf of a memorial to Harvard university to commemorate the visit of the Cuban teachers to the United States.

A TEXAS CLOUDBURST.

Town of Coleman Suffers Great Loss of Life and Property.

COLEMAN, Tex., July 17.—Fifteen lives are known to have been lost in a cloudburst here yesterday. Ten bodies have been recovered, but only two were identified, Joseph Spath and John Fouleisstein.

It is feared that many more lives were lost in the valley below Coleman. The cloudburst, which followed three days of unprecedented rainfall, caused Ford's creek to burst its banks and rush through Coleman, a village of less than 1,000 inhabitants.

Bewildered citizens, roused from their slumbers, rushed into the streets and were swept away. Many were saved by catching hold of pieces of timber and navigating them into eddies formed by the swift current, where they were drawn ashore.

Spath and Fouleisstein managed to mount their horses. They dashed into the water and swam their horses to a house where four little girls were screaming for help. Each rescued two of the children, who they took upon their horses. The animals were swept away, however, in a noble effort to stem the swift current, and all were drowned.

Water has floated the tracks of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe railway for miles, and all traffic is stopped.

Endeavorers Without Food.

LONDON, July 17.—Already there are some indications of a food famine on the grounds of the Christian Endeavor convention. The attendance seems to have entirely exceeded the expectations of the caterers, and hundreds of delegates, after waiting for an hour or more in the dining hall yesterday, were informed that the supplies were exhausted. Table service supplies are equally scant, and the place is miles away from the ordinary restaurants. Dr. Lorimer, in the course of his address yesterday afternoon, urged Christian Endeavorers to raise the cry of "Brotherhood and no vengeance" in connection with the Chinese situation. Mr. D. Beddy of Auburn, N. Y., who is preparing for missionary work in India, led an interesting meeting and will conduct a missionary conference tomorrow, at which United States Embassador Choate will speak.

Dangerous Fire In Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 17.—Seven people were injured, one fatally, by falling walls in a fire caused by lightning last night at Michigan street and Dearborn avenue. The fire started in a broom corn factory and spread rapidly. Suddenly the walls of the burning building collapsed, falling on an adjoining boarding house, 212 Michigan street, crushing the roof in. Several firemen were carried down with the roof, and for a time it was believed a number of persons had perished. The inmates of the boarding house were all rescued, though with much difficulty. The total damage amounts to nearly $200,000.

McGovern Too Much For Erne.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Once more a fighter pitted against a boxer has clearly demonstrated the superiority of the fighter. Last night, in the presence of 14,000 persons in the Madison Square Garden, Terry McGovern of Brooklyn defeated Frank Erne of Chicago, the lightweight champion of the world, in the third round. It was a hurricane fight from bell to bell, without a second's let up, except when either one of the contestants was lying on the floor of the ring.

My back pained me and was weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got but little if any relief, I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. News From China Excites Officials In Washington.

PRESIDENT HURRIES FROM CANTON.

Remey's Dispatch Announcing Losses at Tien-tsin Following Confirmation of Peking Massacre Causes a Hurried Consultation.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The decision of the administration at the end of a most eventful day is that the United States government is still not at war with the government of China. The big happenings at Tien-tsin, coming on top of the stories of the last struggles at Peking, have not affected the attitude of the administration on this point; the United States and China are technically at peace. But this statement should not be accepted as indicating a purpose on the part of the United States government to hold its hand in the administration of swift and adequate punishment upon the Chinese, without regard to station, who may be responsible for the outrages of the past few weeks.

It means simply that the government of the United States feels that it can best achieve that purpose by regarding the status officially as one of peace. To hold otherwise would seriously cripple the government in its efforts to obtain satisfaction for the outrages the Americans in China have suffered. We should find the ports of China now open to us closed and all sorts of impediments would be encountered which now are missing Therefore, according to the administration view, a declaration of war would afford not even a technical gain, while it would actually be a heavy drawback Chairman Cannon of the house appropriations committee is authority for the statement that money in plenty is at the disposal of the president to meet the present emergency and that there is no necessity for a called session of congress on that score.

The day was the most exciting Washington has known since the battle of Santiago. At the very beginning came Admiral Remey's cablegram announcing the defeat of the allied forces at Tien-tsin and then came the vivid account of the fight. A special cabinet meeting was held on receipt of this news, with such members present as are in town. Great reluctance was manifested on the part of the participants to answer questions as to the nature of the deliberations. The best indication of its nature was the departure for the White House of Secretary Hay immediately after the meeting. He sat down and had a long talk with President McKinley over the long distance telephone, and it soon became known that the president had decided that it would be best for him to come back from Canton to the national capital.

Admiral Remey's dispatch given below came as it reads, without punctuation and Secretary Long fears that Captain Davis of the marine corps and Captain Lemly were both killed, though the bureau of navigation interprets the message as meaning that all except Liscum were wounded:

"Reported that allied forces attacked native city (Tien-tsin) morning 13th, Russians right, with Ninth infantry and marines on left. Losses allied forces large and Russians over 100, including artillery colonel; Americans over 30, British over 40, Japan 58, including colonel; French 25. Colonel Liscum, Ninth infantry, killed, also Captain Davis marine corps, Captain Lemly, Lieutenants Butler and Leonard wounded. At 7 evening allied attack on native city repulsed with great loss. Returns yet incomplete; details not yet confirmed."

The cabinet officers talked over the possibilities of re-enforcing the troops in China. There was no disposition shown to withhold these troops. The only question was as to the amount of additional force available. That was a technical question, so it was left to the war department officials to decide. The only point laid down was that the government would send forward all the troops that could be spared at this time. One

The estimates varied as to how many could be spared, but the general opinion was that somewhere between 4,000 and 8,000 men could be shipped to the east from Cuba and the United States in addition to the troops already under orders. A statement prepared by Adjutant General Corbin shows that there are now a grand total of 10,665 officers and men in China, en route to China, en route to Nagasaki or under orders for Nagasaki. This table of course includes the ill fated Ninth infantry, which may not be in condition for further service. General Wood's last reports indicate that, owing to the tranquillity prevailing in Cuba, it will be entirely safe to decrease the military force there quite largely.

But even with these Cuban troops it will be necessary, if the cabinet plans are carried out, to divest the home posts of garrisons save in the case of the heavy artillery organisations at sea coast points. About all the troops within the borders of the United States that would be available for Chinese service under a call are these regiments: The Second, Fifth, Eighth and Tenth cavalry regiments intact, one squadron each of the First and the Sixth cavalry, the First, Tenth and Eleventh regiments of infantry complete, one battalion each of the Second, Fifth, Seventh, Fourteenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-third and Twenty-fifth infantry regiments and three companies of the Twenty-fourth infantry. This available force of cavalry and infantry aggregates about 9,000 men. Some artillery undoubtedly would be sent, and there are light batteries K of the First artillery, A and F of the Second, C and F of the Third, B of the Fourth, D of the Fifth and C and M of the Seventh available. There are besides Companies C and D of the engineers and four companies of the signal corps.

Secretary Root was reluctant to admit that there was any necessity for more American troops in China, and at the close of the day he said that thus far he had issued no orders for re-enforcements.

Without exception the foreign representatives in Washington have accepted as practically certain that the foreign legations and ministers at Peking have been wiped out. At the same time there is not a word confirmatory from any of the foreign offices, and the conclusion is based on the accumulating unofficial data that the slaughter occurred about July 6 or 7. Even among the high Chinese officials hope has been about given up, but they maintain that there is no official information and that they are as much in the dark as others. The situation has a telling effect on the Chinese minister who is under a nervous tension and agitation more severe than that of most of the American officials. He is seeking to show in the present crisis that no matter how conditions may be in China he is none the less anxious to serve the American government and people, for until now he has taken great pride in the kindly personal relations between himself and the people here.

General Miles was called upon by Secretary Root during the afternoon to counsel with him as to the projected troop movements. He favors the prompt dispatch of a large force to China.

A good deal of annoyance has been caused here by the complete misunderstanding that has been conveyed to the European nations as to the attitude of the United States government regarding the settlement of the Chinese troubles. This government, it can be stated authoritatively, never has thought of compromising for money or any other form of indemnity. Indeed, the subject of money indemnity or an apology has never been thought of or mentioned by the government of the United States. The government will insist on justice and retribution, according to the highest authorities.

The question of transportation for the troops now on their orders for Nagasaki is one which is causing the war department considerable anxiety. A high official of the department said that with the fleet of transports now available it would not be possible to land the last of the 10,000 troops in question at Nagasaki before the last of September or the first week in October.

The President Leaves Canton.

CANTON, O., July 17.—President McKinley left this city for Washington at 10:50 o'clock last evening. He journeyed in a special car attached to the regular Pennsylvania train. Only Secretary Cortelyou accompanied the president, who will attend to matters in connection with the Chinese situation and in the course of a few days expects to return to Canton. It is expected that the members of the president's cabinet will be at the White House this afternoon awaiting the arrival of the president and that an important meeting will be held soon after his arrival. It can be stated with certainty that no extra session of congress has yet been determined upon and that it has not been decided to issue a call for troops for service in China. The past 18 hours brought the first tangible news from China for some time, and it is the desire of the president to go over these reports with his official family. Upon this review will depend in a large measure the governments action in the immediate future.

Troops Sail From Manila.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The following cablegram was received at the war department from General MacArthur, dated Manila, July 16:

"Transport Indiana sailed yesterday for China with 21 officers, including two medical, 847 men, Fourteenth regiment, United States infantry; one officer, 31 men, Ninth regiment, United States infantry; William Crozier, ordnance officer; one ordnance sergeant, one chaplain, 16 hospital corps men, Flintshire, with seven officers, 271 men, Reilly's battery; two medical officers, five hospital corps men fully equipped."

Another cablegram from General MacArthur announced the sailing for the United States from Manila of the big transport Sherman, with a capacity for 2,000 troops.

Marines Ordered to China.

ANNAPOLIS, July 17.—Seventy-nine members of the marine guard at the Naval academy will leave here tomorrow under orders for China. They will be in charge of Lieutenant Fay, U. S. M. C. The noncommissioned officers accompanying the detachment are Gunner Sergeant Rowland, Sergeants White and Smith and Corporals Malin, McKay, Brous and Rice.

A Fanatical Institution Threatened In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 17.—The authorities here have unearthed an alleged charity institution revealing methods based on fanaticism horrible as in the days when the uncivilized slew their infants as sacrifices to their gods. The place, which is called the "Orphanage of the Fire Baptized Holiness association," has been conducted in secret, and it was due to the death of one of its charges that the coroner exposed it.

Within the confines of its dingy walls, at 3545 North Second street, little babes and tots, all under 6 years old, lay on beds, racked with fever and pain, and no attempt was made to relieve them. They were left, as the superintendent said, "to the mercy of God." Edward Heck, 7 years old, died in the orphanage on Saturday. To secure a burial permit the case had to be reported. At the inquest yesterday H. T. Sollenberger, the superintendent, was asked what treatment the child had received.

"None," he replied. "We placed the child under God's care and trusted for its deliverance from disease to his gracious will. I hope you will understand me when I say we are against all religion proper, because we are the children of God. By our faith in God we believe all can be healed without medicine or a physician."

Fire Started by Tramps.

BOSTON, July 17.—The authorities who have been investigating the oil tank fire at the Boston and Maine railroad yards last Thursday night, as the result of which five persons have died, have decided that the blaze probably was started by tramps. It is pointed out that this year by orders of the railroad company great efforts have been made to prevent vagrants from making a rendezvous of the railroad yards, and the authorities have formed the opinion that tramps desiring revenge set the fire to cause loss to the railway company.

Intense Heat Recorded.

MARLBORO, Mass., July 17.—Yesterday was the hottest day for many years in this city and suburbs, the average heat in the city during the afternoon being over the 100 mark. It is claimed that one thermometer registered 110 in the shade, while in several places 102 was registered. There were many prostrations, and a number of workmen engaged in the highway were forced to cease work.

Yale Building Contract Let.

NEW HAVEN, July 17.—The contract for the largest of the Yale bicentennial buildings, the new Yale dining hall, has been given to a well known Worcester (Mass.) firm. In round numbers the contract is for $200,000 and is said to be the largest for a single building ever given in New Haven. Construction will be commenced at once, and completion is called for by Oct. 1.

AMERICA IN THE LEAD

Our Athletes Take Lion's Share at Paris.

WIN SIXTEEN OUT OF TWENTY-ONE.

Number of Seconds and Thirds Also Secured—Kraenslein of Pennsylvania Says He Has Run His Last Race.

PARIS, July 17.—Twenty-one championship contests in connection with the exposition have been decided during the last three days, and America can boast of winning 16 and of securing 13 seconds and 12 thirds.

Nine events took place yesterday, in which the Americans placed six firsts, six seconds and seven thirds to their credit. They captured the 200 meter hurdle race, the standing high jump, the three standing jumps, the long jump, the hop, step and jump, the hammer throwing and the standing long jump, and they did it easily. In fact, the facility with which the American athletes carried off prizes finally grew monotonous.

Three events were won by foreigners. One, the tug of war, was not contested by the Americans. In the 800 meter flat race, which was won by an Englishman, Tysoe, the Americans took second and third places. In the remaining race, the 4,000 meter steeplechase, they failed to get a place, Englishmen taking all three. This result was somewhat of a disappointment for the American spectators, as they had hoped to see Orton repeat his splendid performance of Sunday. Eight ran—three Americans, Orton, McClain and Grant; three Englishmen, Rimmer, Bennett and Robinson; Chastanie, the French champion, and Diehnoe, a German. Rimmer took the lead at the outset and was never passed. McClain ran in close for two-thirds of the course, while Orton and Grant brought up the rear.

The Americans had the hammer throwing contest to themselves, their two Swedish rivals being utterly outclassed. The apparent unfamiliarity of the latter with the hammer caused some amusement among the spectators, not unmixed with a certain amount of apprehension, and once or twice the crowd behind scattered precipitately as the direction of the hammer showed a tendency to eccentricity.

Flanagan was heartily cheered on his longest throw, as it was thought that he had broken the record, but measurement shows the throw to have been three inches short. T. Truxton Hare of the University of Pennsylvania was second with 151 feet 9 inches and J. C. McCracken, University of Pennsylvania, third with 146 feet.

The tug of war proved more entertaining than scientific. The Scandinavian team was composed of much heavier men than the French. The Americans declined to enter the contest.

This ended the day's programme.

A. C. Kraenzlein, University of Pennsylvania, has run his last race. He made a statement to this effect yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of the 200 meters, which he won so easily. "That was my last race," he exclaimed. "I am through with athletics and shall devote myself to something more serious." He is badly used up, the strain of three days' consecutive games having told upon him severely.

Colombian Town Destroyed.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 17.—A letter from Atrato, Colombia, says Bocas del Torro has been visited by a terrible gale, which destroyed many buildings and banana plantations. Immediately after the gale a fearful fire swept the town, destroying its finest buildings. The situation is said to be desperate, the people being demoralized over the dual catastrophe. The fire originated through carelessness in the Chinese quarter. News has reached here of a serious split in the Colombian government. Certain ministers have taken a position antagonistic to their colleagues. The former have the confidence of the public and the soldiery, and should the split become more acute the rebels will be largely re-enforced by government troops.

Young Cross Must Die.

HARTFORD, July 17.—The several well known professional men who have interested themselves in the case of Cross, the boy murderer, and have worked persistently for a reprieve from the governor or a commuting of the sentence by the board of pardons have finally been forced to relinquish all hopes of success in their efforts, and, according to the natural course of events, the lad will be executed at Weathersfield soon after midnight Friday next, July 20. The boy will be the most youthful criminal that ever had to pay the death penalty in Connecticut.

Republican Clubs Meet.

ST. PAUL, July 17.—The national convention of the League of Republican Clubs was called to order at 10 o'clock this morning. Between 1,500 and 1,800 delegates were present. The session was held in the Auditorium. Colonel George Stone of California, president of the league, will call the evening session to order. United States Senator Davis will preside and will make the address of welcome to the guest of the evening, Governor Theodore Roosevelt of New York. The governor's reply is expected to be the feature of the convention.

Presidential Appointments.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The following appointments have been made by the president to take effect Sept. 1, 1900: H. Percival Dodge of Massachusetts, second secretary of the embassy of the United States at Berlin; Samuel Morril of Massachusetts, third secretary of the embassy of the United States at Berlin, and Arthur Bailey Blanchard of Louisiana, third secretary of the embassy of the United States at Paris.

Three Whales Sighted.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Captain Foster of the steamboat Angler reported that he sighted two large whales about eight miles southeast of Sandy Hook. The big fellows passed near his vessel, he declared, and those on board had a good look at them. They were bound south. Another monster was seen off Fire island early in the morning.

Teresneck Sentenced.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Casper Teresneck, 18 years old, who was convicted in the second degree of the murder of William Biddlecum, a canalboat captain, in the evening of Easter Sunday, was sentenced to 20 years in state prison.

DEFEAT FOR ALLIES.

Americans Lose Heavily In Fighting at Tien-tsin.

COL. LISCUM OF THE NINTH KILLED.

Chinese Fight Desperately and With Accurate Marksmanship—Allies Hold All the Forts at Tien-tsin Save One.

LONDON, July 17.—Up to this hour there has been no further news received regarding the reported massacre at Peking from any source. In the house of commons last evening, beyond an admission that there was no ground for hoping that the report was not true, Mr. William St. John Brodrick, parliamentary secretary to the foreign office, had nothing to communicate. An unusual hush fell upon the chamber when the subject came up. A few members doffed their hats, but otherwise there was no demonstration.

Telegrams from Shanghai and Chefu indicate an increasingly serious state of affairs. It is alleged that the foreign consuls at Shanghai have cabled their governments that there is urgent need of more warships to protect that port.

The Mail's Shanghai correspondent, referring to the attack of the allies on the native city of Tien-tsin on the morning of July 13, says the British loss was 40. The Japanese had 60 casualties. The Russians and Americans suffered heavily. Among the Americans killed was Colonel Liscum of the Ninth infantry. The allies were compelled to retreat. The Chinese fought with great desperation, and their marksmanship was deadly.

The war office has received the following telegram from Colonel Dorward, commander of the British troops at Tien-tsin, dated July 11:

"This morning a determined attack was made by the enemy on the railway station, which was garrisoned by 100 British, 100 French and 100 Japanese. The attack was repulsed with loss after four hours' hard fighting. The enemy's loss was 500 killed. The British loss was three killed and 13 wounded. The French and Japanese losses were considerably heavier.

"The city was heavily bombarded on the 6th by the allied troops on the right bank of the river. The enemy ceased firing soon after the bombardment began. The bombardment will be repeated today.

"The enemy have placed guns within 800 yards of the British and French settlements and are keeping up a galling fire. The British casualties were 10 killed and 20 wounded.

"On July 9 a combined force of 1,000 Japanese, 950 British, 100 Americans and 400 Russians under my command attacked the enemy's position southwest of the city. The position was quickly captured. The enemy's loss was 350 killed. Four small guns were captured.

"The combined force then attacked the western arsenal outside the south gate, which, after a short bombardment, was rushed by the Americans and Japanese. The country to the west of the arsenal had been flooded by the enemy, so no further movement in this direction was possible.

"The chief object of the expedition, which was to clear away the guns and the enemy west of the settlements, was completely accomplished. The day's honors rested with the Japanese and Americans.

"The Chinese regiment, as an escort to the guns, worked splendidly in getting over the difficulties of the swampy country.

"During the action the British and French settlements were heavily shelled by the northeastern batteries. Nine British were killed. There were no casualties among the Russians or Americans.

"The victory may result in the withdrawal of the Chinese troops from Tien-tsin, in which case the fort and the city will probably be attacked soon."

An official telegram received by the Japanese legation states that on July 3 a large Chinese force bombarded the northern part of the foreign settlement of Tien-tsin, which was being defended by the Russians. The latter requested assistance from the Japanese, which was given. After a heavy cannonading the Japanese repulsed the enemy. The Japanese sustained a loss of 30.

Admiral Seymour telegraphs the admiralty from Taku, under date of July 14, that he believes the allies have possession of all the forts at Tien-tsin except one. The allies at Taku and Tien-tsin on July 10 were as follows: Russians, 8,349; Japanese, 5,224; British, 2,575; Germans, 1,036; Americans, 1,400, and small detachments of Austrians and Italians, which brought the total up to 21,304. Considerable of the forces had been landed at Taku on the way to Tien-tsin. The facilities at Taku were limited, however, and the re-enforcements would be obliged to wait.

THE TIEN-TSIN FIGHT.

Allies Try to Storm the Wall of the City.

TIEN-TSIN, July 13, via Chefu, July 15, and Shanghai, July 16.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon 7,000 of the allied troops are attempting to storm the wall of the city.

The attack began at daylight. Its success is doubtful.

The Chinese on the walls are estimated conservatively at 20,000. They are pouring a terrific hail of artillery, rifle and machine gun fire upon the attackers.

The Americans, Japanese, British and French troops are attacking from the west and the Russians from the east.

The Americans have suffered terribly. As the press representative left the field the chief surgeon of the Ninth infantry said a conservative estimate was that 25 per cent of the Americans were hit.

Colonel Cameron H. Liscum is reported to have been mortally wounded as he was walking in front of the troops.

Major Regan and Captains Buckmiller, Wilcox and Noyes are among the wounded.

The marines' losses include Captain Davis killed and Butler, Leonard and several others wounded.

Officers declare that it was hotter than Santiago.

When the correspondent left, the Americans were laying on the plain between the wall and the rear, under a direct fire.

It was equally difficult for them to advance or retire.

The correspondent counted 300 wounded men of all nations.

THE CHOLERA SCOURGE.

Fearful Fatality In India Famine Districts—Rains Reported.

LONDON, July 17.—The governor of Bombay telegraphs to the secretary of state for India that there were 9,928 cases of cholera in the famine districts during the week ending July 7, of which 6,474 were fatal, and that in the native states there were 9,526 cases, of which 5,892 were fatal. The total number of deaths on the relief works was 5,870, which was 3.9 per 1,000.

There has been a good rainfall in Surat, Khandeish and the western part of the Deccan, and rain has begun in parts of north Gujerat, where the numbers demanding relief continue to increase.

The viceroy of India, Baron Curzon of Kedleston, telegraphs that there were heavier general rains last week in Berar and the central provinces of Hyderabad. The rainfall was good and sufficient for present needs in Rajputana. In central India there were moderate general rains. The sowing of crops has partly commenced. The monsoon was heavy in Surat, and there were good falls in Kattywar and Thana. There has been insufficient rain in the Punjab for dry land sowing. Notwithstanding the improved prospects no diminution of relief is possible. On the contrary, the figures last week were the highest reported, village relief and advances replacing relief works. The condition of the surviving cattle in western India is deplorable. The health returns from the central provinces are satisfactory. The total number relieved was 6,148,000.

The United States transport Rawlins is expected tomorrow from Matanzas with a battalion for the Morro garrison. There is great activity among the officers of the Fifth infantry, who are preparing to depart on the Rawlins.

Hot Weather In New York.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The oppressive heat yesterday was felt in this city more than that of any day experienced hereabouts in a long time. About 20 persons were prostrated by the heat and removed to hospitals. The condition of some of them is critical. The temperature was over 100 in the sun from 11 o'clock in the morning until after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and thermometers not in the sun registered over 100 in some places.

Newspaper Man Appointed.

SYRACUSE, July 17.—Mayor McGuire, as chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, has appointed George N. Graham, a Syracuse newspaper man, chief of the literary bureau for the campaign. Graham is a graduate of the Cornell law school and was for years active in New York politics.

COMING EVENTS.

July 19—Y. M. C. A. bicycle run to Elizabeth.
July 22—F. H. Martin and Orpheus Club at Y. M. C. A. meeting, 4:15 p. m. Mrs. Ensign Jones will sing with guitar accompaniment.

By a vote of nine to four Albert B. Carlton, Democrat, was last night confirmed Controller of the city of Elizabeth for another term of three years. He received the votes of the five Republican members of the Board of Alderman, as well as the votes of Aldermen Ryan, Kennedy, Lear and Noll, Democrats. The votes against him were cast by Aldermen Collins, Corrigan, Ford and Engel, Democrats. Mr. Carlton has served more than seventeen years as Controller, and his confirmation gives him charge of the financial department of Elizabeth until 1903. James Morrison, Republican, was re-elected City Treasurer for three years. The chief objection made to Mr. Carlton, who is a Democrat, was that in 1896 he refused to support William Jennings Bryan, casting his vote for the Palmer and Buckner ticket.

The passage of the law which puts the office of Register in Essex county on a salary basis instead of one of fees appears to have been a profitable one for the taxpayers. County Register Dexheimer reports his receipts from all sources during June as $2,537.25. At this rate the office must have paid his predecessors $18,000 to $19,000 a year, and as it is a five year position a man would have received nearly $100,000 during his term. Besides his salary the cost of running the office for the month was $982.20, so that making all allowances the county will receive a net income of from $12,000 to $14,000 a year.

The Trenton correspondent of the Jersey City Journal says, with an air of authority: "As regards the Governorship nomination, it is stated that Franklin Murphy's nomination next year is practically assured, and that, furthermore, Senator Sewell is one of the supporters of the Murphy movement. Six years ago Mr. Murphy was a candidate for United States Senator against Mr. Sewell, but times have changed since then, and Mr. Murphy and General Sewell are working in perfect harmony."

There is no more popular attraction in the summer months than open air band concerts, and the project of arranging for a series of them in the city park Saturday afternoons for the summer will undoubtedly meet with general approval.

The Trenton True American strongly urges upon Governor Voorhees the advice to select James J. Bergen, of Somerville, as a Justice of the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Job Lippincott.

If silence is an indication of his purpose, former Senator Smith must surely be "out of politics" in New Jersey.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Seven young women students of the Massachusetts State Normal School of North Adams have gone to work as servants in Councilman Clifton's hotel at Patchogue. Their reason for the step, as given to a reporter, are as follows: "Sea and air, Miss Wood; "exercise," Miss Southworth; "travel," Miss Haddow; "society," Miss Conlon; "woman's rights," Miss Case, and "need of money," Miss Young. At first the young women were not charmed with their work, but now they are used to it and say they are having a "perfectly glorious time."

A visit to the beautiful grounds surrounding the home of Dr. J. A. Cole at Scotch Plains is a pleasure that comparatively few of the citizens of Plainfield have enjoyed, but no one is turned away who applies for permission to view the grounds, rare trees, plants, statuary, deer, mystic hedge maze, etc. It was the pleasure of the writer to drive into and around the magnificent place on a recent evening, the genial Doctor acting as guide and naming a few of the many pieces of statuary with which the lawn is dotted. Every man has a "hobby," and Dr. Cole has one in a large wire enclosure, containing a dozen or more beautiful deer, among the number being two little doe. The deer know the Doctor's voice and step and are very tame. Another very interesting and rare thing is a mystic maze, patterned after the celebrated one at Hampton Court, England. It is made of a hedge about 6½ feet high and is the only one of its kind in this country. It is very mystifying and many a visitor to the Doctor's home has entered it and tried to reach the large tree in the centre and failed, as did the writer.

A beautiful sight was witnessed last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Brownell, of Elmood place, when their night-blooming cereus unfolded its wealth of beauty and for several hours filled the air with a delicate and delightful perfume. Mr. and Mrs. Brownell did not alone enjoy this rare treat, for they cordially invited their neighbors in and gave them the privilege of watching this wonderful work of nature. By midnight the three flowers were in full bloom. After that they began to close. From the time of blooming until the close many stopped to witness the development of the flowers and admire them.

William Taylor, better known as "Billie" by his friends, walked over to Plainfield from his home at Springfield yesterday. Taylor is a veteran of the Civil War and is a firm believer in the efficacy of walking as a health promoter. So it is that Billie Taylor marches all over this part of New Jersey, calling on his friends and looking over familiar grounds. Taylor lived in Plainfield before the war and went out with Company I, of the Third New Jersey Volunteers together with a crowd of other Plainfielders. When he came over yesterday he visited his old friend and comrade, John Wilson, of Somerset street. From here he trudged over to Woodbridge and thence home to Springfield in the early twilight. Despite the fact that the thermometer registered over a hundred degrees and Taylor is well advanced in years, he covered the ground at a merry pace without an effort.

AUTOS FOR FREIGHT HANDLING.

Burlington Concern Likely to Adopt Heavy Horseless Trucks.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Burlington, July 17.—The day is not far distant when all the raw material and freight for the big H. B. Smith Machine Works, at Smithville, will be carted between this city and that village by heavy automobile trucks. For a number of years the company has endeavored to get a siding into their plant, but has not been successful, and the cost of transportation by wagon and then by rail is enormous. To overcome this Captain Elton Smith has determined to have automobiles built to cart the product of the shops to this city and then ship it by boat. The raw material will be carried similarly.

Captain Smith has instructed the representatives of a company at the Paris Exposition to get the needed data for the introduction of the trucks.

A B'g Excursion.

An excursion to Asbury Park, resulting from the combined efforts of the First Presbyterian church, the Congregational church, the Park Avenue Baptist church, the Mt. Pleasant chapel and the Dunellen Presbyterian church, will leave the North Avenue station Thursday morning at 8 o'clock. This combination is an annual affair and has always proved successful. It is the second opportunity for a day at the seashore that has been offered to the Plainfield people so far this season.

Henry D. Brewster and family, of West Seventh street, left this morning for Point Breeze Camp.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 17.—Business was almost at a standstill in the borough yesterday on account of the heat. Record breaking reports of the thermometer were frequent, nearly all of which indicated 100 in the shade. If it continues today and tomorrow a general rush for the seashore may be looked for.

Justice A. W. Warden was the unexpected recipient yesterday of a fine silk handkerchief and a box of tea from Charlie Moon, the laundryman, who took this means of showing his appreciation of the justice's efforts in preventing the boys from annoying him.

Dr. Hughes and daughter, of Brooklyn, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. James McElvar, of Washington avenue. Dr. Hughes is head surgeon of St. Catherine's Hospital, of that city.

James Cruser and Miss Isabelle Cruser, of Neshanic, are spending a few days with their brother, John Cruser.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stevens were the guests of their daughter at Neschanic, Saturday and Sunday.

The Presbyterian pulpit will be occupied next Sunday by Rev. L. H. Morgan, of Middletown, N. Y.

W. S. Fredericks returned home yesterday from Asbury Park, where he has been for the past week.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 17.—The troubles of Edward Verity and John K. VanNess, which were told in the Press of Monday, had their second inning in Judge Clark's court held at Emery's Hotel last evening, Verity having sworn out a warrant for the Count's arrest during the day. The result of the case proved another victory for VanNess. Lawyer George Ball represented the Count and tangled Verity up in his cross-examination. George Steele, the only witness to the alleged assault, was called by the State, but proved to be a better witness for the defendant. Steele said that VanNess acted in the part of self defence only, and that Verity was drunk at the time. The prisoners counsel moved for a dismissal of the case as the defence claimed no assault had been proven. Judge Clark said the evidence produced was not strong enough to warrant holding VanNess for the Grand Jury, so the case was dismissed.

SHIPBUILDER'S GENEROSITY.

Gave New Brunswick Church Plot and Will Pay for Building.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, July 17—Although the Livingston Avenue Baptist church has no pastor, it will not be without a friend so long as William Rowland lives. This has been demonstrated more than once. Mr. Rowland is a wealthy shipbuilder, who spends his summers in this city.

Six years ago Mr. Rowland gave the church a building plot on one of the finest avenues in the city. It was valued at $70,000, and when the congregation began the erection of a church upon it he gave $12,000 toward it. The church has never been completed, and yesterday it was announced that Mr. Rowland had instructed the trustees to complete the work and to advise him of the cost, and he would pay it. The building was erected at a cost of $30,000, and there is a mortgage of $4,000 on it.

Die Rekonstruktionsarbeiten auf der Lokalbahn Traunstein-Ruhpolding, die am empfindlichsten gelitten hatte, kamen allein auf 270,000 Mark zu stehen. Die Eisenbahnbrücke über die Mangfall wird, da auch sie unter dem Hochwasser sehr gelitten hat, demnächst abgebrochen und durch eine neue, deren Bau 96,000 Mark kosten wird, ersetzt. —Die hierorts stattgefundene Allgemeine Deutsche Sportsausstellung hatte mit einem Defizit von rund 27,000 Mark abgeschlossen, weshalb sich das Präsidium an die Stadtverwaltung mit einem Gesuche um Reduktion der an die Gemeinde zu entrichtenden Stromgebühren für elektrische Beleuchtung zum Betrage von 23,300 Mark wandte. FADS OF FASHION.

Some New Lace Fancies Appropriate For Midsummer Wear.

I wonder what woman's attire would be without lace and ribbon? On hats, on cloaks, on all sorts of dresses and all sorts of other garments for women and children we need lace and a little ribbon, and it seems as if we could not hope to be even dressed at all without the presence of those two adjuncts. Whole fronts of waists and even skirts are made of lace with or without ribbon as a factor in the scheme.

Boleros and ties, vests, collars and dear knows how many other things are made of lace, and whole dresses and capes are lace and nothing else. Hats and toques and hat trimmings are also made of some kind of that filmy fabric. We may call it a fabric now, as nine-tenths of all the lace is now made by machine, and to the lay mind the machine lace is handsomer than the handmade laces, but the initiated would almost prefer the old rose point and the old duchesse point.

A pretty new fancy is to make ties about a yard and a half long and have the ends worked with a sort of applique of imitation rose point. These ties are half a yard wide and are to wind once around the neck and tie in a loose bow at the throat, though some of them are simply slid through a gold ring and the ends left to hang loosely. But women can tie their cravats as they choose this season, for fashion says so.

I have just seen a dress of lace and ribbon and nothing else. The dress was made of fish net in ecru tint. Around the whole bottom there was a bordering of applique in the same shade, but heavier lace. This formed a border and a rich finish. The waist was in plain French style slightly pouched in front. It was made over a silk lining in a soft shade of pink. The whole of the waist was covered with a lace design to match the skirt, and over this again was a barring of pale pink ribbon an inch and a half wide.

The whole skirt was also barred with the same kind of ribbon. In the front of the waist there were three bunches of loops of black velvet ribbon in very narrow width. The sleeves were of the net and had no trimming upon them save a lace ruffle at the wrist. The whole effect of this dress was very dainty.

Black spangled net dresses are quite often seen for elegant afternoon wear, and one of these had a black taffeta lining and perhaps ten narrow ruffles of chiffon at the bottom. Over this the spangled net fell. The design is large and straggling instead of close and fine, as heretofore. The waist, like nearly all the thin ones, is in French shape, with a slight fullness at the waist line. This special dress had a guimpe of white chiffon gathered full and shirred to fit around the neck and on up to the throat.

A novel silk dress for summer was of brown foulard with a subtint of tan. The skirt had slashes and fan shaped insets, and above these was a row of white lace insertion set on in the shape of a dewy flounce. Three of the plaits in the skirt extended up to the waist line on each side. The waist was the usual French form, and there was a pointed belt which gave the appearance of a bolero. This is high art in dressmaking to be able to produce effects by a clever manipulation of trimming or material so as to produce novel appearances by simple means.

The upper part of the waist was cut away to show a vest of white silk, and this in turn was cut away and the space filled in with white lace, and this extended up to the throat. Where the silk was cut out for the vest there was a fall of fine Irish point, and where the vest was cut away there was a fine line of silver passementerie carried twice around. The elbow sleeves also had a ruffle of the lace.

This dress was pretty enough to go to see the queen in, more particularly as it was to be worn with a Ladysmith hat. This hat was turned up on one side and covered with the same kind of lace as that on the dress. A yellow velvet pansy of heroic size trimmed the hat and was set upon a small bunch of brown silk. Tan gloves and a parasol of pale silk with band of brown velvet ribbon and a ruffle of lace completed one of the prettiest outfits I have seen this season. HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

I have recently read of four cases where Ripans Tabules relieved people from severe suffering which they experienced from the necessity of living in an impure atmosphere. First, there was a man who kept a 10-cent lodging-house in the Bowery, New York. He found that a Tabule taken now and then kept him from getting sick in that polluted atmosphere. Then there was a man who worked in a coal mine in Ohio, where the great distance under the hills made it impossible to get pure air, the air being forced to the men by great fans which would sometimes cease their motion on account of breaks in the machinery and then the air would become very bad indeed, causing pains in the head, dizziness and fainting. This man found a Ripans Tabule taken at such a time would preserve him from the pain he had previously experienced. Another miner, well known in Scranton, Pa., suffered from the foul atmosphere he breathed for so many years in the mines, resulting there from the gases and damp. "My stomach suffered most," said he. Finally he was induced to make trial of Ripans Tabules, and was so much benefited that he now makes a practice of carrying a few of the magic Tabules in his pocket, so as to be able to swallow one at the first sign of approaching trouble. The fourth case is that of a Philadelphia tailor who had charge of the manufacturing department, and was obliged to spend hours at a time in the pressing and ironing department in an overheated room where the atmosphere is very heavy and disagreeable. This resulted in giving him frequent headaches, from which he sometimes suffered great torture. The medicines prescribed by his physician brought no relief, and he was, he says, on the verge of despair when a friend one day advised him to try Ripans Tabules. He did so and the result was that the first two Tabules wrought with him an almost magic change. "I escape all headaches now," he writes, "and no matter how hot the room is, one Tabule does away with all suffering. I always carry some with me for an emergency and can sincerely recommend them."

WANTED—A case of bad health that R·I·P·A·N·S will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word R·I·P·A·N·S on the package and accept no substitute. R·I·P·A·N·S, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. MANILA BAY BATTLE.

Fought by Commodore Dewey and His Fleet May 1, 1898.

Probably the Greatest as Well as the Most Unique Naval Victory on Record—Origin of "Manila Day."

MAY 1, 1898, will always be a glorious day in the annals of the American navy, for on that day was fought the battle of Manila bay which, according to historians, did more to bring about peace with Spain than any other single event of the war of that year. Formal declaration of war against the United States was made by Spain on Sunday, April 24. Commodore George Dewey, commanding the Asiatic squadron of the United States, was at Hong-Kong when this event occurred. Instantly orders were cabled to him to move against Manila, the capital of the Philippine islands. These orders had hardly reached him when Great Britain issued a proclamation of neutrality, the terms of which compelled him to take the squadron away from Hong-Kong, a British port, within 24 hours. Accordingly he took his ships to Mirs bay, a Chinese port, only a few miles away, where he continued the preparations for battle which he had begun some days before. These preparations were completed on April 27, and Commodore Dewey at once set sail for Manila with his fleet, consisting of the flagship Olympia, Capt. Gridley; the Baltimore, Capt. Dyer; the Raleigh, Capt. Coghlan; the Boston, Capt. Wildes; the Concord, Commander Walker, and the Petrel, Commander Wood. On the evening of April 30 the American squadron sighted Corregidor island, at the entrance of the Bay of Manila.

Corregidor was known to be well fortified, but Commander Dewey concluded to enter the bay at once. With the Olympia in the lead, and the Boston bringing up the rear, the squadron steamed quietly past the island. It was early evening and the moon was shining brightly, but not until the flagship was a mile beyond the Corregidor batteries was the entrance of the American ships discovered by the Spaniards. Then a shot passed over the Raleigh and another fell astern of the Olympia. The rearmost vessels of the fleet gave back shot for shot. Some of the Concord's shells fell inside the batteries, and they were heard from no more. After that the squadron steamed steadily up the bay, the men sleeping by their guns.

Daybreak found the American fleet within five miles of the city of Manila, and at the same time the Spanish fleet, commanded by Admiral Montejo, was sighted lying under the protecting guns of the fort of Cavite. The admiral's flag was flying from the Reina Cristina, a protected cruiser of 3,500 tons. Anchored just ahead of her was the Castilla, a protected cruiser of 3,200 tons, and astern were the cruisers Don Juan d'Austria, Don Antonio de Ulloa, Isla de Cuba, Isla de Luzon and the gunboats Quiras, Marquis de Onero and Correo. Commodore Dewey lost no time in forcing the fight, which was inevitable. Led by the Olympia, the American ships moved to the attack on the line ahead, at a speed of eight knots, the map accompanying this article showing the positions of the two fleets. The position of the United States ships, as shown, was, of course, only momentary, as they were constantly in motion, but it indicates their track while destroying the Spanish ships fairly well.

Neither the fire of the land batteries in front of Manila nor the danger from the explosion of submarine mines in the bay could stay the progress of the American fleet, and the fire from the shore battery at Cavite point proved not a particle more effective. The American sailors, stripped to the waist and eager for the fray, stood at their posts, awaiting orders to open fire from Commodore Dewey, who, with his chief of staff, Commander Benjamin P. Lamberton, had taken his place on the forward bridge of the Olympia. Capt. Gridley, commander of the flagship, was in the conning tower. At 19 minutes before six o'clock, on the morning of May 1, 1898, the commodore turned to the conning tower and ordered the beginning of the battle.

Capt. Gridley immediately gave the necessary orders, and the starboard eight-inch gun in the forward turret of the Olympia let go at the fortifications of Cavite. At the same moment the Baltimore and Boston opened fire on the Castilia and the Reina Cristina, while the flagship led the line straight for the center of the Spanish fleet. When within 4,000 yards of Admiral Montejo's position, the Olympia changed her course and ran parallel to the Spanish line, the other ships following. "Open with all guns," signaled the commodore, and a storm of shells rained upon the enemy's vessels and the fortifications of Cavite. Four times the American vessels swept the Spanish lines at a distance of 4,000 yards. Then, with a lead to watch the depth of the water, the flagship again started over the course, running this time within 2,000 yards of the enemy. At this range even the small six-pounders did deadly work. The Spanish fleet, which from the first had made a gallant fight, soon showed by weakening fire the results that were being accomplished, and when the run was finished three of the Spanish ships were seen to be on fire.

The result of the engagement being now no longer in doubt, Commodore Dewey decided to stop the fighting long enough for the crews of his ships to have breakfast. Accordingly the American fleet withdrew to the other side of the bay, until shortly before 11 o'clock, when fighting was resumed. This time the Baltimore led, with the Olympia and the other ships following, and at 11:16 began hurling shells at the Spanish fleet, which returned the fire so slowly and feebly that Commodore Dewey ordered four of his vessels into the inner harbor to make an end of what was left of Montejo's fleet. By this time the Reina

Cristina had been sunk and the Castilia almost consumed by fire. In face of a withering fire at close range the Spaniards were forced to desert their ships one by one, the Don Antonio de Ulloa being the last vessel to be abandoned, just before she sank.

At 12:30 the white flag was hoisted on the Cavite arsenal, the Spanish colors being hauled down, and then Lieut. Hughes, with a boat's crew from the Petrel, went into the inner harbor and set fire to the Don Juan d'Austria, the Isle de Cuba, the Marquis del Onero and the Correo. The transport Manila and some smaller vessels were taken as prizes.

Commodore Dewey had not a man killed, and only eight wounded, and the total damage done to his ships by the Spanish shells amounted to less than $6,000. On May 2 he drove the Spanish forces from the navy yard and arsenal at Cavite, blew up the batteries at the entrance to Manila bay and established the blockade of the city. Within 48 hours the Spaniards had lost property to the value of $6,000,000, 1,200 soldiers and sailors had been killed and the cable connecting Manila with the outside world cut. Manila, Cavite, Corregidor, Subig and other fortified points, shown in the second map, were in American hands ten days after war had been declared.

That an event of such magnitude should be made the occasion for an annual rejoicing is not strange, and that Commodore, now Admiral, Dewey should have become a national idol is just as natural. As long as Americans take pride in their history the battle of Manila bay will hold a high place in the public mind.

Saved.

Two stylish women came into one of the big department stores, one of them with a silky Yorkshire terrier. After the ladies had been shopping a few minutes a cashboy said to one of them:

"Is that your dog, madam?"

"Yes. Why?"

"Because we had some poison for rats in the basement, and your dog ate a whole lot of it."

The woman grabbed the dog and ran for the door. She was in such a hurry that the policeman on the corner thought she was stealing the dog, and stopped to question her, which brought a burst of tears, as she said: "Oh, let me get to a drug store, quick, or my poor darling will die."

It took the policeman, the drug clerk and the woman to get an antidote into the dog, and he was finally saved from his unwitting attempt to commit suicide.—Detroit Free Press.

GENTLEWOMEN FARMERS.

An English Institution Where Women Are Taught the Different Branches of Agriculture.

The Lady Warwick Hostel, at Reading, England, which has just celebrated its anniversary, was established with a view to affording women of culture and education opportunity to fit themselves for the lighter branches of agriculture. Several American women have signified their intention of availing themselves of its instruction. Among the branches taught are poultry and bee keeping, dairy work, gardening and rural industries generally. Two buildings, the Maynard Hostel and Brooke house, for boarding special students have been recently added. Forty-three regular students can be accommodated with tuition and board.

The institution has acres of land under cultivation. Besides this, the warden's garden contains six acres that will be worked as an object lesson to the students, showing what can be done on acre plots of land. A large part of this garden will be devoted to bush friuts, but an acre has been sowed with wheat and a farmyard is to be added. In a large potting shed with a thatched roof carpenters' benches are included, and the students are taught the fundamental principles of carpentry, in order that they may be able to make frames, poultry houses or do any work of the kind that is required.

A mushroom house and greenhouse were added during the year. A rose garden is to be one of the first innovations of the coming season. The propagation of vines, bush fruits, roses and shrubs, budding, grafting, summer and winter pruning and all kinds of tree planting receive especial attention. Training is given in raising all kinds of vegetables and seeds and in the thinning and planting of them.

The culture of tomatoes, cucumbers and mushrooms for market is taught, as the culture of mushrooms is particularly profitable. In the dairy branch the pupils are given instruction in milk testing and the making of the various kinds of soft and pressed and unpressed cheeses. Besides these, the feeding, management and milking of cows are taught. Poultry keeping is a successful part of the hostel work. The sale of poultry and eggs has amounted since last April to about $120, while food and stock for the year have cost only about $100, and 100 head of poultry are left for table and egg production.

At present the greater proportion of produce raised is consumed in the hostels, but there is already a small private market for anything that can be spared in the way of poultry, eggs, honey and vegetables. By this means experience and training are given in sorting, grading, packing and marketing, and permanent places will be offered later to those who show themselves well qualified to undertake the work. Branches in the manufacture of jams, pickles, fruit bottling and similar industries will be added later.—N. Y. Tribune.

The Parson Who Milked His Cow.

A country pastor, who was very bright and original in his remarks, attracted the notice of a wealthy lady who was spending the summer in the vicinity. One evening she called at the parsonage just as the old minister, clad in overalls, was coming in from the stable with a brimming pail of milk.

"Why, Mr. Smith!" exclaimed the lady, "do you milk a cow?"

"Certainly, madam," was the reply. "What would you have me milk?"—Judge.

Biggest Skyscraper of Them All.

The three champion skyscrapers of the United States are the Syndicate building on Park row, the Masonic Temple in Chicago and the Exchange building in Boston. These are to be reenforced by a monster structure to be built in Philadelphia by New York and Philadelphia capitalists, which will outshine all of them. It will occupy a whole block and be the largest office building in the world.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

FOOD AND RAIMENT.

Man Obtains Some of Both from the Depths of the Sea.

A Talk with the Scientists of the National Museum Discloses Many Facts of Almost Universal Interest.

[Special Washington Letter.]

IN THE agricultural department a few weeks ago we were entertained by a study of insects and parasites by the learned scientists who propagate those minute specimens of animal life and devote their efforts and energies to discovering their histories and mysteries.

It is only a short walk, a little stroll over beautiful lawns, from that point of interest to the National museum, where there are tens of thousands of the wonders of nature gathered and garnered from all quarters of the world. But for the fact that it would give something of a sameness and dullness of routine to these letters, it might be well for the writer to spend a day each week in this National museum and tell you of the fresh wonders which are disclosed to the students and philosophers who have opportunity to go there.

This afternoon we were shown the treasures of the ocean; the things of value which are contributed to mankind by the depths of the sea; the fruits from those depths, the skins and scales of fishes which are available for the industries and the arts; the curious uses of sea weeds, sea slugs and the polypi. Of the things of value, many of them indispensable, which are gathered from the sea there appears to be no end. The animals of the field and the birds of the air furnish food, raiment and ornaments for man and woman, but their value to mankind is dwarfed almost into insignificance when we have disclosed to us all of the wonderful things which the various tribes of fishes and other inhabitants of the ocean yield for the general welfare of the lords and ladies of creation.

Aboriginal man was warrior and ruffian, and his weapons of offense and defense predominated in the development of science. The bow, arrow, shield and finally the sword marked the development of man from his lowest estate. Refinement and culture have come only in the younger centuries of this very aged world. The Indians of Brazil captured the ray from the ocean and made arrow points of its keen-pointed vertebrae. An arrow thus pointed, with a strong bow string back of it, would go clean through a man's body. The teeth of sharks have been used for arming weapons from time immemorial. In the National museum there are specimens regarded as more than 5,000 years old.

The natives of Dacca use, and have long used, the jawbones of the boalee for combs, the teeth being small and smoothly set, so as to make them readily available for removing loose fibers from cotton and wool. The Indians of North America have always used the jaws of the "sleeper shark" for head dresses. The Eskimos use large fish bones for canes and for weapons of offense.

But the sea products for ornamentation and for use in the arts and in manufactures are too numerous to be all tabulated and referred to in a letter; they would fill volumes and make an interesting library which would require a lifetime to read, to the exclusion of all other entertainment and learning. Ornaments for ladies of almost numberless sorts are made from fish scales. They furnish adornments for the women in savage and semi-savage life, as well as for the refined and cultured ladies dwelling in the higher circles of modern society in all civilized nations. Fish scales furnish paint and powder; they furnish eye-brows, dimples, "beauty-spots" for the cheeks, and all sort of feminine artificial adornment. The Chinese have long had a method of grinding up certain kinds of fish scales and using the dry pigment as the basis of paints for women and for the arts.

But not only are the scales used, but also the skins. We have all seen alligator skins made up into shoes. Eelskins are used everywhere for the thongs of whips. Dried sole skins are used to clarify coffee. Shark and ray skins produce shagreen leather. Whale skins are manipulated into bands 60 feet long and 12 feet wide to drive machinery. The fish skins taken from the Red sea are used in Egypt for the soles of shoes and sandals. The Turks use the skin of the angel shark to make beautiful seagreen watch-cases; and the rough skin of the blue dogfish is used by ebony workers like emery paper, for polishing their products.

It is bewildering to walk about this storehouse of information and make note of just a little bit of what the men of science show and explain. People generally suppose that sea weeds are as useless as weeds in gardens. But it is not so. They bring to the men who work with them a large part of the annual income of the world. Sea weeds are of all sorts and sizes, from the microscopic floaters to the giant sea-tangle, which grows to a height of 360 feet and upon which myriads of marine animals live. They make this monster sea weed both home and food. They live upon it, in it, and it is their sole dependence.

When these sea-weeds are taken from their anchorage on some stone, millions upon millions of minute animals are killed whose existence would not be known but for the microscope. Many kinds of sea weeds are used in commerce for the manufacture of soda, iodine, bromine, and gelatinous extracts. In Scotland horses and cattle are fed upon sea weeds during the winter months. Moreover, sea weeds are used in abundance for upholstering furniture, instead of horsehair.

FISHING FOR SEA SLUGS.

They are used by packers for wrapping delicate objects, and chemists obtain from them chlorides, silicates, sulphates, phosphates and carbonates. The sea weeds draw these valuable materials from the sea water upon which they live, apparently by absorption, but really by the well-known process of osmosis.

But did you ever hear of human beings eating sea weeds? It is a fact. Tens of thousands of tons of sea weeds are gathered along the coast of China and Japan every year. They are packed in bales, just as our people bale hay, and are carried to all parts of China and Japan, and even to Thibet, and sold for food for the poor people. They use it with rice, vegetables and fish, and also make soups of it. The people have acquired a taste for this sort of food, and regard it as most palatable. All of these sea weeds have a salty flavor, and the natives are thereby saved the cost of salt, which is very dear in those countries, although it is so very cheap in our land.

If the people of this continent should ever become eaters of sea weed, they can have it in plenty. All along the Gulf stream there are banks of sea weeds, miles in extent. Ships in the Atlantic coastwise trade sail over great spaces entirely covered with weeds, some of them in the form of apparently endless serpents, and the sailors have long called them "Neptune's gardens." It is not improbable that these vast storehouses of weeds may be used commercially for enriching our soil where it is depleted, or, as the farmers say, "worn out" with continuous crops of a single kind. The sea weed is a spontaneous fertilizer, causing soil long unproductive to become immediately rejuvenated and verile. It is said that on the French shore of the British channel upwards of 3,000,000 tons of sea weeds are annually gathered and used for fertilizing purposes. Thus the sea is made to enrich the soil.

Just as gourds are used for dippers, in many places, there are pods of certain kinds of sea weed used for similar purposes. Large pods holding upwards of a quart are hollowed out, dried and filled with whale oil by New Zealanders, and the necks of these quaint bottles are tied with fibers of flaxen weeds. Other pods are used as water buckets, and those of smaller size are used for dippers. The fact that they are impervious to oil renders them exceptionally valuable to some peoples.

The foods made from these products of the deep are annually increasing in number and variety. One of the best known in larger cities, but appreciated only by gourmets, is the sea slug. It is from eight inches to two feet in length and resembles a brownish prickly cucumber. After being dried and soaked in olive oil it is dried again and then minced to serve as a choice flavor in thick soups. The sea slug is found in mud banks and shoals where fishermen wade knee deep to find it. When their feet strike a slug they reach down with tongs and take it up. It stings like a nettle, and yet it is not poisonous, although it usually leaves little burning pin heads on the skin, which pass away in a few hours.

Dyes of many kinds are taken from the sea, usually from some parts of the bodies of mollusks, carp, cuttle fish and star fish. Shells are still used in lieu of money by half-civilized people. The shells are also used for trumpets, horns, pipes, earrings, brooches, bracelets and other ornaments for women. Pearls are the most valuable of all, but only the largest are now held at a great price.

All of these things are wonderful, and yet only a little bit of the whole story can be told at this time.

Proceedings of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

[OFFICIAL.]

Adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, June 14, 1900, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll-call showed all members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were on motion, approved as read, (reading of bills being omitted.)

COMMUNICATIONS.

From M. S. Sherwood, agent Essex and Hudson Gas Co., Summit, N. J., as follows:

Summit Office, June 11, 1900.

To the Union County Board of Freeholders, Elizabeth, N. J.:

Gentlemen—Having had many applications from people on Springfield Avenue, we have decided to extend our mains from High Street to Division Avenue, a distance of 4,100 feet. Learning that this is a county road and that it is usual to grant permits to open this street, I hereby make application for same.

Very truly yours,
M. S. Sherwood, Agent.

Freeholder Farrell moved that the application be referred to the Committee on County Roads with power, which was duly seconded.

Freeholders Swain and Cady stated that the contemplated extension of said mains referred to Springfield avenue in the city of Summit, and was of especial importance to persons who had completed residences along said avenue, but where unable to occupy them through lack of gas connections. It was hoped that this Board would take prompt action on this said application.

Freeholder Farrell's motion was then adopted without dissent.

Director Hubbard stated that the meeting of today was held in anticipation of the fact that a communication which might require immediate action would be received from the Elizabeth City Horse Railroad Co. He understood that the same was not ready and as Mr. John W. Whalen, representing said company, was present, he would ask him to explain to the Board.

Mr. Whalen said in part that it had been the intention of the Elizabeth City Horse Railway Co. to present a communication at this meeting relative to the construction as extension of the tracks from Bayway in Elizabeth to Cranford Township on Westfield Avenue, but owing to the fact that Senator Kean, president of the said company, had been called out of town, the matter could not be got in shape for presentation at this meeting It would doubtless be ready for the next regular meeting of the Board. He was certain that the company intended to act with entire good faith toward the Board.

Mr. Wood, county collector, corroborated what Mr. Whalen had said and stated that Senator Kean in a recent conversation had assured him that he soon expected to have the trolley cars running to Cranford.

County Attorney Codington said that the boulevard commissioners were ready to report and were only awaiting the communication that this said railway company desired to submit to the Board.

Freeholder Woodruff said that the people along North or Westfield avenue were very anxious that some definite action be soon taken relative to the construction of the proposed boulevard on said avenue. Property owners were unable to either rent or sell their property under the present conditions, and the delay thus far had been expensive to them.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By the Committee on Bridge over Drake's Brook:

To the Board of Freeholders of Union County:

Your committee having examined the bridge and found it in very bad condition, would recommend the building of an iron beam, brick arch bridge, with coping and iron railing and wing wall at a cost not to exceed $800.

Freeholder Brucklacher moved that the report be received and recommendations therein contained adopted, which was so ordered on roll-call by an unanimous vote.

Freeholder Miller moved to adjourn, which was carried.

The director declared the board adjourned until Thursday, July 5, 1900, at 2:20 p. m.

American Art Exhibit at the Paris Exposition

It Takes Second Place Only to That of Artistic France Herself

CRITICS of all kinds, of all nations, of all classes are to be found in the art buildings of the Paris exposition. I have heard pictures, masterpieces, literally pulled to pieces by overjealous critics who were seemingly ignorant of the requisites of art. Personally I do not profess to be a critic. I may know what suits me, but to attempt to criticise a picture from an artistic standpoint would neither do the artist or myself justice. I very much fear that it should make a "laughing stock" of me.

Americans who are visiting the exposition have looked upon the display in the art buildings in different ways. Some of them have raved at its excellence, while others have scowled and scolded at its lack. But there is one point on which Americans seem to agree, and that is the fact that aside from France America leads the world in its display of art in both pictures and sculpture. The only criticisms I have heard of the American exhibit seems to come from its disappointed artists, or, I should say, and be nearer the truth, from the friends of disappointed artists, men and women whose productions were not chosen by the judges. These friends look upon each picture as a competitor of that of their unsuccessful friend, and of course find it defective.

Of one conversation along this line that I overheard a few days ago I repeat a few lines. It was a conversation between two women who had been studiously examining each picture. Said one:

"How much better our exhibit might have been had the selection not have been so unjust. Now, his picture was much better than any of these, and yet they refused it a place."

"How were they chosen?" asked the other. "Did they bring in anything they wanted to?"

"Oh, no! There was a jury, but it was not a fair one."

They mentioned the name of the disappointed painter, but it was a name which I had never heard of before. But then I am not acquainted with all the artists of America.

On the other hand, the really competent critics of America pronounce not only the American exhibit good, but the entire art exhibit at the fair good. Such men as Lorado Taft, of the Chicago Art institute, who is here writing critcal articles for one of his home papers, says the Paris exhibit is ahead of that made at Chicago in 1893, and Mr. Taft should know.

Aside from France, the United States easily leads, both in quantity and quality of the work displayed, and there is no nation which has displayed its exhibit so well. The six rooms which comprise the American section in the grand art building are hung with a draping of grayish green, against which the pictures show to the best advantage. Over this are hung the representative paintings of such men as Whistler and Sargent and Cecilia Beaux, of Abbott Thayer and Winslow Homer, of Chase and Alexander, of Benson and Tarbell and Vonnoh, of Abbey and Melchers and McEwen, of Inness and Homer Martin and Harrison and Davis and Theodore Robinson, and a host of others of whom we have reason to be proud. It is not for me to attempt to select the one representative picture, but it is my pleasure to admire them collectively and individually. But even though every visitor does not agree with me I know that I am to be forgiven when I say there is not a bad piece of work among the whole 352 American paintings and water colors in our section, and while there are some that may be better than others, all are to be admired.

"ALL'S WELL," by Winslow Homer. Owned by Boston Society of Fine Arts.

Not alone in paintings does America take first place among the nations outside of France, but in sculpture as well. The great central nave of the grand art palace is a wonderful place, in which one wishes he could spend all of his exposition days, and especially when one views the exhibit from above. Here France occupies more than one-half of the space with an exhibit of more than 500 of their choicest works. And with this gorgeous display of the host America stands side by side in quality if not in quantity. One thing that is bound to attract attention from every visitor, whether he be from America or not, is the big monument to Victor Hugo by Barrias, about which the French masterpieces form a half circle, while American masterpieces complete the other half. Another of the American statues that is attracting much attention is St. Gaudens' new equestrian statue of Gen. Sherman. The horse is a magnificent animal, the rider every whit an American, and before them strides a winged Victory of such grace and strength that she seems the finest thing that the great sculptor has yet produced. This monument stands very prominently and is flanked on either side by MacMonnies' groups of restive horses, destined to crown the gateway of Prospect park in Brooklyn.

There has been much of comparison between the art exhibit here and at Chicago in 1893. Some claim that Chicago was far ahead, while others are equally pronounced in their opinions of French supremacy. As for myself, again I am not a judge. One thing is certain, however, America was more generous in her awards of space than France has been, for France has kept a half or more of all her space for herself. So far as figures will form a comparison Mr. Taft has prepared a list to send to his paper, the Chicago Record, and which I take the liberty of copying from him. He says:

"Aside from the great retrospective exhibit, and not counting the engravings and lithographs, the French show this year 1,972 pictures to our 1,738 at the Columbian exposition. They have 640 pieces of sculpture to our 148 in 1893. They sent us at that time 258 works of sculpture, old and new, and 731 pictures in various mediums (477 oils). We sent them this year 462 pictures, of which 352 are oils and pastels.

"While various small European nations of which we scarcely ever hear make exhibits this time, one misses certain important features of our own art palace of 1893. Brazil, Mexico, Costa Rico and Canada have no representatives here beyond a few scattered pictures. Poland has not ventured, or has not been allowed, to make a special exhibit as in Chicago. Spain is represented here about as with us. The Scandinavian countries likewise. Russia, the "traditional friend," naturally rises to the occasion, offering here 433 works to her 130 in Chicago. She seems to be much the gainer artistically through the absorption of Finland.

"Italy did better by us, sending us 310 pieces to 229 here. Holland, for some reason, favored us likewise, in the ratio of 334 to 140. Germany proved her friendliness to us by sending to Chicago 672 paintings and sculptures. She has forgiven her proud victim of '71 sufficiently to send to Paris 299 works of art. One realizes now how much good will was meant us by Great Britain's extraordinary showing in Chicago of 984 numbers, while here she contents herself with but 383. To be sure, these figures respond somewhat to the limitations of space, and we were more generous in Chicako than France has been—not having so many wares of our own to show."

SPORTING.

GOLF

Every Saturday afternoon's play at the links of the Park Golf Club see one or more of the "duffers" make a decided improvement for the better in their game and get their scores down where the green committee think it advisable to take a slice of their handicap.

The team of the Morristown Field Club, which defeated the Park Golf Club team at Morristown Saturday, will play a return match here some Saturday afternoon during August. Morgan T. Townsend is now acting as captain of the Park Club team since the departure of Fred P. Taylor. Townsend is corresponding with the captain of the Morristown team in relation to the match. He has also accepted a challange from the Metuchen Golf Club for a team match in the near future.

FOUGHT ELEVEN ROUNDS.

Prize Fight in This City Last Night—Defeated Man Unconscious for Ten Minutes.

The prize fight scheduled for last Friday night between two well-known Plainfield men, and which was not pulled off on account of a difference between the principals and the owner of the place where the fight was to have been held, took place last evening in this city. There were eighteen well-known sports present to witness the battle.

It required eleven rounds to decide who was the best man, and each round was fought desperately. Each man was game until the fatal eleventh, when one of the fighters received a terrible knockout blow under the chin which put him to sleep for fully ten minutes. This gave the other fellow the fight. After the defeated man awoke from his short sleep, the two men shook hands and parted the best of friends. The fight was for $50 a side.

A prominent Elizabeth sporting man refereed the fight to the entire satisfaction of the principals and all present, and the fight passed off without a hitch of any kind. There was no police interference because they did not know of it. The fighters each weighed 142 pounds and were in the best of condition.

SUNDAY ROWDYISM ON TROLLEY CARS.

reduced the crowd the other way and the Brunswick Traction Company seems to be doing all in its power to assist in cutting it down. Closed cars are now being used between Dunellen and Bound Brook and many passengers who ride down to Dunellen with the intention of going on to Bound Brook, New Brunswick or Somerville, have turned back on seeing what poor service the Brunswick company has to offer.

The recent fire at the Brunswick company's car shed destroyed many of its open cars and it has not been able to replace them so far. So some old closed cars are turned over for service between Dunellen and Bound Brook. Naturally, however, pleasure seekers do not patronize that line very extensively at present.

AT DEWEY PARK.

Extensive Improvements Planned by Middlesex Land Company.

The deeds have just been recorded in the county clerk's office at New Brunswick, conveying the Nelson Runyon, Adam Dealaman and Pope Brothers' farms to the Middlesex Land Company.

The farms comprise 110 acres in all, running from Dunellen to the Greenbrook tanks along the Central railroad.

Contracts will be awarded at once for the grubbing out of a beautiful piece of woods about five acres in extent, situated on the property, which will be made into a public park. Near the proposed park is the oldest schoolhouse in New Jersey, which the company intends fencing in and preserving for its historical value.

It is also expected that a new depot will be located on the property by the railroad company for the benefit of commuters locating there.

PAYING COURT CHARGES.

Supplemental Expenses in Connection With Opening of Watchung Avenue.

In the contest made by certain property owners along Watchung avenue against the alleged unjust assessments against their property to open that avenue, there were certain court charges amounting to about $700, that were not paid. It is for these charges that Borough Counsel Reed has been issuing notices to the several property owners to settle the charges made by the court. Most of the delinquents have paid, leaving a small balance yet to be collected. So far as can be learned no one has objected seriously to paying the amount charged against them.

Anyone Want a Baby.

An opportunity is offered to someone in Plainfield to adopt the baby boy that was found abandoned last week near the home of former Mayor L. Y. F. Randolph, on East Front street. Mayor Rockfellow is making efforts to find a pleasant comfortable home for the youngster. Anyone desiring to adopt the little baby can secure the necessary information by applying to the Mayor, who has the matter in charge.

DEATH OF MRS. KROM.

SHE WAS ACTIVE AND PROMINENT IN WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Sick for Only a Few Days—Member of All Souls Church—Interested in W. C. T. U. Work.

The community will be deeply grieved to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. M. Francesca B. Krom, wife of Stephen R. Krom, which occurred about 12 o'clock last night at her home on Madison avenue, after a short illness with pleuro-pneumonia. To many her serious illness was not known, and the news of her death will be a shock to a host of friends.

Mrs. Krom has been a resident of Plainfield for many years, and has been prominently identified in many ways with the interests of the city. In club life she was very active, being a member of the Monday Afternoon Club, Town Improvement Association, also the W. C. T. U. and All Souls church. She was also a member of the Plainfield Branch Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women, and in all of these organizations she was a leading member. She also had a National reputation as a member and vice-president of the Rainy Day Club, of New York, and as a member of the State Federation of Women's Clubs. She was a delegate to the National Convention of the Federation of Women's Clubs held in Milwaukee recently, and at that convention she took a prominent part. On her return she presented a most interesting report of the convention before the Rainy Day Club, which was published quite extensively throughout the country.

Notwithstanding the fact that Mrs. Krom was so actively engaged in the outside world, she was greatly devoted to her home and family, and her best energies and her interests were centred there. She possessed a rare character and disposition, and many lovable traits that drew about her a host of warm personal friends. She devoted much of her energy to the advancement of Christian and temperance principles. She held many important offices in the W. C. T. U. and for some time was chairman of the committee on narcotics, which work she pushed vigorously. In so many channels of usefulness she will be missed and her death will be deeply mourned by all who knew her.

Mrs. Krom is survived by a husband, a daughter, Miss Stephanie Krom, and two sons, Arthur and Stephen Krom.

The funeral will be private.

BICYCLE IS GONE.

Alexander Stills Victim of a Thief — Police Have no Clue to the Guilty One.

For the second time within as many days the bicycle thief again got in his work last evening, and quietly appropriated a wheel belonging to Alexander Stills, an employe of E. B. Maynard, from the hallway adjoining the latter's tonsorial parlors on North avenue. The wheel was left in the hallway by Mr. Stills and was last seen at 7 o'clock. A half hour later Mr. Maynard noticed it was gone and a deligent search failed to reveal its whereabouts. The missing wheel was a '99 Spalding nearly new. It is enamelled blue, 24-inch frame, with rat trap pedals, left one slightly broken. It was also fitted with a lamp and bell. No one was seen about the hallway previous to the theft consequently the police have no clue to the thief.

NOT AS THEY SAID.

Brothers Living at Liberty Corner Accused of Obtaining Goods by False Pretences.

Felix and Robert Hahn were held by Justice Smalley for the Grand Jury Saturday afternoon. They were arrested and an examination held on the charge of obtaining a wagon from J. P. Homan, the Somerset street carriage manufacturer, on false pretences. Mr. Homan, through his attorneys, Murphy & Blatz, claimed that the Hahns, who live in Liberty Corner, had purchased a wagon from him and given him a note, indorsed by their father, in payment. Being unable to secure payment for the note Homan sued and obtained judgment, which was returned unsatisfied. So Homan started criminal action.

His Feelings Injured.

Solomon Levy was in city court this morning. Solomon is a peddler, properly licensed by the city, and he usually carries a pack. Yesterday a small boy threw stones and names at him. The stones went wild but the names injured his feelings. He refused to make a complaint, however, so the police could do nothing in the case.

Too Hot for Comfort.

Piney Yettman and Fernando Brown were brought before City Judge Runyon again this morning on complaint of Health Inspector Addis, charged with violating the health ordinance. They are ash carters. Their trial was laid over to Saturday, as the court was warm.

VICTORY AT TIENTISN.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

London, July 17, 12:45 p. m.—The Daily Mail has the following from its Shanghai correspondent, under date of today:

"The allied troops resumed the attack on the Chinese walled city of Tientsin the morning of July 14th, and succeeded in breaching the walls and capturing all the forts. The Chinese were completely routed and the allies took possession of the city and its defences.

"The total losses of the allies in the engagements of Thursday, Friday and Saturday were about 800 killed or wounded. The casualties were greatest among the Russians and Japanese."

Washington, July 17.—Rear-Admiral Remey this morning cabled the Navy Department that the city and forts of Tientsin are in the hands of the allies. His list of killed and wounded is somewhat fuller than yesterday's report, but still not entirely complete.

NEWSPAPERMAN DEAD.

Walter N. Chamberlain Passes Away After an Illness of About Two Weeks.

After an illness of two weeks Walter N. Chamberlain died at his home on Madison avenue this morning from the effects of a cold which he received in the pursuit of his duties while at the great fire at Hoboken. Although he has lived in Plainfield nearly all his life he was born at Great Bend, Pa., thirty one years ago.

When a young boy an attack of scarlet fever injured his hearing to such an extent that at the age of twelve he lost it altogether. In spite of this fact he kept at his studies in the Plainfield schools and graduated.

He chose newspaper work as a profession and was at various times connected with Laffin's newspaper bureau, the Troy Press, Syracuse Journal and other papers. At the time of his death he was correspondent for the Providence, R. I., Journal and Philadelphia Inquirer and was gathering material at the Hoboken fire for his papers when the exposure hastened a slight cold into an abscess of the ear which caused his death. He was a man of strong character and indomitable will which won for him many friends.

The funeral services will be held from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orlando E. Brown, 612 Madison avenue, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

NO TRACE OF WESTBROOK

WESTFIELDER HAS DISAPPEARED AS THOUGH EARTH SWALLOWED HIM.

Missing Man Lived Modestly in Westfield—His Accounts Said to be Straight.

Nothing has yet been learned of the whereabouts of L. E. Westbrook, the ticket agent of the Grand Trunk Railroad, who so mysteriously disappeared from his home at Westfield Monday of last week. A full week has passed, and there are no clues to work upon which might help his many friends to locate the husband of the unhappy wife, who is still at the Westfield residence with her two small sons.

The letter written by Westbrook to his wife, in which he said that he would never come back, led many to believe that he might possibly be short in his accounts with the railroad company in New York city. Two of Westbrook's friends, who visited the railroad company's offices, were assured that this was not so. Westbrook had left $1,200 in cash in the safe Saturday night. His manager was most emphatic over this point, and assured the friends that there was no shortage. Many consider that if there were a shortage the railroad corporation would not let it be kkown unless he was captured and held for defaulting.

Westbrook lived modestly at Westfield, and did not have any expensive habits. His home indicated moderate circumstances and was void of luxuries. Mrs. Westbrook kept house and cared for her children. It is said Westbrook had a bank account of $300 at the Shoe and Leather Bank in New York city. This money it would be impossible for his wife to get unless she proved that her husband was dead.

WOMEN OUTNUMBER MEN

ABOUT 300,000, ACCORDING TO ESTIMATE, EXCESS POPULATION.

Census Reports Lead to Some Excitement Among the Bachelor Maids Who Desire Husbands.

The marriageable women and bachelor maids of Plainfield, and in fact of the whole State of New Jersey, are in a state of suppressed excitement over the rumor that the census reports, when published, will show a very large excess of females over males in this city and State.

It is said that so seriously has the matter presented itself to the minds of some of the more advanced thinkers, they are contemplating calling a meeting for the purpose of devising means that will enable them to deliver themselves from the impending fate of spending their lives in a state of bachelorhood.

If, indeed, the advance reports of the census in this State be true, the ladies who have not yet secured that desirable commodity, a husband, are certainly in a bad way.

According to unauthoritative estimates of the population of New Jersey there are 300,000 more females than males in this State—a state of affairs which is sincerely to be deplored by the former, especially those who have not secured their life's partners.

Nor is the worst feature of the matter to be seen in the fact that there is a present excess of females. By comparison with the last census, it is seen that the excess of females is steadily on the increase.

Many of the prominent women's clubs, recognizing the portentous significance of this showing, have decided to unite in a thorough and exhaustive discussion of the matter, with a view of offering suggestions for the alleviation of the sufferings of their sex in the inevitable thraldom which a continuation of the present state of affairs will cause them.

A GOSPEL WAGON.

The Promoters Want Plainfielders to Help Them Buy It.

Rev. Harry Wrelkly, of Philadelphia, accompanied by his wife, and Rev. R. J. Morgan, who, for some time past have been engaged in evangelistic work, are in Plainfield for a short time to enlist the sympathies of the people in their scheme to raise a sufficient amount of money with which to build a Gospel wagon so that they can travel through the south and preach the Gospel. In a issue of a Providence paper a long account is given of this proposed work. It is estimated that the cost of the Gospel wagon will be about $1,000. If the plan is successful, a company of singers will be secured to make the southern evangelistic journey.

WILL RAISE MONEY FOR BAND CONCERTS

Popular Subscription List is Started by Pledge of $10 From the Mayor.

EVEN A NICKEL ACCEPTABLE

IT IS PLANNED TO HAVE CONCERTS EVERY SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

It is Calculated to Have Them in the City Park—Daily Press Will Receive Subscriptions to the Fund.

All Plainfielders are not fortunate enough to be able to spend the entire summer at the sea shore or in the mountains. A week or two of vacation comes to many, others will spend the summer months right here in Plainfield. A movement is now on foot toward providing pleasure and entertainment for those who remain at home during the hot weather. The success of open air band concerts during the summer has been thoroughly demonstrated in years past. In the past a few public spirited citizens have borne the burden. Another series of open air concerts in the City Park is proposed for this year, and an effort will be made to provide the necessary funds through public subscriptions.

To Benjamin LaVere, leader of LaVere's band, is due the credit for the start of the movement. Through the co-operation of J. H. Staats, the enterprising proprietor of the Hotel Kensington, he has been able to carry out his plans. The complete success of the concert in front of the Hotel Kensington last Friday night showed that the public is just as much pleased with these concerts as it was several years ago when Councilman George H. Frost inaugurated them in this city.

For two hours Friday evening the people to the number of several thousand waited and wandered about North avenue and listened to the music. Then came the suggestion that these band concerts should take on a more public character. It was the general concensus of opinion that they should be given in some place better adapted for caring for a large crowd than in one of the thoroughfares of the business portion of the city. Mr. LaVere came forward with the offer of the gratuitous services of his band if the citizens of Plainfield would meet the actual expenses occasioned by the concerts.

The offer was too good a one to be allowed to pass unnoticed. The people of Plainfield enjoy the concerts. They make a pleasant break in the monotony of summer life in this city. It is believed that there is enough public spirit in the city to provide the necessary funds. So the Daily Press is glad to throw open its columns in behalf of the movement and will receive subscriptions and see that they are promptly forwarded to the proper place.

To start the ball rolling, Mayor George W. Rockfellow and Edward White, formerly one of Plainfield's leading merchants, have each contributed to the fund. Other prominent citizen's will undoubtedly follow their example. This is just the time for these concerts and no time should be lost. Those who are willing to give something, no matter how small, should do so without delay. Every dollar contributed will do its share in providing good music this summer.

According to the present plans the concerts will be held in the City Park every Saturday afternoon. A number of additional seats will be provided. There will be plenty of room for all. If popular opinion seems to favor an evening concert rather than one in the afternoon, the time will be changed. The only difference is that lights are not required in the daytime, and will thereby reduce the cost of the concerts slightly.

The subscriptions thus far received are as follows.

Mayor George W. Rockfellow..$10
Edward White..... 10

Subscriptions of any amount not less than 5 cents will be received at The Daily Press office and due credit given to the contributor. Everybody can afford to give a little something. Every penny counts. If the people of Plainfield come forward quickly and in the proper spirit, it will be possible to give the first concert next week.

Meanwhile the Friday evening concerts on North avenue in front of the Hotel Kensington will go forward for the present. The concert Friday evening will begin as usual at 8 o'clock. The programme will be as follows:

MR. GOURLEY HAS PLANS

HE SAYS HE BELIEVES BRYAN WILL WIN IN NEW JERSEY.

State Committee to be Called Together About August 1st to Plan Aggressive Campaign.

Democratic State Chairman William B Gourley, who went to the Kansas City Convention as one of the district delegates from the Fifth Congressional district, has returned to his home in Paterson, after a tour through the west.

"The State Committee will meet about Aug. 1st," Mr. Gourley said yesterday morning, "and we purpose to inaugurate a very active campaign. There will be appointed some honorary members of the committee, and they will assist us. "The leading men in every county in the State will be called together, and clubs will be organized to act independently of but in harmony with the county committees. We shall organize the State into districts, and the State Committee will be subdivided, each sub-committee having charge of the work in one particular part of the State. A headquarters has not been decided upon, but it is quite likely that it will again be located in Newark."

Speaking of the proceedings at Kansas City, Mr. Gourley said:

"Men who held ultra views on the silver question met the views of others with a desire to subordinate everything to party success. Everybody came away with a feeling that a great deal had been done to restore party supremacy, and I know every delegate from New Jersey returned resolved to go into this fight to win.

"With the plans we purpose to adopt in this State, I have every reason to believe that the electoral vote of New Jersey will be on the side of Democracy. I think every Democrat will be satisfied with the conduct of the campaign."

The headquarters of the National Committee will be in Chicago, but a sub-committee will work in New York. Mr. Gourley will be with this committee.

One thing was definitely settled yesterday. That is that Mr. Gourley will continue at the head of the State Committee during the coming campaign. A few believed that his duties as member of the National Committee would make it necessary for him to resign from the State Committee, but matters have been so arranged that instead of interfering with his work on the State Committee his connection with the National Committee will be of great assistance to him in carrying on the fight in this State.

On the Republican side, State Chairman Franklin Murphy is also a member of the Republican National Committee.

JAIL IN NAME ONLY.

Latest, Funniest Escape Must Have Made Even the Sheriff Laugh.

Middlesex County's Jail, at New Brunswick, is so free and easy an institution that prisoners are kept in it only by moral suasion. During the past five years over forty prisoners have escaped from it. Sheriff Barclay is doing everything in his power to make things so comfortable that the prisoners will stay with him, but Monday "Moose" Whitlock, the jail cook, who is serving thirty days for disorderly conduct, became offended.

Sheriff Barclay heard some one had been seen handling a bundle of some sort over the jail wall. He asked "Moose" about it. He tried to make it clear that he entertained no suspicion of his cook, and was asking simply for information, but the fact that he was suspected rankled in the sensitive soul of the cook, and he walked out of the jail yard by forcing the barred door away from the staple to which it used to be locked.

When the Sheriff missed his cook he went in search of him and found him downtown. He tried to persuade Whitlock to return and serve out his sentence, promising him four meals a day, but it was not until the Sheriff apologized that Whitlock forgave the unintentional insult and returned to his cell.

Use Formaldehyde in Milk.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, July 17.—State Dairy Commissioner McGuire will cause the arrest this week of a number of milk dealers for adulterating milk by using ormaldehyde as a preservative. Most of those who will be arrested are in Atlantic City. The State Dairy Commissioner says that the use of this presentative is resorted to in order to keep the milk from souring. He considers formaldehyde very dangerous if used in large quantities, and even when used in very small quantities it is dangerous to infants.

THUNDER STORMS MAY END HOT SPELL

Weather Bureau Promises Relief From the Stifling Heat That Prevails.

OPPRESSIVE ALL NIGHT.

TEMPERATURE WENT OVER 100 DEGREES YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Sleep Was Almost Impossible Last Night—Great Business for Soda Water Fountains—Brisk Breeze Today.

The end is at hand. The weather forecasters promised a noisy departure for the hot wave last evening, but their promises were not kept. The night came on, hot, sultry, stifling. Living and breathing was a burden. Although the mercury fell slightly when the sun departed, there was no relief from the wave of scorching air that enveloped the land. The earth, the buildings, everything absorbed the heat during the day, only to radiate it as darkness fell. Again the weather bureau forecasts say that sharp and brisk thunder showers are at hand that will noisily conclude the present demonstration of hotness.

Yesterday capped the climax of the hot wave and incidentally damaged past records. At 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon Local Weather Observer John Neagle recorded 101 degrees in the shade. That's the official figure, but countless independent thermometers ran the mercury up as high as 105 and 106. At 6 o'clock the mercury had fallen to 90, but it never went below 89 all night.

The night was worse than the day. Sleeping was well nigh impossible. Many men, worn, weary and wet, wandered about until the early morning hours trying in vain to get cool and quench the vigorous thirst that accompanied the other results of the heat. All the evening the soda-water fountains, ice cream parlors and saloons were fairly overwhelmed with business. Everything else was at a standstill.

There is a slight turn for the better today, but it is amply warm for all practical purposes. At 7 o'clock the mercury stood at 84. By 9 o'clock it was over 90. An hour later the mercury bobbed up above 95 and seemed totally unable to call a halt on its upward journey. The most joyous thing of the morning, however, was a delicious breeze that dropped in from the west. It was comparatively cool and all humanity rejoiced accordingly.

Since this warm wave arrived Plainfield has become quite informal. Many of its citizens have nearly forgotten that such a thing as a coat ever existed. Some have even gone so far as to roll up their sleeves. Crash suits are blossoming out on every hand. Naturally business isn't particularly brisk. Nobody works unless it is a stern necessity, and the stores are empty of customers except a few in search of fans, ice cream freezers and thinner wearing apparel.

Mrs. William A. Schorb, of East Front street, was overcome by the heat while attending to her household duties yesterday afternoon. Medical aid was summoned and she is now feeling somewhat better, although still very weak.

Joseph Noel, of West Third street, was prostrated by the heat yesterday, and today is confined to his home.

SURPRISED GAME WARDEN.

Arrested Men, Instead of Settling, Propose to Fight Him—Warden is Indignant.

Fish and Game Warden Miller arrested Porgie Bellis, James Boyle, Henry French and John TenEyck, of Somerville, for fishing with a net in a stream near William Snyder's residence, that town. The prisoners pleaded for mercy, and Warden Miller, they say, agreed to let them off upon payment of $12.50 each. They were to meet him at Squire Farley's office in Somerville Monday night and settle.

Monday night they appeared at the Justice's office with ex-Judge Cowenhoven, of New Brunswick, and Lawyer John F. Roger, who claimed that the fishing was done in a pond with no outlet nor inlet. The game warden was indignant at the appearance of counsel and had the case adjourned. He has engaged James J. Bergen to represent the State.

WAS BOUND TO SCOLD

MRS SCHEUERLEIN AND HER UNRULY TONGUE IN TROUBLE.

Caused Such a Fuss on Somerset Street That She Was Lectured by Mayor Smalley.

An unpleasant family quarrel was witnessed yesterday afternoon between 5 and 6 o'clock in front of Collector George F. Brown's office on Somerset street. Mrs. Joseph Scheuerlein, of Somerset place, was the cause of the trouble. Her husband is employed by Mr. Brown, and she appeared at the store for the purpose of giving him a lecture. She was abusive and she did not confine her abuse to her husband alone, but applied it to Mr. Brown and several others.

Mrs. Scheuerlein did not see her husband, but Mr. Brown tried with all his power to quiet the woman and induce her to be peaceable. This she would not do. There was nothing left to do but have the woman taken before Mayor Smalley, which was done at 7 o'clock last evening. His Honor gave the woman a very severe lecture and reprimand, telling her that if she was again guilty of a similar charge, he would impose the extreme limit of the law.

As a result of yesterday's trouble, which is the culmination of a series of troubles lasting about a month, Mr. Scheuerlein has been obliged to leave his wife and two children, and live elsewhere. He contributes a certain amount of money each week to support of his family, but he says that it is impossible for him to live with his wife under the present condition of affairs. Thus far, Mrs. Scheuerlein seems to be satisfied with the new arrangement, and no further trouble is looked for just now.

RANDOLPH IS SELECTED.

HE WILL BE ELECTED TO MEMBERSHIP IN THE COMMON COUNCIL.

The Name of W. S. Angleman Has Been Withdrawn—Council Meets This Evening.

The Common Council will meet this evening in special session for the purpose of electing a successor to Former Councilman F. S. Smith. It will be remembered that recently a similar attempt was made unsuccessfully from the fact that there were two candidates Frank Randolph and W. S. Angleman, and each one received five votes. At this rate a successor would never be selected, hence an adjournment. It is now understood that the slate is all fixed to elect Mr. Randolph at the session this evening, and that the friends of Mr. Angleman have consented to withdraw his name from the contest.

Just what has brought about this change is not qaite clear, although it is known that Mr. Angleman has bolted the ticket a few times and has been "up against" the ruling party. In other words he is not considered a strict party man, and the "powers" cannot see their way clear to place him in the Council.

Just what claims Mr. Randolph has for the position is not known, except that he is a Republican and has always voted the ticket. He has never been a great worker in the party. The "powers" decided on him and that was guarantee enough that he would be chosen as a member of the Council. He is a young man and holds a responsible position in the draughting department at the Potter Press Works. He is a popular person in a large circle of friends. While he has never been known to have oratorical powers his vote will count, and that is a much-needed thing. Mr. Randolph is a graduate of Lehigh University and has much ability in an executive way.

The apparatus arrived Monday, and is being placed. Six men connected with the Johnson & Johnson plant will operate it.

The funeral of Mrs. S. R. Krom will be held privately at her late residence, Madison avenue, at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Friends wishing to call can do so between 9:30 a. m. and 12 o'clock noon.

DROP OF TEN POINTS IN CITY TAX RATE

Reduction in County and School Expenses Permits the Rate to be Cut Down.

OTHER SLIGHT DECREASES.

$2.46 MUST BE PAID ON EVERY $100 WORTH OF VALUATION.

Increase in Cost of Fire Department on Account of Call System — Maintenance of Poor Department Reduced Almost One Half.

While the mercury has been soaring upwards the city tax rate has taken a decided drop. There is a decrease in the demands of the state schools, the county and the city with the result that the tax rate for 1900 is going to be just ten points lower than it was last year. A meeting of the Board of Assessors of the city was held in the office of Tax Collector Smith yesterday afternoon when the city tax rate was fixed at $2.46 on every $100 of taxable property.

At the meeting of the Union County Board of Assessors, held at Elizabeth Monday, it was found that Union county would not have to raise as much money by taxes this year by many thousands of dollars as compared with last year. That put the county rate down considerably.

The requisition on the city for money to support the State School system is not as large as it was last year. That made a further reduction in the rate.

The city itself will not require as much money during 1900 as it did during 1899, despite the fact that a great amount of the sewer bonds are being paid off and some of the city departments have larger appropriations. The sum-total is less, the difference in this and last year's appropriations being $1,800 in favor of the present year.

A comparison of the rates for this and last year is as follows:

	1899.	1900.
County tax	.54	.50
State school tax	.28	.26
Fire department tax	.22	.25
Library tax	.07	.06
City and city lights tax	.64	.60
Poor tax	.05	.05
Free school and bond tax	.65	.64
Principal on sewer bonds	.05	.07
Interest on sewer obligations	.06	.06
Total percentage	$2.56	$2.46

The increase in the cost of maintaining the fire department is occasioned by the establishment of the call system and the addition of several regular men. It is estimated that the increase will be eventually more than covered by taxes that would be exempt through the old volunteer system.

The library tax was increased last year to meet the special appropriation for the Babcock scientific library. The cost of caring for the city's poor has been reduced nearly half, but the Council may have to make another provision for that department before the year is over. The cost of the schools is somewhat lessened and the payment of more of the sewer bonds necessitated a small increase to meet it.

AGENT FOR SEVEN COUNTIES.

C. Maynard Evans will Represent the Schlicht Combustion Process.

C. Maynard Evans, of this city, reports the closing of a contract with the Schlicht Combustion Process Company, of New York, whereby he secures the sole agency for the introduction of the Schlicht process of combustion in seven counties of New Jersey. Reports from those in Plainfield and elsewhere who have done business with Mr. Evans since March, when he first secured the agency, have been so universally favorable that he was satisfied to make the contract above mentioned for a period of five years.

With the seven counties to look out for it is necessary for Mr. Evans to anticipate the domestic business for the coming fall and he is now booking orders which will be filled in rotation during August and September.

The apparatus is installed at Mr. Evans' expense and the saving of 20 per cent. in fuel guaranteed, and all equipments made between now and November 1st will be left until December 1st before reported on. If at that time the party contracting for the installation is not satisfied of the saving the apparatus will be removed and no charge made for installation.

We can speak from personal experience and Mr. Evans can give some twenty-five other references in this city to prove all he claims for the Schlicht combustion process, and the investment speaks for itself and should appeal to everyone using coal.

Proctor in New York city afford suburban visitors, shoppers, the traveling public and those having a few hours' spare time, just the place to spend a couple of hours from the heat of the streets of the metropolis. The temperature of the Proctor auditoriums is constantly kept at a normal standard, being from 15 to 20 degrees less than the streets. Huge electric fans, palm leaf fans attached to each seat, and the constant passing of iced water throughout the auditoriums by the ushers, tend to keep the patrons comfortable while enjoying one of the typical Proctor vaudeville programmes. At Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, week of July 23d, are: Reno and Richards, the acrobatic comedians; Hughey Dougherty, the minstrel; Fritz Young and Emilie Sells, Pierrot et Clownesse; Williams and Adams, the Monte Carlo boys; Westman and Wren, rural sketch; Six and Gedney, banjoists, etc. At Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, week of July 23d, are: "A Surprise Party" Company, a clever farce adapted from the French; George Wilson, the minstrel comedian; kalatechnoscope, showing pictures of the Hoboken fire and the Standard Oil Company's fire at Bayonne; Ely and Harvey, the black face comedy duo; Hodgkins and Leith, and many more features.

YERKES NOMINATED.

Kentucky Republicans and Anti-Goebelites Unite.

PLATFORM CONTAINS THREE PLANKS.

Repeal of the Goebel Election Law Declared to Be the Main Issue. Great Enthusiasm In Louisville Convention.

LOUISVILLE, July 18.—John W Yerkes of Danville was nominated for governor yesterday by the Republican convention held in this city. A platform was adopted declaring the issue of the election to be the Goebel election law. The convention adjourned within three hours. There were some anti-Goebel Democrats in the convention, but as to how many figures differ.

In the Shelby county delegation there were, according to a statement made from the platform, 19 Democrats. A feature of the speeches made was that they all paid tributes to what the Democratic party has done in the past, though the speakers unsparingly denounced the present Democratic state administration and the Democratic legislature, thus indicating a purpose to welcome into the Republican party all Democrats who are opposed to the Goebel election law.

There was no nomination to be made by this convention except for governor, as this year's election in Kentucky is an extraordinary one to fill the vacancy in the governorship made by the death of William Goebel.

The convention was held in the Auditorium. Many ladies occupied boxes among them being Mrs. W. S. Taylor and four daughters. The convention gave her three cheers when she entered the box.

Chairman Barnett of the state central committee called the convention to order. He started to speak, but former Governor W. O. Bradley entered, and the delegates interrupted the speaker with a storm of cheers for the ex-governor. Chairman Barnett's reference to W. S. Taylor were wildly cheered. He said with the Republicans of Kentucky it was not a question of whether the constitution follows the flag, but whether the constitution is worth anything under the flag. Mr. Barnett presented ex-Lieutenant Governor John Marshall of Louisville for temporary chairman. Chairman Marshall addressed the convention at length, dwelling chiefly on Kentucky's political affairs.

Judge T. Z. Morrow was made permanent chairman. Judge Morrow roused the convention to a high pitch of enthusiasm in a short but vigorous speech.

A platform was unanimously adopted containing three planks. The second and third respectively indorsed the Philadelphia convention and its nominees and urged the government to protect Americans in China. The first plank deals with the state issues. It says in part:

"The first duty of Kentucky citizenship is to repeal the Goebel election law, which is the source and continuing strength of the wrongs done in this state. A vote of confidence next November in men who are all usurpers of office and who have for a year past been acting together to thwart the declared will of the people will be accepted as a vote of confidence in the election law that is a blot on our statute book. The Goebel law must be abolished or Republican institutions must be surrendered. The convention invites all friends of civil liberty and social order to unite with the Republicans of Kentucky in securing the repeal of the Goebel election law and the preservation of the liberties of the people. We congratulate the Republican party on the efforts being made by Governor Taylor and his co-officials in securing this right to the people and thereby preventing the state from having as officers men defeated at the polls."

To Succeed Brockway.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 18.—The board of managers of the Elmira reformatory at its meeting yesterday appointed P. J. McDonnell assistant superintendent of the institution, which means that he will ultimately succeed Z. R. Brockway as superintendent. Mr. McDonnell was formerly warden of the Erie county penitentiary in Buffalo. He assumed the duties of his new position at once. No charges were preferred against Brockway, as was expected, at the meeting of the board, but it is intimated by the members that such action may yet be taken.

Hungarians Refused to Answer.

HAZLETON, Pa., July 18.—Charles Polaska and John Claver, Hungarians, were arrested at Wilburton, Columbia county, by United States officers, charged by the census enumerator of that district with repeated refusal to answer his inquiries and of finally ejecting him from their homes. They were committed by United States Commissioner Hill of this city in default of $500 bail.

The Trial of Powers.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., July 18.—Proceedings in the Powers case were made more interesting yesterday by the introduction of several witnesses against the defendant. The most interesting witness of the day was Lucy Brock, said to be the sweetheart of the young defendant. It is probable that either Culton, Noakes or Golden will be put on the stand today.

Embassador Draper Home.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 18.—Embassador William F. Draper has arrived home on a short leave of absence from his post in Italy. He will spend several weeks here. General Draper says the powers have taken the correct diplomatic attitude in deciding they are not technically at war with China.

BRIDGE WORK
in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. HOPE AGAIN REVIVED

Minister Wu Gets Word That Legations Are Safe.

PRESIDENT AND CABINET IN COUNCIL.

No Extra Session of Congress at Present—Admiral Remey Reports Successes In the Fighting Around Tien-tsin.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—A decidedly more hopeful feeling with regard to the Chinese situation is apparent in all administration circles. The tide of sentiment, which had been markedly pessimistic, turned yesterday with the announcement of the victory of the allies at Tien-tsin and the capture of the forts and native city and gathered further strength from Minister Wu's cablegram declaring that the foreign ministers at Peking were safe July 9. Aside from these dispatches the arrival of the president and the special cabinet meeting called to consider the situation were the features of the day. They met at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, less than an hour after the president reached the White House. Over 100 newspaper men thronged the corridors while the cabinet was sitting behind closed doors. The scene resembled the hottest days of the Spanish war.

There were present Secretary Hay, Secretary Root, Secretary Long, Secretary Gage and Postmaster General Smith.

At the conclusion of the session, which lasted two and one-half hours, Secretary Root gave out the following formal statement of the action of the cabinet:

"The president has determined that the facts now known to us do not require or justify calling an extra session of congress. Should future developments indicate that he is unable to do what is required with the means now at his command and the action of congress is necessary to furnish either men or money or authority he will not hesitate to call it together."

While only this meager formal statement was given out it was ascertained that the whole Chinese situation was thoroughly discussed by the cabinet. The decision that an extra session of congress was not demanded by existing conditions was the outcome of the showing which both Secretary Root and Secretary Long were able to make as to the force that can be thrown into China without the authorization of additional troops by congress and also the decidedly more hopeful feeling entertained by the president and the members of his cabinet as to the safety of Minister Conger and the other foreigners in Peking, due to the cable of Minister Wu reporting the safety of the ministers July 9, two days after their reported massacre.

While this cable is not regarded as conclusive, it is accepted in good faith for the present. But the administration, it can be definitely stated, has set in motion some machinery by which it is confidently predicted absolutely authentic news as to the fate of our minister and the other foreigners at Peking will be ascertained. Through what channel the administration expects to receive this all important news is not known, but that a definite statement of the situation in Peking is daily if not hourly expected can be stated with the utmost positiveness. The advices received from Peking probably will be the determining factor in blazing the future course of this government. If Minister Conger has been murdered, an extra session of congress seems inevitable.

Admiral Remey's message of the success following the earlier hard fighting at Tien-tsin helped to relieve the anxiety of the president and his advisers, but Minister Wu's message was responsible for the really hopeful feeling that prevailed. Secretary Root furnished to the cabinet a summary of the troops available not only in this country, but in Cuba and gave it as his opinion that between 10,000 and 12,000 troops in all could be spared for service in China. These reenforcements are to be rushed through at the earliest possible moment. Most if not all of them, it is believed, can be landed by the end of August or early in September.

Admiral Remey's dispatch to the navy department is as follows:

"Chefu, July 17.—Today hope to get wounded from Tien-tsin either in hospitals at Taku or aboard Solace. Communication very uncertain. Following casualties apparently confirmed: Marines, Captain Davis killed; Captain Lemly, Lieutenants Butler and Leonard wounded. Army, Colonel Liscum killed; Majors Reagan and Lee, Captains Noyes, Brewster and Bookmiller; Lieutenants Naylor, Lawton, Hammond and Waldron wounded.

"Total killed and wounded reported 775. Russian and Japanese loss heavy. Our total loss reported 215. About 40 were marines, but number believed to be exaggerated. Have officer on shore especially to get authentic number and names, which will be promptly telegraphed. City and forts now in the hands of allies. Admiral Seymour returned to fleet. Ranking officer ashore is Admiral Alexieff at Tien-tsin."

The text of the dispatch received by the Chinese minister is as follows:

"The utmost efforts have been made to protect foreign ministers, who were well on the 13th (Chinese calendar corresponding to our July 9). If Tien-tsin city should be destroyed, it would be difficult to restore the same in 100 years. Request the powers to preserve it, as the consequence would affect Chinese and foreign commerce. Earl Li Hung Chang is transferred to north China as viceroy to Chili. Please transmit this dispatch to the ministers at other capitals."

This dispatch, which is dated July 16, was signed by Viceroys Liu Kun Yi and Chang Chih Tung of Nankin and Wu Chang respectively and also by Sheng, director of posts and telegraphs at Shanghai. It was addressed to the Chinese minister in London and by him transmitted to Minister Wu.

Minister Wu received the dispatch about 11 o'clock yesterday and was greatly pleased at this satisfactory turn of events. He started at once for the state department, where he remained with Secretary Hay for some time. Besides presenting to Mr. Hay the contents of his dispatch, Minister Wu also officially executed the direction of an appeal to the powers not to destroy the walled city of Tien-tsin. So far as the United States is concerned there has been no purpose wantonly to destroy this walled city, although the latest news from the scene of action indicates that the walls themselves have been battered down and a considerable portion of the city destroyed. Mr. Wu said afterward that he feared the destruction of the city was little short of complete.

The minister expressed the most complete confidence in the accuracy of the message, showing that the foreign ministers were well on the 9th inst. When a bystander expressed some doubt on this subject, Mr. Wu inquired with some warmth, "Why is it that you believe the exaggerated reports coming from unknown sources, and yet you choose to doubt this report signed by our highest officials and containing inherent evidence of accuracy?"

The minister went on to show that this dispatch contained three distinct statements. One of them, the appointment of Li Hung Chang as viceroy of Chili, had been confirmed already by the state department. Moreover, he said all three statements bore evidence of having originated at Peking, including that as to Li Hung Chang, whose appointment necessarily must originate with the government at Peking.

The appointment of Earl Li as viceroy of Chili is considered by Minister Wu as one of the most important developments in the entire situation. Chili is the great province in which Peking is located and is the very heart of the Boxer movement, so that the great viceroy now assumes supreme power at the point of greatest danger. Minister Wu is satisfied that if Li Hung Chang had been at Peking there would have been no such outbreak as has occurred, as the viceroy is a stern military man, who believes in nipping such movements in the bud. The state department officials are anxious to accept Wu's message as accurate, but there are some clouds of doubt about it. The question naturally arises, as it has many times in the past two weeks, if the Chinese government can communicate in this way with its representatives abroad, why can it not permit the foreign ministers represented to be under its protection also to communicate with their governments?

Confirmation of the transfer of Li Hung Chang to the north came to the state department not only from Minister Wu, but in a cablegram from Consul General Goodnow at Shanghai. It is stated that Li Hung Chang has started from Canton on his way to Peking. It is expected that he will land at Taku or at Shan Hai Kwan, a port on the Gulf of Pechili, connected by a good road with Peking. If the viceroy can get into Peking, he also can carry messages to the foreign ministers if they are still alive, and without doubt the state department, as well as the European prime ministers, will seize the opportunity to make one more test of the truth of the latest reports respecting the safety of the legationers.

Boston Chinamen Address McKinley.

BOSTON, July 18.—The inhabitants of Boston's Chinatown, all of whom have been much agitated over the reports of the outrages committed by the revolutionists in Peking and other places in the north of China, met yesterday to express their sentiments on the matter. C. W. Heoy, one of the most intelligent Chinamen in Boston and a leader in social affairs here, presided. He read a letter which had been drawn up and directed to President McKinley. The text of the letter expressed sympathy with the American people for the losses in China and said that the Chinamen of Boston are true Americans and hate those who are opposed to reform and progress in China. At the end of the meeting all of the prominent Chinamen signed the letter, and it was forwarded to Washington.

Transports Sail For the East.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—The army transport Sumner, bearing a detachment of troops, surgeons and hospital assistants, has sailed for Nagasaki, where, it is believed, further orders will be received directing the vessel to proceed to Taku. Two officers who sailed are under orders to join the forces under command of Brigadier General Chaffee at Taku. These are Major William Stephenson, surgeon in the regular army, and Second Lieutenant Joseph A. Bar, Sixth cavalry. The transport California sailed for the Philippines with a large cargo of stores.

Escaped From Tien-tsin.

DENVER, July 18.—George Van Norman McGee, professor of civil engineering in the Imperial university of China at Tien-tsin, yesterday cabled his father here that he barely escaped in one of Admiral Kempff's launches and has reached Nagasaki. The party was fired upon by the mob all the way down the river to the foreign concession.

Marines For China.

NEW YORK, July 18.—One hundred marines were called upon for active service in China at the Brooklyn navy yard yesterday. To a man they expressed a willingness to go and a desire to avenge their comrades. These marines, with detachments from Boston, Washington and Norfolk, will leave here for San Francisco on July 26.

Engineers For China.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., July 18.—Companies C and D of the engineer corps arrived at West Point from Willets Point yesterday. They received orders to leave for China together with all engineers at West Point. They leave next Monday. They are under command of Lieutenant Jewey and number 150.

The New Battleships.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The navy department has issued circulars defining the characteristics of five battleships authorized by the last two naval appropriation bills. Bids are asked for three sheathed and coppered battleships and two without sheathing and coppering. The five ships will be identical with the exception of the batteries. Three will be built with superposed turrets carrying 12 inch guns in the lower and 8 inch guns in the upper turrets. The remaining two ships will have the 12 inch guns in two ordinary turrets and the eight 8 inch guns in four turrets arranged quadrilaterally. The general plans will be ready for examination September next. Bids will be opened Nov. 15.

Brighter Prospects In India.

NEW YORK, July 18.—The following cablegram has been received by the India Famine Relief Work, dated Baroda, India, July 17: "Special and official telegrams received here from the famine districts indicate a more cheerful outlook. Scant rains have fallen in Madras and Gujarat, in which latter province the famine has been most severe and the mortality greatest. Elsewhere the rainfall has been fair, making the general prospects brighter. There has been a gratifying rainfall in Rajaputana, and central India, which is always a center of suffering during famine, also reports a moderate rainfall."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

The Intense Heat Does Not Check Enthusiasm—Officers Elected.

LONDON, July 1o.—Great enthusiasm marked the session of the world's convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor at the Alexandra palace grounds yesterday. Even the intense heat could not dampen the ardor of the delegates, although now and then young women were carried out of the crowded meeting fainting and overcome by heat. The morning was given up to demonstrations of the worldwide extent of the Endeavor movement. Anxious inquiries for ministers whose names appeared on the programme were largely the result of delay in travel caused by the burning of the steamship Saale in New York harbor.

Secretary John Willis Baer, speaking of the growth of the movement, said that the Christian Endeavor badge was worn by more than one brawny Briton from her majesty's ship Powerful in the famous siege of Ladysmith. Mr. Baer strongly demanded an arbitration treaty between Great Britain and America. "Cod may come and seals may go," said he, "and boundary lines be held in dispute, but palsied be the hand and mute the tongue that should again suggest strife and bloodshed between America and Great Britain."

The Rev. Francis E. Clark, president of the Society of Christian Endeavor, delivered the presidential address. He spoke of Christian Endeavor in the far east, "in progressive Japan, in distracted China and with hopeful beginnings in Korea." His tour of the world, Mr. Clark said, had convinced him that "the Christian Endeavor tree would bear fruit in any soil."

The Rev. Francis E. Clark and John Willis Bear were elected respectively world's president and secretary of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor. They and other prominent members of the society will go to Paris to attend the Christian Endeavor convention there July 22. Mr. Clark will be occupied in attending various European conventions of Christian Endeavorers until Sept. 1.

NEW MOVE AT ST. LOUIS.

Proceedings Begun Against Transit Company to Revoke Charter.

ST. LOUIS, July 18.—Attorney General Crow has filed in the state supreme court quo warranto proceedings against the St. Louis Transit company, the United Railways company and the National Railway company asking that their charters be revoked.

The petition recites that the United Railways company was chartered by the state of Missouri to build and operate street railways, and it has not conformed with this charter; that it is a party to a scheme to create a street railway monopoly in St. Louis, the alleged evidence of this being its lease of its properties to the St. Louis Transit company, a corporation apparently formed to assist in the formation of this alleged monopoly.

The petition alleges further that the companies have violated the state law in capitalizing for more than is allowed under the state law and for more than the actual value of their tangible and intangible properties.

The attorney general alleges also that the organization and operation of these companies are in violation of the state and federal constitution and that the law passed at the recent session of the general assembly authorizing a consolidation of the street railways is in contravention of the state constitution.

Roosevelt In St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, July 18.—Governor Theodore Roosevelt of New York addressed a most enthusiastic crowd in the Auditorium in this city last night. Thousands of people besieged the doors of the hall two hours before they were opened. When, at 7 o'clock, the crowd was finally given a chance to get inside, every inch of space was filled in a few minutes. Thousands of persons surged about the streets unable to gain entrance. The day's session of the National Republican League Clubs' convention was a tame affair to that presented when the Empire State governor arrived before the building, just before 9:30 p. m. He was compelled to reply to the repeated calls for a speech. Governor Roosevelt concluded his peroration at exactly 9:30, when the audience arose en masse, and over 6,000 voices shook the air for about five minutes. A carriage was waiting at the door. The governor entered at once, was driven to the station, and at 11:25 he was flying eastward on his journey home.

Troubles Of a Minister.

To benefit others Rev. J. T. W. Vernon, of Hartwell, Ga., writes: "For a long time I had a running sore on my leg. I tried many remedies without benefit, until I used a bottle of Electric Bitters and a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me sound and well." Sores, Eruption, Boils, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum show impure blood. Thousands have found in Electric Bitters a grand blood purifier that absolutely cures these troubles. Satisfaction is guaranteed or money refunded by L. W. Randolph. Large bottles only 50c.

WAR AGAINST RUSSIA

China Said to Have Made a Declaration.

SERIOUS TROUBLE IN MANCHURIA.

Russian Transport Seized and Escort Killed—Siberian Town Destroyed. Li Hung Chang Defines His Mission to Peking.

LONDON, July 18.—The news of the Manchuria disturbances is not regarded as justifying the serious view attributed by The Daily Mail's advices. Amur is boundary territory between eastern Siberia and Manchuria. The district has been the scene of local disturbances for a long time owing to the provocative conduct of the Cossacks toward the 25,000 Chinese employed in the construction of the Russo-Manchurian railway.

The Daily Mail publishes a sensational dispatch from St. Petersburg, dated Monday, which asserts that there is no doubt that China has declared war against Russia.

"The Russian press," says the correspondent, "is restricted to the publication of official details, and the publication of many dispatches from the front has been prohibited. I hear, however, from a reliable source that the Chinese troops and the Boxers seized a Russian transport vessel laden with munitions near Aigun, on the Amur river, about 18 miles from the Russian frontier, killing almost the entire Russian escort.

"They next suddenly attacked and bombarded the town of Blagovechensk, capital of the Amur government, on the Amur river. The garrison held out bravely, but was finally overwhelmed. Nearly all perished, and the town was burned."

The Moscow correspondent of The Daily Mail says:

"Leading firms here have learned that their tea and silk warehouses at Kalgan, in the province of Chili, near the great wall, have been plundered and burned by Chinese rioters and troops, goods worth 70,000,000 taels having been destroyed."

Several serious collisions have occurred between the Cossacks and the Chinese troops. One happened several weeks ago, when two Russian officers and 16 men were killed.

The Amur military district was mobilized a fortnight ago on a war footing, and it is believed that the Russian forces there are 50,000 men and 112 guns. The governor general has now ordered the troops on the frontier to form a cordon. The Russian papers demand severe retribution for Chinese audacity in Manchuria.

The Daily Telegraph has the following from Canton, dated July 16:

"In an interview with the foreign consuls today Li Hung Chang said that his mission to Peking was twofold—to save the lives of the foreign ministers and to arrange the best possible terms of peace with the allied powers. The American and French consuls, while congratulating him upon these commendable purposes, reminded him of his pledges to protect foreigners and to preserve peace in southern and central China.

"Earl Li replied that he must obey the summons to Peking, but that he had taken all necessary precautions. He added that he had received important cables from Lord Salisbury and M. Delcasse, demanding protection for the foreign ministers in Peking and threatening to take life for life of the high officials responsible if the ministers were murdered. He told the consul that he was the only man in China who dared transmit such messages to the empress, but that he had sent them verbatim and that he did not doubt they had exerted a powerful influence in saving the ministers' lives.

"He went on to say that, as the doyen of the viceroys, he had also induced all the other viceroys, except two, to join in a lengthy memorial to the throne, asking security for the foreigners, suppression of the Boxers and full reparation for all damages."

According to a dispatch from Shanghai to the Daily Mail, dated yesterday, a massacre occurred on July 9 at Tai-Yuen-Fu, capital of the province of Shansi, 40 foreigners and 100 native converts being killed.

Quiet at Hankow.

PARIS, July 18.—The French consul at Hankow telegraphs under date of July 11 that all was calm at Hankow and that the population did not appear excited. He adds that the viceroy was taking measures to avert disturbances and that no trouble had thus far occurred along the Hankow-Peking railroad. The vicar of southern Ho-nan telegraphs that he was attacked in his residence at Nan-yang-fou. The vicar of northern Ho-nan announces that the religious establishments at Siang-yang were destroyed and that the insurrection appeared to be spreading southward. The French consul at Tching-kiang telegraphs that all is calm in the province of Szechuen.

Stole Forms of Type.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—Charged with stealing forms of type valued at $11,000 from George F. Lasher, printer and publisher, William F. Dietrick, aged 30 years, a trusted employee, was held in $2,000 bail for trial. John Belmont, colored, also formerly employed by Mr. Lasher, was required to furnish a like amount of bail for complicity in the alleged thefts. John Lemly, Thomas Yearsley and Ralph Binn were held in $800 bail, charged with receiving the stolen type. The pilfering is said to have extended over a period of years, and about five tons of metal was taken. The stolen forms included 699 pages of the United States official postal guide, worth $4,893, and 691 pages of the Physicians' Mail List, valued at $6,218.

The Shah In Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 18.—Muzaffar-ed-Din, shah of Persia, has arrived in St. Petersburg. He was welcomed at the railway station by Emperor Nicholas and other members of the imperial family, who greeted him cordially. The party drove together to the Winter palace along the Nevskoi Prospekt, the principal street of the city, which was lined with troops and beautifully decorated with triumphal arches.

Atlantic Liner In a Storm.

BOSTON, July 18.—The Dominion Atlantic line steamer Prince George, which has arrived from Yarmouth, N. S., had an exciting experience Monday night, when vivid lightning and heavy thunder prevailed, and a bolt of lightning struck the fore topmast of the vessel, splintering it from the truck to where it joins the iron foremast. The electrical current passed down the foremast across the athwartship beam into the sea. The shock was felt by every one on board, but all had fully recovered today. The lightning magnetized the compass and stopped the clocks and several watches on board.

Killed While at Work.

SOUTH ELIZABETH, N. J., July 18.—Thomas Cleary, foreman of a construction gang on the Pennsylvania railroad, was killed near this place. He was crossing from one track to another, when a train bore down on him. He gave one of his men who was with him a shove which threw him from the rails, but Cleary himself was struck and hurled 50 feet. His head struck a rail on the opposite track, crushing the skull.

Fire Sweeps a West Virginia Town.

SALEM, W. Va., July 18.—Fire almost wiped out this town yesterday. The largest woolen mills in the state were located here. They were destroyed, together with 16 dwellings and several other buildings. Two lives were lost, a man named Davis and an unknown woman. The loss was $60,000.

A Trio of Conventions.

POCATELLO, Ida., July 18.—Three state conventions, the Democratic, Silver Republican and Populist, met here yesterday. Temporary organization was perfected at the first session.

What Will be Done?

Just what action will be taken in China by the Allied Powers is not yet determined. But with the shocking and terrible story of the butchery of innocent victims by the Boxers, followed by the serious reverses sustained by the armed forces as reported in later dispatches, the passion of the nations whose citizens have met such a horrible fate is fast reaching a point that demands retribution of some sort. What that will consist of does not yet appear on the surface. Referring to this situation of affairs, the New York Tribune says,

And yet upon whom is vengeance to be taken? Not surely upon the whole Chinese people. Nine-tenths of them are as innocent as we ourselves. Nor can it be upon the entire staff of the Chinese Government. Most of the Viceroys and their lieutenants are, according to all appearances and information, guiltless and well disposed toward us. There has been an unpleasant story that the Russians are killing Chinese indiscriminately. It is to be hoped it is not so. No course could be more unjust or impolitic. Vengeance must be discriminating or it is worse than the original wrong. The proper objects of wrath are, of course, the Boxers, and all who actually join them and their leaders, and above all the usurping monster, Prince Tuan. For them there might well be no mercy. But how is vengeance to overtake them?

If only the Powers had sunk their jealousies for the sake of humanity, and had weeks ago given Japan permission and mandate to "go in," there would have been no call for revenge, or, at worst, there would have been a good chance of capturing the Boxers and their infamous leader. But that was not done. And now we are told the Powers will have to wait until fall before they move. What chance will there be then of singling out from hundreds of thousands of Chinese rioters and soldiers those who actually committed the crimes at the legations? And what hope will there be of capturing Prince Tuan himself? The British in India would have given anything to lay hands on Nana Sahib at Cawnpore, but they never did. So, it is to be expected, Tuan will make his escape. Where then will be our vengeance? In another futile and fantastic burning of the Summer Palace?

The fact is that, natural as is the cry for vengeance, it is idle. It cannot be made effective, because of the fatuous if not criminal delay of the Powers. There is no reason in wreaking upon others, even upon the Chinese, punishment for Europe's shortcomings. The best that can now be done is to send in an adequate army at the earliest possible moment to restore order, to drive out the murderous usurper and to put a decent Chinese Government in power in the old capital of the Middle Kingdom; and perhaps to obliterate, not in a passionate orgy, but as a deliberate execution of a decree of justice, that entire sink of superstition, despotism and iniquity known as Peking. That will be the best possible revenge upon the Tartars, and it will be one that will honor those who inflict it.

The Philadelphia Press says: "By an ordering and dispensation no man can consider an accident the blood of all civilized nations was mingled in that Pekin aceldama consecrated by the martyrs of civilization and Christianity, and to be consecrated yet once more by justice. For a week or two the slender force at Tien Tsin will fight at heavy odds. Reinforcements have already begun to arrive. By August a force of eighty-two thousand will be gathered and a day of a just reckoning will draw near. In that day and in the execution of its duties the United States will shirk no responsibility and refuse no burden. The people of the United States do not propose to pass by one side of the way of nations, as some are now advising, while the heaped dead of our men and women, infamously slain and foully massacred, call for justice on the other."

Andrew Carnegie six months ago confidently expected to raise his $20,000,000 profits per annum to at least fifty per cent. more. He propheseied that prices were bound to go much higher and remain at the top notch for two years in iron and steel products. Instead of that within six months prices have slidden down half way to the point whence they started, and may go still lower. They are pretty nearly now where they can meet the prices of raw material and still show a good merchant's profit. Iron men are confident that there will soon be a reaction in demand, as would-be purchasers can now consider the making of long contracts as a reasonable proposition. — Newark News.

Lack of business, it is said, has caused the suspension of operations of the Lorain Steel Company, which ex-Congressman Tom Johnson unloaded upon the Federal Steel Company at a high figure secretly two years ago. While the Johnsons owned this plant its furnaces and rolling mills were kept in constant and successful operation; but the hugh operation which now controls it finds occupation practically gone at the slightest hint of trade depression. The Trust shuts down; the individual owner exhausts every device of business skill and invention to keep the wheels turning. Extended and repeated experiences in this direction should amply convince the workers of their personal interest in the maintenance of free competition as against selfish monopoly.—Philadelphia Record.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

The new open cars of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway are a decided improvement over the other rolling stock of that company. They have double trucks and are equipped with first-class motors. The cars ride very easily and take the curves along the line without trouble. The rocking and jolting motion that makes fast running in the other cars so unenjoyable is absent in them and they glide along finely. The new cars have four more seats than the old ones and are slightly wider making it easier to accommodate five persons on each seat than formerly. Then there is a seat at either end outside the car proper on the platform. Passengers are allowed there and the place will undoubtedly be a favorite one as soon as the cars are put on regular service between Elizabeth and Plainfield.

The sayings of the little ones are quoted the world over. From the point of view of the youthful eyes commonplace things do occasionally look very different. The other day a litttle girl was taken to church for the first time. She was very young, but quite observing, and had been brought up in a household where the parents believed in religious teachings. The church was an Episcopal one. The child remained through the entire service and listened to everything with a very grave and dignified little face. The appearance of the rector in his long robes seemed to particularly impress her. On her return home she was asked what she saw.

"Oh," said the child, "the Lord was there and he had on his night gown." The mother hastily explained the truth of the matter to the child.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 18.—If Monday was a hot day in the borough, then it may be said that yesterday was even hotter as a number of thermometers showed higher marks than those of the preceding day. In Isaac J. Stites' shop yesterday, the thermometer kept around 102 and in several places it was one degree less. Notwithstanding the great heat there were no reports of anyone being overcome by the heat.

Charles Dineen accompanied Peter Schneiderwind on a drive to Bound Brook Monday night behind the latter's famous trotter, but before returning they met with quite a mishap. The horse became quite fractious and during its capers broke the shafts to such an extent that the wagan could not be used. The only way they could get home was by walking which they did, Peter leading the trotter and Dineen pulling the wagon. The latter says he will hesitate before accepting another invitation from Schneiderwind to go carriage riding.

The Presbyterian Sunday-school will go on its annual excursion to Asbury Park tomorrow. They will accompany the Presbyterian school of Plainfield and will have to go to the latter place to take the train as it will not stop at Dunellen. The train will leave Plainfield at 8 a. m. and returning leaves at 5:45 p. m.

The Dunellen Glee Club serenaded Judge Warden at his home Monday night with some of their choicest selections. At the conclusion of the singing the club was invited in by the judge, who turned entertainer and treated the members to refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. John VanHorn, of White House, returned home yesterday after a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. Emmons Henry.

Miss Isabelle Cruser returned to her home is Neshanic yesterday after a visit with her brother, John Cruser.

ELIZABETH WATER IS FOUL.

But Reservoir Does Not Contain Dead Bodies, as Rumored.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 18.—The city water for the last week has had a very disagreeable odor and such a bad taste that few persons could drink it. Monday it was worse, and when the rumor was started that a colored man and woman had been found dead in the reservoir many persons gave it credence. The report proved false.

The Elizabethtown Water Company, which has the contract for the entire supply for this city can offer no satisfactory excuse for its condition.

The Board of Health had a special meeting Monday night to consider the matter. President John W. Whelan did not attend the meeting, as he is secretary of the company. The three physicians who are members of the Board said that if the water in its present state was used a week longer an epidemic of disease would result. It was decided to have the water analyzed.

Die österreichisch-ungarische Kriegsflagge wehte neben der deutschen auf der Südbefestigung von Taku.—Der Beamte Karl Dörfel von der Staatseisenbahn-Gesellschaft war nach Kontrahirung bedeutender Schulden aus Wien verschwunden. DRESSMAKING HINTS.

How Summer Gowns Are Planned and Put Together.

Nearly all transparent costumes are made over an independent lining of taffeta. This is usually of the glace variety, and two toned taffeta is almost abandoned, although it is occasionally still used. The silk skirt has one or several pinked ruffles around the foot, to give support to the transparent skirt, but is otherwise plain, without fullness anywhere. It is held to the outside by the wristband only.

The silk lining of the bodice is also plain and close fitting, no matter how full or how much draped the outside is to be, and the same may be said of the lining of the sleeve.

Petticoats for wear with thin gowns are exceedingly voluminous below the knee, with many superimposed flounces and plaitings. They are of muslin, nainsook or lawn, with lavish decorations of embroidery and lace, or else of light taffeta, with ruffles and puffings of net or mousseline de soie. For stout women they are made quite smooth at the top, but for slender ones there is a slight fullness at the back.

CLOTH TOILET.

A cut is given illustrating a tailor made gown of pearl gray cloth. The skirt is fitted around the hips by very fine tucks. The tight bodice has a smooth, short basque and is trimmed with stitched straps, which run around it horizontally and fasten at the left side by enameled buttons. The yoke, the top of the sleeves and the high collar are of horizontally tucked pink taffeta. The sleeves themselves are of cloth and are tight, with encircling straps. The hat of beige straw is trimmed with pearl gray tulle and pink hawthorn blossoms.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

THE MODE.

Prospects For Next Fall Still Obscure.

Deep within the innermost recesses of the great modistes' establishments autumn fashions are already in process of incubation, but we shall receive no authentic information with respect to those fine feathers until later in the season, for the secret is jealously kept as long as possible, and we can only hazard shrewd guesses at the future from noticing present tendencies. The gathering of skirts at the waist all around is an indication of increasing amplitude, and it is not improbable that the sheath style will gradually give way to one which less frankly displays the figure. This will be a loss to graceful and well modeled forms, but an immense gain to those which are angular and rely for good effect upon their attire rather than upon their intrinsic merits. Then it is also likely that what little breadth remains to the top of sleeves will disappear in favor of the perfectly tight, sloping shoulder effect which our grandmothers liked.

NEW PETTICOATS.

The cut shows two petticoats. The first is of white nainsook and is trimmed with a deep flounce edged with valenciennes lace in which groups of fine tucks alternate with bands of insertion. The flounce is headed with insertion forming Vs. The second petticoat is of broche silk and has points of plain silk falling over an accordion plaited flounce of plain silk. Ruches of taffeta head the decoration and edge all the points.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

An elderly lady living at Fordham Heights, a part of New York City, and who was known to be a warm advocate of Ripans Tabules for any case of liver trouble or indigestion, said to a reporter who visited her for the purpose of learning the particulars of her case: "I had always employed a physician and did so on the last occasion I had for one, but at that time obtained no beneficial results. I had never had any faith in patent medicines, but having seen Ripans Tabules recommended very highly in the New York Herald, I concluded to give them a trial, and I found they were just what my case demanded. I have never employed a physician since, and that means a saving of $2 a call. A dollar's worth of Ripans Tabules lasts me a month, and I would not be without them now if it were my last dollar." At the time of this interview there were present two daughters who specially objected to their mother giving a testimonial which should parade her name in the newspapers, but to this the elder lady argued: "There may be other cases just like mine, and I am sure I take great pleasure in recommending the Tabules to any one affected as I was. If the telling about my case in the papers enables some other person similarly affected to be as greatly benefited as I have been, I see no objection." And the daughters, familiar with her case and knowing how earnestly she felt about the benefit she had received from Ripans Tabules, decided that their mother was quite right.

WANTED—A case of bad health that RIPANS will not benefit. They banish pain and prolong life. One gives relief. Note the word RIPANS on the package and accept no substitute. RIPANS, 10 for 5 cents, may be had at any drug store. Ten samples and one thousand testimonials will be mailed to any address for 5 cents, forwarded to the Ripans Chemical Co., No. 10 Spruce St., New York.

Sec. 11. Every keeper of a junk shop who shall violate or neglect or refuse to comply with any of the provisions of the last two preceding sections of this ordinance shall for every offense forfeit and pay the sum of Twenty Dollars.

Sec. 12. STARVING TO DEATH.

Direful Results of the Famine Now Prevailing in India.

Millions of Men, Women and Children Are Dying by Inches in City and Country—Disaster Caused by Drought.

[Special Correspondence.]

ABOVE the noise of everyday events, the clamor of political intriguers, the din of more or less disreputable warfare, the cry of starving India, increasing in volume from day to day, so demands for itself a hearing that it can no longer be disregarded. How much longer the lives of white men in the outlying districts will be safe, while the natives are experiencing death in its most ghastly forms, is a question which is beginning to agitate that portion of the public mind which is personally interested in the fate of that unhappy country. White men are already regarded by the ignorant classes as responsible for a great amount of the suffering; but, while there may be grounds for complaint, it is certain that no nation would have accomplished more than has England while laboring at such a disadvantage. Of course, mistakes have been made. In the distant past, conditions, to a certain extent, righted themselves. During years of drought, followed by famine, the population was so decimated that in the succeeding years of plenty there was an abundance for all. But, as it was noted that the drought usually affected but one or two provinces at a time, the government caused the poorer people to be moved around from place to place, thus preserving life, until, at present, in a territory but little over half as large as the United States, there is a population of 300,000,000 of people. During the last two years the drought has become general and now 130,000,000 are suffering from the famine which, with slow insistence, seems likely to desolate the entire country. In its wake follow bubonic plague, cholera and smallpox. The germs of all these diseases find the best of soil for development in the feverish, impoverished bodies of the starving people. And now the water supply has become so short that, with the limited means of transportation, it is difficult to send a sufficient supply into the localities where it is entirely exhausted to enable each inhabitant to receive even a few drops daily.

A STARVING HINDOO FAMILY IN RAJPUTANA.

Early in the history of the famine masses of the people traded all their worldly possessions for bread. Next, many of them sold their girls to the Mohammedans, receiving in return, in some instances, but 35 cents. The boys are not marketable and are turned adrift and may be seen in great, homeless groups, sometimes 50 together, literally starving to death. They eagerly lick up the sweepings of the grainhouses, and are so emaciated as to be hardly recognizable as human beings.

The natives may blame themselves largely for existing conditions. Their religion demands that they follow old customs and they refuse to adopt modern methods of farming. Again, while most animals are to them sacred and must be provided for to the best of their ability, the high class Hindoos not only fail to aid those of lower caste in any way, but are rewarded for their inhumanity by the sense of rectitude bestowed by an approving conscience. Probably the inclination to aid never suggests itself, they are so hedged in by religious regulations which, viewed in a certain light, are certainly monstrous. There are some among us who prefer the teachings of Buddha to those of Christ, but if they would for a time leave the contemplation of some of the finer points of the Hindoo religion and study the details as they affect the people more, there would certainly be a diminished number of followers in the wake of some not overly clean looking East Indians who have secured for themselves notoriety in our large cities during the last few years. While wealthy Hindoos are comfortably following the dictates of their morally famine-stricken consciences and refusing the help they could so easily render to the poor of their own land, Christian missionaries are doing all within their power to alleviate the suffering. By the aid of native preachers they gather in all the famishing children possible and care for them. The English government is doing its utmost, but the people often refuse to be placed on the relief list until too weak to recover. The viceroy recently declared that conditions are steadily growing worse. The plague is spreading alarmingly and another drought is theratened. He announces his intention to spend all the money in the treasury for the relief of the sufferers. Outside contributions have been made, but available funds are inadequate to meet demands.

A full-grown man at the relief works may only receive four cents per day. However, five cents daily will keep a Hindoo alive indefinitely, for, in his land, the supporting of life on a minimum of cheapest food has been reduced to an art. A few grains of rice, supplemented with roots and grass seed, will furnish him a fair meal. When the garrison of the British fort at the siege of Lucknow were reduced to daily rations of four ounces of corn made into gruel, some of the Hindoo auxiliaries offered to live for a week on the water in which the corn was boiled. If the whole civilized world would unite in the work of assisting people who are satisfied with so little the worst features of this famine, the details of which are too horrible to describe or read, would be alleviated.

To their abstemiousness, the English are largely indebted for the loyalty of the native soldiers. Each man knows that when his time of usefulness has expired the government guarantee of a pension sufficient to purchase a yearly suit of white cotton, and rice for his daily meals, is assurance of a sufficient provision for his old age. The religion of the country prohibits the use of animal food. As available funds of the relief committee are only sufficient to reach about 15 per cent. of the sufferers it is feared that wandering groups may resolve themselves into armies of bandits who, having disposed of their homes through want, will for years constitute a menace to the safety of the more fortunate inhabitants of India. Crowds of distressed human beings are daily streaming into the cities, and even in Bombay people without means of obtaining food starve in the streets. Famine prices prevail. Owing to financial depression mills are closed down and in many cases the wages of those still employed have been reduced. What sufficed perhaps for mere existence in prosperous times means now slow starvation covering a period of weeks or even months. Those dying in cities are buried in ditches, if in the open country they lie where they fall. Near some of the relief works men are constantly engaged in burning bodies; often large numbers of them together. It is a fearful sight, but seems the only way of protecting the living.

A STARVING PARIAH WOMAN AND FAMILY.

The suffering seems to be largely among the agricultural classes, of which 80 per cent. of the population of India is composed. Large sections of the arable lands depend entirely for their productiveness upon irrigation, the source of which is in rivers and streams which are supplied by rains. Every recorded Indian famine may be traced to failure of rainfall. A number of years ago the Indian forester announced his theory that the responsibility for droughts might be placed upon the great herds of goats (sometimes 15,000 or 20,000), always apparently starving, which attack the shoots of every young tree in the course of their depredations. Thus when old trees die off there are no young ones to take their places. Rains, which depend so largely upon the existence of forests, fall short, then famine and plague follow. The early rains come in June, are known as the southwest monsoons and originate in vapors drawn from the Indian ocean and the Arabic sea. Breaking on the Malabar coast for three months, they may be expected to flood India, the average fall of water being about 100 inches. At such times crops are abundant. But when these rains fail, as was the case last year, famine is the result. The "later" rains or northeast monsoons arrive in November and December from the Bay of Bengal. These also failed last year. Insufficient rainfall may be expected at intervals of from five to twenty-five years. Existing conditions are the worst recorded. The present drought, following so closely that of 1897, has rendered the ground so dry that there is a scarcity of water, even for drinking purposes, heretofore unknown. EDWARD JULIAN.

Industrial Conditions in Scotland. There are signs of an abatement of activity in important lines of production in Scotland, notably at shipyards and iron and steel works. In the six weeks from March 1 to April 15, 1900, orders were slack compared with the same period of last year. The accepted explanation is the high prices, due chiefly to the increased cost of materials and fuel. Whether this condition will be temporary or of long duration, no one just now ventures to predict. In most fields of employment for skilled labor, the tendency of wages is no longer upward, and some apprehension is felt by the working people. In the building trades in every large Scottish city, the masters are demanding a reduction of the scale of wages.

From a business point of view, the years 1898 and 1899 were extraordinary. I refer specially to Scotland, although the statement may well apply, in a general way, to the whole United Kingdom. They were both "record years" for the principal trades, the only prominent exception being the distilling industry. Investment companies and other financial institutions, as well as the majority of mercantile houses, wholesale and retail, enjoyed a degree of prosperity considerably above that of the average year. As a rule, both the volume of business and the margin of profit were greater than usual. The total value of ships launched in Scottish waters in 1899 was not far from $70,000,000, and the value of the output of Scottish coal was $60,000,000, in each case the increase being more than ten per cent. over 1898, a year of great achievements in production. There was an equal rate of growth in the iron and steel trade; also, in some other branches of manufacture.

The effect of this prosperous condition of the industries upon the masses of the people is a matter of interest. The professional classes and tradesmen have, on the whole, fared well. Skilled labor has had full employment, and, excepting printers and workmen in a few other trades, they have had wages from eight to ten per cent. higher than the rate which obtained in 1897. But in Edinburgh, during the past two and a half years, the average advance in rents has been 25 per cent., and for a year the prices of meat and other food have been ten per cent. above the average prices of 1897. There has also been a material increase in the cost of clothing, especially of cotton goods. Household coal, delivered to small consumers, is quite 50 per cent. higher than it was a year ago and costs not less than six dollars per ton. In a word, owing to the increased cost of living, the earning power of even the best-paid skilled labor has diminished.

A Big Boom on in Mexico. Mexico is sharing some of the prosperity which has been a feature of the commercial situation in the United States for the past three or four years. A large amount of capital which could not find profitable investment at home has been flowing into this country for investment in railroad and mining property. Much of this has gone into the northwestern portion of the republic, and while the Yaqui Indian troubles threatened to greatly retard mining developments here for a time, now that they are practically over work is being pushed at a rapid rate.

With the first announcement of a railway project being surveyed through the rich mining section of the state of Sonora American prospectors hurried across the border and into the Sierra Madre mountains in a search for mining claims. For years there have been many rich mines in this section of Mexico, but a lack of transportation facilities have prevented their development. It has never been found profitable to work silver mines unless they would run as much as 100 ounces to the ton, because of the distance it had to be hauled to the railroads. But with the new railway projects that are being built directly through this portion of Mexico, one running from Alpine, in Texas, through Chihuahua to the Gulf of California at Guaymas, and the other crossing the Rio Grande at Nogales, running from there south to Durango and thence west to Mazatlan, on the Pacific, conditions are greatly improved.

In this district silver is the principal metal found, though some rich copper and gold properties have also been discovered, running from $100 to $1,000 to the ton. Prospectors and owners are now holding their property waiting for the completion of these projected railroads.

Some new mines of unusual richness have been discovered recently, and these are either now being worked, or preparations are being made to soon begin operations. For operating these mines American machinery is being purchased extensively. One company has shipped to one of the new mines in the Yaqui country 24 light weight quartz mining machines of a new pattern, and it is said that more of them are to follow in the near future.

As soon as these projected railroads are completed this part of Mexico will witness a boom such as has never been known before.

A Beet Sugar Factory for Canada. The establishment of a $500,000 factory for the manufacture of beet root sugar in Canada will, it is said, be shortly undertaken by American capitalists, who are working with Messrs. J. E. Askwith and James Fowler, of Ottawa, in the interests of the enterprise. The factory will be located in Ontario and will be capable of handling 500 tons of beets daily. The Canadian government is to be asked to place a bounty on the production of beet sugar in Canada, and this, the promoters of the company claim, will insure the establishment in Canada of a great many other factories for making beet sugar.

AMERICAN HORSES TOO FAST.

They Have Been Barred from Racing Contests in Russia Where Native Breeds Are Entered.

The United States consul general at St. Petersburg, W. R. Halloway, reports that a few years ago American horses could start in all races in Russia, but they were so much faster than the Russian horses that they were barred from three big races in order to protect their own interest; but, as a majority of Russian horsemen now own American horses, and more are constantly being bought, there is a growing sentiment in favor of their being permitted to start in all races except those intended exclusively for Russian horses. At one time it was noted with satisfaction that American horses had been purchased for the Russian imperial studs, but recently every horse having American blood has been removed from these studs. Disinterested persons declare this to be shortsighted policy, and say the Americans do not care what nationality a horse is provided he is fast.

American horses soon become acclimated in Russia, and after the first year stand the climate as well as native animals.

No horse is barred from any race on account of his speed, but fast horses are handicapped by being required to pull more weight and starting a few yards further back. In trotting races in St. Petersburg only two horses start in a heat from designated places at opposite sides of the track at the sound of an electric bell, which prevents jockeying for position. The horses follow each other twice or three times around the track, the distance being either two or three miles. No matter how many entries there are in a single race, but two horses are permitted on the track at the same time, and the one making the best time wins the race. In Moscow the races are managed on the American plan.

Races for the purpose of testing the endurance of horses are frequent, where horses are driven from 25 to 50 miles, then finish the last two or three miles at the limit of their speed. The horse finishing in the best condition and showing the greatest speed at the close is the winner.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

A South Pacific Princess.

The ceremony of dressing is simple when one's garments number one, or at most two, and when neither soap nor water is an available commodity. Under shelter of the grass mat which has formed bed and blanket, the worn tapa yala was exchanged for a fresh one of gaudy cotton print. A loose bodice, so short as to leave a large stretch of warm, sherry-colored flesh visible above the waist, replaced the travel-stained one. A little cocoanut oil rubbed over the face and glistening shoulders, and madam's state toilet was complete. The royal princess, it is true, was possessed of all the luxuries of a dressing case, in the shape of half a ragged comb and a strip of looking glass, and with these rudimentary implements she passed half an hour arranging her curly locks.—Blackwood.

Fatal Procrastination.

"He asked me to marry him."

"And you accepted him?"

"No. Idiot that I was, I asked for time."

"And what did he say?"

"He said he'd give me a year."

"Ah! And what did you say?"

"I saw my mistake. I said two days would be plenty. But he wouldn't hear to it. He said no woman could make up her mind in such a short time. He really insisted upon my taking six months. We finally compromised on 30 days."

"And then?"

"He married that putty-faced Bimberling girl the very next week."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

About the American Derby

The Washington Park Track in Chicago Has Been the Scene of Many Historic Events

JUNE 23 the twelfth renewal of the American Derby will be contested over the mile ellipse of the Washington Park club. In point of sentiment this is the most representative equine contest in the west. By the same token the club that makes this race the chief feature of its costly stake list is the greatest racing institution in all the west and it compares most favorably with the Westchester association, the Coney Island Jockey club, the Brooklyn Jockey club or any other. If the backing of a racing venture by multi-millionaires who are bound to see clean sport prevail is any criterion, then the American Derby meeting will continue to be a stake surrounded with great interest.

The Derby—and it is a "real Derby," for the route is a mile and a half,

PRESIDENT LAWRENCE A. YOUNG.
Washington Park Club.

was never worth less than $8,000 to the winner. Once it was worth $50,000, and in cash, too, for, unlike the subscription events of the east, where the added money part is small compared to the forfeits due and generally worth the paper they are written on, the Washington Park club never asks a horse owner to race for paper.

World's fair year the great race course was packed with sweltering humanity to see Boundless take the $50,000 certified check—I had the pleasure of taking this bit of paper in my hand just after the race—the newspapers vied with one another in describing the awful jam of people. A majority of the press reports had it that 50,000 spectators saw the Cushing animal, piloted by the famous "Snapper" Garrison, race in first ahead of James R. Keene's St. Leonards, the mighty Clifford and a field of 12 other animals. It is a bit of unwritten history, but the newspapers were all "away off" on the actual attendance, because of the easy fault of misjudging the crowd. However, while I am not at liberty to make public the exact number of spectators, I may say that the throng was larger than that ever registered at any other race course in the United States.

This year the race promises to be a real, earnest and truly run contest, with the best three-year-olds of the west and east as contenders. But there is still time for some one of the present formidable animals to show form something like Lieutenant Gibson has displayed, to the deterioration of interest in the race. If the eastern owners decide to go after the "$10,000 added" of the American Derby, Gibson, Advance Guard, Missionary, Mesmerist, Yellow Tail, etc., will know that they have been to a horse race.

Horse owners delight in winning the Derby. The race is not as much of a classic as is the Epsom Derby, but such sires as War Dance, Grinstead, Joe Hooker—my namesake—Norfolk, Hyder Ali, Imp. Great Tom, Strathmore, Glenelg, Harry O'Fallon, etc., have produced Derby winners. Instituted in 1884, when Gen. Phil Sheridan was the first president, the ideas of A. S. Gage, who planned the club after the Jerome Park institution in the east, were carried into execution. The first Derby was run June 28, 1884, and Modesty, the only mare that ever came out of the race victorious, took Ed. Corrigan's "green, white sash," to the front. Since then, with the exceptions of 1895, 1896 and 1897, when fanatical opposition to the race meets resulted in the temporary abandonment of racing by the big club, the Derby has been run and won before thousands of spectators. Of course, Derby day attracts throngs of people to Chicago who know little or nothing about the animals and who care less. They are there because it is au fait to go to the Derby, just as a great part of London goes to Epsom to see (?) the blue ribband event of the English turf. Women make the occasion of the American Derby one for the exposition of the most exquisite gowns and costumes. Men with spare dollars have been spent on clothes in the latest styles are usually there in droves. It is estimated by careful men that every time the Derby is run, the people spend a million dollars in the big stores for costumes, luxuries and paraphernalia, and that this sum is greatly augmented by the sum spent in hotels, cafes and for wines. Bookmakers regard the day as their "harvest," because of the thousands who wager money simply on the looks of the starters, their various colors and on the names of the animals. Then the field goes to the post, a great deal of time is spent in scoring and false breaks, and finally, "they're off" is echoed by thousands. In two minutes and thirty-odd seconds some horse has won a fortune for his owner and the thousands of spectators, regardless of whether or not they are to cash winning tickets, are applauding victor and rider. It is the way, you know, to show appreciation of a race. And yet I think that the two minutes and five seconds of the gallant race of Morello in 1893, when that three-year-old, unfortunately not eligible for the Derby, won the Wheeler handicap at the Washington Park club, beating those speedy mares Maid Marian and Yo Tambien—the latter, Joe Hooker's greatest daughter, won this race the succeeding year—afforded turf critics more real, sensational, blood-stirring racing than have all the Derbies. It seems to be fashionable to always say that the Derby was a "grand race," and I suppose it always will be, because of the sentiment attached to it.

True, Modesty won over Koscuisko and Bob Cook, but was not the great Isaac Murphy piloting home the great daughter of War Dance? Murphy the next year had a heavy going problem and he won with Volante, the son of Grinstead, in the slowest time recorded for the event except that of 1890, when Uncle Bob, purchased by a gambler who owned a great stable, the night before the race, galloped home all tired out in 2:55¾, winner of $15,260.

In 1886, Silver Cloud, another "Lucky" Baldwin trick, repeated the performance of his stable colleague, Volante, and Isaac Murphy was again the winning jockey. The next year C. H. Todd, a son of Joe Hooker, piloted by Tony Hamilton, won the race in fast time—2:55½—making a fine finish with Miss Ford. And 1888 will always be known as Emperor of Norfolk's year. Ridden by Isaac Murphy, the great son of Norfolk never had any chance to do more than an exercise-gallop in winning. This made the third victory for "Lucky" Baldwin, the owner of the Santa Anita ranch and stable with its famous colors—"all black, red maltese cross on back." Spokane, a widely touted horse, won in 1889 without trouble, on a heavy course. Then came the "rain trick," as Uncle Bob has been called. Strathmeath, the apple of the eye of Green B. Morris, took the event in 1891, beating Poet Scout and Kingman. Carlsbad, the mud lark, son of Imp. Glenelg, got the path in 1892 and won handily from Zaldivar and Cicero. Boundless, who, with Lookout, furnished the crack western stable entry to be pitted against the Keene pair, Domino and St. Leonards, shot out a winner at the end, after a race that was run several times over during the long and heart-breaking delay at the post. Rey El Santa Anita, the last one of "Lucky" Baldwin's animals to win, took the race at the last sixteenth from the mighty Senator Grady, a horse that seemed to be hypnotized and incapable of responding when Garrison called on him as Rey El Santa Anita challenged him. In 1898 the favorite, Pink Coat, had no trouble in winning. He was trained for the Kentucky confederacy that owned him by that astute trainer, Pat Dunne, and few doubted that he was the best of the field.

STARTER RICHARD DWYER.
He Will Dispatch the Derby Field.

JOE HOOKER.

Tune Bothered the Girl.

She came down-town with the tune in her head in the morning, and it stayed in her head all day. And the worst of it was she couldn't get it out. It refused to be extracted like a refractory tooth or to be banished like a disobedient child. If she could only have been able to whistle it away she could have danced a hornpipe of joy in celebration. But she didn't know how to whistle and she wasn't quite able to hum it, and she had no piano to play it, and so it stayed in her head. And all day long it chirruped away inside of her and all day long her hands and feet, her fingers and her toes kept time, time, time, to the rhythm of the tune. She couldn't talk, she couldn't walk, she couldn't eat, she couldn't think, for the tune claimed her persistently for its service and she gave herself up in unconditional surrender. But she had her revenge when she finally found a piano, for she pounded it out at last.—Chicago Chronicle.

GOLF

It will be sometime before the record made by Samuel Townsend at the Park Golf Club course last Saturday of doing the fourth hole in two will be broken. That is the smallest number of strokes that any hole on that course has ever been made in. Wilson W. Smith, of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, made a record for that course. On one of the short holes his drive ran right up on the green and fell in the hole. Mr. Smith hunted all over the course before he thought to look in the hole.

The usual weekly competition for the president's cup will be held on the links of the Park Golf Club Saturday afternoon. The match for the green committee challenge trophy will also be played. That trophy is now held by W. de la R. Anderson and J. H. Simpson is next on the list of challengers. Simpson is a rather erratic player but, if he is at his best Saturday, he will give Anderson a lively race. Otherwise, the present holder of the trophy will have no trouble in retaining his grip on the medal for at least another week.

TENNIS

Among those who took part in the recent western tennis championship was Albert P. Simmonds, at one time a resident of Plainfield. Simmonds met defeat at the hands of one of the best of the western cracks but only after putting up a strong fight. Simmonds was at one time the best tennis player in Plainfield. He won a number of events at the old Hillside Tennis Club and played in other outside tournaments.

ON THE DIAMOND

The members of the Arion baseball team assembled at the home of Fred B. Newman last evening, for the purpose of reorganizing the club which has been inactive for some time. Harold Doiner was elected manager, Charles Lawrence Smith assistant manager and Henry A. Pierce captain. The team start their regular schedule again in two weeks. Before leaving for home, those present were invited to partake of refreshments, and a sociable hour was passed.

ATE CLAMS AT LORRAINE.

Annual Outing of the Superior Police Officers' Association Held Yesterday Afternoon.

A jolly crowd met together at Bender's Hotel in Lorraine yesterday on the occasion of the annual outing and clambake of the Superior Police Officers' Association of Union and Middlesex counties. There were nearly one hundred present. The clambake consisted of all the dishes necessary to such a feast, accompanied by plenty of liquid refreshments.

After the dinner the party enjoyed themselves in social talk for some time until Col. Collins, of Elizabeth, acting as toastmaster in behalf of Chief Tenney, of Elizabeth, president of the association, called the crowd to order and introduced Mayor Mack, of Elizabeth, as the first speaker. Mayor Mack spoke in a felicitous mood.

Mayor Rockfellow, of this city, was compelled to leave before the speechmaking began, and in his place City Collector Frank Smith made a short address as Plainfield's representative.

Then followed a number of speeches and songs, which lasted until after darkness had set in.

City Judge Runyon and George O. Stevens were among the late arrivals, and they were compelled to repond with a song. Chief Kiely came in for a large share of congratulations over his advancement in local police circles.

A LAWN FESTIVAL.

The Misses Carty, of Orchard Place, Entertained Young People in an Elaborate Manner.

Mirth, melody and merriment reigned supreme on the spacious lawn of the Misses Carty, of Orchard place, last evening, where over 100 young people assembled to have a good time and forget the great heat. The young ladies had provided for their company by having the lawn brilliantly lighted with scores of Chinese lanterns, which with the light of the moon made the scene as bright as day. A large platform had been placed on the lawn, and to the music of Professor O'Reilly's orchestra dancing was indulged in until a late hour. It was after midnight, so fast did the time go, before the dancers stopped to partake of cooling refreshments which were distributed by the young hostesses themselves. It was with many regrets that the merrymakers saw the hour for leaving come and after a farewell dance left for their respective homes.

Wheeling Trip of Several Days.

Edward J. Waring and Owen Fleming, both of Park avenue, have returned after a several days wheeling trip. They went from here to Philadelphia and thence across Jersey to Atlantic City. After leaving that city they followed the coast, stopping at most of the prominent seaside resorts. They found the roads in fair condition and had a delightful trip.

MEANS BETTER SERVICE

CHANGE MADE IN CARRYING THE MAIL TO GALLIA.

Emerson C. Howard Will do the Work, Extending His Route From Warrenville.

The post office department has made a change in the postal service for Gallia, commonly known to fame as Mt. Bethel. Heretofore, the mail from Plainfield went to New York and then came out to Millington and was carried over to its destination once a day. A good share of the mail for Gallia comes from Plainfield and vicinity and the round-about way that the mail took made unnecessary delay. An inspector visited this city a few weeks ago and recommended to the department that the mail carrier to Warrenville be engaged to go two miles further and carry the Gallia mail as well.

Emerson C. Howard, who holds the contract for the transportation of the mail from this city to Warrenville, has just been notified by the Second Assistant Postmaster-General that he is to go to Gallia as well and receive $50 additional per annum.

Hereafter the mail for Warrenville and Gallia will close at the Plainfield postoffice at 9 o'clock every morning instead of 9:30 o'clock as heretofore. The mail will arrive at Gallia at 11:05 o'clock. The mail will leave Gallia every morning at 11:15 o'clock and reach Plainfield at 1:20 o'clock. The mail from Warrenville used to arrive here at noon. Howard will carry passengers on his stages in addition to the mail.

KILLED HIS AUNT.

Boy Thought Gun Unloaded—Charge Entered Woman's Head.

Mrs. Charles Ketch, twenty-two years old, of Morris Plains, was accidentally shot and killed Monday night by her nephew, George Ketch, twelve years old. She was sitting on the stoop of her house, rocking her baby, when the boy playfully pointed a shotgun at her.

George Ketch, brother of Mrs. Ketch's husband and father of the boy, had been hunting, and on his return put the shotgun in the grape arbor, where it was found by the boy.

Just as the boy pointed the gun at Mrs. Ketch it was discharged and the contents struck her in the head. The whole top of her head was blown off. Mrs. Ketch died suddenly.

Young Ketch says he thought the gun was not loaded and pulled the trigger in fun. He was particularly fond of his aunt, and he is completely overcome by the result of his act.

Trouble About Chairs.

Trouble over chairs brought Emil Scheidecker before Justice Nash yesterday to defend an action in tort made against him by John Crawley. The chairs were given to the defendant to repair, according to his own statement, last fall, but they have not been returned yet. Crawley offered to pay the amount agreed upon between them for the repairs, but Scheidecker refused to give them up, saying he had a lien upon them. Crawley sued for the value of the goods before Judge Nash, who, after hearing the evidence, rendered a decision in favor of the plaintiff for $8 and costs. Law student V. W. Nash, Jr., appeared for Crawley, and William Sweeney for Scheidecker.

Robert E. Speer to Speak.

Plainfielders will be glad to know that Robert E. Speer, an old-time favorite, will speak at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon, August 19th. Beside Mr. Speer the following speakers have been secured for the next few weeks: July 22d, F. H. Martin; July 29th, Rev. James McLeod, D. D., of Scranton, Pa.; August 5th, Harry Gee; August 12th, Rev. Francis Ireland, the converted actor; August 26th, A. F. Irvine, of New Haven; September 2d, Thomas Houston, the blind evangelist.

The Black Smoke to Stop.

In reply to numerous protests of of property-owners and residents affected by the black smoke from the chimney of the Plainfield Electric Station, The Daily Press is able to state that an officer of the company says that the nuisance will not last long as the company could not get the hard coal usually used, but were compelled to take a shipment of the soft kind now being used, and after it is consumed the hard coal will be used as formerly.

At the Fresh Air Camp.

The meeting of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp last evening was in charge of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Crescent Avenue church, led by J. Stanley Voorhees, who took for his subject, "What Shall I Do to Inherit Eternal Life," Luke 18:18. The meeting was a very interesting one, and it is encouraging to see this good work which is being done at the camp for the poor mothers and children of the east side of New York.

Important to Union Men.

The members of all the local trade unions are earnestly requested to be present at a meeting to be held in Exempt Firemen's Hall this evening at 8 o'clock sharp.

INVASION IN THE NORTH

(Special to The Daily Press.)

London, July 18—If the report from St. Petersburg to the effect that Chinese troops and Boxers seized a Russian transport, laden with munitions, near Aigun, on the Armur River, about eighteen miles within the Siberian frontier, killing nearly all the Rusian escort, and later bombarded Blagovchensk, the capital of the Amur Government, finally burning the place, proves to be true, it will, of course, complicate the situation from the international point of view. Such an attack, if it has been made, constitutes in itself a declaration of war, rendering formal notification needless.

The London View Not Hopeful.

London, July 18.—The latest Chinese assurances of the safety of the European legations at Pekin are not credited here. On the contrary it is believed that they have been dictated by a desire to save the native city of Tientsin.

Don't Want to Elect a Veteran.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 18—The City Council Monday night failed to elect a police Judge to succeed the late Morris Hetfield, and the matter has gone over until August 1st. The city attorney meanwhile will look up the Veteran act to see if, by electing Ira J. Hall, who is one of the leading Democratic candidates for the place, he will be able to hold on to the position permanently. Mr. Hall is an old newspaper man, and belongs to the Grand Army. The Democratic majority in the City Council, however, does not wish to elect any Justice to preside over the police court who cannot be removed when his term of office expires. Were it not for this obstacle Mr. Hall would have no trouble in obtaining the position. There are six aspirants for the job.

John May Dead.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 18.—John May, postmaster at Lorraine, died suddenly Sunday night at his home from a stroke of paralysis. He was seventy years old, and formerly resided at Elizabethport, where he was extensively engaged in the milk business. When the town of Lorraine was founded he purchased a tract of land there, to which he removed, and opened a general store. He afterward received the appointment of postmaster, which office he has held several years. He was a widower, and leaves a son and married daughter. Mr. May was a veran of the Civil War, and a member of Judson Kilpatrick Post, in Elizabeth.

PLANS FOR BETTER SEWAGE DISPOSAL.

The Beds May be Treated Artificially and a "Settling Tank" Constructed.

WOULD DO GOOD WORK THEN

NOT THOUGHT THAT TIDEWATER DISPOSAL IS POSSIBLE.

Mayor Rockfellow Has Been Investigating the Matter — Proposed Improvements Will Cost About $10,000.

Although the sewage disposal beds of this city are working fairly well at this time it is looked upon as an assured fact that in the not far distant future extensive and expensive changes will have to be made at the beds in order to handle the sewage in a successful and sanitary manner.

Four years of operation of the beds has pretty fully demonstrated the faults of the present arrangements, the first and foremost of which is the fact that the formation of the grounds on which the beds are located is not adapted naturally to the work to which it is put in the filtration of the sewage. Without proper filtration of the sewage the beds have given rise to to an odor that has caused the great outcry against the system from those whose property is located in the vicinity of the sewage farm. Numerous methods have been resorted to obviate this trouble, but while the disagreeable condition has been relieved it has never been entirely remedied.

This has led many to believe that it is only a matter of time when the beds would have to be abandoned and the city's sewage carried to tidewater by a trunk sewer, entailing a cost of several hundred thousand dollars to the city. This view of the situation has been looked at in a cursory manner by the city officials, and from all the information that can be gathered it is thought that the scheme will never be carried out.

Mayor Rockfellow has been investigating the subject for some time and he is of the opinion that instead of abandoning the disposal beds it will be necessary to apply artificial methods to fit them better for the work they are supposed to do, and to further supplement the present system with a "settling tank." The beds, it is claimed, will have to be covered with coarse sand and gravel especially adapted for filtration purposes, the present formation of beds being too fine for the work that is required.

This new material would have to be carted from some section where the earth is of the required coarseness and then spread over the present beds. The treatment, of course, would have to be repeated at certain periods. The original treatment would be quite costly.

The "settling tank" would be made by excavating a deep hole in the earth in the bottom of which would be placed several hundred cart loads of sand and gravel especially adapted for filtration purposes. It would then be arranged to have the sewage flow directly from the mains into the "settling tank" where it would go through the first process of filtering process and then run on the beds where it would be finally disposed of. The "settling tank," it is thought, would do its work so well that by the time the sewage reached the beds its odious parts would be entirely disposed of.

The construction of a "settling tank" and the treatment of the beds would cost, it is estimated, at least $10,000.

Mayor Rockfellow has visited several places were "settling tanks are in operation, and they give good satisfaction.

Changed Valuations.

The Springfield Township Committee has revised the tax duplicate of Assessor Abner P. Stiles. About a dozen property valuations have been changed, half raised and half lowered. The committee has also issued a warrant for the collection of the unpaid real estate taxes of 1899, amounting to $300. Collector Leber was instructed to execute it.

WEDDED IN A QUIET WAY

OLMSTED-SMITH NUPTIALS CELEBRATED AT MR. SCHENCK'S.

Recent Loss of Parents to Both Bride and Groom Made the Affair a Modest One.

A very pretty, but quiet wedding took place last evening when Miss Grace Cataline Smith, daughter of the late Theophilus Smith, of 1266 Park avenue, and William Hamilton Olmsted, of 32 Bank place, were married by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church. The happy affair took place at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Pastor Schenck, and was witnessed by only a few relatives and intimate friends. The wedding was a quiet one from the fact that during the past few months Mr. Olmsted lost his mother and the bride lost her father.

The bride was gowned in white silk lace, trimmed with white satin ribbons. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Rowland A. Smith, and the groom was attended by Rowland A. Smith, both of whom reside on Park avenue. The other witnesses present at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Varian, of East Ninth street, intimate friends of the contracting parties.

The ceremony was that of the Reformed church. It was performed with two rings, one for the bride and one for the groom. Following the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Olmsted went at once to their newly furnished home at 215 East Fifth street, which the groom had prepared for them. They will commence housekeeping right away under most favorable circumstances.

Mrs. Olmsted is a very popular young woman among a large circle of acquaintances, and both she and her husband are members and active workers at Trinity Reformed church, where they are engaged in the various departments of the work. Mr. Olmsted is a valued employe of Vail & Gardiner, the East Front street grocers, and is also very popular. The many friends of both the bride and groom will wish them a life full of success and happiness as they commence life together. Considering that no invitations were issued for the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Olmsted were handsomely remembered by many of their friends and relatives who presented them with useful and pretty gifts.

TO BUILD NEW BRIDGE.

Somerset Freeholders Decide That There is Need of New Structure on Hamilton Street, Bound Brook.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 19.—The Somerset Board of Freeholders met at the Hamilton street bridge, Bound Brook, yesterday, and decided to build a new bridge at that point. The bridge will be a steel girder, with brick arches, concrete and macadam top, and two cement sidewalks. The following committee was appointed to look after it: Messrs. Lutkins, VanCleef, Codington, Mobus and Director Logan.

The Board then viewed the iron bridge across the river and adjourned to meet at Somerville this morning at 10:30 o'clock, for the purpose of viewing the proposed stone road between Somerville and Far Hills.

BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN KILLED.

Nothing Heard From Rev. Mr. Gamewell and His Wife in China.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

East Orange, July 19—Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Tuttle, of this city, have received no word from Mrs. Tuttle's brother, Rev. Francis B. Gamewell, who has been a missionary in China for nineteen years. They have given up hope of their safety. Mrs. Tuttle received a letter from her brother recently in which he said that he and his wife were expecting to sail from Shanghai June 23d in the steamer Coptic. The Coptic reached SanFrancisco Monday, but as no word was received by the Tuttles they are of the opinion that Mr. and Mrs. Gamewell have met the fate of the other foreigners in Pekin.

Mr. Gamewell was married after being in China a year to Miss Mary Porter, who was also a missionary. Mrs. Gamewell was one of the best-known woman missionaries in China. Mr. Gamewell, who was a son of John N. Gamewell, the inventor of the fire alarm telegraph system which bears his name, was forty-three years old.

FIXING WATCHUNG AVE.

GRADE UNDER RAILROAD BRIDGE TO BE LOWERED SIX INCHES.

Trolley Tracks are Being Dropped—Grading of 8 Feet will Follow—Work Started Yesterday.

The work of lowering the grade of the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company on Watchung avenue under the railroad bridge was started yesterday. The work has to be done so as not to interfere with the traffic and is consequently more difficult to accomplish than it otherwise would be. It is planned to reduce the grade of the street, but at present the gang of men are working at the tracks cutting the earth away from under the ties and allowing the tracks to settle. As soon as the tracks are lowered to the desired grade work will be started on the whole street. This will necessitate the temporary closing of Watchung avenue between North avenue and East Fourth street.

The storm sewer has been lengthened according to the plans of the street commissioner and the two new drains put in position. While the street railway company is bearing all the expense of the other change to the grade, the work is being done under the supervision of Street Commissioner Gavett who will see that the city's interests are looked after.

HELD UP BY TRAMPS.

Beer Wagon Stopped on North Avenue Near Cranford Last Evening and Robbed.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Cranford, July 19.—A daring holdup was made on North avenue at the Cranford river bridge last evening. A beer wagon from Elizabeth was returning from its rounds when a crowd of men, evidently tramps, stepped out in the road and called to the driver to halt. They surrounded the wagon and compelled the driver to hand over all the beer bottles remaining in the wagon. The holdup occurred right along the trolley line and a car passed by while the tramps were receiving their plunder. They promised instant injury for the driver if he called for help and as the car passed by at a lively speed he was compelled to obey.

GETTING READY.

As Soon as Plans are Finished Work will be Pushed on Borough School Improvements.

The Borough Board of Education is steadily working on the plans for installing a suitable heating and ventilating system in the Somerset street school. It is believed that in a week's time plans will be in such shape that the work can be started. The Board, on account of a delay in securing the necessary appropriation, is late in getting the work underway, but most of the work will be completed by early fall. It is the purpose to arrange the upper part of the building first so that the last of the work will be confined to the cellar, where it will not interfere with the progress of school.

The building committee is engaged in preparing contracts and the mattter will be reported to the Board before the work is started, so that everything may be done legally and in order. It is hoped that the proposed improvements will be completed as early in September as possible so that there may be no interference at the school.

Effort Being Made to Get McKinley, Roosevelt and Foraker.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, July 19—The Common Council at Monday night's meeting adopted a resolution inviting President McKinley, Governor Roosevelt, Senator Hanna and Senator Foraker to visit Asbury Park at a time to be fixed by the President to attend a reception in their honor.

Frederick S. Gibbs, who is spending the summer here, is the originator of the scheme, and he assured the Councilmen that he thought President McKinley and Governor Roosevelt could be induced to visit Asbury Park next month.

RURAL DISTRICT FALLS BEHND.

Warren and Hunterdon Counties May Each Lose Assemblyman.

Census returns from Warren county, New Jersey, are not flattering, so far as the rural districts are concerned.

The towns have done well, but the country districts show a falling off in population, and the probabilities are that both Warren and Hunterdon counties will loose a member of the Assembly when the final figures are made up.

The village of Hope, Warren county, has a population of 188, and the township 1,134. In 1880 the township's population was over 1,500.

HARMONY MADE BY WITHDRAWAL OF W. S. ANGLEMAN'S NAME.

Member-elect Must Take Oath of Office Within Ten Days—City to Furnish Clear Titles to Purchasers Under Martin Act.

The special meeting of the Common Council held last evening was brief as there was not much business to transact. City Clerk MacMurray and Councilman Mellick were away. George B. Wean acted as clerk. On the motion offered by Mr. VanHerwerden the regular order of business was suspended and the principal object for which the session was called was taken up—that of electing a Councilman to fill the position vacated by Frank H. Smith, the present City Collector of Taxes.

Mr. Craig who, a week previous, nominated W. S. Angleman for the position, withdrew the latter's name and substituted that of Frank B. Randolph, and on a motion he was elected, the secretary casting the ballot for him. The above action was in accordance with the plan as stated in yesterday's Press. President Dumont instructed the Clerk to notify Mr. Randolph that he had been elected and must appear before the Mayor or City Judge within ten days to be sworn into office.

There was one other matter that claimed the attention of the members, and that was a communication from Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh regarding the searching of titles and deeds under the enforcement of the Martin Act. He stated that purchasers of this property are entitled to a clear title and he had arranged with the Security Title Guarantee and Abstract Company, of Elizabeth, to do this work. There will be no charge to the city for inquiries made outside of the records. This work he deemed necessary, and in cases where the city purchases property and the same is redeemed, the person buying it pays the charges for the search. Mr. Marsh recommended that all bills against the city for this work be approved by the Mayor and himself and then by the Common Council, the same as other bills are passed, the same to be charged to the Martin Act fund. The recommendations were adopted and will be followed out as suggested by Mr. Marsh.

This concluded the business and the Council adjourned.

ANOTHER HORSE THIEF?

Accused of the Offense and Held to Wait the Action of the Somerset Grand Jury.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 19.—Detective George Totten brought to the Somerville jail Tuesday afternoon William Conover, who is charged with stealing a horse, harness and wagon from Richard L. Carter, of Belle Mead, March 17th. Officers have been looking for the man for some time and he was finally located working on a farm between Flemington and Lambertville. Conover was committed by Squire Sutphen to await the action of the Grand Jury. He was accompanied to jail by his son, who is about fifteen years old.

Bad Fall From a Bicycle.

The chain on a wheel belonging to Miss Grace Berg, of East Fifth street, slipped off as she was riding down Park avenue last evening. Catching in the rear wheel it threw her forward on the hard macadam. The shock was sufficient to render her unconscious. She was picked up by George Frazee and carried to Armstrong's drug store. Her father, Dr. Berg, was hastily summond, and had just arrived when the young lady regained her senses. An examination showed no broken bones but a number of cuts and bad bruises, mostly on the face.

Refuse to Work with Non-Union Man.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, July 19.—Twenty-five press feeders of the Mershon book concern refused to work with a non-union feeder Tuesday afternoon, and walked out of the shop. Three of the old feeders were discharged Tuesday morning because they took a day off Monday. The twenty-five who left the shop were in sympathy with the discharged men, but did not quit work until the non-union feeder was put to work.

UNION MEN FEDERATED.

JOHN MORAN CHOSEN PRESIDENT OF NEW ORGANIZATION.

Various Trades are Represented in the Organization Which Will Advance Union Workers.

There was a very important meeting in Exempt Firemen's Hall last night, when the committees from the various building trades in the city assembled to effect a union organization of all the trades. The trades represented included plumbers, tinners, carpenters and painters. All were enthusiastic over the organization. The object is to combine to further the interests of each trade and to see that each one receives just and fair treatment, and to protect the Union men against the non-union. During the evening the following officers were chosen:

President, John Moran, of Plumbers' Union; vice-president, Morgan Turton, of Tinners' Union; recording secretary, George Whitlock, of Carpenters' Union; financial secretary, Charles Conover, of Painters' Union; treasurer, George W. Clark, of Tinners' Union; sergeant-at-arms, Edward Cranston, of Painters' Union.

There was considerable discussion at the meeting as to how the interests of the trades can be advanced and protected and plans will be formulated with that end in view. The meeting adjourned to meet Thursday evening, August 2d, at Red Men's Hall.

THE WIFE EXPLAINS.

Mrs. Scheuerlein Says That She Has Been Maligned and Misrepresented Over Domestic Troubles.

Believing herself to be much abused and maligned, Mrs. Joseph Scheuerlein, of Somerset place, called at The Daily Press office this morning to explain her side of the trouble with her husband, which resulted in her being summoned before Mayor Smalley on the allegation of having caused a disturbance at the place of business where her husband is employed.

Mrs. Scheuerlein declared that her husband's conduct towards her had been exasperating. She said that when she went to her husband's place of employment on Somerset street she had no intention of acting the way she did, but that when her character was attacked, as she alleges, her temper and indignation got the best of her. Mrs. Scheuerlein says that she has tried to get along with her husband, but she found it impossible.

GARRETSON NOW A JUSTICE.

Sworn in Yesterday by Chief Justice Magie—Resigns From All Corporations.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 19—Abram Q. Garretson, who was appointed a Justice of the New Jersey Supreme Court to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Lippincott received his commission in Jersey City yesterday, and then came to Elizabeth, where he was sworn in before Chief Justice Magie.

Justice Garretson has been largely interested in banking and trolley companies, but before going on the bench yesterday he resigned all his offices and cut loose from the various corporations in which he was interested.

He resigned the presidency of the New Jersey Title Guarantee and Trust Company of Jersey City. The directors elected George F. Perkins as the new president. President E. F. C. Young, of the North Jersey Street Railway Company, was elected vice-president.

Justice Garretson also retired yesterday as director of the Jersey City and Bergen Street Railway Company and of the Third National Bank.

It is probable that Justice Garretson will be assigned to the circuit comprising Monmouth and Middlesex counties. Justice Gilbert Collins, who has presided over that circuit, has been assigned to the Hudson County circuit in Jersey City.

Speedway for Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 19—This city is to have a fine speedway shortly through the most fashionable portion of the place. North Broad street, on which dwell Chancellor Magie, Governor Voorhees, Congressman Fowler and Frank Bergen, is to be paved from the Pennsylvania Railroad to Evergreen Cemetery with telford, and the job when done will make this picturesque looking street the handsomest thoroughfare in Union county. The City Council has decided on the work being done.

Juniors' Field Day.

One of the events of the summer is the annual field day for the New Jersey Jr. O. U. A. M., which takes place this year August 16th. Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will conduct an excursion, as usual.

REPUBLICANS ORGANIZE

CLUB TO BE STARTED BY G. O. P. IN THE BOROUGH.

Young Men Started the Movement, But the Older Ones are Ready to Join In.

The first steps towards a Republican campaign organization in the borough were taken last evening when a preliminary meeting was held in Spencer's Hall, Somerset street. The movement did not eminate from the regular Republican county organization but from an independent source. One of the first acts of the promoters was, however, to declare it free from any factional feeling.

A hundred invitations were sent out for the meeting of last evening and some twenty-five young men of the borough responded. The meeting was called to order by Robert M. Clark and Horace J. Martin was made chairman and Robert M. Clark secretary. A committee on permanent organization, composed of Isaac P. Runyon, Firman Long and Robert M. Clark, was appointed. The committee will canvass the borough for members for the new organization.

It had first been planned to organize a Young Men's Republican Club but there were many of the older set, it was stated, who wanted to join so it was decided to call it the North Plainfield Republican Club. A resolution was passed declaring that it should be a clean organization not affiliating with any one faction or entering in any way any factional fights that might exist. Its sole effect was stated to be to promote Republicanism.

The club then adjourned to meet again next Wednesday evening in the same place when there will be a musical programme and speeches by George Bruce, of this city, and Fred Pope, of Somerville.

It is stated by one of the prominent members of this organization that the old U. S. Grant Club, the old Republican campaign organization in the borough, was willing to join with the new club and bring its 150 members in the ranks of the N. P. R. C. The new club will hold mass meetings and provide a little campaign enthusiasm.

CUPID'S WORK JUST KNOWN

Young Couple's Marriage in March Last Has Just Been Announced.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Bertha Northup Jenkins, of Elmhurst, Pa., to Frank MacDonald, of Watchung avenue, this city. The ceremony took place in New York March 18th, and has been kept a secret until now. Miss Jenkins is a niece of Dr. O. L. Jenkins, of East Front street, and for four years made her home with him attending the Plainfield High School. She graduated from the High School in June, 1899, and returned to her home.

She met young MacDonald at the sociables of the First M. E. church, which they both attended, and a friendship soon sprang up. MacDonald was very attentive, but the match was opposed on account of the youthfulness of the couple. Miss Jenkins visited here last March and the couple went to New York, ostensibly to see "Ben Hur," but in reality to be quietly wedded.

MacDonald was formerly a clerk in the City National Bank, but has recently accepted a position with the Prudential Insurance Company. His wife will remain at her home in Elmhurst until August when she will come to this city and make her home with Mr. MacDonald's sister on Watchung avenue.

AT SOUTH BEACH.

Colored People Went to Elizabethport by Trolley. Taking a Steamer There.

The members of Calvary Baptist church, including members from most of the other colored churches in the city, left early by trolley this morning for Elizabethport, where they boarded a steamer for South Beach. They will spend the day at this popular resort and enjoy themselves. Spencer Conway, deacon of Calvary Baptist church, is master of ceremonies, and he succeeded in making the start without any accident. Six cars were required to convey the colored people to Elizabethport and everyone was in a happy frame of mind when they left Plainfield.

Cranford Justice Resigns.

Justice of the Peace Louis L. Coudert, of Cranford, has resigned the office, and a petition is being circulated, to be presented to the Town Committee, asking the appointment of ex-Judge F. E. C. Winckler to fill the vacancy until the spring election.

ANTIETAM COMMAND NOW FULL FLEDGED.

Branch of Union Veterans' Union Instituted in This City Last Night.

COL. PERRY IS IN CHARGE.

ORGANIZATION WILL TRY TO EXERCISE INFLUENCE IN POLITICS.

Col. Patrick H. O'Neil, of Jersey City, Acted as Mustering Officer—Pension Affairs to Receive Special Attention.

Amid the vigorous playing of fans and the continual passing of ice water, the newly organized Antietam Command was installed in the Union Veterans' Union last evening at G. A. R. Hall. The installation proceedings were performed by Colonel Patrick H. O'Neil, mustering officer, of Jersey City, assisted by Major-General Stewart, Department Commander, of Newark, and the following staff: Colonel Charles K. Garrison, assistant quartermaster general; Colonel Robert Muir, chief of the staff for New York; Colonel Peter Kuntz, chief of the staff for New Jersey; Colonel Henry E. Smith, acting adjutant general and the following aids: Lieutenant Colonels M. Flood, Charles B. Wales and M. Brennan. There was also a large delegation present from Cushing Command, of Jersey City.

The visitors were met at the North Avenue station by the new command, and after a short parade about town with the Independent Fife and Drum Corps accompaniment and cannon salutes, they were conducted to the hall. Colonel O'Neil immediately took charge and after the secret business of the evening had been transacted, the Department Commander and staff were admitted and the proceedings begun. The recently elected officers of the command were called out and the oath of office was administered by Colonel O'Neil, after which the men were assigned to their various places.

Colonel Perry was then presented with the charter and rituals of the command with an appropriate speech by Colonel O'Neil, after which everyone was made acquainted with the password of the order.

This completed the installation and the new command and their visitors adjourned to the dining hall below, where an elegant repast had been prepared by the Woman's Relief Corps, No. 10, Auxiliary to Winfield Scott Post, who saw to it that everyone was well provided for and that no one went away hungry. At the conclusion of the spread, the men returned to the upper hall and a social hour followed. Speeches were given by Colonel Carpenter, Major General H. Stewart and Mr. Flood. The time passed swiftly and at 11 o'clock the visitors fell in line and were escorted to the station, where they took the 11:28 train for their respective homes.

The following are the officers of Antietam Command who were installed: Colonel, Albert G. Perry; lieutenant-colonel, Charles H. Stephens; major, William C. Drake; quartermaster, John R. Naylor; captain, William Brown; first lieutenant, Alexander Seargeant; second lieutenant, John Wagner; adjutant, L. B. Titsworth; picket, John R. Vail; sentinel, Edward Devine; chaplain, John Goodwin.

The purpose of this organization, which originated in Washington, is to bring the strength of the battlemen of the war of the rebellion and their sons and grandsons to bear politically for the obtaining of a full measure of justice in the procuring of pensions for those who are entitled to them under the law.

FELL FROM HAY MOW.

Was Several Days Before Col. Holly Realized His Injuries.

Col. John I. Holly, who lives near Avon Park, is able to attend to business once more after being kept at home as the result of a severe accident a few days ago.

Col. Holly was in the hay mow in the barn on his farm mowing hay when he accidentally slipped and fell to the barn floor. He thought little of the accident, and a true soldier spirit was shown by the plucky Colonel refusing for several days to call a physician. He was finally obliged to seek the aid of a physician who, after an examination, discovered that two ribs were fractured. The proper treatment was given and Col. Holly is again able to be about.

Change of Officials In Elmira Reformatory.

RESIGNATIONS ASKED AND RECEIVED.

Superintendent Brockway, Shorn of All Power by State Board, Will Probably Resign—New Keepers From Buffalo Institution.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 19.—The resignations of the following employees of the New York State reformatory here were asked for and received yesterday: Samuel D. Sample, principal keeper; Hugh B. Brockway, transfer officer; J. J. Finnell, lieutenant colonel; Thomas McInerney, major and keeper; Thomas Maroney, major and keeper; P. O. Rickey, captain of the night watch; J. B. Collins, guard. The places thus vacated were filled with men brought from the Erie County penitentiary and were selected by Patrick J. McDonnell, the new assistant superintendent appointed Tuesday. Four of the new men came with Mr. McDonnell, which is evidence that the managers had their plans formed before the meeting of Tuesday.

Hugh B. Brockway, the deposed transfer officer, is a brother to the superintendent and has been connected with the institution a great many years.

It was rumored that Superintendent Brockway's resignation had been placed in the hands of the board of managers, but this is emphatically denied by the managers and Mr. Brockway. However, it is strongly intimated that he will take such action in the near future, as he would not desire to remain in the reformatory practically shorn of all his power, as is practically the status of affairs at the present time.

The keepers transferred here from Buffalo are Cloys N. Hurd, Lawrence F. Jameson, Daniel Regan, Frederick Smith, Matthew G. Green, Ralph K. Burdick. They will be assigned positions today.

It was thought that Colonel Masten, the military director, would have to go, but the managers decided yesterday to keep him, and they wired him at the Thousand Islands, where, with his wife, he was spending his vacation, to return to the institution at once and resume his duties.

Former Principal Keeper Sample takes his retirement good naturedly and says he does not think he will starve this winter, as he has saved $16,000 during the ten years he has been connected with the reformatory.

Christian Endeavor Convention.

LONDON, July 19.—The afternoon meeting of the Christian Endeavorers was devoted to national rallies, which were characterized by intense enthusiasm. The immense crowds in attendance made the grounds almost impassable, and a water famine added to the intense heat of the day caused many women to faint. Mr. Clark of Massachusetts, Mrs. Clark and Bishop Walters were the principal speakers. After the state calls, to which the leaders of a score of delegations responded, there was a five minute devotional service, conducted by Floyd Tompkins of Philadelphia. The entire audience then joined in singing "America." Meantime a number of overflow meetings were held out of doors. Sheffield was selected as the meeting place of the convention in 1901 and Manchester in 1902.

Blue and Gray Reunion.

ATLANTA, July 19.—The vanguard of veterans who wore the blue and the gray in the battles around Atlanta during the civil war have arrived in the city. The formal exercises of the blue and gray reunion began today, when the several hundred distinguished visitors to the city were shown over the battlefields upon which 36 years ago they engaged in bloody conflict. Many distinguished guests have arrived, and more are expected. General A. P. Stewart, the oldest living general of the Confederacy, and General Johnson, past grand commander of the Grand Army of the Republic; Commander in Chief Shaw of the G. A. R. and others are here.

Reservation Intruders Leaving.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Agent Randlett of the Wichita Indian agency in Kansas telegraphed the Indian bureau that Frank B. Farwell, chief of police, had just reported that all of the intruders on the reservation were leaving peaceably and that there is no necessity for the employment of troops. Colonel Randlett reported some time ago that about 1,500 intruders were prospecting for minerals in the mountains of the reservation and that it probably would be necessary to use troops to eject them.

In Memory of Juarez.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 19.—Memorial exercises were held yesterday in the cemetery of San Ferdinando in honor of the late Liberal party president, Benito Juarez, the illustrious soldier, who led the successful struggles against the Maxmilian empire. An oration was delivered by Justice Felix Romero. President Diaz, members of his cabinet and representatives of different societies and Masonic lodges heaped the tomb with wreaths.

Fire In Locomobile Factory.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 19.—Fire in the drop forging shop of the Locomobile Company of America, manufacturers of the Stanley automobile carriage, did damage amounting to $25,000. The shop was gutted. This building was next to the large factory of the Locomobile company, where the assembling is done, but this building was saved from damage.

Republican League Clubs Adjourn.

ST. PAUL, July 19.—Isaac Miller Hamilton of Chicago was elected president of the National League of Republican Clubs. A strong platform was adopted. The selection of the next meeting place was placed in the hands of the executive committee, and at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the twelfth annual convention of the league adjourned sine die.

The Windward Sails Today.

SYDNEY, C. B., July 19.—The Peary arctic relief steamer Windward bunkered Tuesday at the International pier, returning to Sydney yesterday, where supplies have been taken on board. Mr Speary personally superintended the disposal of the larger part of the lighter stores. The Windward will probably sail for the north today.

Powers In China Differ In the Face of Grave Danger.

LONG PREPARATIONS FOR OUTBREAK.

China Seems to Have Declared War on Civilization—Three Provinces Declare For Prince Tuan and Start Armies For Peking.

LONDON, July 19.—While evidence accumulates daily that China has long been preparing a formidable military organization in anticipation of the present conflict and that the area of rebellion is continually extending, harmony among the allies, which is necessary to meet such a grave situation, is still deplorably lacking. The Russians have refused Admiral Seymour's request to hand over the restored Taku-Tien-tsin railway to the English company, and it is rumored that Germany proposes taking a serious independent step—namely, to patrol the Yang-tse Kiang with German men-of war. Such a step would be quickly resented by England.

Still more alarming news has been conveyed to The Daily Express from Tokyo to the effect that the apparent reluctance of Germany and Russia to consent to a Japanese commander for the army corps has led the Japanese government to delay the forwarding of the division already mobilized.

The Standard, in an alarmist editorial says:

"It is useless any longer to hide from ourselves the fact that China has declared war on civilization and has plunged into the conflict with rabid frenzy Unless unmistakable evidence exculpating the Peking government is promptly forthcoming the powers should treat China as a belligerent state and act accordingly."

GENERAL TUNG FUH SIANG.

A similar line of comment is taken by the other morning papers. All applaud the course of Count von Bulow, the German foreign secretary, in stopping cipher telegrams from the Chinese legation in Berlin, and all urge the other powers to follow Germany's example.

The Russian general staff denies the report that the Chinese have captured Blagovetchensk, capital of the province of Amur, and it is reported from Irkutsk that the Russians have taken Aigun.

A special dispatch from Tien-tsin distributes the number of those killed at the capture of the native city as follows: Russians, 100; Japanese, 57; British, 40; Americans, 37. The correspondent who sends this asserts that thousands of Chinese were killed and that fighting was still going on in various parts of Tien-tsin when he sent his dispatch.

With reference to the rumors that Europeans were seen working the Chinese guns at Tien-tsin The Standard learns that eight Russian military instructors forcibly detained by the Chinese, were compelled to work the guns. One escaped and reached the Russian lines with his hands bound.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express asserts that he has ascertained from an unimpeachable source that when the question of an alliance between China and Japan was under consideration last autumn the empress dowager sent a commissioner to Tokyo with secret proposals to the mikado.

"These proposals," says the correspondent, "contemplated the conclusion of a secret treaty having the object of destroying all European and American influence in both China and Japan, the wholesale massacre of foreigners and the division of the whole of eastern Asia from Burma to Siberia between China and Japan. The special commissioner took a code prepared by Li Hung Chang and Sheng for secret communications between the empress dowager and the mikado.

"The Japanese emperor utterly declined to entertain the proposals."

A special correspondent of The Daily Express at Tien-tsin contrasts the "splendid work and perfect equipment" of the Japanese with the "inadequate supplies of the British, German and American contingents, which are terribly lacking in the most obvious necessaries."

The first Boxer proclamation has made its appearance in Shanghai. It declares that Kwan, the war god, desires the blood of foreigners and threatens ten plagues if the Boxer tenets are not followed and spread.

The governors of the provinces of Hunan, Hu-pi and Ho-nan have now openly joined Prince Tuan and are marching overland with their armies to Peking.

A German relief column sent into the interior of the province of Shangtung to endeavor to rescue a party of 30 missionaries, German, American and English, has returned without having obtained any tidings of their whereabouts, and it is feared that all have been slain.

CHINESE DEFEAT AT TIEN-TSIN.

Account of Battle In Which Americans Bore a Conspicuous Part.

TIEN-TSIN, July 13, 7 p. m., via Chefu, July 16, and Shanghai, July 19.—The battle, which was begun with the attack by 7,000 of the allied forces upon the walls of the native city at 2 o'clock this afternoon, continued all day, two battalions of the Ninth infantry participating. It is reported that 215 of this command were killed or wounded, including 10 or 15 officers. Colonel E. H. Liscum was killed, and Majors Jesse M. Lee and James Reagan, Captains Charles R. Noyes, Andrew Brewster and Edwin V. Bookmiller and First Lieutenants William K. Naylor, Louis B. Lawton, Harold Hammond and Ira C. Waldron were wounded.

Among the United States marines the casualties numbered 40. Captain Austin R. Davis was killed, and Captain William B. Lemly and First Lieutenants Henry Leonard and Smedley D. Butler were wounded.

The American contingent, after lying in shallow, hastily dug trenches, full of water, facing the south wall of the city and suffering for want of water and food, besides being short of ammunition, were ordered by General Dorward to retire under cover of darkness.

The Russians were outside the east wall, while the Japanese, British and French were close to the west wall, with the Chinese trying to flank them.

The walls were sadly battered by shells. The attack will be renewed in the morning.

The total losses of the allied forces are estimated at 80.

A messenger has arrived here who left Peking July 1. The foreigners at that time were all in the British legation. Chinese troops were beginning to bombard the legations from the streets. The legations had been under rifle fire for a week previously, and in that time four foreigners had been killed and 12 wounded. The marines had unsuccessfully attempted to capture a gun on a wall commanding the legations. The foreigners were supplied with an abundance of provisions.

The Situation In Amur.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 19.—Reports have been received by the Russian general staff from the Amur district showing that the Chinese have made serious depredations there and are now concentrated on the railway line from Aigun to Saghalien. They are well supplied with artillery and have large quantities of munitions. The Russian general Gribovski, after reconnoitering the district, returned to Blagovetchensk, capital of the province of Amur, on Monday. Other official reports confirm the serious news of the stoppage of work on the Manchurian railway owing to Chinese attacks, especially at Charbin, where an attack by 400 Chinese was repulsed on July 9. Charbin is in a critical state, being cut off from the west, south and north. Russian troops have been sent from different points to protect the railway. The Chinese, however, are still working on the eastern section of the line, which gives hope that energetic measures may succeed in restoring order. In the opinion of the general staff the chief command of the allied forces at Tien-tsin will eventually devolve upon the Russian vice admiral Alexeieff in conjunction with the Japanese commander in chief.

The Tien-tsin Fight.

BERLIN, July 19.—Admiral von Bendemann, commander of the German squadron, in his account of the fighting at Tien-tsin on July 14, says: "When the citadel was captured, 62 guns fell into the hands of the allies." The German commander says also: "Regular railway communication between Taku and Tien-tsin will be opened on July 18. It was decided today that the senior officers on the station should have military control of the line until it could be handed over to the ordinary authorities. The British admiral wished it to be handed over at once. The Russians have repaired the line and now occupy it."

Many Willing to Go to China.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 19.—Orders were received from Washington yesterday for volunteers from the marine guard at the naval training station to join the battalion which is to leave Washington in a few days for China, the quota being restricted to men who already have been in the corps six months and have two years of the enlistment still to serve. The desired number of volunteers was obtained without difficulty, and many more could have been secured.

Troops and Transports For China.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—General Shafter has notified Captain Humphreys of Battery D, Third artillery, that his battery has been selected for immediate service in China or the Philippines. The government has made offers for the chartering for use in the Chinese service of the following steamships: Zealandia, Ohio, Seneca, City of Para, City of Peking, Colona, City of Sydney, City of Puebla and Australia.

Prince Li Ea Route.

BRUSSELS, July 19.—The Belgian consul at Hongkong telegraphs that Li Hung Chang passed through that city yesterday on his way to the north. Before his departure the viceroy had a long interview with the governor of Hongkong. The secretary of the legation at Shanghai telegraphs that, according to Chinese information, the foreigners in Peking have taken refuge in the palace of Prince Ching.

Idaho Republicans.

BOISE, Ida., July 19.—The Republican state convention yesterday nominated the following state ticket: For congress, John T. Morrison of Canyon; governor, D. W. Standred of Bannock; lieutenant governor, A. A. Crans of Kootenai; supreme court, E. C. Steele of Latah; secretary of state, M. Patrie of Fremont; state auditor, Harry J. Syms of Elmore; attorney general, George E. Gray of Oneida; superintendent of public instruction, Miss Jessie Reilly of Baline.

Ten Millions For Military Duty.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The adjutant general's office has issued its annual statement of the organized militia force of the United States together with the number of men available for military duty but unorganized. The grand total of organized militiamen in the several states and territories at last report was 106,339. Those unorganized but available for military duty aggregated 10,343,152.

Fire In Bangor, Pa.

EASTON, Pa., July 19.—Fire at Bangor, this county, caused a loss of $70,000, divided as follows: C. C. & F. Wise, planing mill and quantity of lumber, $50,000, insurance $5,000; S. B. Fitzgerald, planing mill, $10,000, no insurance; Peter M. Sheeler's machine shops, $6,000; Salvation Army barracks, $3,000.

BOERS SHOW FIGHT.

Transvaal Forces Driven Away After a Desperate Attack.

LONDON, July 19.—The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated Pretoria, July 17:

"Yesterday the enemy made a determined stand on the left of Pole-Carew's position and along our left flank, commanded by Hutton. The posts held by the Irish fusileers and Canadian mounted infantry, under Lieutenant Colonel Alderson, were most gallantly defended.

"The enemy made repeated attempts to assault the positions, coming in close range and calling to the fusileers to surrender. The enemy suffered severely. They had 15 killed and 50 wounded, and 4 were taken prisoners. The British casualties were 7 killed (including the Canadian Lieutenants Borden and Birch), 30 wounded and 21 missing.

"Ian Hamilton's column advanced to Waterval yesterday unopposed, and today proceeded to Haman's kraal.

"Fifteen hundred Boers, with five guns, managed to break through the cordon formed by Hunter's and Rundle's divisions between Bethlehem and Ficksburg. They were making toward Lindley, being closely followed by Paget's and Broadwood's brigades."

In a dispatch dated yesterday Lord Roberts pays a tribute to Lieutenants Borden and Birch, whom in his dispatch he reported killed. Lord Roberts says:

"They were killed while gallantly leading their men in a counter attack on the enemy's flank at a critical juncture of their assault on our position. Borden was twice before brought to my notice in dispatches for gallantry and intrepid conduct."

Transvaal Leader Arrested.

PRETORIA, July 19.—Mr. J. M. A. Wolmarans of the Transvaal executive council has been arrested at his house within the British lines near Hatherley. Bar gold worth £6,000 and a quantity of arms were found concealed in the house.

Reform In Havana University.

HAVANA, July 19.—The recent decree of Senor Varona, secretary of education, reforming the University of Havana and reducing the number of professors met with general approval as placing the university upon a practical working basis. Now, however, all the papers are protesting against the method of choosing the professors, which is that all who obtained their positions by competitive examinations are to remain, as well as those who have demonstrated undoubted ability. All others are to be compelled to resign.

Heavy Arrivals of Gold.

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 19.—The steamer Cutch has arrived here from Skaguay bringing the largest gold shipments received in Vancouver this season from the north. A large amount in drafts and $300,000 in dust was on board. A majority of the 60 passengers brought large packages of gold, some of greater weight than one could carry off the boat unaided. FEARS FOR DR CASSUM.

Missionary From Poughkeepsie May Have Been Killed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 19.—Dispatches describing the conditions in southern China have caused great alarm to the relatives and friends in this city of Rev. William H. Cassum, a missionary, who, with his wife and three children, is stationed 150 miles from Ningpo, in the country where the houses of foreigners have been burned and the missionaries horribly maltreated. Mr. Cassum's fate is entirely problematical but those who know him best fear that his disposition would make him hold his ground until it would be too late to escape.

Mr. Cassum is the missionary who attracted attention some three years ago at a national Baptist missionary conference in Pittsburg by protesting against the acceptance of contributions from John D. Rockefeller, because his money, he said, had been procured in speculation. The minister's stand created a sensation in the Baptist church, and the Baptist Missionary union did not return him to China, where he had been stationed for a number of years as one of their missionaries. After that he went back to China as an independent missionary. Before leaving here two years ago he predicted the present crisis to his relatives.

PRESIDENT ENTERTAINED.

Meets the Cabinet and Others of Prominence at the Country Club.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Secretary Root and Adjutant General Corbin entertained the president at dinner at the Country club near Washington last night. The other guests were all the members of the cabinet now in the city, Colonel Webb Hayes, Mr. William Barbee, the president's nephew, and Hon. Charles Dawes, comptroller of the currency. The affair was entirely of a social character. The president drove out with Secretary Root and returned to the city with him at half past 10 o'clock.

Such discussion of the Chinese situation as took place was informal, and it was stated by one of the members of the cabinet later in the evening that there was no change in the attitude of the administration regarding an extra session of congress from that determined upon at the cabinet meeting Tuesday. There was no fresh news from China. The president expects to return to Canton today.

Water For Troops.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The quartermaster's department has made a requisition for something over $14,000 for apparatus to supply the troops of the Chinese expedition with pure drinking water. The department already has placed orders for sterilizers and distilling plants which will furnish an aggregate of 32,500 gallons of pure water a day. The sterilizing plants will make 25,000 gallons of potable water per day. These will be used on land where foul river and suspicious well water is encountered. The distilling plants will furnish 7,400 gallons a day and can be used at need on the sea coast where salt water will be rendered fit for drinking. This is the most expensive water purifying plant the United States ever has attempted to send with an army in the field. It is thought that, with the addition of boiling water on the portable cooking ranges, this will furnish an adequate supply for the whole army.

Train Mows Down a Crowd.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 19.—As the result of an accident which occurred at the Pennsylvania railroad station in this city yesterday, when a freight train plunged into a crowd of 2,700 people trying to board an excursion train bound for Altoona to spend the day, five persons were injured, two of whom are dead, the life of a third and fourth is hanging in the balance, while the fifth is but slightly hurt. It was the occasion of the annual outing of the A. O. U. W., and a crowd of over 2,700 persons had gathered to take excursion trains for Altoona. The first section had just stopped in front of the depot and a general rush for the train was in progress when a fast freight dashed around the curve a short distance from the station. A wild scene followed in the scramble for places of safety, but before all could get out of the way the freight train was upon them.

Lake Captain Arrested.

CLEVELAND, July 19. — Captain Charles J. Holmes, the master of the schooner yacht Idler, which capsized off Avon point with all her standing canvas set on July 7, drowning five women and a baby, was arrested yesterday by a United States marshal on a charge of manslaughter. Bail was fixed at $1,000, which was furnished. At the coroner's inquest the mate of the Idler testified that he suggested to the captain that he shorten sail when the squall was approaching, but that Holmes said not to do so, as the squall would not be heavy and they would have a little excitement with the canvas up. It was the testimony of the mate which led to the arrest of Holmes.

TRIAL OF POWERS.

Culton's Testimony In Goebel Murder Case.

ASSASSINATION PLANS REVEALED.

Ex-Governor Bradley Declared That Goebel Must Not Be Killed—Taylor Favored Keeping Mountain Men at the Capital.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., July 19.—In the trial of Caleb Powers, charged with complicity in the Goebel shooting, John A. Black of Barboursville, a banker and a Republican of prominence, was the first witness. He said Powers came to him in January to advise him as to the propriety of the mountain organization which he said he was getting up.

"I asked Powers," said the witness, "what sort of a crowd he was getting up, and he said he was organizing an armed mob to go to Frankfort. I discouraged this and told him it would injure the Republican party, would be a stigma on our end of the state and ought to be abandoned. Powers, however, insisted that the mob should be formed. His idea was that it would intimidate the legislature."

Culton was then placed on the stand.

Culton said he knew all the persons indicted as accessories to the Goebel murder. Witness said he attended a conference at Frankfort in January at which Powers and others were present, and the matter of bringing mountain men to the state capital was being discussed.

Hamp Howard, Frank Cecil and other mountain men were there and were asked by Powers how many they could bring from Harlan, Belle and other counties. They promised to bring from 50 to 200 men from each of the counties represented in the meeting. Those in the meeting were to take charge of the men in their respective counties and bring them to Frankfort armed. Powers said, according to the witness, that when the men arrived at Frankfort they would give the Democratic legislators 30 minutes in which to settle the contest, "and if they did not settle it in that time they would kill every one of them."

Culton continued: "The mountain men arrived in Frankfort Jan. 25. They numbered from 1,000 to 1,200 men. Those who carried guns had them stacked in the office of the commissioner of agriculture, and each man was given a tag corresponding with the number of his gun. After holding the meeting in the statehouse yard the larger part of the crowd was sent home."

Culton said Henry Youtsey came to him and told him he had found a way Goebel could be killed and no one find out who did it. Youtsey said it could be done from the secretary of state's office and showed some steel bullets. Witness told Youtsey such a thing should not be done. Ex-Governor Bradley had told witness of hearing that Goebel was to be killed and said it must not be done. Witness saw Youtsey again, and the latter said the idea had been abandoned.

Powers, the witness alleged, distributed the money among the various captains who were to bring the mountaineers to Frankfort. He did not know whence the money came. He declared Governor Taylor furnished him (Culton) the money to bring the Jackson county crowd. The witness said he heard W. R. Johnson of Jackson county talking about killing Goebel with nitroglycerin. Witness said Governor Taylor did not want the mountain men to go home. Powers said they ought to be sent away, as they had not done what they were brought there for. Witness told Taylor what Powers said. Taylor replied that Powers was a hot headed fool, but he would wait and everything would be all right.

Witness said he went to Berry Howard and others at Taylor's instance and told them the governor wanted them to remain and not go home, as Powers wished. On the day of the Van Meter-Berry contest in the legislature, the witness said, Taylor sent orders by him to Assistant Adjutant General Dixon to have the troops in the arsenal ready to be called out at a moment's notice.

The court adjourned with Culton on the stand.

A Game of Freeze Out.

CLEVELAND, July 19.—The information comes from trustworthy sources that a well defined plan is in operation to freeze out the small manufacturers of plate and bar iron and steel who began business during the recent boom in the iron market. During the last seven weeks the plate and bar prices have dropped from $45 per ton to $25 per ton. Already a number of small mills have been compelled to quit, including one at Minerva, O., and one at Erie, Pa. The plan is to restore prices on Sept. 1.

Funeral of Senator Gear.

BURLINGTON, Ia., July 19.—Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in the First Methodist Episcopal church over the body of the late United States Senator Gear. Governor Shaw, Senators Allison and Allen, Congressman Cummings of New York and many other distinguished men were present. Congressman Hedges delivered a splendid eulogy on the dead statesman. Interment was made at Aspen Grove cemetery.

The Populist Notification.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 19.—No date has been set for the notification of W. J. Bryan by the Populists of his nomination at Sioux Falls. It is possible the notification may occur at the same time the Democrats meet Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan had no visitors of prominence yesterday and began work on his speech of acceptance.

Jamaica Volunteers Rejected.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 19.—After medical inspection nearly one-half the militia who volunteered for service in Ashanti were rejected. The physique of the West Indian militia is badly below the American and English standard for militiamen. There is much wrath over the rejection of the volunteers.

Indians Will Allow Schoolhouses.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 19.—Captain Mercer, Indian agent at Solway, Minn., wired The Times that the Blanket Indians have withdrawn their opposition to the building of a schoolhouse on their reservation and "everything is now amicably settled."

Too Good to Vote.

The following from the Saturday Evening Post may not have any effect on the cynicism of those at whom it is aimed, but it is right. It is entitled "Our Skulkers in Time of Peace:"

Already we hear from the citizen who declares that he will not go to the trouble to vote for the next President of the United States. There is no use botherir g one's self, he says. The bosses run everything and obey the behests of the trusts, and if the trusts don't win free silver will ruin the country. He is sick of the whole business, and he shows his superiority by staying out of it. He is just too good to mix in the affairs of ordinary people. It is possible that one of his ancestors gave his life that the right to vote might be established and it is quite certain that he is banking all he can in his social ambitions upon the genealogy of this decent member of his family. That he misses the great thing, of course, is due to the modern evolution which has lifted him beyond the sentiments and duties of a true man.

Of all the pusillanimous persons we have in this country, those who decry the ballot and boast of staying away from the polls are the worst. Caddish millionaires who expatriate themselves because they do not like Republican institutions have at least the courage of their convictions. The little citizens who live under these institutions, receive the benefits of them, and owe their safety and prosperity to their existence, and yet brag that they will have nothing to do with the thing on which the whole fabric of the republic is built, simply advertise their own lack of the primary principles of manhood and gratitude.

There never was a time when the ballot of this country was so well guarded as today. There never was a time when a man's vote counted for as much as it does this year. It is the proudest privilege on earth. It is the power that makes every American a sovereign. Whether it be used for the right or for the wrong it is in itself a potency incalculable. Strange as it may seem, the safety of the ballot in these modern times is largely mechanical. It is easy to vote and safe to vote, and nobody but the voter and his Maker need ever know for whom the ballot was cast. In this campaign—particularly at the climax of the century—it should be the ambition of everybody who is eligible to the franchise to cast his vote in accordance with what he believes to be for the right and for the best interests of the greatest nation on earth. By all good and sound men the skulker is least esteemed. On the battlefield he is called a coward—and there have been many battlefields in order that the right to vote might be maintained. No less important is the contest which is decided by ballots instead of bullets, and not less cowardly is the man who shirks his duty in peace than the one who hides or runs in war. In this year of all others there should be a full vote in all sections of the land. More than a million young men who could not vote in 1896 can do so next November. Let every one of them do his duty!

The announcement of the city tax rate yesterday may have been a trifle premature as it has not yet been officially fixed. While the Board of Assessors are able to figure on the total valuation and the amounts asked for by the different departments, it lies with the Common Council to officially fix the figure. It is therefore likely that there may be a slight change in the figures announced yesterday when the Council acts. Provision is always made by the Council for the cost of collecting the taxes and to provide for a certain amount of delinquents. This contingent fund will be included in the taxes and will make a slight increase over the rate, $2 46, which was announced yesterday.

"No battle of the war in South Africa nor any of the reports of the slaughter in Pekin has attracted 500 people to the newspaper bulletins in Park Row," says the New York World. "Yet Tuesday night thousands of persons stood for hours watching the bulletins from the second-class prize fight attended by 15,000 spectators in Madison Square Garden." The New York Times, by the way, reported the fight in just fourteen lines, exclusive of the head.

Uncle Sam sold about 52,000,000 special delivery stamps in 1899, and the distance travelled by the messengers who delivered the letters upon which the stamps were placed was about 2,625,000 miles.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

A Plainfield Justice has just fixed $20 as the price which a man must pay for the luxury of spitting in another man's face. It makes this particular method of expectoration so expesive that people of ordinary means will feel compelled to stick to the cuspidore and use their fists upon their enemies.—Newark News.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

When cycling first came into popular favor it was generally predicted that one of the important results of the numerous wheelmen traveling all over the country would be in the general improvement in the service at the roadside taverns which were at their best in the old post stage days. It did not prove to be a fact, however, for while a few such resorts did appear, the cheaper class of road houses sprang up every where. Now, however, that the automobiles are coming into more general use, and will undoubtedly prove popular for touring, it is said that the old style of taverns will after all be popular places. The class of people who will be able to afford the pleasures of automobile tours will prefer the better class of taverns rather than the cheaper road houses that are frequented largely by wheelmen.

The late Mercer Beasley, for thirty-three years Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, was fond of relating two experiences, hitherto unpublished, which befell him a year or so before his death. The distinguished jurist, as many Jerseymen know, had a rugged appearance that might easily have been attributed to the advantages of a bucolic life.

As he stood gazing into a Nassau street shop window in New York City one day and engaging youth greeted him with a cherry:

"Hello, stranger, what might be your business?"

"Well," answered the Chief Justice, when he had recovered from the shock of having been taken for a "come on," "I've been engaged for many years in sentencing just such fellows as you are to State prison."

"I shan't court your acquaintance any further," commented the nice young man, as he slipped into a convenient corridor and disappeared.

By virtue of the law Supreme Court Justices are permitted to ride free on any railroad in this State. Each member of the court, therefore, carries a pass which he is expected to show to conductors in lieu of a ticket. A train which the Chief Justice had boarded got under way before he discovered that he had mislaid his pass.

"Tickets, please," said the conductor, thrusting his hand toward him.

"I haven't any," was the reply. "I've mislaid my pass and I want to go to Trenton."

"The fare," observed the conductor, "will be $3.25 unless you can show authority for a free ride."

"My only authority for it then," the jurist explained, "is the fact that I happen to be the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey."

"How am I to tell that," queried the conductor; "the statutes give no clue to the identity of the Chief Justice."

"True, indeed," asserted the Trenton-bound passenger, "but," he added, and there was a merry twinkle in his eye, "they ought to do so."

Chief Justice Beasley rode to Trenton free.

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 19.—What came near being a serious fire was discovered and prevented just in time by Mrs. P. C. Smith, at whose home the blaze occurred Tuesday. Mrs. Smith had been ironing and had an oil stove nearby to heat the irons. She left the room for a short time and on coming found quite a blaze in progress. A lace curtain had blown across the stove and caught fire and communicated to some of the clothes. Without waiting for assistance she attempted to put the fire out herself, which she finally did, but not before her hands had been badly burned. Beside the curtain and clothes a large hole had been burned in the matting on the floor. Had Mrs. Smith arrived on the scene a little later, or hesitated before attempting to put the blaze out a serious conflagration would have been the result.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 19. — Scotch Plains is having nearly everything going. Now it is a strike. The gang of Italians employed by W. K. Clym, who has the contract for the grading being done about the railroad station, struck Wednesday morning in a body because of two weeks' wages due them. The gang marched in a body to Judge Clark's office to get his assistance in helping them collect what was due them. The Judge told them he could do but little for them, but would act the part of arbitrator for them. The Judge telephoned to the contractor's office in Jersey City to see what arrangements could be made for the men to get what was coming to them. Very little information could be gotten this way, so he called up the superintendent of the Central Railroad. The company would not become liable for the wages, but said Contractor Clym was reliable and would no doubt pay the men what was due them. This did not meet with the approval of the strikers and they refused to resume their work. Later in the day the contractor appeared upon the scene and paid the men in full and what looked like some excitement for the Plains vanished at once.

The mid-summer musicale given by the ladies of the Methodist church last evening, was a very successful affair and was well attended. The warm weather was just right to prepare the large audience for the cream and cake, which was served on the lawn at the close of the programme. WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Westfield, July 19—John W. Whelan, secretary of the Elizabethtown Water Company, also president of the Elizabeth Board of Health, accompanied by his clerk, Louis Houston, paid a visit to this place Monday evening and met Fire Chief J. A. Dennis and Township Clerk Reese at the township rooms, at which time Mr. Whelan explained to the Westfield officials the conditions at Elizabeth regarding the water company's hard-pressed position for water that was fit to drink. Mr. Whelan desired to borrow water from this section. Chief Dennis informed him that there was no water to be had on Dudley avenue, and that the pressure there was not sufficient should a fire occur. Mr. Whelan promised to remedy the matter for the Dudley avenue residents, and assured the fire chief that in case of fire the water-gate and pressure at Elizabeth would receive quick attention to enable the firemen to get the necessary pressure. The water supply at Elizabeth at the present time is in horrible condition.

USE WATER SPARINGLY.

Company Notifies its Patrons to be Careful to Observe Rules for Lawn Sprinkling.

The Plainfield Water Supply Company again gives special notice to its patrons concerning the rules for the use of lawn sprinklers and hand hose. According to the rules of the company they can only be used between the hours of 6 and 9 in the morning and 4 to 7 in the afternoon. Failure to comply with the rule will result in the shutting off of the water without previous notice.

The trouble is that in this dry weather there is such a demand for lawn sprinklers during the day that the Water Company has its troubles to keep the supply up during the day when there are so many other demands for water. All persons using a hose are also required to first secure a permit from the company to do so. This does not allow them, however, to use the water for street sprinkling.

NEW JERSEY GAME LAWS.

Change in Season and Other Provisions for Sportsmen.

Now that those sportsmen who do most of their hunting in New Jersey have had time to consider carefully the provisions of the game laws that come into force this fall, very little is said in opposition to them. The law, as amended at the recent session of the legislature, provides for the opening of the season on grouse, partridge and pheasant, quail and rabbits, on November 1st, lasting until December 31st. The old law used to permit of the hunting of grouse after October 1st, but did not allow the hunting of quail or rabbits until November 10th. The quail season, too, lasted longer than that on grouse. This made it very easy for law breakers to commit breaches of the game laws, and also made it correspondingly hard for the wardens to do their duty.

Now the only hunting allowed before November 1st is that in which woodcock and the quarry, the open season on which consists of the months of July, October, November and December. Several immature grouse are no doubt killed during the month of July by woodcock shooters, and some full-grown birds also doubtless will be slain by men in pursuit of fall woodcock during the month of October; still it would be folly to put off the open season on woodcock in Jersey until November, as by that date every bird, save a straggler here and there, has moved south for the winter. Forbidding the killing of game while snow is on the ground is also a wise provision, and will prevent much pothunting by men who like to make a "family shot."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mrs. William Waglow is seriously ill at her home on East Fifth street.

Miss Backer, of Whitehouse, has returned home after a visit of several weeks with Plainfield relatives.

Miss Elizabeth Sheehan, of Richmond street, has gone to the Adirondack Mountains for the summer.

The engagement is announced of Miss Nellie Sullivan, of Arlington avenue, and Fred McGirr, of Bridgeton, Conn.

Suydam, of Franklin Park, to Rev. John Bergen Lane, of Bound Brook, a graduate of Princeton Theological Seminary, class of '95.

FASHION HINTS.

Trimmings and Accessories of the Fashionable Gown.

Embroidery, jeweled effects and lace continue to prevail among elegant costumes. Guipure, immensely used, is often embroidered with silks, metallic threads and spangles, and a richer decoration can scarcely be imagined.

We have had applications of velvet on cloth. Now the case is reversed, and there are applications of cloth on velvet.

Chatelaine ornaments are still worn. A broad decorative buckle or clasp is placed at the side of the waist, and from it depend the objects—bonbon box, vinaigrette, small watch, all sorts of useful and useless articles—hanging by slender gold chains. In order to be properly effective this arrangement must be of fine goldsmith work in the precious metal. In silver it becomes common. As a matter of fact it is never in the best of taste, for any jingling ornament suggests the clanking of a set of fetters or the bits of metal with which a savage adorns himself.

The cut shows a costume of black spangled net electric blue taffeta. The net skirt is gathered at the waist and has narrow bands of electric blue silk near the foot. The blouse bodice is gathered at the neck and waist and is trimmed with the narrow blue silk bands also, which outline a sort of bolero with choux at the shoulders and in front. The sleeves are wrinkled and have bands of blue silk and choux at the wrists. The belt is of blue silk. The hat is of leghorn straw and is trimmed with mauve flowers around the crown and under the left side of the brim.

SUMMER FABRICS.

Pale Tones and Sheer Goods Take the Lead.

Pastel tones, bright, soft and delicate at once, are the newest summer tints and are exquisitely refined and artistic in effect. So pale are the shades and of so subtle a quality that all sorts of opposing colors may be combined with perfect security. Pastel ribbons, silks and cloths come in plain tones, and there are also very beautiful silks in which large flowers in these tints appear on a white ground, mingled with other ornamental forms.

Among other materials are poplins, etamines, silk voiles, very fine cashmeres and covert cloth. Sheer goods are also in great demand, and all sorts of cotton and linen weaves are employed this season—lawns, plain or printed batistes and muslins, muslins with a woven cord, check or dot, dimities both plain and with tiny woven dot or figure, madras muslins and swiss. These are all much decorated and are usually made over an underdress of colored taffeta, although for goods with a white ground white beneath is prettier.

The illustration given today shows a bolero of black embroidered grenadine over white silk. It reaches the waist line at the back, while in front it is elongated in two tabs. The revers of white silk are bordered with ruches of white mousseline de soie, which also edge the grenadine collar, which is faced with white silk. The wrists of the tight sleeves are also bordered with ruches. The cravat is composed of choux and coquilles of black mousseline de soie.

KEEP THE WELL, WELL.

"I suspect that I may attribute my recent headaches to doing so much night-work of late," said a lady who earns her own living. "I had an order to address a large number of envelopes and as I was paid by the thousand and others wanted the work, too, I sat up pretty late and perhaps worked in a room not so well ventilated as it might be As a consequence I have more than once had a headache the next day. I have found, however, that if I swallow a Ripans Tabule just as soon as I have a premonition of the trouble, it staves it off and I escape scot free. That is why I say that Ripans Tabules are a medicine for well people, for I am certainly a healthy woman, but I use the Tabules now and then and would not like to be without them."

Must Believe It.

When Well-known Plainfield People Tell It so Plainly.

When public endorsement is made by a representative citizen, if Plainfield the proof is positive. You must believe it. Read this testimony. Every backache sufferer, every man, woman or child with any kidney trouble will profit in the reading.

Mrs. Margaret Reville, of 752 West Third street, says;—"For a long time I was troubled with a lame and weak back and I never found anything which gave me any relief until I obtained Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store and began to use them according to directions. It was only a short time before I felt the good effects and from that on I improved steadily under the treatment. My back pained me and was weak and sore that I dreaded to bend and when I had a cold or over exerted myself I suffered severely. I used several different kidney remedies but got but little if any relief, I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit for my improvement. I think they are a fine medicine for a lame back."

MOTOR CYCLE IS HERE.

Several Varieties Are Now on the Market, But All of Them Are Quite High-Priced.

If you ever wheeled up a sandy hill on a hot day you will appreciate the feeling of the man who was looking for a motor cycle at a recent cycle show. He has a certain hill in mind that he wants to ride up and down for an hour just to get even with it. He can do it this summer if he has something like $100 to buy the motor.

Motor bicycles were in use a year ago in Europe, but they were not entirely satisfactory, and American manufacturers have been experimenting along other lines. They did not want to put on the market machines that were likely to fail. There are now several that will be shown for the first time this summer. One made in New York has been ridden over a thousand miles. The motor is attached to an ordinary road wheel, and with the wheel weighs 60 pounds. It is only 12 inches in height and develops a one-horse power. The wheel is fitted with a coaster brake and the current is switched off by the hand.

Three other motors have been heard of—one from San Diego that may also be attached to any wheel. The one presented in the picture is from Columbus, O. It has a gasoline engine and develops one-half horse power.

The bicycle is built with a wheel base four inches longer than the average, or about 48 inches from hub to hub of the wheels. The extension is made in the rear triangle so as to afford room for the motor to rest on the rear forks, back of the seatpost tube. The appurtenances are within the frame lines. The power is transmitted by means of a belt to a pulley on the rear wheel. The sprocket chain runs between the engine and the flywheel on the right hand side, while the transmission belt runs on the left hand side to its sheave on the rear axle. Here again is used the coaster brake, which seems to have been developed just in time for the motor cycle. Besides being longer in the wheel base, this wheel is an inch wider in the tread than ordinary, but the disposition of the motor seems to be more advantageous than in either of the other cases.

In Boston a special plant has been started to turn out a type of motor cycle that is distinctly an automobile, because not provided with petals. The motor in this instance is the "whole thing," and not an auxiliary power, although the cycle is an individual machine.

In all these first comers of the individual motor cycle field it is striking to note the unanimity with which the gasoline motor has been adopted. Neither electricity nor steam has been appealed to, the necessary weight involved being an objection in both cases, while against storage batteries is laid the additional trouble they might cause in touring through the country where no charging station might be found.

One phase that motor cycling has at its inception is that it will pretty effectually bar out women. They must be willing to mount the diamond frame and have nerve enough to run the engine. The only hope of the gentler sex is in tandems, and even on them they will be required to be cool-headed, quick of eye and strong armed, for they will have to do the steerng, while their escorts tend the engine. It will be something more than play to steer a tandem going at even 20 miles an hour, to say nothing of a 30-mile clip.—Little Chronicle.

Liability of Manufacturers.

An interesting case was recently heard in England, and the outcome seems to us to be rather surprising. A wheelman sued a firm of reputation for damages for injuries which he had sustained owing to the collapse of his machine. He had purchased it from them about three months previously, and it had given away at the fork crown. It was admitted by the plaintiff that he had met with two accidents prior to the collapse, and a new rim had been provided because the front wheel had been buckled. The defendants claimed that the fork crown had been weakened by these accidents, and that the collapse was due to the rough usage of the machine, but the jury gave a verdict for the plaintiff for $250. Notice of appeal was given.

Pumps for Automobile Tires.

A new style of tire pump has been made necessary by the use of the large-sized pneumatic tires on motor cycles and automobiles. At first these tires were inflated by means of stored jars of compressed air that were filled by the use of machinery, but devices are now appearing that enable a man to fill the big tires by hand without unreasonable work. One maker has constructed a pump which gives a pressure of 600 pounds to the square inch and will fill an automobile tire with a few strokes of the lever.

Cycling Popular in Mexico.

Mexico seems destined to offer a new field for professional riders. Cycling is increasing every month in popular favor with the Mexicans, and in all the leading cities there is talk of organizing contests. It has been found that the bull rings make excellent tracks, and it is certainly to be hoped that cycling may in time supplant the cruel sport to which our southern neighbors are addicted.

A SERIOUS PROBLEM.

The Old Man Left Home Rather Than Cast the Deciding Vote.

"While I was out west," said the returned traveler, to a Detroit Free Press man, "I chanced to meet an old man sitting by the side of the road. He looked so sad that I stopped and asked him what the matter was.

"'Stranger, I'm in a heap of trouble,"he said.

"'Nothing serious, I hope,' I answered.

"'Humph!' he grunted, 'thet's all ye know about hit! Jes like a dern tenderfoot!'

"I made no answer, and after drawing a few puffs from an old corn-cob pipe, he said;

"'I might as well tell yer. I live up yander in thet house on the hill, an' I always calcalated to live an' die thar, but hit looks ez though hit wuzn't ter be. The other day my wife got hold of a paper somewhere, an' she read in hit thet women's clubs wuz all the go, an' hit set her wild to hev one herself. Wul, she talked to the other old wimmen around yere till she had 'em jes' ez crazy ez her, an' the result wuz thet fifteen old wimmin are now holdin' a meetin' up at my house ter organize.

"'Wul, the first thing wuz ter elect a president. They took a ballot, an' the result wuz that each one of 'em had a vote. Hit wuz the same way on the next ten ballots, an' frost wuz beginnin' ter form on the windows. Wul, hit looked like a deadlock till one fule woman suggested thet I be allowed ter cast the deciding vote. Wul, I had jes' presence of mind enough to point out hit would take a little time ter solve sich a delicate question; so I kum out yer ter ponder, followed by the smiles of fifteen old wimmin. If I vote for my wife the other fourteen will be after my scalp, an' if I don't vote fer her, hit means a lingerin' death.'

"'Then it is a question of the lady or the tiger?' said I, smiling.

"'Stranger, I didn't know thet you knew my wife! But you're right, she's a tiger, sure enough. Stranger, I'm off fer the mountains! I'm leavin' 43 acres, a mewl an' three hogs, but what is personal wealth ter personal safety? Farewell, stranger, hit takes a man ter rise and meet a question like this. I'm off!'"

MEANEST HOTEL MAN.

Notified the Gentlemen That the Clock Was for Use of Guests Only.

"The meanest specimen of a white man I ever met," said Leo Doob at the Hotel Alms the other evening, to a Chicago Times-Herald reporter, "was an old fellow who ran a hotel in an interior town in Vermont. His son, who acted as clerk in the hotel, had inherited his father's miserly character and had been discharged by the local baseball club, for whom he had officiated as official umpire, because he was too stingy to give a man his base on balls.

"I arrived at the hotel one evening and was assigned to a room. I expected to meet two friends at the place in the morning, and we were all to travel together to this city. After breakfast I found that the morning newspaper was kept behind the hotel counter and doled out to the guests on request; the washroom was locked tightly, the key in possession of the clerk, and the hotel pens and ink were kept locked up until asked for, for fear of waste. My friends arrived about ten o'clock that morning, and we were to leave on the 11 o'clock train. We sat in the office to while the hour away, and a discussion about the time arose between my two friends, whose watches varied a few moments. Pulling forth their timepieces they compared them with the hotel office clock. I noticed that the father and son, proprietor and clerk of the hotel, were holding an animated whispered conversation, and in a moment the father approached my friends and said:

"Excuse me, but are you gen'l'men stopping at this house?'

"'No,' said my friend, 'just waiting for a train.'

"'Put her up, Jabe,' commanded the old man.

"And the son solemnly mounted a chair and hung the following sign, which he had hastily prepared with a marking brush, on the wall underneath the clock:

THIS CLOCK IS FOR THE USE OF GUESTS OF THE HOTEL ONLY.

Keep the Summer Baby Warm.

A summer baby requires nearly the same amount of clothing as one born in the winter. The little cashmere shirts may be of lighter weight, but they may still be chiefly of wool, and the flannel shirt, or pinning blanket, cannot be dispensed with. The blanket in which the child is wrapped need not be as thick a one as in winter, yet one is still needed. A newborn baby requires warmth, and even the summer breezes are too harsh for the tender flesh until it becomes accustomed to the atmosphere.—Ladies' Home Journal.

An Odorless Disinfectant for House.

If one objects to the odor of carbolic acid he may use for the plumbing an odorless disinfectant prepared as follows: Dissolve half a pound of permanganate of potash in four gallons of water and pour this carefully down the pipes. This solution, if allowed to stand in bowls or basins, will stain them purple. The stains may be removed with a weak solution of oxalic acid. The acid must be rinsed off immediately after it has been used.—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Novel Method of School Teaching in CHICAGO

There is not, in Chicago, a more novel institution of learning than the University Elementary school, conducted by Prof. John Dewey, of the University of Chicago. Prof. Dewey's doctrine is that "education is a process of living, and not a preparation for future living;" and that "the process and goal of education are one and the same thing." The school was founded for the purpose of carrying out Prof. Dewey's sociological ideas in so far as they touch upon school life in the primary grades; and the institution may be regarded as an educational laboratory wherein various pedagogical theories are tested. The casual observer would probably make neither head nor tail of the class instruction as it is carried on in this school, and would conclude that the children were enjoying a perpetual holiday. It is the opinion of Prof. Dewey that the only thing which a child gets out of any subject presented to him is simply the images he himself forms with regard to it. He further urges that "if nine-tenths of the energy at present directed towards making the child learn certain things were spent in seeing to it that the child was forming proper images, the work of instruction would be indefinitely facilitated."

Children Forming Proper Images.

In Prof. Dewey's school there seems to be no immediate danger that the children will not be given a chance to form plenty of images, for a certain portion of the time devoted to each class is spent in the open air, and if images are not readily gained from the lessons at hand, there are many natural images which may easily be substituted by the children.

A School Without Books.

A school without books! This seems almost a misnomer; but the children who attend Prof. John Dewey's University Elementary school have little use for individual books. The schoolrooms are not treated as places in which to learn and recite lessons, but are really visiting rooms where teachers and pupils meet to compare experiences and to exchange questions and ideas. There are no rules which forbid whispering or low talking during school hours, and the children are expected to conduct themselves very much as they would at home.

A Lesson in Mathematics.

The school contains a carpenter shop, laboratory, studio, gymnasium, library, kitchen and dining-room; a miniature textile factory for weaving, sewing, etc., and a small printing establishment. In these various departments groups of children, ranging in ages from four to thirteen years, may be seen, the children of each group gathered about their teacher in a friendly, social way, listening to the stories which she employs to impress upon them the lessons which she desires them to learn. If the ordinary public school pupil looks upon a difficult lesson something as he would view a bitter pill which he is compelled to swallow, he would certainly look upon the lessons taught in the Dewey school as sugar-coated pills and he might even mistake them for candy. Thus, for example, a half hour's informal chat on number work is succeeded by a half hour in the garden, where beds are laid out by exact measurement, are spaded and made ready to receive the seeds. The sprouts which appear will be watched jealously as the season progresses. Every plant as it develops will be studied from a botanical and scientific standpoint. The class will make little excursions to study the flora of the nearby parks and in its rambles will learn from the teacher's lips something concerning the characteristic flora of various corners of the globe.

As History Is Taught.

The ordinary pupil who attends the public school and who looks forward to a 2:30 o'clock history lesson with just as much regularity as he does his dinner and with a great deal more anxiety would view with open eyes and mouth the methods by which history is taught in the Dewey school. For instance, he would see a knot of children gathered about a young woman, listening to her stories of the prehistoric races—of the adventures of the cave men and of the home life and crude inventions of primitive man. Then he would see the group leave the building and proceed to a near-by lot. Here they would attempt to live out the stories they had heard. They would be given their choice of such occupations as the molding of clay vessels, the digging of caves or the building of brick stoves and the starting of fires. It is probably due to a natural weakness of youngsters in general that the children belonging to the history classes almost invariably elect to build bonfires. There is little fear but that the public school pupil would appreciate the gloriousness of the new method. In connection with the lessons in history, in primitive cooking and in the baking of clay vessels the pupils are taught to be very careful in the handling of fire. One little girl made the noteworthy discovery that "the fire is inside the ashes."

History Pupils Build Bonfires.

In more advanced history classes the teacher may perhaps read to her group of scholars—who are seated about her in easy attitudes—the history of the early pilgrim settlers, told in entertaining story form. The following day the children retail these stories to each other and to their teacher. One history class manifested a good deal of interest in the story of the first washday of the pilgrims in America.

"And Monday's been the washday ever since!" spoke up one boy.

The Drawing Class.

Probably the most picturesque of all the groups in the Dewey school is the drawing class. This class, with full drawing paraphernalia—camp stools, paints, brushes, water glasses and paper—may be seen in the morning wending its way to some spot in the pasture which in the mind of the teacher is worthy to be perpetuated on the drawing tablets of her enthusiastic followers. Avoiding one or two cows which have been picketed out for a nibble of the new grass, the pupils at last reach a favorable spot and proceed to set up their camp stools and to get their materials ready for drawing. Then comes a discussion as to the color of the sky, of the ground and of the willows in the distance, and of the general perspective. By experience and from the patient explanations of the teachers the pupils learn how to reproduce these effects on paper—in short, they are taught the fundamental principles of landscape painting, and under the most favorable auspices.

Are Taught Principles of Painting.

The little daily paper which is edited by the children contains many startling revelations and gives a history of the day's doings. The contributions are written by the children themselves and contain characteristic expressions. The following extract from the University Elementary School Paper reveals one occupation which follows along the line of the stories regarding early husbandry:

"We ground corn with two stones. We took one stone and put the corn on it and then put the other stone on that and rubbed it down, and that ground the corn. Then we sifted it to get the flour out." This issue also contains the information that the children are soon to make plans for a clubhouse, for which they already have a building fund of $50, and that the children themselves are to build as much of the house as possible.

In the Kitchen.

In the cooking department in the Dewey school, number work comes into pronounced play, for all the ingredients are measured or weighed. Classes here receive instruction in cooking, setting the table, etc., and the social idea is carried out to the extent of having certain classes prepare the midday luncheon. The boys seem to take no less pride in this accomplishment than the girls, and are quite as neat and orderly in the kitchen. On the other hand, when it comes to work in the chemical laboratory, the girls are fully equal to the boys in making successful experiments. In the carpenter shop, also, there is no distinction between the two. In this connection the only thing which may seem a bit incongruous is the fact that all of the teachers in the carpenter shop are women. While they appear to be young women of energy, it is to be doubted if they have spent much time as apprentices to "sure enough" carpenters. If Prof. Dewey's school continues to be a success we may expect much in this line from the future woman; but until this happy change is brought about is it not to be feared that a woman driving a nail will still continue to be a woman, and not a carpenter, driving a nail? However, perhaps a bit of daylight through the joints will not seriously affect the social principles which it is desired to impress upon the children. It is hoped by Prof. Dewey that his school will lead children directly to the doors of the university.

Takes Pride in the Accomplishment.

SPORTING.

GOLF

The Glen Ridge and Hillside golf teams will contest for honors on the Hillside course Saturday afternoon in the East Jersey Golf Association tournament.

The Hillside Tennis and Golf Clubhouse is much sought after these days by the few members who are at home. At such a high elevation the heat does not seem to have much effect and it is a delightfully cool spot.

Owing to the team match at Morristown last Saturday afternoon, there was no play that day on the links of the Park Golf Club for the green committee challenge trophy. J. H. Simpson, the next in line of the challengers, has gone away for the summer and defaulted his match. The match was played off last Tuesday afternoon instead, when W. de la R Anderson, the holder of the trophy, was defeated, eleven down, by Gustavus W. Faber. Faber was playing his usual steady game and made the eighteen holes in 90. Anderson was not at his best and scored 101. The next challenger is Edgar I. Serrell and he will probably play Faber either tomorrow afternoon or Monday afternoon.

The challenge of the Metuchen Golf Club to the Park Golf Club for a team match was accepted and Saturday afternoon has been set as the time for the game. The match will be played on the links of the Metuchen Club. Each club will be represented by six or eight men. The green committee has about decided to allow the members of the team who are going over to Metuchen Saturday afternoon, to compete for the president's cup and the green committee challenge trophy tomorrow afternoon. This will enable the boys to keep in the race for the trophies and still play on the team. The Park Club team will probably be composed of Morgan T. Townsend, William A. Townsend, W. J. R. Thiers, G. W. Faber, J. H. Simpson, W. de la R. Anderson, William M. McCutchen and Edgar I. Serrell.

The amateur record for the Park Golf Club course was broken Tuesday afternoon by Morgan T. Townsend, who is now considered the leading player of that club. While everybody else was complaining about the heat, Townsend and several other enthusiastic golfers were playing their favorite game. Townsend made the eighteen holes in 84, a 43 and a 41. It will be remembered that 40 is par golf at the Park Club links. Club Expert Andrew D. Blair did eighteen holes in 83 once, which is the best ever made on those links. The best amateur score hitherto was 87, made by William J. R. Thiers. There was no luck, however, about young Townsend's achievement, only good careful golf that came very near par figures. Willard Wadsworth and Lester Glenney, the two crack players of the Hillside Club, have both made good scores on the Park Club course, but neither has been able to put his score down to the one made by Townsend.

NOT SO HOT.

Thunder Storms Did Not Appear, But the Heat and Humidity Have Gone.

Contrary to all predictions and precedents the hot wave, which has so generally prevailed in this section for the last four days, departed yesterday afternoon in a delightfully quiet fashion. The weather forecasters declared that the extreme warm weather would culminate in a series of violent thunder storms. Clouds assembled in the west during the afternoon but no thunder storms appeared. Instead a brisk breeze that was first felt in the morning increased in force during the afternoon and grew positively chilly as the sun sunk below the horizon.

The heat and sultriness fled away as night came on and all humanity rejoiced. The mercury tumbled down the tube in great shape, and even went below 60 degrees during the night. Today the sun is warm, however, but a cool breeze still prevails and makes life positively enjoyable.

Bad Place for Doggy to be.

While riding down West Front street near Plainfield avenue, last evening, at full speed, a bicyclist bound for Bound Brook struck a little dog which had been lying in the road. The cyclist was thrown from his wheel and was quite badly hurt. His clothes were torn and his left side was cut and bruised. Beyond a few slight scratches the wheel was uninjured. The innocent cause of the trouble, however, was unable to survive the shock and died in a few minutes. It belonged to some ladies who live in the vicinity.

STRIKE SOON TO END.

THAT IS THE CONFIDENT PREDICTION OF MINE OWNERS.

Engineers Notified to Quit Work Today, When There May Possibly be Trouble.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dover, July 19.—There was no material change yesterday in the strike situation at the Morris County iron mines. The main seat of the difficulty is at Hibernia, where the Andover and Wharton mines are situated. Having been paid on Tuesday the miners took freely to drink, and there were many personal encounters but no rioting, and only a few arrests for intoxication.

The store at Hibernia is owned by the Oram Company, of which Edward Kelly, superintendent of both mines there, is one of the principal shareholders. Mr. Kelly is also superintendent of the furnace of Port Oram, a few miles distant, and is a very influential man in the neighborhood. It is alleged by the miners that his power as superintendent is largely exerted in the direction of promoting the prosperity of the store in which he is interested, and this accounts for the wild threats on the part of some of the more reckless to destroy it.

Both the Andover and the Wharton mines pay wages every two weeks. Neither withholds from employes on their pay envelopes the amounts they may owe at the store. But to owe to the store is equivalent to resignation, and this the miners are disposed to resent.

At the Richards mine, where a considerable quantity of dynamite is stored, fifteen deputies were on guard last night. Supt. Arthur said he had no doubt of the loyalty of his engineers, although they had been notified by the strikers to draw the fires, which would mean the flooding of the mine.

At the Hurd mine at Port Oram a dozen deputies were on duty, and there was no disposition to molest them.

Impression prevails that the strike will be over by the end of the week, and that it will result in the men accepting the reduction of 25 cents per day offered them.

If there is any violence it will probably occur today, for the strikers have notified the engineers in all the mines that they will not be permitted to remain at their posts after the dinner hour.

RAID ON SWIMMERS.

West End Boys Were Disporting in the Brook in Too Plain View.

The continued heat of the past few days has compelled the boys of the West End to seek some place for bathing purposes without the long walk to New Market or Scotch Plains, where the favorite pools are located. They chose unwisely, however, as the place selected a spot midway between the Washington and Sycamore avenue bridges. A crowd of about thirty youngsters were disporting themselves there yesterday when Doorman Grant, of the city side, and Israel Jones, of the borough, swooped down upon them. The boys had been warned by their sentinels and were soon in flight in all directions. Everyone managed to escape, but Israel Jones has an ownerless coat and a pair of trousers which were left behind in the excitement. The boys can hardly be blamed for wanting a swim, but they should show more discretion in the selection of the place in which to do it.

It was the combined excursion of the Sunday-schools of the First Presbyterian church, the Congregational church, the Park Avenue Baptist church, the Mt. Pleasant chapel and the Dunellen Presbyterian church. In addition to the members of the Sunday school, there were a number of outsiders who took advantage of the opportunity to spend a day at the seashore.

A Dressmaking Hint.

A useful dressmaking hint relates to the fastening of the various vests and fancy fronts so much worn. Often these hook over in almost inaccessible places, and upon an eye or ring that is difficult to find. Dressmakers now, wherever it is possible, sew the length of the waist, across the shoulder or down the under arm seam, a single strand of fine silk cord. Wherever the hooks strike this cord it finds a fastening, a welcome change from the elusive eyes and rings.—N. Y. Post.

Why He Trekked.

Johnny (entering parlor)—Oh, it's you, is it? Why, I thought—

Mr. Softleigh—You thought what, Johnny?

"I thought it was one of them fellers from South Africa."

"What made you think that, my little man?"

"Why, Sis said that she was going to try to get rid of a Boer to-night."

And Mr. Softleigh trekked soon after.—Baltimore American.

Nine Lives Lost.

A short time previous to the departure of the happy excursionists this morning, nine feline lives were cruelly destroyed at the North Avenue station by ruthless car wheels. The lives belonged to a forlorn Thomas cat who had attempted to cross the track ahead of a train, but was not quick enough.

Notice to Water Consumers.

Your attention is especially called to the following rules governing the use of lawn sprinklers and hand hose supplied by the Plainfield Water Supply Co.

"LAWN SPRINKLERS and HAND HOSE must be used only between the hours of 6 and 9 a. m., and 4 and 7 p. m., from the 1st of April to the 15th of October, and if found out of order or leaking, or if converted into jets, or if used for the benefit of any person other than the one obtaining the permit, or suffered to run when not used, or if used at a time not stated above, THE SUPPLY WILL BE CUT OFF WITHOUT PREVIOUS NOTICE.

"ALL PERSONS USING A HOSE, EITHER IN FRONT OR REAR OF PREMISES, FROM A HYDRANT OR FAUCET CONNECTION, MUST FIRST OBTAIN A PERMIT FOR USE ONLY AT HOURS PERMITTED BY THE RULES AND REGULATIONS. PERMIT TO USE LAWN SPRINKLERS DOES NOT INCLUDE THE USE OF WATER FOR STREET SPRINKLING."

Several patrons of the Company whose attention, probably, has not been called to the above regulations, are in the habit of using lawn sprinklers and hand hose at times not permitted. The Company desires to treat its patrons with liberality, but is constrained to insist upon strict compliance with these regulations.

Respectfully,

DEMOCRATS PLAN TO BE AGGRESSIVE

Campaign for Bryan This Year Will be Far Different From That of Four Years Ago.

NOTED MEN TO SPEAK HERE.

PROMINENT PEOPLE WILL MEET AT MR. MARTINE'S PIGEON SHOOT.

Several Mass-Meetings are to be Held and Much Campaign Literature is to be Distributed—General Activity Promised.

Very feeble and futile were the efforts made in Plainfield in behalf of the Democratic ticket at the National election four years ago. This year the Democratic organization, both in Union county and in Plainfield, promise a far livelier campaign in behalf of their candidates, Bryan and Stevenson. Next month the first efforts of the local Democracy will come into prominence, and there is promise of steady activity from that time up to the day when the votes will be cast.

Union county was once a stronghold of the Democrats but, of late years, it has cast a substantial plurality in the Republican column. The Democrats realize this fact. Four years ago the county organization of the party was practically a nonentity. Its few and feeble attempts were confined to the county seat. The rest of the county had to go it alone. In Plainfield there was hardly a semblance of a campaign. One meeting was held, but that consumed all the latent energy of a few Democrats and closed the effort.

For the past two years the Democrats have been at work building up an organization. While it does not compare with the local Republican organization, it is nevertheless far superior to anything the Democrats have had here for years and it promises to make things lively this fall.

The prominence attained this summer by James E. Martine, particularly at the National convention and through his personal acquaintanceship with Bryan and other of the Democratic leaders of National reputation, will have its influence on local work. Through its leader the Plainfield Democracy will become a greater factor, both here and throughout the State.

The Democrats will start their campaign next month. It is planned to revive the Democratic Club with its club house and practically convert it into a campaign organization. A series of mass meetings will be held at which some prominent speakers will talk. Congressman William Sulzer and Webster Davis have both promised to talk to Plainfield audiences. There will be other well-known men here as well. It is doubtful if Bryan can be secured for another appearance in Plainfield. Mr. Martine will use every effort and may succeed in having the Presidential candidate here if for only a few moments.

There will be lots of campaign literature to be distributed. Both political parties are keenly aware of the fact that the old style of sensational campaigning doesn't appeal to the American voter as in days of yore and that good substantial reasoning is going to win the election this time. So the Democrats will flood the city with their tracts and speeches in an effort to reduce if possible the normal majority of the Republicans. Even the most ardent and enthusiastic of the Democrats do not expect to win in such a Republican stronghold as this.

One of the most important happenings of the Democratic campaign will be the pigeon shoot at Cedar Brook Farm when the "Farmer Orator" will entertain his political friends with all his old-time hospitality. His pigeon shoots have become famous all over the State, and some five hundred of the prominent Democrats of the city and State will assemble at his farm some day in September.

National Committeeman Gourley, Congressman Daly and a host of the other prominent Democrats from all over Jersey will assemble. There will be the shoot and something to eat and to drink. There will be informal speech-making, of course, but no formal set programme.

The split in the Democratic ranks on the currency question has been very pronounced in Plainfield as well as in other parts of the State. Quite a band of the gold Democrats departed from the camp of their brethern four years ago and lent their support either to the "enemy" or to the Palmer and Buckner ticket. There are some who will still refuse allegiance to Bryan. Others may rejoin the ranks of the

HARD BLOW ON HEAD

FORMER JUDGE CODDINGTON VICTIM OF A PAINFUL ACCIDENT.

Thirty Pound Fan Fell and Struck Him in New York Restaurant—Unconscious for an Hour.

Former Judge W. A. Coddington, of East Second street, is confined to his home today as a result of being made the victim of an unlucky fall of an electric fan yesterday. Mr. Coddington was in New York yesterday morning, and shortly before 1 o'clock entered Nelson's restaurant on Cortlandt street to get lunch before leaving for Plainfield on the 1:30 p. m. train.

Ten feet above the chair which Mr. Coddington occupied was an electric fan set on a shelf. While enjoying his meal the shelf on which the fan was stationed became loose in some manner and fell from its fastenings, carrying the fan with it. The latter weighed over thirty pounds and it struck Mr. Coddington square on the head, bounced off and struck his hand, cutting him quite badly, and then slipped down into the lap of Frank Linke, who was setting opposite, and cut his trousers about the knee.

The force of the blow on the head rendered Judge Coddington unconscious, but his heavy head of hair saved him from having the head badly gashed. When it was seen that Mr. Coddington's injuries were quite serious, two physicins were summoned by the restaurant proprietor. They worked over him for over an hour before he regained consciousness. Even after he partially recovered his senses he was somewhat dazed for sometime.

The physicians dressed his wounds and gave him proper treatment, and he left for home on the 3:45 o'clock train. The injuries were very painful and caused Mr. Coddington to pass a restless night.

Today he feels somewhat better, but still suffers considerable pain. He will be confined to the house for several days.

"FOUNDER" BRADLEY'S OFFER.

Meets New York Man's Retaliating Project With Tender of Assistance.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, July 20—Asbury Park may get a new auditorium. Mr. Bradley has refused the use of his beach auditorium, seating 3,500 people, for the holding of a baby show by a New York company, and the manager of the show says he will hold it in a big tent.

He has secured a lot for the tent, and says he will build an auditorium on the ground next winter that will hold 10,000 people. When Mr. Bradley heard this statement he said he would give $100 to help the thing along, and later said he would give $300 if the contemplated structure would seat 8,000 people, and authorized the publication of his offer.

Pleasant Wedding Reception.

A pleasant wedding reception was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Gaston, of Somerville, on Tuesday evening last, by a number of Plainfield people, who made the trip in a stage. The evening was passed in singing and dancing, and at an early hour in the morning the guests returned home. Those in the party were: Mr. and Mrs. Gaston, Mrs. Robert Philpitt, Mrs. Dentz, Mrs. Fawn, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Conover, Miss Mamie Philpit, Miss Carry Dentz, Miss Irene Mair, Miss Lillian Conover, Miss Lou Windham, Miss Julia Philpitt, and Frank Dentz, Oscar Philpitt, Walter Conover, Winfield Philpitt, Augustus Windham, Werner Philpitt.

Vacations for the Cops.

Officers Vanderweg and Watson have resumed duty after their annual vacation and Roundsman Mattox and Officer Winzenreid are enjoying theirs. The latter commenced his yesterday by chartering Martin Geoghans' stage and conveying his family and a party of friends to Boynton Beach where John made every effort to please his guests and proved a royal entertainer. It is expected that Mattox will devote his ten days in agricultural pursuits at his farm on Webster place.

Building Active in West End.

Building operations in the West End have taken another boom and there are now four houses on West Fifth street about to be erected, making five new ones on that street. There are other streets also building up rapidly.

AN AGED COUPLE IN CHILDISH FEUD

Lived Happily Together for More Than Half a Century, But Now Are Bitterly Opposed.

HUSBAND'S TRIP CAUSED IT.

VISITED HIS OLD HOME IN IRELAND, LEAVING HIS WIFE BEHIND.

Then the Quarrel Began and it Got to Such a Pass That They Devided the Property and Separated From Each Other.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 20.—Dennis Harrington, of Second street, and his wife lived happily together for upward of fifty years, and on their golden wedding anniversary were able to boast there had never been a serious disagreement.

It was not until Dennis took a trip to Ireland a year ago that trouble came. Dennis wanted to see the old land again, and went, leaving his wife behind. That started the trouble which has since literally divided the house of Harrington against itself in more ways than one.

The couple quarreled, and then quarreled over the quarrel, and things came to such a pass that they who had been lovers for fifty years each employed counsel, and it was agreed that they should disagree and that the house and yard should be divided. Certain rooms were allotted to the wife and others to the husband. Neither was to enter the section allotted to the other.

That did not suffice to stop the fights, as the couple met in the back yard, and again the lawyers were called in, with the result that a high board fence was built through the back yard. It started at the rear of the house and ran to the rear fence. An aperture was left in the rear so that the husband might get into the building close to the rear of the section allotted to his wife. Another place was left in the fence so that the wife could draw water from the well, which was located on Dennis' side of the yard.

The lawyers congratulated themselves on their solution of the difficulty, but they reckoned without taking into calculation the things Dennis might do. He had half of a big house and only himself to use it, so he rented his side of the property to a Hungarian family. That was the beginning of the end. The tenants walked over to Mrs. Harrington's back yard to reach the outbuildings. That annoyed her. She had given Dennis the right to enter at the rear, but none else, so she had the aperture in the fence closed. Harrington retaliated by nailing boards across Mrs. Harrington's back door.

To do this he had to trespass upon that part of the yard which he had agreed he would not enter, so the result was Harrington's arrest for forcibly entering his wife's house. He was released on bail to appear before the next Grand Jury.

Harrington is over seventy years old and his wife is a little younger. They are each comfortably well off, and except for the trouble over that trip "home," there is no real cause for trouble.

GARDNER IS NOMINATED.

He is Named for Congress in the Second District for the Fifth Consecutive Time.

(Special to the Daily Press.)

Atlantic City, July 20—For the fifth consecutive time Congressman John J. Gardner was nominated to represent the Second New Jersey district, embracing Atlantic, Mercer, Burlington and Ocean counties.

No other name was presented to the convention, although when the Mercer delegates arrived from Trenton they started a boom for Assemblyman Ira W. Wood, of Trenton. It came to naught, as the other three counties refused to desert Gardner, and the Mercer men withdrew their candidate.

Eggs on a Big Scale.

The Monmouth Guaranteed Egg Company is the title of a new corporation recently filing papers at Trenton. The company has a capital of a quarter of a million. Three hundred and fifty acres of ground have been bought by the company near Manasquan and egg raising will be begun at once on a large scale.

IMMENSE AMOUNT WATER BEING USED.

Water Supply Company Had to Furnish 3,000,000 Gallons Wednesday.

NO SHORTAGE IS LIKELY.

STILL IF DROUGHT CONTINUES CONSUMERS MUST BE CAREFUL.

Part of the Local Supply Has Been Used in Westfield and Elizabeth—Many Lawn Sprinklers in Use.

The recent hot wave and the period of comparative drought which have visited this section has caused an unprecedented demand for water in this city. The result has been that the Plainfield Water Supply Company has been furnishing nearly three times the normal supply to the Plainfield consumers. On account of this extraordinary demand the company has sent out special orders limiting the use of the lawn sprinklers and hand hose to certain hours during the day, which fact was noted in yesterday's Daily Press.

Under ordinary circumstances the supply of water for the city of Plainfield amounts to from 800,000 to 900,000 gallons.

The summer demand averages more than the winter demand, but for the past week the figures of the water supply have been steadily running up until they nearly reached 3,000,000 gallons Wednesday. Then Elizabeth and Westfield demanded more water than usual so that the pumping station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company was kept busy.

There is at present no shortage of water in the company's wells at Netherwood. If the drought continues much longer and the demand remains so overwhelmingly large, the water company will be compelled to take more stringent measures to husband its supply of water.

Water is supplied to the ordinary Plainfield home, with bath and the usual number of faucets, for $16 a year. If there is provision made for outdoor springling, the charge is increased to $20 a year.

There are a number of Plainfield householders, Superintendent Amos Andrews of the water company says, who have no provision in their contracts with the water company for outside sprinkling, but who use lawn sprinklers constantly. They have been running the sprinklers all day and all night, in some cases. It is this that has been one of the principal causes of the rapid increase in the amount of water used.

In some cities the water companies have forbidden the use of lawn sprinklers until the drought is broken. The Plainfield Company does not wish to take any such action, except in case of emergency. The constant use of the sprinklers all over the city has resulted in the order limiting their use to between 6 and 9 in the morning and 4 to 7 in the afternoon.

The issuing of this order was made in the Daily Press yesterday and as a result there was a decrease of 180,000 gallons in the city's supply which Superintendent Andrews attributes directly to the order. Last night Mr. Andrews and one of his assistants made a tour of the city and borough and found a number of residents using lawn sprinklers without any permit. They will get a bill for $5. While the notice states that failure to have permit will result in the shutting off of the water, householders will be given an opportunity to secure the permit.

MR. GAVETT TALKS OF SEWAGE DISPOSAL.

Street Commissioner Says the Project of Going to Tidewater is Practically Ended.

USE OF THE "SEPTIC TANK."

IT WOULD BE COSTLY AT THE START FOR THE CITY.

Intermittent Filtration is Considered the Most Complete and Satisfactory System of Disposing of Sewage.

It is only a question of time when the city of Plainfield will have to take action in the question of sewage disposal. The present disposal beds are performing their duties at present, but a change is bound to come. Mayor George W. Rockfellow has been considering the question, as was stated in yesterday's Press, and is of the opinion that the proper course will be to improve the present system rather than attempt to carry the city's sewage to tidewater.

Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett is well-posted on the question, having made a careful study of it, particularly with reference to its application here. A Daily Press reporter interviewed him this morning concerning what change was probable, and regarding further details of the plan favored by the Mayor.

"The question of going to tidewater with a trunk sewer," said Mr. Gavett, "has been practically dropped. New Brunswick was vigorous in its objections and the State Commissioners would require that the sewer should empty far out in the bay. Since the discovery of the principle of intermittent filtration, it is still considered the most complete and satisfactory method of sewage disposal when sufficient land of suitable quality can be obtained.

"English experimenters have devised what is called a 'septic tank.' This method of disposal is simply to confine the sewage in a tank, from which air and light are excluded. Part of the suspended matters settle to the bottom, but the greater part rise to the surface. This sediment and scum are constantly being added to and are constantly breaking up and dissolving, with the result that the liquid flowing from the tank is free from suspended matters, although it is liable to be more offensive than free sewage.

"On this account the coarse filter bed on which the liquid is discharged, is generally covered, and it is claimed that the effluent from the coarse filter would be sufficiently purified to discharge into any stream, unless the latter is used for drinking purposes, in which case it would be necessary to filter it a second time.

"The coarse material could not be placed in the present beds as a serious clogging would occur where the two materials join, so that it would be necessary to put the coarse material (coarse sand or cinders) in an unfinished bed or else excavate one of the present beds to the under drains. In the 'septic tank' there is no filtering material whatever.

"By this method an immensely greater quantity of sewage may be treated on a given area of land. Of course it is quite expensive as the 'septic tank' is generally built of concrete with arched roof, and the coarse filter beds, of which there should be two or three, to be used alternately, would have to be made of imported material as was stated in yesterday's Press."

TRACKS ARE LOWERED.

WORK OF REDUCING GRADE ON WATCHUNG AVENUE NEARLY FINISHED.

Necessary to Relay the Macadam From Fourth Street to North Avenue.

The work of reducing the grade on Watchung avenue at the railroad bridge is rapidly progressing. The tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company have been lowered from East Fourth street to East Third street and the change in their level, which reaches to North avenue, will probably be completed tomorrow. The work has been done without interrupting the regular traffic of the local lines.

It will then be necessary to remove the entire macadam surface of Watchung avenue from Fourth street to North avenue, take out several inches of the course gravel and relay the macadam. The curbing and manholes will have to be altered to suit the new grade and it may also be necessary to lower the sidewalk slightly.

The street railway company has to bear the entire cost of the alteration, which will probably amount to $1,500, and has a large gang of men at work. It is expected that the relaying of the street macadam will be accomplished by the latter part of next week. The gravel that is taken out of Watchung avenue is being carted to Church street where the street department will utilize it in improving that street.

ON SUPREME BENCH.

Judge Garretson Formally Inducted Into Office Yesterday by Chief Justice Depue—His Territory Assigned.

Supreme Court Justice Abram S. Garretson, recently appointed to succeed the late Judge Lippincott, of Jersey City, was formally installed in his new position before Chief Justice Depue in Newark.

The ceremony took place in the library of Chief Justice's residence, and was very simple. Supreme Court Justice J. Franklin Fort was present.

The new Justice will have the Morris, Sussex and Somerset circuit, formerly held by Justice Fort, who courteously relinquished it, taking the Monmouth and Middlesex circuit. The arrangement will obtain till the Supreme Court meets in November, when final arrangements will be made.

The new Justice expects to sit the second Tuesday in September in Sussex.

TROUBLE OVER SCHOOL.

Building Cannot be Erected at Approved Plan and Price.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, July 20.—Recently the Westfield Board of Education accepted plans for a new schoolhouse to be built at this place at a cost not to exceed $40,000. The plans were those of Ingle-Almirall and Clinton S. McKenzie, associate architects of East Twenty-third street, New York city, and the award of the work was made to them in a competition with some twenty-eight architects.

It is now learned that the schoolhouse cannot be built after the plans for $40,000. Chairman John B. Green, Trustee James O. Clark and District Clerk John J. Conger met with the architects Monday, at which time bids for the work of building the new schoolhouse were opened and none of the bids were within the amount voted by the people for the erection of the schoolhouse. Just who is to blame is not known.

PRINCETON STUDENTS' INCREASE.

Phenomenal Number of Applicants for Admission.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Princeton, July 20.—The university authorities have made up their figures of applicants for examination in the various parts of the country to date. They are as follows:

Full entrance freshmen, 435; preliminaries, 339; upper classes, 11; total number examined, 785.

This is by far the largest number of applicants they have ever had at Princeton, and should make the freshmen class about 400 next fall. These figures do not include the large number of post-graduates, both from Princeton and other institutions, who will be registered in the autumn. Neither do they include the several hundred students in the Theological Seminary, which is a distinct institution, not connected with the university. Princeton has no professional schools.

To Pay Street Bills.

The Mayor and Borough Council will meet this evening in adjourned session to pay the street bills. It was thought that the Somerset street widening might come up, but owing to the absence of Counsel Reed is may be postponed until a later meeting.

CANALMAN WILL DIE FROM KICK HE GOT.

Jacob Henning Now Lies at Point of Death in the Muhlenberg Hospital.

ASSAILANT IS AT LARGE.

CHIEF KIELY NOTIFIED AND NOW INVESTIGATING THE CASE.

A Warrant Was Issued for the Arrest of John Muldoon, the Assailant but he Was Not Apprehended—Victim Cannot Live.

Just a week ago last night Jacob Henning was picked up by Officer Winzenreid at the corner of South Second street and Grant avenue and taken to Muhlenberg Hospital where it was found he was suffering from severe injuries inflicted by a kick in the stomach. The man now lies at the point of death and the police of this city, New Brunswick and Bound Brook are looking for his assailant. The latter is John Muldoon, who, together with Henning, was employed on a Delaware and Raritan canal repair boat owned by James Dougherty.

On the night of July 12th the men were paid off at Bound Brook and had been drinking about the town.

They got into a quarrel over some trivial matter and Muldoon, becoming angered, delivered the kick. The extent of Henning's injuries were not realized at first, but John McCabe, one of his fellow boatman, induced him to make a complaint of assault and battery against Muldoon. Immediately after the complaint Muldoon disappeared and nothing of him has been seen since.

As the evening wore on Henning's injuries became apparent and he went to Dr. Fisher who, after examining him, advised the man to go to the Muhlenberg hospital. He started to walk to this city but sank exhausted at the place where he was found by the policeman.

Henning's death is expected hourly, and if Muidoon is caught he will be indicted for manslaughter. So far the police have no clue to his whereabouts, but every effort is being made to find him.

Chief Kiely was notified of Henning's condition by the hospital authorities last evening and immediately began investigations. He informed the police of New Brunswick and visited Bound Brook and consulted with officials regarding the case.

COUNTER CHARGES MADE.

Business Disagreement Results in Blows Being Struck—To be Aired in Court.

A little business disagreement between John McCall and Charles C. Vail, both of Fanwood, has resulted in each preferring charges against the other for assault and battery. The alleged assault occurred yesterday at Fanwood, and judging from McCall's appearance he received the worst of the affair. Nevertheless Vail appeared before Justice Mosher in the afternoon and swore out a warrant for McCall's arrest. He appeared before the judge, who denied a motion to dismiss the complaint made by the defendant's lawyer and adjourned the case until 10 o'clock this morning, releasing McCall on his own recognizance. In the meantime McCall went before Justice Moffett and charged Vail with atrocious assault. The former failed to appear before Justice Mosher this morning and that part of the case was adjourned until Tuesday. Vail was held in $300 bonds for his appearance tomorrow morning. It was furnished by J. W. VanSickle.

STOLE WIFE AND CHILDREN.

Epidemic of Queer Elopements Among Polish Settlers in Jersey.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 20—Frank Sheisky reported to the police yesterday that Anton Seabriska, a boarder, had stolen his wife, two children, his money and part of his furniture.

He didn't seem reluctant to part with his wife and children, but he swore vengeance on the couple for taking his money. Wife stealing has become an epidemic in the Polish settlement at the 'Port, this being the third case in the last few days.

DISORDER AT GOLDFIELDS.

A State of Anarchy at Cape Nome. Murders Frequent.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 20.—J. G. Delaney, superintendent of a New York construction company, who is putting up some iron mining machinery near this city, has just returned from Cape Nome and gives some interesting facts of conditions that existed there up to June 21, when he sailed for the United States. There were no courts of justice, and consequently everything was in a state of anarchy. He says that for 46 miles the beach was lined with provisions and staked with claims. Murders were so frequent as to cause no excitement.

"In four hours," he said, "I passed six men lying dead on the beach. The murders occur in this way: The United States government maintains that all of its coast line between high and low water belongs to the marine highway and can not be held in title by any one. Claims above high water mark are recognized and recorded by the government, but lower than that no man can control the right to pan for gold on the beach. So it often happens that one man will be panning a certain section at one low tide, and when the water is low next time again another man will lay claim to the same section. Then there will be a dispute, one of the men will strike the other, who will in turn draw a revolver and shoot his rival dead. Of course this state of things won't last long. A United States judge is now on his way there, and when he arrives matters will settle down to a good American basis of law and order. The beach is rich in gold which has been washed down from the mountains, and some prospectors are now trying to find the ridge from which it comes."

Swindled by Smooth Gang.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 20.—A middle aged man with military manner, a diamond decked shirt front and gold headed cane, came to Poughkeepsie to see the college boat race and registered at the Nelson House as "Captain Ingalls, U. S. A., West Point." He had two companions, who, because of the crowded condition of the Nelson House, stopped at the Morgan House, where they also posed as military men. They secured an introduction at the Dutchess club, where they were wined and dined by the leading men of the city. After enjoying the best hospitality that Poughkeepsie could afford and having secured a number of pecuniary loans, they took their departure. "Captain Ingalls" telling the hotel keepers to forward the bills for his friends and himself to his address at West Point. The bills were sent, and the only answer that the landlords got was a letter from the commandant of the post saying that there was no Captain Ingalls at West Point and that they had undoubtedly been swindled.

Chaffee a Major General.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The president has appointed Brigadier General A. R. Chaffee, U. S. V., who is to command the American military forces in China, a major general of volunteers in order that his rank should be commensurate with his command. This action was received with great satisfaction at the war department and in official circles generally, where General Chaffee is held in the highest esteem. He is considered by his brother officers as one of the most capable and thoroughly equipped soldiers in the service. Although General Miles recommended that Major General Bates, now in the Philippines, be assigned to the command of the troops in China, he is well pleased with the promotion of General Chaffee. His recommendation was made on the ground that the services called for required an officer of the rank of a major general, and he named General Bates for the reason mainly that General Chaffee held only the rank of a brigadier general.

Praise For Colonel Whitside.

SANTIAGO, Cuba, July 20.—The friends of Colonel Samuel Whitside are confident that he will be appointed a brigadier general to fill the vacancy by the promotion of General Chaffee. This is the only department commanded by an officer of a rank less than that of brigadier. When Colonel Whitside succeeded General Wood, many thought it would be impossible for him to administer the affairs of this unruly department as well as his predecessor, but by ability and tact he has continued to improve the local conditions until turbulent Santiago is as safe as Havana and as healthy as any American city, while business is steadily developing.

Maginnis For Postmaster.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The president late yesterday appointed General George Maginnis postmaster at Indianapolis. General Maginnis is one of the best known men in Indiana. His appointment ends a long contest that has attracted considerable interest. He was indorsed by Senator Fairbanks, but Senator Beveridge had refused to indorse him on the ground that the appointment had been agreed on before he (Beveridge) was consulted.

Gold From Australia.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Mr. Roberts, the director of the mint, has received information that there is $2,500,000 in gold on the way from Australia to the United States mint at San Francisco and that there will be monthly shipments of a like amount for about four months. This gold will be paid for in eastern exchange.

AN INDEPENDENT POLICY FAVORED.

Extra Efforts to Be Made to Land American Force In China by Oct. 1—Instructions Given General Chaffee.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The longest cabinet meeting that has been held since the exciting days just prior to the Spanish-American war began at the White House at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. It lasted until 2:30 in the afternoon. After considering the Chinese situation and other matters for two and a half hours the president and the officers who attended the meeting—Secretary of State Hay, Secretary of War Root, Secretary of the Treasury Gage, Postmaster General Smith and Secretary of the Navy Long—sat down to luncheon at the White House, sending word to their coachmen to return at 2:30 o'clock. The luncheon was arranged to give the president the opportunity of continuing the consultation with his advisers.

From the meager information obtainable at this time as to the consideration given by the cabinet to the Chinese situation it is said that the reported declaration of war by Russia against the Chinese government was discussed with reference to the effect it would have on the policy of the powers in China.

While the report was not credited the cabinet deemed it worth while to arrive at an understanding as to what condition would be produced by such a declaration. A suggestion was made that if Russia and China were officially at war it would be necessary for the United States and the other powers to withdraw their forces unless they, too, deemed it wise to recognize that a state of war exists between themselves and the Chinese imperial government.

Appearances indicate, however, that the cabinet was not disposed to accept that view, believing that even if Russia and China were at war the Russian government would be willing to permit the armed forces of other nations to serve on Chinese soil. But the cabinet felt assured that Russia would not do anything to embarrass the other powers in bringing about a settlement of the Chinese troubles and that the report that war was on between Russia and China was, therefore, not true.

A cabinet member said after the meeting in response to a question as to what effect a declaration of war by Russia against China would have upon the action of the United States in maintaining troops in China:

"The United States has had no official notice of the intention of Russia to declare war against China. In the event of any power declaring war upon China it would result in a nonaffiliation between this government and that power. The United States has not declared war against China and could not affiliate with a power or aid any power which had declared war. There would be no reason why this government should not maintain troops in China after war had been declared by some other power.

"This government is going to paddle its own canoe in the far east. We have not been advised that Russia has changed her attitude, which has been recognized from the first as the same which all of the allied powers, so called, declared would be their policy in the far east."

Governor General Wood went to the White House during the meeting and in connection with the discussion of the number of troops now in Cuba available for service was able to advise the president of the number that could be spared for service in China. Not only was this question discussed, but the situation in the Philippines was considered and the advisability of drawing upon the troops under MacArthur's command and to what extent. The whole question as to just what troops the secretary of war may order to China to serve best all interests was settled so far as the president and his advisers could determine at this time.

It was decided at the cabinet meeting that extra efforts should be made to get the entire American military force into China before Oct. 1. It was the opinion that the situation demands the immediate presence of the full number of troops under orders for China, and the secretary of war has directed that everything be done to rush American soldiers to Taku. To do this Quartermaster Ludington is making special efforts to secure additional transports.

The cabinet talked about the advisability of appointing W. W. Rockhill special commissioner to China, and it was agreed that his appointment would be a good one. Mr. Rockhill will leave Washington today for Pomfret, Conn., with Mrs. Rockhill, and on his return to Washington next week his appointment will be made and announced. The object of appointing Mr. Rockhill diplomatic agent of the government in China is to insure the receipt by the state department of trustworthy and discerning news in regard to the situation, to guide the president and the secretary of state in disposing of the numerous questions of diplomacy which are bound to be brought up.

Among other subjects the subject of instructions to Major General Chaffee was gone over at considerable length, and a cablegram was drafted which will be forwarded to reach him on his arrival at Nagasaki. These instructions are of a diplomatic as well as of a military nature and indicate the line of policy to be pursued by the commander of the United States forces in China. The exact nature of the instructions was not disclosed, but it can be stated on good authority that they follow the same line of policy that already has been outlined in statements from the state department.

The rank of major general for the commander of the Chinese expedition will necessitate the presence of two or perhaps three brigadier generals in China. These in all probability will be chosen from the officers of that rank now in the Philippines, but General Chaffee will be given considerable latitude in the selection of his staff.

The cabinet had no direct news from China that has not already been made public. The arrival of the detailed casualty list of the Ninth infantry up to a late hour had not appeared.

Secretary Root and General Leonard Wood, who was present at the cabinet luncheon, remained at the White House with the president until almost 4 o'clock. Upon leaving the White House General Wood said he would start for Havana tomorrow.

The Japanese legation here has made public the latest communication received by it from Baron Nissi, the Japanese minister to Peking. This telegram was received at the legation from the Japanese minister of foreign affairs and is important because of the dates given. The telegram was dated July 13 by the sender, the Japanese consul at Chefu, and is as follows:

"I received at 10 a. m. on the 12th a dispatch from Baron Nissi, dated Peking, June 29. The letter was brought by a special messenger, a Chinese, who left Peking July 1 and managed to make the journey with great difficulty. The substance of the letter is as follows:

"'The situation at Peking is extremely critical. The foreign legations are surrounded on all sides by Chinese soldiers and bombarded night and day. The members of the legations, the guards and residents are resisting to the utmost, but the overwhelming numbers of the enemy make opposition hopeless. Our ammunition is being exhausted, and our lives are in such danger that we may be massacred at any moment. We earnestly request the immediate dispatch of re-enforcements for our rescue from our precarious condition.'"

The Japanese consul at Chefu adds that he communicated this letter to his colleagues of the consular body there and also to the commanders in chief of the forces of the powers.

Protecting Chinese Legation.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Some days ago Major Sylvester, chief of the District police force, purely as a precautionary measure, detailed a detective to watch the Chinese legation and prevent cranks harming its inmates. Yesterday a call on Secretary Hay by Major Sylvester gave rise to rumors that the guard at the legation was to be materially increased because of the threats against the minister's life. It was ascertained, however, that the purpose of the call was simply to ascertain if the detail made had been agreeable to the minister and to the department officials, who assured him it was satisfactory to all.

Marines For China.

BOSTON, July 20.—Unless present plans are interrupted 125 marines will leave the Charlestown navy yard Sunday night for New York, bound for duty in China. Of the 125, 75 are from this yard and the remainder from Portsmouth, (N. H.) and Newport (R. I.) yards. At New York they will rendezvous at the Brooklyn navy yard, where the remainder of the battalion are ordered to report.

BOERS AS GUERRILLAS.

British Chase Them Near Pretoria and Are Chased In Turn.

PRETORIA, July 20.—After advancing north Wednesday General Hamilton's column turned eastward. Grobler's commando, which fell back northward before the British advance, followed General Hamilton when he turned east and harassed his rear. The Boers evidently intend to avoid fighting any pitched battle, but to bother the British as much as possible by guerrilla tactics.

The prisoners taken at Moselikatze nek have been sent to Balmoral. A sergeant who had been captured made an attempt to escape. He hid behind a house, but was later discovered by a field cornet. The sergeant had secured a revolver, and he shot the field cornet dead. The Boers, however, heard the shots, surrounded the sergeant and recaptured him.

Three trainloads of indigent Boer families whose male members are away with their commandoes were sent to General Botha's camp yesterday.

Cardinal Satolli's Elevation.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—It is learned from an official source that Cardinal Francis Satolli, the first papal delegate to this country, 1893-97, has been appointed prefect of the propaganda by Pope Leo XIII. This news reached here yesterday direct from Rome, where Mgr. Satolli has resided since leaving Washington three years ago. It has been tacitly understood among his acquaintances for some time that he would reach the highest station by reason of his marked executive ability.

To Entertain Cuban Teachers.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 20.—Henry Lee Higginson, one of the leaders in the movement of raising a fund to defray the expenses of the visit of the Cuban teachers to Harvard, has invited the Cubans to be his guests at his summer home at Beverly Farms, Mass., and next Wednesday about 50 of the teachers will take advantage of the invitation. Other Cubans will take the trip at later dates. Superintendent of Schools Frye stated yesterday that the health of the Cubans was excellent.

Fifty Miners Lost.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 20.—The transport Athenian, from St. Michael's July 3, reports the loss of 50 miners from Dawson. They had come down the Yukon in small boats and not being familiar with the stream had taken the southern passage, which empties into Bering sea and is exceedingly dangerous and difficult. Revenue laaunches have been sent out from St. Michael's to search these waters for the missing people.

President Returns to Canton.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—After a stay of two days in the city, during which he has had several consultations with his cabinet on the Chinese situation, the president started back for Canton last night, taking the 7:45 express on the Pennsylvania railroad. With him also went Secretary Cortelyou, Colonel Webb C. Hayes and Mr. William Barber, the president's nephew. They occupied the private car Grassmere.

Fishing Vessels Ice Bound.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 20.—The latest reports show that the strait of Belle Isle is still blocked with icefloes. Almost 1,000 fishing vessels are ice bound and unable to reach the Labrador fishing grounds. As some 30,000 fisherfolk are involved in this and in the failure of the fishery the most disastrous results are likely to ensue.

Governor Allen Goes to Boston.

NEW YORK, July 20.—The United States converted yacht Mayflower, having on board Governor Allen of Porto Rico, who has just returned from Canton, O., where he met the president, sailed last evening for Boston, passing out by Sandy Hook at 7:28 o'clock.

BECKHAM MEN WIN.

Governor Controls Kentucky Democratic Convention.

SENATOR BLACKBURN TURNED DOWN.

Had Been Chairman of Resolutions Committee For Many Years—Big Demonstration Over Unveiling of Goebel's Portrait.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 20.—The Democratic state convention for the purpose of nominating a candidate for governor was called to assemble at the Auditorium at Woodland Park at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when the convention was to be called to order by Allie W. Young of Rowan county, chairman of the state executive committee. The opposition rallied around Frank Peake of Shelby county, whom they pitted against Judge J. E. Robbins of Graves county, the candidate of Governor Beckham's faction.

The Beckham men claimed to have organized at least seven of the 11 congressional districts, with two in doubt. Their most notable work was in the Seventh district, where Senator Blackburn was defeated for member of the committee on resolutions. The senator has been chairman of this committee many years.

A heavy rain fell for some time before the convention was called to order at 2:30 p. m. It blew into the large pavilion and especially over the stage where the officers of the convention, reporters and others were well saturated.

A portrait of the late Governor William Goebel hanging over the platform was unveiled at 2:15 and caused an enthusiastic demonstration.

Chairman Young of the state central committee called the convention to order and called for nominations for temporary chairman. Judge J. E. Robbins and E. Frank Peake were presented.

Attorney General Breckinridge in presenting the name of Peake referred to the troubles in Kentucky, and there were cries of "Hurrah for Goebel!" and repeated demonstrations for the dead leader. There were numerous seconding speeches before the counties were called on to ballot.

There were disputes as to the announcements of the votes, and finally Chairman Young ruled against the unit rule. He declared that a delegate could vote as he saw fit, regardless of unit rules or other instructions. Before the ballot was completed it was evident that Judge Robbins was the winner, but the Peake men continued to vote. Before the result of the ballot was announced, but not until all the 119 counties had been called, the name of Peake was withdrawn, and Robbins was selected as chairman by acclamation. The actual ballot was: Robbins, 646; Peake, 426. This result was greeted with a great demonstration by the Beckham men.

Judge Robbins was escorted to the platform and spoke at some length. Colonel Peake, who was chairman of the committee that escorted Judge Robbins to the platform and introduced the chairman, also spoke at length. After the usual committees had been appointed the convention took a recess until 8:30 p. m.

American Athletes Handicapped.

PARIS, July 20.—The manner in which the American athletes have been sweeping the field in the international games in connection with the Paris exposition opened the eyes of the organizers, and the result was shown in the handicapping yesterday, which practically left the Americans out in the cold. The effect upon the Americans was demonstrated by the fact that, whereas on the previous days they had secured four-fifths of the games, yesterday out of nine events they captured only one first, with four seconds and five thirds.

Poisoned by a Snake.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 20.—Two boys, one of whom was William Buckley, 12 years of age, living at Wings Station, Dutchess county, were playing in a lot a few days ago, when one of the boys discovered a copperhead snake. He picked it up on the end of a stick and tossed it to Buckley, who, supposing it to be an eel, caught it in his hands. The reptile bit the boy's hands several times before it could be shaken off. Now young Buckley is very low with blood poisoning and is not expected to recover.

Bristow's Report.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow on the Cuban postal frauds was submitted to Postmaster General Charles Emory Smith late yesterday. The latter left here early this morning for Atlantic City and carried the report with him. It will be made public soon after his return on Monday. There will be two reports submitted by Mr. Bristow. The one just completed relates to the frauds committed by postal officials in Cuba.

Fifty Missionaries Safe.

NASHVILLE, July 20.—A cablegram has been received from Shanghai by the mission board of the Southern Presbyterian church announcing the safety of 50 of its 56 missionaries. They are at Shanghai and in Japan. The six still at their stations are Rev. J. L. Stuart and wife, who have been in China for 30 years at Kudin; Rev. George W. Painter and Miss E. B. French at Hangchow; Rev. J. B. Pear and wife at Chinkiang.

Big Purchase of Timber Lands.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 20.—The largest and most important purchase of Adirondack lands made this year has been closed by C. H. Turner of Malone. It comprises a whole township in Franklin county and consists of 26,000 acres, with the mill on it. It cost $250,000. The mill is turning out 15,000,000 feet of lumber yearly. There is 145,000,000 feet on the tract uncut. Mr. Turner now holds 55,000 acres of Adirondack lands.

The New Cruisers.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The important features of the new protected cruisers authorized by the last congress were agreed upon at a meeting of the board of naval chiefs. It was determined that the boats shall have 22 knots speed, not exceeding 9,500 tons displacement, with a capacity for carrying 1,500 tons of coal and batteries consisting of sixteen 6 inch rapid fire guns.

Cut by Mowing Machine.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 20.—Henry Sisson, a farmer of Cokertown, Dutchess county, 78 years old, was thrown from his mowing machine and caught in the knives. His right leg was cut off, and he was lacerated so badly that he is expected to die.

DOLLAR for dollar, pound for pound, there is more in Ivory Soap than in any household soap. It is easy to find a cheap soap; but to find purity and low price in a single soap is not easy. They combine in Ivory Soap. You can afford to use it in the laundry; you can not afford not to use it elsewhere. It is vegetable-oil soap, in the cheapest form in which it can be procured. You pay nothing for a fancy box, wrapper or perfume. It is all in the soap! It floats.

REPORTS CONFLICT.

Chinese Still Assert Legations Are Safe.

POWERS WITHOUT PLAN OF ACTION.

Li Hung Chang Accused of Being the Originator of the Whole Anti-foreign Plot—Further Details of Peking Massacre.

LONDON, July 20.—"The Washington idea of sending Mr. Rockhill to China," says The Standard editorially this morning, "is an excellent one and might advantageously be imitated by the British and other governments." The Standard then proceeds to comment upon the great ignorance prevalent in Europe not only of recent events, but of Chinese affairs generally.

The cabinet council convened by Lord Salisbury yesterday came a day earlier than usual, and it is expected that it will be followed by a statement in parliament throwing light upon the situation. The Chinese assertions that the members of the foreign legations are still safe have been so often repeated that they are again beginning to raise hopes in some quarters. According to The Daily Telegraph's St. Petersburg correspondent, however, the Russian government is already in possession of definite news that all the foreigners in Peking were massacred on July 6.

M. Delcasse's circular only goes to prove that so far the powers have failed to arrive at any concerted plan of action.

M. DE GIERS.
[Russia's minister to China.]

The Daily Express publishes the following from Chefu, dated yesterday:

"The Russians are hard pressed around Niu-chwang and have been expelled from Tien-chwang-tai, the scene of the great fight during the Chino-Japanese war, where they have sustained heavy losses.

"They have also been compelled to abandon Tashichau by a large body of Boxers and armed peasants. Here again the Russians lost heavily, but it is reported that they succeeded in killing 700 of their assailants. The Chinese have completely demolished the railway north of Tashichau. The Russians are now on Niu-chwang."

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express says:

"Intense indignation is felt here at the honors which the British in Hongkong have accorded to Li Hung Chang, who is looked upon in Shanghai as the originator of the whole fiendish antiforeign plot.

"A Chinese merchant who has just arrived from Peking gives horrible details of the massacre. He says he saw European women hauled into the street by shrieking Boxers, who stripped them and hacked them to pieces. Their dissevered limbs were tossed to the crowd and carried off with howls of triumph. Some were already dead, having been shot by foreign civilians.

"He says he saw Chinese soldiers carrying the bodies of white children aloft on their spears, while their companions shot at the bodies. He gives other details too horrible to be particularized here.

"It seems that the Boxer leaders had organized a plan including the offering of rewards and rich loot for the annihilation of Europeans throughout China and that Prince Tuan's generals have been emphasizing the opportunity the soldiers have of seizing the bodies of white women."

The Russians, according to the latest news from St. Petersburg, have now completely defeated the Chinese and have occupied Blagovestchensk, capital of the Amur government, with a large force. Since General Gribski (not Gribovski), chief of staff at Port Arthur, has taken over the supreme command in Manchuria re-enforcements have been rapidly pushed up, and the general situation has been greatly improved.

The Russian minister of the interior has issued a notice that the Siberian railway is closed to private traffic. There is little doubt that the Russian authorities were not prepared for such an organized Chinese movement in Manchuria, but they have taken brisk measures, and they believe that China will soon be too much preoccupied with military operations around Peking to conduct serious operations in the north.

The Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent says:

"Advices from Vladivostok state that the Chinese invasion of eastern Siberia has stopped the Russian advance from the north on Peking. The Russians have burned the Chinese town of Helampo and are adopting very vigorous measures."

Berlin telegrams dwell upon the immense German interests in southeastern Siberia. They say that the many German merchants, the numerous German employees and the immense stores of merchandise belonging to Germans in that territory will compel Germany to co-operate with Russia in resisting the Chinese.

General Sir Arthur Power Palmer, commander in chief in India, said in the course of an interview in Simla yesterday that no more British troops could be sent from India for China unless they could be replaced from South Africa.

LEGATIONS SAFE.

Li Hung Chang, at Hongkong, Makes That Assertion.

KONGKONG, July 20.—Li Hung Chang and his suit arrived here Wednesday evening and landed the following morning. The Chinese viceroy was received with a salute of 17 guns and with a guard of honor from the Welsh fusileers and a band proceeded to the government house, where he was received by the governor, Sir Henry A. Blake, Generals Gaselee and Barrow and other officials.

Li Hung Chang was extremely reticent. He stated that he had received definite news that the ministers and foreigners at Peking, with the exception of Baron von Ketteler, the German minister, were safe July 8.

The imperial edict recalling him to Peking, the viceroy said, was due to the empress and emperor and not to Prince Tuan.

Governor Blake exerted all possible power to induce Li Hung Chang to remain in Canton, but the Chinese viceroy proceeded, ostensibly for Shanghai city. The governor of Canton is regarded as an exceptionally weak official, and the natives fear he will never succeed in maintaining order.

Transports with a portion of the Bengal lancers, a native field hospital and Generals Gaselee and Barrow proceeded to Taku. The deck protected cruiser Dido has gone to Woo-sung.

COLLISION ON ELEVATED ROAD.

Brooklyn the Scene of a Wreck Which Resulted Fatally.

NEW YORK, July 20.—A collision resulting in the loss of the life of one man, the slight injury of several passengers and a general panic occurred shortly after 6 o'clock last night on the Fifth avenue branch of the Brooklyn Elevated road near the Fulton street station. A train of five cars pulled out of the station and had come to a standstill on a curve because of some disarrangement of the electrical apparatus of the motor car. Walter H. Young, 40 years old, crawled under the car to see if he could locate the trouble. Two other guards also went under the car for the same purpose. A Rockaway Beach train came thundering along and crashed into the standing train with terrific force. The entire train was pushed ahead for several feet, and the wheels of the car underneath which Young was passed over him, severing his right arm at the shoulder and otherwise mangling him so badly that he died in a short time.

The force of the collision stove in the rear of the last car of the stalled train, which was crowded with passengers, it being just in the midst of the rush hours. A panic ensued. All the passengers were thrown from their seats to the floor of the car, and a number were cut by flying glass, besides being badly bruised and shaken up. Engineer Marshall was placed under arrest.

COMING EVENTS.

July 22—F. H. Martin and Orpheus Club at Y. M. C. A. meeting, 4:15 p. m. Mrs. Ensign Jones will sing with guitar accompaniment.

A Deciding Factor.

A new interest will gather about the doings of the Common Council for the next few meetings. At the meeting of the Council Wednesday night Frank B. Randolph was elected to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Frank H. Smith. He was elected without opposition. The week before there was a deadlock in the Council on that very question, five members supporting Randolph and five others Winfield S. Angleman. The division of that municipal body was on the same lines that have been noticed heretofore, except that Councilman Craig was on the other side. The fact that the five Councilmen, including presumably Mr. Craig, as he was the one who presented Mr. Angleman's name, supported Randolph at Wednesday's meeting, is significant. Something happened to change their minds.

In the Common Council this year there are two factions. One is chiefly composed of the representatives of the First and Fourth wards and is commonly spoken of as being in the "machine" and is given credit by some with being dominated more or less by certain "influences." The other faction is simply opposed to the "influences."

As the balloting for the new Councilman was secret it is impossible to say who voted for which candidate. It can be assumed, however, without much chance of error, that the "opposition," so called, gave its support to Mr. Angleman. Not many years ago Mr. Angleman was nominated and ran on the Citizens' ticket against the regular Republican candidate for City Judge. Criticism from Republicans inevitably followed the presentation of his name as a Republican member of the Council. But Mr. Randolph's name was advanced by the other faction. The opposition feared that he was a tool of the "influences." So he was opposed.

The opposition faction inquired into the opinions of the proposed Councilman. It is said that they found him independent of any outside influence and a good man for the place. They were satisfied so the name of Mr. Angleman was withdrawn and the Council unanimously elected Mr. Randolph to membership.

So Mr. Randolph's acts in the Council will be watched with unusual interest. He holds the balance of power. On some questions the two factions seem strongly opposed to each other. They stand five to five now. Mr. Randolph's vote is going to be the deciding one. If he votes for the best interests of the city, on which ever side it is, the action of the Council in making him a part of it will be proven satisfactory.

An interesting compilation of the number of persons killed and injured on the railroads of the United States during the year ending June 30, 1899, has been made by the Interstate Commerce Commission. During the twelve months 7,123 persons were killed and 44,620 injured, a total of 51,743 casualties. In summarizing the accidents it is found that one out of every 420 employes of railroads was killed, and one out of every twenty-seven was injured. Of trainmen, engine drivers, firemen, conductors, etc., one out of every 155 was killed, and one out of every eleven injured. One passenger for every 2,189,020 carried was killed and one injured out of every 151,998 carried. During the year 289 passengers were killed and 3,442 were injured. Ratios based upon the number of miles traveled show that 61,051,580 passenger miles were accomplished for each passenger killed, and 4,239,200 passenger miles accomplished for each passenger injured.

Those cynics who think that it is an easy and money-making proposition to run a newspaper ought to ponder over the following item: "Arthur Pearson, whose Daily Express is London's latest daily morning paper, informed the public recently that he was losing $1,220 a day on it; that the cost of the plant and of the preliminary work made the first issue worth $500,000; that to establish the Express will cost $1,250,000 and two years of very hard work, and that the next person who wants to establish a daily paper in London must spend about $2,500,000.

There is an immense and constantly growing number of people who read the advertising columns of the newspaper before starting out to buy things, says the Philadelphia Record. Many of them have no opportunity to study window displays or to examine a large variety of goods over the counter. The advertiser who tells them from day to day what he has that is new benefits both himself and prospective purchasers.

The Syracuse Post-Standard, after summarizing the Chinese horrors, says: "Surely there can be no Democrats and no Republicans, no expansionists and no anti-imperialists among us in the consideration of this state of things. We are all Americans on this topic, and all of us behind the President demanding the rescue of the survivors, if there are any, and the fullest vengeance upon the murderers."

The London newspapers while treating of the recent steamship burning have had great trouble in locating the position of Hoboken and in determining whether it was a town, a river, a mountain or a State. It is something they never heard of before. The London Daily Chronicle contents itself with this: "Among the higher classes in New York there are thousands who have never been in Hoboken."

Those distressed young women whose hearts have been sinking under the alarming statement that the new census shows that there are 300,000 more females than males in New Jersey may pluck up heart of grace again. As a matter of fact, the females only outnumber the males by 3,295, and as there are three old maids from choice to one old bachelor, the number of marriageable women is really less than the number of marriageable men. It is the latter who must hustle if they don't want to get left in the matrimonial race.—New York Herald.

Gentlemen:—Our family realize so much from the use of GRAIN-O that I feel I must say a word to induce others to use it. If people are interested in their health and the welfare of their children they will use no other beverage. I have used them all but GRAIN-O I have found superior to any, for the reason that it is solid grain.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

With all its churches and many visiting clergymen, there are none of the missionaries supposed to have been murdered in Pekin who are well known in this city. There are some Plainfielders who have met several of the missing missionaries, however. Plainfield has entertained many of the leading Christian workers now in foreign fields and listened to talks from others. There are several Plainfielders who are now working in the foreign mission fields. Several of the New Jersey cities have representatives in China whose safety is greatly endangered and whose lives may have already been taken. It is rather strange that Plainfield has not the occasion for special personal interest in the troubles there, as there are few of the important events of this period, which affect any great number of people, in which some Plainfielder, or one well known here, is not included.

* * * * *

Residents of New Brunswick are furiously indignant over the removal of a historic old pump, and there are breakers ahead for the person responsible for it. The man who took the pump up said he was doing it with authority. The police knew of the authority and would not interfere. No one implicated in the tearing up of the pump would give the source of his authority, and as it was a city pump merchants and pedestrians had to stand by and see the ancient landmark, the friend of their boyhood days, torn up simply because one man who has a relative who is related to an Alderman did not like to see the children play at the old pump. A certain merchant who disliked to see the children at play tried to have the pump removed last year. The citizens raised a strong objection, local papers pounded right and left, the cry was "Council, spare the pump," and it was saved. Without a word of warning yesterday morning, however, the pump was dragged up. The Pump Committee seems not to know anything about it, and as no resolution has been passed by the present Council the residents are rightly indignant. Late yesterday afternoon a canvas sign was placed on the site of the pump bearing the inscription "The workingman's friend has gone."

SUMMER GOWNS.

Foulard For Everybody In All Styles and Colors.

Foulard is immensely worn. It is light, thin and cool and, moreover, is remarkably well suited to the soft, flaring style of dress now fashionable. According to its decoration and color, it may form a simple costume or one of great elegance and elaboration. Applications of guipure are much employed as a trimming for it. There are many varieties of foulard—plain colors ornamented with lace applications and embroidery and others covered with all sorts of designs, for which mousseline de soie is usually the preferred decoration. The most generally useful kind of foulard is that having white dots or figures on a dark blue ground. It is worn by girls and women of all ages, the design chosen and the style of making and trimming sufficing to adapt it to individuals.

Fichus, pelerines and berthas are much in favor this summer, and the upper part of the bodice is decorated with much care.

The picture shows a traveling gown of brick red cloth. The skirt has rows of white stitching around the foot and is trimmed with lengthwise straps corded with white cloth. These straps fasten the top of the plaits, which expand at the foot. The tight bodice has a short basque, ornamented with white stitching and straps corded with white. The revers of white cloth have straps of red cloth upon them, and the vest is of white cloth, fastening with small dull gold buttons. The tight sleeves have straps at the wrists. Over the shoulders is a triple pelerine bordered with stitching and cords of white cloth. A linen collar and black satin cravat are worn. The beige straw hat is trimmed with red and white plaid ribbon and red feathers with white spots.

SUMMER FABRICS.

Gauzes, Wools and Cotton Materials of the Thinnest.

The embroidered gauzes shown this year are marvels of artistic beauty. Immense flowers—orchids, irises, roses and others—are seen or garlands of smaller blossoms of the pompadour type, all in delicate shades of the natural colors. Nothing is more pleasing, especially for summer, than these floral designs, and similar patterns are seen printed on silk, linen and cotton fabrics. Fine batiste in particular shows some exquisite painted effects of this sort, and nothing could be prettier for country gowns, peignoirs, dressing sacks, etc. Lace and ribbons are the appropriate trimming.

Among the most pleasing of summer gowns of wool materials are those of worsted voile, with incrustations of guipure. They are often worn over a silk lining of a contrasting color and are comparatively inexpensive, although having an effect of elegance.

The picture given today illustrates a gown of white dotted muslin. The skirt is trimmed with bands of bise guipure, which outline the tablier and ornament the lower half of the skirt. The blouse bodice, also ornamented with insertion, closes at the side under a plaited scarf of turquoise liberty satin, with choux of the same material. The top of the bodice is cut square, without a collar, and edged with insertion. The sleeves, trimmed with insertion, are transparent, and the belt is of turquoise satin. The toque of turquoise blue spangled tulle is trimmed with yellow roses.

"Last March when I started taking Ripans Tabules I was a very sick man," he says. "I was suffering from dyspepsia and catarrh of the stomach. There was nothing I took that seemed to help me, and I continued to get worse. I had no appetite, and what food I did eat would not digest. I could not sleep nights, and at times it seemed to me I would go crazy with the terrible headache from which I suffered. I commenced to get better right away after I began to take the Tabules. My appetite is now very good and I can eat anything and it don't distress me. The headache has disappeared. I sleep good at night. In fact, I feel like a different man. I can't say enough in praise of Ripans Tabules, and I mean to keep a supply on hand. I am a veteran and a member of the G. A. R. My age is fifty-one years. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 22—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

TOPIC.—The needy at our door.—Luke xvi, 19-31.

The parable of the rich man and Lazarus is the most striking and solemn parable of Christ and the one where most of all caution must be exercised in its study and interpretation. It deals with the future life, of course, in figurative language, and the task of distinguishing between figure and reality is a very delicate one. Yet some great truths, relieved of all of the dress of the parable, stand out clearly and prominently. The preceding language of Christ proves conclusively that this parable is a warning against the service of Mammon and intended to show that we cannot serve both God and Mammon. The rich man was not condemned because he was rich, but because he placed his riches in the place of God. He served Mammon rather than God; he served his money rather than using it in the service of his God. He evidently was an unbeliever in a future. He had not repented. He lived a selfish, worldly life, as is proved by his neglect even of a poor, needy beggar at his very door. Christ's references to the future, relieved of all figures, teach plainly three tremendous truths:

1. The conscious existence of both saved and unsaved. There is no annihilation in this parable even of the wicked. 2. The punishment of the lost is positive and severe. 3. Future punishment is of eternal duration. These may be hard and unpleasant truths, but they are here and taught by one who knew and by the most tender and compassionate of all human beings. Instead of trying to explain them away or of ignoring them because they are unpleasant let us profit by them and by trust in God through Christ escape from the wrath to come.

Besides dealing with such great and tremendous truths this parable has some suggestive lessons on the treatment of the needy at our door. The first question to be solved is, Are those at our doors needy? Every beggar who appears at our doors is not a Lazarus. Indiscriminate charity usually does more harm than good. This topic and this illustration are not to be taken so literally as to demand of us a response from every pretended needy one who appears before us. The vast majority of the beggars at our doors today are frauds and impostors. They ask for money to buy bread, but they intend to buy beer. They tell piteous stories of woe and suffering which would melt a heart of stone if they were true, but they are not true. But the truly needy, whether their needs be temporal or spiritual, have peculiar demands upon us. Neglect of these is an index of a character that is not Christian. Neglect of these will result in our arraignment before God. God will hold us responsible for the opportunities to do good which He places before us. As the walls of Jerusalem were built by each one doing the work opposite his door, so may we satisfy the temporal and spiritual wants of the needy at our doors.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have the pastor read and expound this important parable. Then have a free and voluntary discussion of the phase of it suggested by the topic.

BIBLE READINGS.

Ps. xxxiv, 6; xli, 1-3; Eccl. ix, 10; Isa. xli, 17-20; Math. x, 41, 42; xxv, 31-46; Luke x, 25-37; I Cor. xv, 58; Gal. vi, 9, 10; Heb. xiii, 1-3.

Dignity In the Pulpit.

The pulpit is not a place for amusement. Such things disgrace the church and lower the dignity of the preacher. Seriousness, solemnity, dignity and good common sense are prerequisites for the man of God who speaks to dying men. Men and women ordinarily go to church for comfort, consolation and encouragement. They prefer to have their consciences keenly aroused and their hatred to sin and their love for righteousness awakened to the point of appreciation of the evil of the first and their love for the other intensified. All this cry about separation from and lack of sympathy for the poor is the veriest trash. Here and there some one may wish to exclude the poor from the magnificent church of which he is a member, but he in no sense interprets the minds of a vast majority of his fellow members. The church of today is the best friend the poor man has, and the wonder is he does not know it.—Philadelphia Methodist.

Sweet Hour of Prayer.

In a world where there is so much to ruffle the spirit's plumes, how needful that entering into the secret of His pavilion, which will alone bring it back to composure and peace. In a world where there is so much to sadden and depress, how blessed that communion with Him in whom is the one true source and fountain of all true gladness and abiding joy. In a world where so much is ever seeking to unhallow spirits, to render them common and profane, how high the privilege of consecrating them anew in prayer to holiness and to God.—Richard Chenevix Trench.

Too Little Activity.

It is now discovered that the decrease of members and conversions comes from too much contemplation and devotion and too little activity. Further investigation will show that real devotion and good deeds are always joined together, and where one is lacking both are. It is the devoted people that are stirring things. It is those who contemplate God and self and sinners who are working.—Christian Standard.

The Passport to Success.

Courtesy is the passport to success. We double the power of our life when we add to its gifts unfailing courtesy. The world always begrudges room to a boor.—Universalist Leader.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Topic For the Week Beginning July 22, "The Needy at Our Door." Text, Luke xvi, 19-31.

"There was a certain beggar which was laid at his gate full of sores."

The rich man was not blamed for being rich. Nor is any condemnation expressed because he wore good clothing and lived in ease.

The poor man was not saved because he was a beggar, nor because he was sick; not even because he failed to get pity from the rich man and gained only the sympathy of the dogs of the street.

The truth here taught is not that privations here shall bring fullness and luxury hereafter and riches here shall bring misery eternal. The present is not to be balanced against the future in any such scheme of compensation.

The misery of the rich man after the loss of his earthly clothing and sumptuous fare was most natural. He had taken pleasure in luxury and been at no expense of sensuous enjoyment to cultivate any faculties higher. The beggar at his gate did not move him to compassion. The sight of misery never prompted him to share his goods with another. He cared only to fare sumptuously himself regardless how others might fare. Loss of his earthly goods left him nothing to enjoy since he had no capacity to get pleasure from any other source.

Lazarus had never tasted the comforts of earthly existence. What pleasure he did extract from living had to be of a kind different from sensuous enjoyment. Soul virtues and heart qualities he could cultivate and patience he did develop. He was carried by angels to Abraham's bosom because that was the only place for him. He was at home there.

The lesson here is the same in fact as that enforced in the previous parable of the unjust steward. Make friends for eternity out of your opportunities in time. Cultivate qualities of your nature, which shall yield blessing after the things of time and sense depart. The ladder reaches to heaven, but it rests on earth. What you will be and have hereafter depends on what you are here and what you acquire which will endure.

Making God's Will Our Own.

You may hold up your lantern before the man who was born blind till the end of life and it will not cause him to see. But let Christ open his eyes and then hold up your light and he will not need you to lead him by the hand. This is the way in which sinners are to be saved. No mere man can save them by any moral or spiritual influence of his own. Yet, as coworkers with Christ, His followers are required to use all the appointed means of salvation in the faith that they will be blessed of God. God's people are required to work out their own salvation with fear and trembling just because it is God that worketh in them to will and to do of His own good pleasure. How pleasant is the thought that in our feebleness we have the Almighty One working in us and the All Wise One directing and managing all for His own ends! When men work under Him and work with Him, how can they ever fail? A thousand plans of their own may fail, but not one of His ever yet failed. If, therefore, we say, in all sincerity and truth, "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven," making God's will our own, we shall never fail in anything we undertake.—Christian Instructor.

What Can I Do?

That is the first question an officer usually asks after having been elected to a new position. Many times the retiring officer answers: "Oh, you can't do much. No one expects much here in our League and from one in your place."

That is all a mistake and a bad one also. An election to office is a call to learn the work and fit oneself to do the work of that office. If there are no duties but to have the name, better abolish the office as soon as possible. Look over the situation carefully and see what the church and young people need which can be supplied by your department. Find out what is being done in other chapters, prayerfully consider the resources available in your own locality, the time, strength and energy you can afford to expend in the effort, then lay your plans, enlist co-operation and compel success. "What can I do?" With God's help I can do all which should be done.

The Path of Safety.

Following Christ is the path of safety and success in life. Amid the temptations and distracting cares and competing interests of the world, amid the multiplicity of paths and confusion of voices that would deceive and mislead us, we need ever to look unto Him and keep in His footprints. He will lead us through penitence, purity and peace, through truth and trust, righteousness and reverence, service and sacrifice, prayer and worship, safely through the tangled paths and seductive allurements of this world through the gate into the eternal city.—Presbyterian Banner.

The Spiritual Atmosphere.

The strictures that men put upon the Christian religion are often due to the fact that they study the incident. Biography becomes a single page and life the tick of a watch. The patch upon the garment is mistaken for a suit of clothes. One may be a genius in certain directions and a fool as a theological critic. Spiritual truths are seen through an atmosphere peculiar to themselves.—Presbyterian Journal.

The joy, the duty and, I venture to add, the end of life—I speak only of this world, of course, and the teachings of this world—is in living.—Judge O. W. Holmes.

AN EXTRAORDINARY CRIME.

The Victim Put Where Her Story of It Was Taken for Insane Talk.

In the month of December last, says the Mexican Herald, an elegantly dressed man presented himself to the governor of the district and solicited the admittance of his aunt, a lady whose name, he said, was Mrs. Aurelia Granados de Jaimes, into the insane asylum for women in Canoa street. He said that she had lost her mind and that, as there was no one to look after her, he was afraid that some accident might happen to her. The governor issued the permit and the lady was admitted into the hospital.

The lady was not violently crazy, but she complained to the doctors of a pain in her head and she was constantly saying that a man had driven a nail into her head. The attendants of the asylum paid no attention to this statement, as it was thought to be a part of her ravings.

The lady gradually got worse and died.

Dr. Alberto Lopez Hermosa, director of the asylum, and Dr. Francisco, de P. Echeverria, assistant director, believing that the lady's case had been a peculiar one, examined her cranium after death and made a sort of preliminary autopsy. To their astonishment they found in the region of the right temple the head of a steel wire nail, which proved to be about eight centimeters in length. The flesh had almost cicatrized over the nail's head and the latter was hardly visible.

THE NEW BOY.

His Training Is One More Advance Toward the Reversal of Sex Occupation.

The new boy is of later origin than the new woman, says a lady writer who has discovered him. He can make his own bed, sew buttons on his own clothing, cook his own breakfast or wash the dishes, and is not considered a "sissy" for so doing. He can carry on successfully a bachelor establishment for his father and himself, make out the menus, hire the domestics and even do his part socially without losing his place among the first six in school.

The new boy is the result of a growing belief among mothers and educators that domestic training is just as good for boys as for girls. They argue that a domestic trained boy makes the best kind of a husband, and that the brother that is obliged occasionally to make his own bed or boil an egg will not look down on his sister for doing these same things. Also, that the girl who can use her brother's kit of tools will no longer consider him a superior being because the tools are his property rather than hers. Again, the advocates of domestic training for boys say that, while there will always be a division of occupations in the family, as in society, there is this difference in the family, that in those occupations which relate to the common life there ought to be a common performance else the division of labor will result in a division of feeling and of thought.

NO LONGER A "MAVERICK."

A Newly Converted Little Girl's Odd Explanation of the Baptismal Service.

Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, giving his experiences as "A Missionary in the Great West," in Ladies' Home Journal, tells of the baptism of a little daughter of a big cattle owner in Indian territory: "In our baptismal service we sign those who are baptized with the sign of the cross," he explains, "and when the little girl returned to school after the baptism the children pressed her with hard questions, desiring to know what that man with the 'nightgown' on had done, and if she were now any different from what she had been before. She tried to tell them that she had been made 'a member of Christ, the child of God, and an inheritor of the Kingdom of Heaven,' but did not succeed in expressing the situation very well, and they pressed her for a clearer explanation. Finally, when she had exhausted every other effort, she turned on them, her eyes flashing through her tears. 'Well,' she said, lapsing into the vernacular, 'I will tell you. I was a little 'maverick' before, and the man put Jesus' brand on my forehead, and when He sees me running wild on the prairie He will know that I am His girl.'"

A LITTLE-KNOWN PAINTING.

Painted by Rosa Bonheur—Hangs on the Wall of a Nebraska Ranch.

Rosa Bonheur painted one picture which is little known, and which has never been exhibited, says the Boston Globe. It hangs on the wall of a ranch near North Platte, Neb.

During the Paris exposition of 1899, Buffalo Bill took the wild west show to the French capital for the entire season. One of the most constant visitors to the exhibition was Rosa Bonheur. Several mornings each week she would appear at the camp with easel and color box and make studies of the horses, buffalo and Indians, afterward lunching in camp and making friends with "all hands."

To the working up of these studies the last years of her life were largely devoted. One of her pictures of Indian life was sold in London for $65,000 just prior to her death. At this time Rosa Bonheur made studies from life of Col. Cody and his famous white horse Tucker, from which she painted the picture here referred to and presented it to the doughty colonel.

Our Agricultural Interests at the Paris Exposition

The Corn Kitchen and Other Features Are Attracting Much Attention from Visitors

EVERY visitor to the Paris exposition comments on the elaborate displays made by the United States in every department. And well they may, for there is no other foreign nation represented inside the gates that has prepared such an elaborate exhibit as America.

There is probably as much or more interest taken in the agricultural exhibits from America as the exhibits in other departments of the fair. This interest is shown by every class of visitor unless one excepts the society people of Paris. As yet there has been but a small attendance of the peasant classes from the nations of Europe, but the few that I have seen within the grounds have turned to the American agricultural exhibit and examined it with care. To these people America is still the land of plenty, of glorious possibilities, of free homes. The land to which relatives or friends have gone and prospered. To them the agricultural exhibits are directly in their line of thought, and they view with wonder the products of the soil.

I have watched them and wondered if this exhibit would not tend to increase the immigration to our shores of these European peasant classes. Will they not put forth greater efforts to reach a land where such products as we are displaying at this great exposition is possible?

Of all our agricultural exhibits none is proving more popular than the corn kitchen. It is located on the third floor of the agricultural building, and is in charge of one of the most expert cooks that could be found. Here is a reproduction of an American New England kitchen, all sorts of foods made from corn are prepared and served free. Corn cakes, muffins, puddings and a host of other goods made from this grain are cooked and baked, the idea being to show the many attractive dishes that can be made from corn.

In appearance this corn kitchen is a building within itself, and as I have looked at it I thought how well it would have appeared on the outside of the big building in which it is situated, but it is serving its purpose quite well as it is. When the great fair is over I should like to know just how many people have been fed at this kitchen, how many bushels of corn have been consumed, for as yet no one has been turned away without some of the dainty morsels prepared from our American corn, and should we keep up this record the numbers fed will run well into the millions before the fair is over.

Aside from the impression our agricultural exhibits are making on the few of the peasant classes who have visited the exposition, our agricultural products are attracting attention from the importers of the old world. These men who buy for Europe are investigating carefully our agricultural resources and comparing our products with those of other selling nations, much to our advantage, I believe, and it is to be expected that our exhibits will be the means of increasing our exports of agricultural products.

The Parisians are above all things judges of wine and fashions, and if they approve of our vineyard products we should feel highly gratified at the success we have achieved. This exhibit is the feature of the government agricultural exhibit, and into it certain people are invited for the purpose of sampling the products of our wine presses. Great discretion is exercised in selecting visitors to sample these wines, and only such as are apt to prove importers and buyers of the beverages are asked to taste them.

But to go back to the more strictly agricultural interests of the country. It is expected that this exposition will prove of inestimable value to the farming interests of America, because of the demand that our exhibits will produce for American-grown products. With this idea in view everything possible has been done to show the excellence of American wheat, corn, rye and other cereal products, while equal attention has been given to displaying the best of our apples, pears and other fruits. It is believed that the Paris exposition presents a splendid opportunity to make all Europe well acquainted with the possibilities of this country as a grain and fruit producer. The agricultural department has gone into the present exhibition with the sole idea of helping the farming and export interests, and it is believed that as a result of this exhibition a large foreign demand will be created for many of our goods which are now kept entirely at home.

THE AMERICAN CORN KITCHEN AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION.

Commissioner General Peck assured me that the preliminary work of selecting specimens for Paris was begun nearly a year ago. The department designated certain farmers in various parts of the country to furnish samples for Paris. These men were selected on account of their reputations as expert growers and producers of fine fruits and grains. In this way the department was assured of the very best specimens that could be produced, and in many instances the fruits were grown with the special idea in view of having them exhibited at Paris. The agricultural department has had charge of the installation of 1,400 collective exhibits at Paris. These goods have been furnished by the various agricultural men throughout the country, and have been arranged in the various buildings as our commissioners thought best. Commissioner Peck allotted space to 400 individual exhibitors, who shipped and installed at their own expense displays of fine agricultural products and various types of farming implements.

The exhibit in charge of the government officials is very extensive and includes wheat and corn in all stages of growth, as well as large quantities of the ripened grain, samples of which are furnished for personal inspection. There is also a comprehensive exhibit of all varieties of vegetable food products, including rye, barley, rice, millet, beans, peas, beets. The dairy interests are also fully represented and there are samples of American cheese, butter and preserved milk. The inedible agricultural products include cotton, flax, hemp, fats, oils, etc.

SPORTING.

GOLF

After the match game between the Hillside and Glen Ridge teams on the Hillside course tomorrow afternoon, there will be no scheduled events on the course until September 3d, when there will be play for the golf committee cup. In the intervening time the Hillside golf team will play at Madison on July 28th and at Elizabeth on August 18th. The absence of so many players from the city accounts for the few events arranged at this time. There will, however, be individual play almost every Saturday and otherdays on the course.

Owing to the team match at Metuchen with the Metuchen Golf Club, the members of the Park Golf Club team will compete this afternoon for the president's cup and the green committee challenge trophy. This arrangement was made by the green committee so that the members of the team should not be shut out of all opportunity of winning the president's cup. Morgan T. Townsend, captain of the team, is now in the lead for the president's cup, but the fact that he has been unable to play for it for several Saturday afternoons may effect his final score. William R. Faber is only half a point behind and Townsend will need every opportunity if he is going to keep the lead.

ROD AND GUN.

Among those who went to Asbury Park yesterday on the excursion was A. E. Hoagland, and he tried his luck at fishing. Mr. Hoagland is making quite a reputatian as a fisherman. Only recently he spent a week at Griggstown, and after he left the residents complained that all the fish had been taken from the river. Mr Hoagland was the suspected one. Yesterday he went out in a boat on the ocean and in ninty minutes caught eight fluke.

ON THE DIAMOND

Great interest is being taken in the West End in the baseball game which is to be played tomorrow between the St. Mary's and Pond Tool Works nines. Both teams are evenly matched and are in good condition. The game will be played on the Washington avenue grounds.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Harvey C. Drake, of Muhlenberg place, has matched his tandem racing team, Paul Otto and Charles Gulick, against a Newark team for $25 a side. The race will be held on Osborn's track next week. The local boys ride a twenty one inch frame.

The first excursion was a success and there is every reason to believe that the next one will be equally so.

A Private Service.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Stephen R. Krom were held yesterday afternoon from the residence on Madison avenue, and were private. From 9:30 a. m. until 12 o'clock noon an opportunity was given friends to call and view the remains, and a large number of persons took occasion to call. As stated the service in the afternoon was strictly private, no one being present but the members of the family. A prayer was offered by Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, after which the interment took plabe in Hillside Cemetery. At the grave the committal was read by Pastor Richardson. Those who served as bearers were Mrs. Krom's four sons, Stephen A., of this city; Louis J., of Waterbury, Conn.; Fred H. and Stanley V., of Jersey City.

Work on New Depot.

It was reported in this city today that work would be started next Monday to erect a new station opposite the North Avenue station, that men have been here staking out the ground for the building, and that the contract for the work had been given out. Inquiries were made concerning the proposed building and an official in the office of Vice-President Warren, in New York, informed The Daily Press that the contract has not been given out and that the work will not be started Monday next.

Death of Mrs. VanDeventer.

Mrs. Cornelia VanDeventer, aged 74 years, died last evening at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Frank Storrs, 708 West Front street, where she has been living for some time. She was the mother of Mrs. Winfield Schomp, of West Front street. Before coming to Plainfield she lived at Readington, N. J., for many years. The funeral services will be held from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Schomp, next Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock, and interment will be at Readington.

First Visit Here in Seventeen Years.

Philip A. Bird, wife and son, Harry, of Parsons, Kansas, arrived in Plainfield last evening to visit Mrs. Bird's sister, Mrs. Augustus Martin, of 23 Jackson avenue. This is the first time in seventeen years that Mr. Bird and family have seen their borough relatives. Mrs. Bird was a former resident of Plainfield. She was Miss Winans before her marriage. They will remain east for some time.

ATTRACTIONS AT ASBURY

INFLUX OF SUMMER VISITORS SATISFIES HOTEL MEN.

Many Plainfielders Mingle With the Throng at the Shore—The Baby Parade.

Asbury Park, July 20.—The influx of summer visitors the last few days has brought satisfaction to the hotel fraternity. Well filled registers and verandas are a sign of the resort's summer prosperity.

Asbury Park will soon rival its neighbor, Ocean Grove, in the number of religious meetings. A half dozen or more religious bodies have held their conventions here this year, and they were delighted with the place. The delegates to the Niagara Bible Conference, which has just closed a week's sessions, were charmed with the advantages of the resort.

The baby parade, an affair upon which Asbury Park has always prided itself, is being talked of, but there is difficulty in securing a good manager. Several names have been suggested, but none has yet been acted on. One of the directors of amusements of the large hotels has suggested that the affair be turned into a baby parade and masked festival, something after the style of a Mardi Gras, and this may be done. It is also suggested that the prrsons in the processions shall represent "The Seven Ages of Man" in "As You Like It," but nothing definite has yet been arranged. The baby parade is always held in the middle or latter part of August.

Al. W. Lawson, an old base-ball man, has arranged for the use of the local athletic grounds, and beginning about July 25th two games will be played here weekly. Games with Atlantic City, Cape May, Englewood Field Club, Trenton, Orange A. C., New York A. C. and, if possible, some of the National League teams will be scheduled.

Corra Ryno, of Coddington avenue, and John H. Kitchen, of Somerset street, Plainfield, are stopping at the Grand Hotel.

Henry B. Drake, of Plainfield, is a prominent guest at one of the hotels.

Miss Edna P. Williams, of Plainfield, spends her mornings at Mr. Yatman's young people's services.

Mrs. S. I. Curtis, of Plainfield, is enjoying her summer outing here in company with her daughter.

H. C. Yeager, of Plainfield, is at the Alaska.

Mrs. R. H. Cook and Miss Cook, of Plainfield, are among the many prominent arrivals.

W. R. Goldsmith, G. L. Homan, Mrs. J. P. Homan and Mrs. S. C. Baker are a party of Plainfield folks seen on the beach in the late afternoon.

Mrs. D. C. Adams, of Plainfield, is here with her daughter.

The Misses Aldrich, of Plainfield, are guests at the Queen.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randolph, of Plainfield, are recent arrivals at the Queen.

Dr. M. K. Browning and D. Y. Yerkes, of Plainfield, are among the many arrivals at the Queen.

D. S. Horton, a Central Railroad conductor, known to thousands of the traveling public, is at the Atlantic House with Mrs. Horton. They are Somerville residents.

Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Main, of Plainfield, are enjoying their summer outing among friends.

F. A. Smith, a prominent Somerville society man, has arrived to spend a month here.

Mrs. G. W. Force, of Plainfield, is met daily on the boardwalk.

Walter McGee, of Plainfield, is resting at the Coleman. Miss McGee is with her brother.

Mrs. E. H. Parse, of Plainfield, is a summer visitor.

Elmer M. Rogers, of Plainfield, is here.

Rain Needed in South Jersey.

Unless more rain visits the southern section of New Jersey before the end of the week the intense heat will be disastrous to farmers. All through southern New Jersey vegetables are suffering in the sandy soil. Such crops as cucumbers, tomatoes, watermelons, peppers, cabbages and Brussels sprouts are threatened with total extinction unless the heat is moderated and the drought ended.

A Camping Party.

Burt Wyckoff, of LaGrande avenue; Clarence Thorn, of East Second street; Percy and Arthur McVoy, of East Front street, and two young men from Bloomingdale, will leave tomorrow for Green Pond, near New Foundland, N. J., where they will camp out for two weeks. On Monday next B. T. Barnes and son, Wyatt, of Norwood avenue, will join the party.

Anxious to go to China.

Lieut. Tieman Horn, formerly of this city, who for some time past has been stationed in the south at one of the U. S. Army forts, has made application for active duty in China. Recognizing that this is one of the few chances offered an army officer to secure promotion, Lieut. Horn is quite anxious to make the best of it.

—Housekeepers will do well to examine the display of fine vegetables at Neuman Brothers tomorrow morning.

WORD FROM CONGER.

Message Received in Government Code —Terrible Peril of Foreigners Shows.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Washington, July 20.—Minister Wu Tingfang this morning received a cable deepatch from Pekin transmitted to him by the Taotai of Lhanghai, containing a cipher despatch from Minister Conger to the United States Government.

This is in reply to the message sent to the Chinese Government some time ago by Minister Wu asking about the safety of Minister Conger.

The Chinese Minister hurried to the Department of State immediately on receipt of the message and gave it to Secretary Hay.

The State Department soon afterward announced that the Conger message received through Minister Wu this morning was dated July 18, and showed that Conger was safe on that date.

CRATER DOESN'T WANT IT.

Democartic Congress Nomination in the Third May Go a Begging.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, July 20.—While it is practically settled that Congressman Benjamin F. Howell will be renominated by the Republicans of the Third Congressional district, there is still no certainty as to the man who will be selected by the Democrats as his opponent.

One of the latest to be mentioned is David S Crater, the present Surrogate of Monmouth county. His Surrogate fees must amount to at least $15,000 annually and the term of office is for five years, therefore, Mr. Crater has no Congressional aspirations.

"You can say," said Mr. Crater, "that I do not want the nomination for Congress and do not intend to take it."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Fred Hepburn, of East Second street, in company with a few friends, will leave Monday for Asbury Park, where they will camp out for two weeks.

Miss Elizabeth Kiernan, of Steiner place, goes to Ocean Grove tomorrow for a few weeks' rest, preparatory to her assuming her position as a teacher in the Borough High School.

"Sample Road" a Success

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Yardville, July 20.—Some time ago, under the directon of the government's engineer, a "sample road" was constructed near Doylestown, and has been regarded as eminently satisfactory by citizens of the entire county, and in fact by several residents of the adjoining county of Montgomery, who are endeavoring to have a like road built, with the same object in view, that of teaching the people the scientific theory and practice of good highways.

Fine Day at the Shore.

The union Sunday-school excursion which left this city for Asbury Park yesterday morning was a great success. Over 800 excursionists spent the day at the shore and enjoyed a cool day. A breeze from the south made life endurable. The water was cool enough to prove attractive and many of the Plainfielders enjoyed a dip in the surf.

Wreck at Bound Brook.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, July 20—An engine and two loaded coal cars on the Lehigh Valley Railroad jumped the track directly in front of the station here yesterday. The track was blocked for nearly two hours, but beyond the tearing up of the roadbed no damage resulted.

NOTICE TO WATER CONSUMERS.

Your attention is especially called to the following rules governing the use of lawn sprinklers and hand hose supplied by the Plainfield Water Supply Co.

"LAWN SPRINKLERS and HAND HOSE must be used only between the hours of 6 and 9 a. m., and 4 and 7 p. m., from the 1st of April to the 15th of October, and if found out of order or leaking, or if converted into jets, or if used for the benefit of any person other than the one obtaining the permit, or suffered to run when not used, or if used at a time not stated above, THE SUPPLY WILL BE CUT OFF WITHOUT PREVIOUS NOTICE.

"ALL PERSONS USING A HOSE, EITHER IN FRONT OR REAR OF PREMISES, FROM A HYDRANT OR FAUCET CONNECTION, MUST FIRST OBTAIN A PERMIT FOR USE ONLY AT HOURS PERMITTED BY THE RULES AND REGULATIONS. PERMIT TO USE LAWN SPRINKLERS DOES NOT INCLUDE THE USE OF WATER FOR STREET SPRINKLING."

Several patrons of the Company whose attention, probably, has not been called to the above regulations, are in the habit of using lawn sprinklers and hand hose at times not permitted. The Company desires to treat its patrons with liberality, but is constrained to insist upon strict compliance with these regulations.

WIDENED STREET BY TIME SNOW FLIES.

Borough Council Hopes to Accomplish the Improvement Without Much Delay.

FORMAL STEP WAS TAKEN.

PETITION PRESENTED BY TEN INTERESTED PROPERTY OWNERS.

Question of Macadamizing Willow Avenue was Brought Up—Shade Trees Must be Trimmed According to Law.

Although Mayor Smalley and Councilmen Valiant, Clark and Codington, together with Clerk Rowley, were the only members of the Borough Council present at adjourned meeting held last evening, considerable of importance was transacted and the session turned out to be more interesting than was at first thought.

The widening of Somerset street, as as proposed, was taken up and given quite a sendoff. Ten property-owners of the borough, W. G. Debele, W. R. Cosgrove, H. N. Spencer, Lena M. Hoester, Albert Pittis, P. J. Zaglio, R. A. Boyce, J. P. Emmons, Henry Eggerding and John Becker, presented a petition to the Council in the form of a application, asking that an ordinance be adopted for the widening of Somerset street from the centre of Green brook to the northwesterly centre of Jackson avenue, to a width of 60 feet, setting back the sidelines five feet. The application also asks that the curb lines be re-established 20 feet from the centre of the street from Craig place to Jackson avenue, and 19 feet and a fraction between Craig place to Green brook, and 18 feet and a fraction at the bridge over Green brook; that the fences and buildings be set back, curb be reset, and that there be a removal and relaying of all sidewalks, trees, poles, blocks and other articles necessary to accomplish such widening; that the street be graded and guttered and macadamized to a proper depth from the cenre of the street to the curb of said section of Somerset so widened, and that the roadway, gutters, curbing and sidewalks, including removal of all obstructions and encroachments, be done in a first-class manner.

The petition was accompanied by a map indicating the proposed improvement. The ten signatures to the petition are all that the law requires, and the matter was referred to the street committee who will report it back at the next regular meeting. At that time the question of referring it to the commissioners will be considered. If Mayor Smalley's word counts for anything, and it usually does, the improvement will be completed before snow flies. The Mayor and members of the Council are very enthusiastic over the improvement, and it realy looks as though it will be a fact.

The question of macadamizing a small extension of Willow avenue, where it runs into Magnolia avenue, was introduced by the Mayor who asked Mr. Clark, chairman of the street committee, what had been done in the matter.

Mr. Clark stated that he had been in consultation with Former Mayor Saunders regarding the improvement, and the latter told him that the work of getting subscriptions had been slow, and nothing definite could be promised at present.

It was then thought best to fix that extension of Willow avenue, as the property-owners there had agreed to pay fifty per cent. of the cost. Mayor Smalley did not believe that they should be made to wait on the motion of the Magnolia avenue people, inasmuch as they are not now ready to do anything. The matter was then referred to the street committee, to be reported at the next regular meeting, when the work will probably be ordered done.

Mr. Clark stated that the street committee, at a meeting held last Monday evening, considered it wise to authorize Clerk Rowley to go to Somerville and make a search to secure the names of the rightful owners of the property in the borough to whom sidewalk notices should be sent. Mr. Clark then offered a resolution authorizing the clerk to make such searches, and as a compensation he is to receive 25 cents for each name.

Mayor Smalley brought up the subject of trimming trees. In his opinion there are many trees that should be trimmed, and as there is an ordinance which does not permit limbs of trees to hang lower than ten feet from the ground, he thought some action should be taken in the matter. He believed that the present condition of the trees

PANIC OVER A TINY BUG.

STING LIKE POISONOUS SNAKE AND ONE DEATH RESULTED.

Infests Somerset and Hunterdon Counties.—Eck Moss Gives an Opinion.

In the last two days there have been reports brought in from the farming communities of Somerset and Hunterdon counties concerning the ravages of a dangerous new bug, which is extremely annoying to the men in the harvest fields. Its bite causes great pain, swelling of the place bitten, and in many cases complete prostration. In the case of Alfred P. Heron, a farmer, of Windsor Township, the bite of the new bug caused death.

The real identity of the new enemy of the hay fields is not known. Some of those bitten say the insect is the "kissing" bug that did business last year, while others of the farmers say the bug is only the size of a grain of red pepper, and is of similar color.

John Thompson, a farmer, who lives near here, gives the best description of the troublesome insect. He says that when working in his rye field, Monday afternoon, one of the tiny bugs alighted on his arm. He felt the sting and brushed the insect off. In less than five minutes his arm and hand were swollen enormously, and since that time he has been unable to use them. Large blisters formed, and serious complications setting in, Dr. Watson was called.

The physician was unable to tell what kind of a bite Thompson was suffering from, but treated the man as he would have done for a snake bite. Closely following this came reports from twenty farmers of the same affliction, and trouble has resulted in the rural section from helpers who were employed by the season leaving their work and refusing to remain and finish the harvesting at any price.

Eck Moss, the pioneer of Sourland Mountain, and a great authority on bugs of all kinds in New Jersey, says that the insect is the harvest bug, belonging to the family of mites that prevail in the early autumn when they collect on dead leaves and from there attack human beings in their most tender parts and also sting animals.

UNAWARE OF THE PERIL

RUNAWAY HORSE POINTED TOWARD CROWD AT BAND CONCERT.

Caught Just in Time to Prevent a Serious Mix-up and Infliction of Injuries to Many

All unconscious of their peril a large part of the crowd listening to the band concert last evening stood in the middle of North avenue while a runaway horse was dashing rapidly down the street, headed directly for them. The animal was caught in the nick of time, however, within a very short distance of the band stand.

The horse and wagon belonged to Nischwitz & Kitchen, but had been borrowed by John Hafner, of Washington street. Soon after leaving the former's barn the animal got beyond Hafner's control and ran down Watchung avenue. Opposite TenEyck & Harris's place the horse ran upon the sidewalk and the driver was thrown out. As the runaway passed Second street, Arnold Jenrenaud sprang in the back of the wagon and secured the reins. Before he could stop it, the horse turned into North avenue.

Putting all his strength in the reins he managed to get the animal under control enough to allow some bystanders to catch him opposite the fountain. Hafner escaped injury, the only damage being to the harness.

Had the runaway not been stopped as it was, some one would have been injured as the street was not only filled with people, but horses and carriages as well and on account of the band no one would have heard it approaching.

Vineland Getting Ambitious.

GRIEF FOR THEIR FRIEND

FUNERAL SERVICES OVER THE REMAINS OF LATE W. N. CHAMBERLIN.

Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards Officiated at Services—Beautiful Floral Tributes.

A company of bereaved relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Chamberlin, 612 Madison avenue, yesterday afternoon, to honor the memory of Walter N. Chamberlin, who died on Wednesday morning last. Most of those present had a personal acquaintance with the deceased. They had learned to love and admire him for his many excellent qualities, and for his true worth as a friend. When they gathered around the bier there were deep feelings of remorse and regret that a life so full of promise had so suddenly been taken.

Surroundings the casket where rested the remains of the departed were beautiful flowers, while encircling it was a vine of smilax. There were several bunches of choice flowers from relatives and friends, and one very impressive token of esteem and love was a large pillow from the Correspondents' Club, of New York, of which the departed was a member.

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and after he read appropriate selections from the Scriptures, "The Christian's Good-Night" was sung by Wm. N. Runyon, Elmer E. Runyon and George O. Stevens. Dr. Richards then spoke briefly. His principal thought was the reward that comes through suffering. He said when the young life of the departed was remembered, it was a great trial of one's faith and a great mystery why he should be taken. He spoke of the Christian life that Mr. Chamberlin lived, and how faithful he was to God. He also said that there was much sadness in the thought that he was separated so much from those he loved, and was unable often to do the things he would like. The final thought was then brought out impressively that he had won his reward through a life of suffering and sacrifice. Following an impressive prayer by Dr. Richards, the trio sang "Beyond the Smiling and the Weeping."

An opportunity was then given for those present to look for the last time on the face and form of one whom they loved, after which the interment took place in Hillside Cemetery. Those who served as bearers were close friends of Mr. Chamberlin, and some were his classmates in the public school. They were: William N. Runyon, Henry L. Maxson and George O. Stevens, of this city; Edward Perrine, of Hackensack; J. H. Finley and Mr. Warren, of New York.

RIB BROKEN IN RUNAWAY.

Wild Run of a Horse in Dunellen With a Wagon Containing a Woman and Two Small Boys.

A serious runaway occurred at Dunellen yesterday noon in which a woman and two little boys were the victims. Although the former received severe injuries the boys escaped unhurt. The rig belonged to Daniel Woodcock, of New Market, a son-in-law of Joseph Faulkner, and had been driven to Dunellen by Mrs. Woodcock to do some shopping. She left the wagon, which was a light buckboard, in charge of Miss Lizzie Hunter, an old employe of the family, together with her two boys, Harold and Joseph, while she entered Hetfield's meat market on North avenue. She had been in there but a few minutes when the horse became frightened by a large dog suddenly coming near and barking loudly. The animal ran away. The scream of the occupants of the wagon frightened the horse still more, and it tore along at terrific speed. At the corner of Grove street the animal attempted to turn and all three were thrown out. The next minute the wagon had struck a tree and was almost a total wreck.

Miss Hunter was rendered insensible by the force of the fall, and was picked up and carried into Taylor's Hotel by C. D. Taylor and several others. Of the boys Harold escaped unhurt, but Joseph received a number of cuts and bad bruises, mostly on the face. Dr. Gaston, of Plainfield, was called and worked for some time over Miss Hunter before she regained consciousness. It is feared that she is injured internally and that probably a rib is broken. A more complete examination will be made today. The horse continued on his run to New Market, where it was captured near the Lehigh Valley tracks.

CHILD OF THE PRISON TO BE GIVEN A CHANCE

Mrs. Emily E. Williamson Becomes Interested in the Baby Whose Mother is a Convict.

INTERESTING EXPERIMENT.

THE LITTLE FELLOW WAS BORN IN A FELON'S CELL.

Mrs. Williamson Will Have Him Taken Out of Prison and Brought Up Under Favorable Home Influences—Baby is Very Bright.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 21.—Mrs. Emily E. Williamson, secretary of the New Jersey State Charites Aid Association and manager of the State Board of Children's Guardians, has determined upon a novel experiment. A great deal of interest has been taken of late in a three-year-old boy, who is an inmate, with his mother, of the New Jersey State Prison. Frequent efforts have been made to get him out, and Governor Voorhees and others have interested themselves in his case.

The child is Charles Edward Mason. His mother was sentenced to prison from Camden county three years ago for five years for theft. She is an old offender with a bad criminal record. The charge of theft was not the only one against her. The boy was born after her conviction, but before she was committed to the prison. He has grown up in the prison and is now three years old. He has never been separated from his mother. Efforts were made to have the child removed from the evil influence of the prison, but it was decided that the boy could not be taken away until the consent of the mother was obtained.

Superintendent of Prison William Moore became very much interested in the case. He has at last secured the written consent of the mother, Ann Mason, to relinquish all claim on her offspring, and Attorney General Grey has decided that the boy may be removed and given to any suitable person, who may adopt him.

Mrs. Williamson often saw the child while visiting the prison, and she has notified Mr. Moore that she will take it and adopt it, bringing it up to manhood in a proper manner. Mrs. Williamson will not take the boy into her own home, but she will make ample and suitable provision for him, and will have him trained as a mechanic when he is old enough.

"Charles is one of the brightest youngsters I have ever seen," said Mrs. Williamson in speaking of the case. "He attracted my attention the first time I saw him, and I have since become deeply interested in him. I will take him and bring him up not only because of his unfortunate position, but because I believe he will prove an interesting study from the sociological standpoint. I am anxious to see what can be done with a child whose mother is a natural and confirmed moral degenrate when that child displays intelligence and in no way deformed physically. I am anxious to observe how the rule of heredity will apply in his case."

MISS ROCAP IN A RUNAWAY.

Two of the Party in the Vehicle Were Quite Badly Injured.

A dispatch from Patchogue, L. I., says that the team attached to the stage in which were Mrs. Jenkins, wife of the Clifton House proprietor; Miss Rocap, of Plainfield, N. J.; James M. Lowe, of New York, and Fred Wicks, became frightened and ran away near the station yesterday. Mrs. Jenkins jumped from the rear of the stage and broke her right arm at the elbow. Mrs. O'Connor also jumped and got a deep gash on the back of the head. Herbert Williamson, of Brooklyn, who was on his bicycle, was run down by the team and his wheel was demolished.

Next Day.

One of the greatest drawbacks to the full enjoyment of a day at the seashore is the thought of having to resume work or business at an early hour the next day. You will not have that dread to mar your pleasure if you go with the Hope memorial chapel Sunday-school excursion to Asbury Park and Ocean Grove Saturday, August 25th.

Joint Meeting of Freeholders.

A joint meeting of the committees from the Board of Freeholders of Union and Somerset counties will be held Monday afternoon at the site of the new bridge over Green Brook, connecting Madison avenue and Duer street. They will look over the work already done and plan for the further improvement of the approaches.

TRIED AN "AUTO" HERE.

RIKER VEHICLE GAVE A DEMONSTRATION OF ITS USEFULNESS.

Plainfield Automobile Company Directors Took a Spin in It and Were Well Satisfied.

One of the electric vehicles of the Riker Motor Vehicle Company, of Elizabethport, visited this city yesterday and gave a demonstration for the benefit of the directors of the Plainfield Automobile Company. It was completely satisfactory and demonstrated the fact that the Riker machine can fill all the requirements demanded for the proposed automobile busses.

It will be remembered that the Plainfield Automobile Company was organized a few weeks ago to father the scheme of Silas D. Drake to run a line of automobile stages through the residential parts of the city where the trolley will never be able to go. The company now has some ambitious plans for the futue. The plan of the promoters is to go exhaustively into the automobile business when the success of the stage line has been proven. An automobile stable and charging station will be established and vehicles stabled and hired out.

D. C. Arlington, a representative of the Riker Company, came to Plainfield yesterday morning with an electric coach. The trip was made up from Elizabethport in the morning, William J. Jefferys, Jr., acting as operator. The storage batteries were recharged at the power house of the Plainfield Electric Light Company with the assistance of apparatus to transform the alternating current to a direct one.

Early in the afternoon the directors of the Plainfield Automobile Company took a ride. Elston M. French, W. H. K. Davey and Silas D. Drake were a committee from the board of directors to consider the advantages of the different models. With them were Mayor N. B. Smalley, another director, and a Press reporter. Mayor George W. Rockfellow was out of town and could not go.

The party went over the proposed line out Watchung avenue to Hillside avenue, to Martine avenue, to Park avenue and back to the station. Then another tour of the borough was made, going out Somerset street and over into Washington Park, returning by Washington avenue and Grove street.

It is planned to have four of the stages and cover the two routes followed yesterday. The two trips were made in forty-three minutes at a very comfortable pace. Allowing for stops the double trip could easily be made in an hour.

Several other visitors were picked up when the vehicle started for the 'Port, and they were taken as far as Scotch Plains. The vehicle shown is not the same one which is likely to be used here. The stages proposed will be longer and capable of seating twelve inside and out, excluding the operator.

TO DO STATE WORK.

Charles B. Brown Made Associate State Secretary of the Y. M. C. A.—Resigned Jersey City Position.

Charles B. Brown, formerly of Plainfield, for nearly three years general secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Jersey City severed his connection yesterday with the association, to enter upon his new work as associate State secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of New Jersey. Mr. Brown's administration in Jersey City has been one of steady progress. Taking hold of the work when it was hopelessly in debt, with no evening class work, and few memberships, he has, almost single-handed, placed the association in the front ranks, with an educational record second to only one association of its size in the country, and made it possible to start a building fund which in the fall will be well advanced.

The business-like methods of the past three years have brought a large constituency and made many friends for the association, who will wish continued success to Secretary Brown in his new field of enlarged usefulness.

For the present Mr. Brown will make Jersey City his headquarters, and the local association will still continue from time to time to receive his attention and co-operation.

H. A. Meacham, general secretary of Norfolk, Va., will succeed Mr. Brown in the work of the local association. Mr. Meacham has an excellent record, is a good organizer and full of push and aggresiveness. Secretary Meacham will begin work in a few days.

R. R. WORK AT FANWOOD

COAL AND LUMBER YARD MOVED AWAY FROM THE STATION.

Improvement Will Permit the Construction of an Approach From the South Side.

While the Plainfield commuters patiently await the new station on the south side of the Jersey Central Railroad tracks, the Fanwood patrons of the Jersey Central are rejoicing over the improvements that the railroad company is making at that place. Some unsightly buildings have been removed from the immediate neighborhood of the station while an entrance to the east-bound station from South avenue is being prepared.

Under the old arrangement the freight house stood directly behind the east bound station, on the south side of the track, while a large coal trestle loomed up in the rear and was surrounded by the buildings of Smith's coal and lumber yard. The view to the south from either of the stations was not the prettiest while the station was almost hidden from South avenue.

The most important change effected is the removal of the coal and lumber yard to a new site across South avenue from the old one. The old siding, which formerly ran nearly parallel to the regular tracks of the Central, will now make a turn to the south, crossing South avenue at grade, and over into the field beyond where a new coal trestle has been erected. The freighthouse has been moved to a new location southwest of where it formerly stood. It is placed at an angle to the Central's main tracks and on the siding that runs over to Smith's yard.

The result is that a large open space is now left where freight house, trestle and coal yard once stood, and an approach will be made from South avenue to the east bound station. When this approach is properly completed and put in good condition, the improvement to the station and its entrance will be a great one. It will also give access to the station from South avenue which has so long been desired by the Fanwood folk.

AND THE BAND PLAYED ON

GREAT CROWD LISTENED TO LAST NIGHT'S CONCERT.

Many Visitors Present From Out of Town—Cornet Solo by a Fine Musician.

A great crowd assembled on North avenue last evening for the second of the open air concerts by LaVere's Band. It was even more largely attended than the first one and attracted many pleasure parties from Elizabeth, Rahway, New Brunswick, Bound Brook and others of the surrounding towns. North avenue, from Park avenue to the station, was densely packed with a good-humored throng and the police had difficulty in keeping a passageway open in the street for passing carriages and vehicles.

The concert was conducted in a similar fashion to the first one. A temporary band stand was erected in front of the Hotel Kensington. The band gave its first selection at 8 o'clock and continued at short intervals until 10. The programme was an excellent one. While the popular taste was catered to, all the numbers were of a high-class and several were portions of well-known classical compositions.

Alfred Sweet, cornet soloist at Edison's phonographic laboratory, gave a cornet solo, "The Vacant Chair," in a very acceptable manner. The work of LaVere's band was satisfactory and there were many words of commendation for the young Plainfield leader whose enterprise brought about the concerts.

As the people came and went all the evening it is impossible to estimate the number that gathered there. They probably ran up as high as three or four thousand. The number exceeded that of the week before. The trolley cars and railroad trains brought several hundred out-of-town people here for the concert. Others came awheel.

Bonn Will Have the Best.

Miss Fouble, of New York, has taken a position at Bonn's Front street establishment as head trimmer. Judging from the stylish hats for present wear that she has turned out in the past few days, coupled with Bonn's moderate prices, she is sure to please the ladies of Plainfield and vicinity.

To Stop on Far Corner.

The management of the Plainfield Street Railway Company has just issued an order to all motormen that hereafter they must stop cars on the far corner of every street were there are passengers to get on.

RESENT THE ATTACK ON BOROUGH ECONOMY

Mayor Smalley and Councilmen Incensed Over an Article That Misrepresented Them.

EXCITED TALK INDULGED IN.

PROPERTY NOT ASSESSED AS HIGH AS WAS STATED.

Incidentally, the Mayor Expressed Himself as Being Unalterably Opposed to Annexation—Borough, He Says, is Best Place to Live.

The economical administration of the borough sustained a severe blow yesterday when a party organ took occasion to show by figures and guesswork that the property in that municipality is being assessed on a basis of 70 per cent. of its valuation. If this was true it would be nearly 30 per cent. higher than the basis in this city.

On account of the above statement, Mayor Smalley, at the adjourned meeting of the Council last evening, took occasion to denounce the article and declared it false from top to bottom. In his opinion he declared that the newspaper that printed the article is being treated too well by the borough administration to allow itself to publish such erroneous statements. Continuing, he said, that there is not a town in New Jersey that during the past twelve months has received such benefits as the borough for the money expended. The appropriations for the streets, fire department, lights, etc., are all fixtures, established by former administrations, and are considered economical. The basis of assessed valuation, he declared, is not over fifty per cent., and so far as comparing borough and city, he believed that the borough stood far above the city in every way, and that the conditions are just the reverse from that stated in the newspaper publishing the article. The taxes are lower and always have been, and the money spent has brought better results, continued the Mayor, and North Plainfield is a far better place to live in from a financial standpoint than Plainfield.

Mayor Smalley said that he would favor annexation if the borough would receive a better government, but he was convinced that it would not, and he opposed it and would fight against it at all times. He believed it had come to a question of "annexation against getting all that is coming to us." He considered it easy to watch seven men in the Council, but with annexation boroughites would have no assurance what the future would bring forth. He favored the plan of changing the name of the borough. The name of Plainfield he thought was a credit to the State, but North Plainfield is too much like it to bring the best results for the borough. He said that one would only have to circulate about the borough and see the empty houses and vacant stores to fully realize that some heroic measures are necessary. He was sure that he could name the man who furnished the false statement referred to, and he said that he is a sore-head who could not be elected for poundkeeper even if he should get the nomination.

The above remarks brought forth a few words from Councilman Valiant, who said that in conversation with a Plainfield man recently he was told that the borough administration was to be commended for its wise government, and especially for the grand work of sprinkling the streets. As to the tax question he declared that the Mayor was right in what he said. He insisted that Plainfield does not get as much for its money as the borough. The borough streets are better, and, comparing the city and borough per capita, the borough is way ahead of the city. He did not believe that the borough should be more economically worked.

Councilman Clark was in favor of not paying any attention to the erroneous article published, for he believed that the falsity of it would soon react against the person who wrote it. He favored letting it go by unnoticed, and said that there are enough intelligent people in the borough who know that the article is untrue.

After the meeting the discussion was continued and some sharp words were exchanged about the article. There was not one present among the officials who denied that the basis of assessment in the borough is about fifty per cent. Mayor Smalley said that it was just such articles that injured a municipality and drove people away from it. Some present own property in the city and borough and they said that the borough taxes and assessments are lower than the city. After everyone present had thoroughly aired themselves on the subject the meeting adjourned.

MAYOR SWEPT THE GUTTERS.

Rahway's Chief Executive Led the Force of Street Cleaners.

Rahway, July 21.—Mayor Holmes, by virture of his office, is president of the Board of Health, and consequently is greatly interested in all that concerns the health of Rahway. He is also one of the leading physicians in the city.

Wednesday afternoon orders were given to flush Main and Cherry streets and sweep the gutters. At the head of the column, with broom in hand, marched the Mayor, hat on the back of his head, and with grim determination in his countenance, accompanied by a good cigar placed where it would do the most good. The Mayor swept as hard as any one, and did not leave the work till all was done.

The meeting was held for the purpose of drafting a constitution and bylaws governing the State and county organizations. The work of the meeting was soon accomplished and the representatives left for their homes late in the afternoon.

Good Crop of Watermelons.

South Jersey farmers are elated over the reported failure of the watermelon crop of the south. The Jersey crop will be a good one, although a little late, and through the south's inability to flood the northern markets this means much to to the northern grower. The cantaloupe yield will also be heavy, and some have already been picked.

SIBERIAN MARKETS.

American Products Pouring Into That Far Off Land.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—"We are now building a railway into China, but the chances are that the Americans will benefit more from the Chinese markets than the Russians," says a leading newspaper of Russia in an article recently published which Consular Agent Harris, at Eibenstok, has transferred to the state department.

"This last winter," continues the article, "has witnessed an enormous import of American products into Amur province of Siberia, not fancy articles, but substantial commodities made necessary for everyday life. These products are handled in quantities and are sold with the skill known only to the American."

Siberian merchants are beginning to feel the pressure, the article says, and some are demanding the exclusion of American imports, but the buyers protest against any such action on the ground that in Siberia there is an industrial standstill, and the prices are extremely high.

"During the time that we are quarreling about the tariff and the abolishment of the free port of Vladivostok," it continues, "the Americans will have taken possession of the Siberian markets."

Consular Agent Harris says that this is doubtless exaggerated, but that it is useless to deny that foreign capital and intelligence have found a profitable field in Siberia. "With cheaper transportation rates," he says, "there is no question that we could greatly increase our trade with that empire."

Brockway Still Hangs On.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 21.—The July session of the board of managers of the New York state reformatory, which has been conducted with the results stated in these dispatches from day to day, was brought to a close yesterday, and the members of the board, with the exception of Dr. Howard of Buffalo, quietly left for their homes. The public is without official information as to the true state of affairs at the institution. Stories of all kinds are in circulation. Superintendent Brockway himself declines to talk. In reply to the question as to whether or not he had resigned Mr. Brockway politely replied: "It would be improper for the superintendent to make a statement at this time. When the time comes in the near future, I shall be very glad to give the full particulars." This statement would indicate that there are important developments soon to occur. Dr. Howard refused to say anything further than to reiterate that the board had not received the superintendent's resignation.

MESSAGE CONSIDERED AUTHENTIC.

The Dispatch Was Sent From Peking July 18 In Answer to a Cable Inquiry From Secretary of State. Rejoicing at Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Like a flash of sunlight out of the dark sky came the intelligence yesterday that United States Minister Conger had sent a cipher cable dispatch from Peking to the state department at Washington making known that two days ago he was alive and that the foreigners were fighting for their safety. The minister, Mr. Wu Tung Fang, received the message. Within an hour the welcome intelligence that Conger had been heard from after weeks of silence and evil report was flashed throughout the country and indeed throughout the world, dispelling the gloom which had prevailed everywhere and bringing to officials and to the public generally a sense of profound relief.

The dispatch was in reply to Secretary Hay's cable inquiry to Minister Conger on July 11, and as both messages were in the American cipher code they were regarded by the officials as above the suspicion of having been tampered with in the course of transmission through Chinese channels. Mr. Wu promptly communicated the dispatch to the state department, where the translation was made from the cipher figures, and soon all Washington was astir with the intelligence.

It was telegraphed by Secretary Hay to the president, who responded with a wholesome expression of gratification, and word of it was sent to the various cabinet officers. They gathered in Secretary Hay's office, and an impromptu cabinet conference was held in the diplomatic chamber, mainly for the purpose of exchanging congratulations and of taking a survey of the situation to see if it had been materially changed by this important development.

First of all, from the standpoint of the administration officials, the most welcome feature of the message was its assurance that the American minister himself was alive two days ago. But with this cheering news came the ominous statement of Minister Conger that the besieged foreigners were in the British legation under continued shot and shell from Chinese troops and that only quick relief could avert a general massacre.

After the first flush of thankfulness this graver feature of the message began to impress itself upon cabinet officials most deeply. As one of them remarked, "There are the poor creatures penned up under fire of shot and shell and appealing to us for help." The consultation brought about no pronounced change of policy, for it was felt that already every energy had been bent toward meeting the situation and that there was absolutely nothing more that could be done. After all the cabinet officials felt and so stated that the message was an evidence of friendliness and good faith of the proforeign element of the Chinese and that wisdom dictated a course which would continue to utilize this friendship.

The message was signed "Conger" and read as follows:

"In British legation under continued shot and shell from Chinese troops. Quick relief only can prevent general massacre."

The government accepted the message as authebtic, and Secretary Hay transmitted it to all our embassadors and ministers abroad with instructions to lay it before the respective governments to which they are accredited and to urge upon them the necessity of co-operation for the immediate relief of the foreigners at Peking. A message also was sent by Secretary Long to Admiral Remey conveying the intelligence of the desperate situation in Peking and instructing him to "use and urge every possible endeavor for relief." This message, Secretary Long explained, meant for Admiral Remey to himself "use" and to "urge" upon the commanding officers of the other powers the use of every endeavor for the relief of Peking.

Secretary Root sent a similar notification to Colonel Coolidge, the senior American officer ashore at Tien-tsin. This action was the result of the conference of Secretaries Hay, Long and Root. It was realized that the land and naval forces of the United States now in China could not single handed push on to Peking, and the other powers accordingly were appealed to on the basis of Minister Conger's message to co-operate for instant relief.

Secretary Hay explained his reasons for placing reliance in the authenticity of Minister Conger's dispatch, saying that it was a complete reply in code to the code message sent to him and that its authenticity was vouched for by the tsungli-yamen. "Of course," said Secretary Hay, smiling, "I am not omniscient and may be fooled, but I cannot see how the authenticity of Minister Conger's cable can be questioned." Secretary Hay said he attached no significance to the use of the words "Chinese troops" in the message. They did not, in his opinion, mean that the Chinese government troops were besieging the foreigners. He seemed to entertain little doubt that the Chinese government itself was doing all in its power to suppress the Boxers' insurrection.

In this connection the message from Consul Fowler that General Yuan Shih Kai, governor of Shangtung province, reported that the Chinese authorities were doing all in their power to put down the insurrection is exceedingly welcome intelligence. It not only confirms the theory of the state department that the position of the Chinese government is correct, but it is assumed to indicate that Yuan Shih Kai has thrown the weight of his influence on the side of the government.

Yuan is considered one of the ablest if not the ablest general in China. He has, according to a statement made by Lord Charles Beresford to a prominent state department official when he was here last fall, the best drilled and equipped army in China under his command. Some doubt was entertained as to which side he would ally himself with in the present insurrection, and the fact that he appears to have come on the side of the government is accepted as evidence that his best judgment is that Prince Tuan's rebellion is destined to fail.

Throughout the day the Conger message remained the absorbing topic of discussion. Secretary Hay was congratulated on the success of the steps he had adopted to open up communication between Peking and Washington, for while the chancelleries of the whole world stood hesitating and inactive he had adopted a course which had brought a message from our minister. The Chinese minister, Mr. Wu, shared also in the universal approbation of what had been done. He seconded Mr. Hay's effort from the outset, and it is due to the official machinery set in motion by him that the communications were got through. It is appreciated by the officials, both American and Chinese, that there will be suspicion in some quarters.

The fact that the cablegram from Minister Conger was given scant credence in London official circles had no dampening effect on the optimism of the administration officials. It was pointed out by one of the officials most interested that the weight of international evidence in the dispatch was in favor of its genuineness. Besides, there were the several strongly corroborative dispatches from Consul General Goodnow and Consul Fowler. The fact that Minister Conger mentioned the bombardment of the British legation was considered good evidence that the dispatch was written subsequent to the 6th, as the best information here is that the bombardment of the legations did not begin prior to that date. It was said at the state department that it was not thought expedient to give out either the text or a paraphrase of the message sent by the state department July 11 to Minister Conger.

Secretary Root made the positive statement that no more troops had been ordered for Chinese service. He added:

"The chief effort of our government just now must be directed to aiding the friendly Chinese officials. It is evident from the dispatch that the imperial government has been acting in good faith and on the 18th was still using its best efforts to protect the legations. We must do everything we can to second their efforts. It is hard to say just now whether increased military activity on the part of the powers would have good or evil effect. That must be judged by the officers on the other side. We have not the information here that would enable us to fairly judge."

Secretary Root said that the military movement already outlined—that is to say the dispatch of the expeditionary force under General Chaffee—was being pushed with the utmost expedition.

Orders have been issued assigning Brigadier General Charles F. Humphrey, now chief quartermaster at Havana, as chief quartermaster on the staff of General Chaffee in charge of the Chinese expedition. General Humphrey distinguished himself as chief quartermaster of General Shafter during the Santiago campaign.

LONDON STILL DOUBTS.

The Dispatch From Conger Believed to Be Untrue.

LONDON, July 21.—The Conger dispatch fails to carry conviction to either the British press or public. Its genuineness is not disputed, for, as is pointed out here, the Chinese must possess quite a sheaf of such messages which the ministers fruitlessly endeavored to get transmitted, from which they could easily select a noncommittal dispatch to serve the required purpose.

It is supposed that Mr. Conger omitted to destroy the cipher code and that this is now in the possession of the Chinese, in which event the selection or concoction of the dispatch would not be difficult. It is argued that the dispatch, if it were a genuine reply to the inquiries of the American government, would go more into details. A slight ray of hope is admitted in the fact that both Mr. and Mrs. Conger are known to have been on very friendly terms with the empress dowager, but the universal opinion here is that, if the dispatch is genuine, the date is falsified.

The Spectator says:

"It matters nothing whether the empress dowager or Prince Tuan is the reigning monarch. Both are devoted to the extirpation of foreigners, and not one of the viceroys will dare oppose the antiforeign policy.

"The plot has covered the whole empire. Men who have dared to order a Russian city upon Russian ground to be stormed will dare anything. Within a month the viceroys of the coast towns will have thrown off the mask, and the only safe place for Europeans will be on shipboard.

"Europe has a terrible task, in which hurry is out of place. Who would have dreamed six months ago that for 10,000 regulars to take Tien-tsin would be a difficult and glorious task?"

The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial congratulating the Washington government upon its energy, says:

"Unless the powers are capable of responding immediately to Mr. Hay's appeal by ordering their united forces to face and risk all for an immediate advance the days not only of old chivalry but of modern humanity are dead together."

The Daily Express has received the following from Tien-tsin, dated July 18:

"The casualties of the allies in the three days' fighting before the native city of Tien-tsin exceeded 1,000. It is now certain that there were several Russians and Frenchmen fighting on the Chinese side. The Chinese killed their own women wholesale to prevent them falling into the hands of the Russians.

"Yesterday the whole native city was in flames, and the stench of the burning thousands of corpses was unspeakably horrible."

Germans Doubt.

BERLIN, July 21.—The German government feels confident that the present attempts by Chinese officials to deny the Peking massacre are insincere and dictated solely by a desire to hamper and retard the powerful joint action of the powers. At the Chinese legation here, where also denials of the massacre have arrived from the viceroys, the statement was made that the Chinese minister himself, Lu Hai Houan, placed small reliance upon them.

Foreigners Safe July 19.

BRUSSELS, July 21.—The Belgian consul at Shanghai sends the following dispatch, under date of July 19:

"Sheng, the administrator of telegraphs, announces that the foreigners at Peking were safe and sound July 19. An imperial decree, dated July 16, orders the viceroy of Tien-tsin to appraise the damage caused by the troubles and orders the local militia to repress the rebellion."

Inheritance Transfer Taxes.

ALBANY, July 21.—State Treasurer Jaeckel has received from Comptroller Bird S. Coler of New York city a check for $352,000 transfer inheritance taxes collected for the state in the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx during the quarter ended June 30 last.

BOGUS MONEY SEIZED

Chief Hazen Makes a Big Haul of Counterfeits.

MANUFACTURING OUTFIT FOUND.

Arrest of a Suspect Leads to the Finding of Plant in Rutherford, N. J., and $7,000 in Well Executed Counterfeit Bills.

RUTHERFORD, N. J., July 21.—Chief Hazen of the secret service, with a number of Hoboken policemen, yesterday in this town made one of the biggest seizures of counterfeits and counterfeiting apparatus ever taken in this section. The seizure followed the arrest of Richard P. Genzer in Hoboken on Thursday night. He had been frequenting a resort in that city and getting the barmaids to get change for $10 and $2 bills for him. When searched at the station house, 19 two dollar counterfeits, three tens and one twenty were found on him. All were bogus and all so well executed that only experts could tell they were not genuine.

Genzer refused to tell where he lived. Bank books on the People's Bank and Trust company of Passaic, which is close to Rutherford, were found in his possession, as well as tax receipts and a record of a mortgage on property in Rutherford.

Chief Hazen, with assistants, went to Rutherford. They located the house for which the tax receipts and the mortgage record referred to on Cornelius street. It was at once surrounded. In the house was a young girl and a man. They objected to the entrance of the officers, but did not resist when the officers showed their authority.

The house was searched from top to bottom. It was handsomely furnished, and the prisoner had evidently been living in luxury. Chief Hazen found two large presses of fine make. There were four lithographing stones in the place. They bore the impress and lines for the printing of $20 gold certificates, $10 gold certificates and $2 silver certificates. There was a liberal supply of inks of the colors needed for the bills and also a very fine imitation of the government paper used in genuine bills.

The officers found counterfeits aggregating $7,000 in tens, twenties and twos. All are very well executed. Seventy-nine dollars in good money was also found. The man in the place said his name was Jansen and refused to talk. The girl is said to be the daughter of Ganzer, the man arrested in Hoboken.

Captain Hazen said Ganzer was a man who had been arrested in New York a year and a half ago on a charge of having passed a bad $2 bill. Although satisfied at that time the man was guilty, the authorities were unable to make out a case against him, and when he was placed on trial the jury which heard the case refused to convict.

The room in which the outfit was located was most carefully laid out, and when the presses were at work there was no chance that any noise could be heard outside, as the presses were well based.

The girl gave her name as Clara Ganzer and said she was 15 years old, although she appears to be older. The man gave his name, when questioned, as Paul Jansen and said he was 39 years old. The prisoners were taken to Hoboken and locked up in the station house there. Chief Hazen established a guard over the house in Rutherford, as he thinks it possible others were concerned in the counterfeiting.

Mine Title Disputed.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., July 21.—The title to 40 acres of ground in the heart of Stratton's famous Independence mine has been attacked by a suit filed in the district court of Teller county. The suit is entitled, "George W. Milton, plaintiff, versus Stratton's Independence, limited, a corporation organized in Great Britain and doing business in the state of Colorado, defendant." The plaintiff, who is a dentist of Cripple Creek, claims the ownership of a half interest in the 40 acres comprising the Wilson Creek placer, which is embraced in the property sold in London about a year ago by W. S. Stratton for $10,000,000.

Woolley Told of His Nomination.

CHICAGO, July 21.—John G. Woolley, Prohibition candidate for the presidency of the United States, was formally notified of his nomination at a meeting held last night in Central Music hall. The hall was crowded by members of the party, and the speeches of Samuel Dickie of Albion, Mich., who acted as chairman of the national convention which placed Mr. Woolley in nomination, and of Mr. Woolley were received with great enthusiasm. Oliver W. Stewart, chairman of the executive committee for the state of Illinois, presided and made a short address in opening the meeting.

Noiseless as Well as Smokeless.

HAZLETON, Pa., July 21.—A noiseless and smokeless gunpowder has been invented by John Bohenengel, a German of this city. He is employed as molder in the Hazelton Iron works, but is of an inventive turn of mind and has some knowledge of chemicals and explosives. At a private exhibition given a few days ago the practicability of his discovery was made apparent. A shell loaded with his powder was fired at a target 50 yards away. The only sound indicating the explosion was the falling of the plunger on the shell. The bullet struck the target an inch board, and went clear through it.

High Kite Flying.

BOSTON, July 21.—Another record for high kite flying was established at Blue Hill, when a height of 15,900 feet or 60 feet more than three miles, was reached with a line of six kites in tandem. Five of the kites were of an improved box pattern and one a ribbed kite. The greatest height was reached with 4¾ miles of steel piano wire used as a flying line. The temperature at the highest point was about 30 degrees, while at the sea level it was 80.

SOUND TO HAVE BRIDGE PENNIES.

Ocean Grove Puts Policemen on Guard to Collect Tolls.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Asbury Park, July 21.—The Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association Wednesday adopted drastic measures for the collection of toll on the penny bridges. For a long time past the toll gatemen have been ignored by certain pedestrians, who claimed that toll on the bridges was a back number and should not be recognized. Wednesday a special policeman was placed on guard at the Emory street bridge, with orders to stop persons who refused to pay the penny. Frank Taylor was the first victim. Taylor refused point blank to pay his penny, and after a scuffle escaped the toll-taker. Warrants were issued for his arrest on three separate charges.

Two ladies who attempted to pass were also stopped, but they hired a boat and snapped their fingers at the policeman. Numerous names were taken down, but it is not known how many arrests will be be made. During a fire panic in the Grove the officer was driven from his post by a surging crowd from Asbury Park, and toll-taking was temporarily suspended. Great indignation is expressed at the action of the association.

GOOD SIZED FEE FOR PITNEY.

Senator Receives $8,731.62 in the Hoey Foreclosure Case.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, July 21.—Vice-Chancellor Reed yesterday filed an opinion in the foreclosure suit of the Adams Express Company against Frederick Hoey, in which Senator Mahlon Pitney, who represented the express company, is allowed a fee of $8,731.62.

The vice-chancellor, in making this unusually large allowance, takes occasion to say that the case was one requiring much more care and time than any case of which he had knowledge. The decree alone embraced 166 typewritten pages. Ordinarily a decree is not more than a page or two in length.

Troubles Of a Minister.

To benefit others Rev. J. T. W. Vernon, of Hartwell, Ga., writes: "For a long time I had a running sore on my leg. I tried many remedies without benefit, until I used a bottle of Electric Bitters and a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which cured me sound and well." Sores, Eruption, Boils, Eczema, Tetter, Salt Rheum show impure blood. Thousands have found in Electric Bitters a grand blood purifier that absolutely cures these troubles. Satisfaction is guaranteed or money refunded by L. W. Randolph. Large bottles only 50c.

IRON MARKET HALTS.

Sharp Fall In Wheat and Corn Does Not Indicate Serious Shortage.

NEW YORK, July 21.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The halt in the great iron industry necessarily affects both business and prospects in some others. The same extensive building strikes which have cut off the use of much structural steel have also prevented a vast use of lumber, which was, like iron, extraordinarily advanced in prices. The eastern association tried without avail to hold prices, and the North Carolina association caused extensive curtailment of output, while the lake association two weeks ago resolved to maintain prices, but the needed market does not yet appear.

The sharp fall of 2½ cents in wheat and 4½ cents in corn appears to reflect public conclusions after hearing much evidence, official and unofficial, regarding the extent of injury to both grains. It would not be far from the truth to say that the contradictory character of these statements of injury has well nigh deprived them of weight, so that the public reckoned on a destruction of 100,000,000 bushels of wheat by drought as possible, but not much more probable than that the official estimate of yield was 100,000,000 bushels too low. The same resulting outcome in either case would be enough to meet all probable home and foreign needs for the current year. The legitimate conclusion as to corn goes even further and is by the public accepted as evidence that even the strangely increasing foreign demand in recent years, with enough increase for gradually expanding home needs, can be safely met. The shipments go on at a quiet and moderate pace, in three weeks from Atlantic ports 5,661,501 bushels wheat, flour included, against 6,505,393 last year, from Pacific ports 1,691,597 bushels against 1,278,648 last year and of corn 9,620,538 bushels against 9,289,999 last year.

The weekly return of failures begins to have a significance not heretofore belonging to them. The decline in iron prices and the reverses in cycles, real estate, building and lumber are reflected in July already by nine failures for $100,000 or more each, of which one was in iron, one in silk, two in lumber and building and five in machinery and cycles. The total failures for two weeks of July were $5,811,712, of which $3,680,966 were in manufacturing and $1,329,757 in trading concerns.

Dismal Swamp Afire.

NORFOLK, July 21.—Weeks of drought have put a large portion of the Dismal swamp in a highly inflammable condition, and fires are eating into the timber, undergrowth and peaty ground at several points along the Norfolk and Western railroad. The fires are supposed to have been started from Norfolk and Western locomotives. The fires are so stubbornly burning that only a good long, soaking rain will extinguish them. The places already burned over are so much injured that often holes six feet deep are scooped out as by gigantic shovels.

Beckham Nominated.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 21.—At 8 o'clock yesterday morning the Democratic state convention nominated for governor J. C. W. Beckham, the present incumbent. The names of Judge Black of Barboursville and Judge Tarvin of Newport were also placed before the convention, but when Morgan county was reached on the roll call Beckham had the 547 votes necessary to nominate, and the other candidates were withdrawn and the nomination made unanimous.

Southern Missionaries Safe.

RICHMOND, July 21.—The foreign mission board of the southern Baptist convention, with headquarters in this city, has received a cablegram signed "Hartwell" from Chefu, China, as follows: "Lives saved. Pigtu looted. Christians fearfully persecuted." This means that all the Baptist missionaries of the southern convention now in northern China are safe.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The total foreign commerce of the United States during the fiscal year 1900 exceeds by 16 2-3 per cent that of any preceding year, being $320,000,000 greater than that of 1889, the heaviest one on record preceding the one which has just ended. The total commerce of the year, as shown by the figures of the treasury bureau of statistics, is $2,244,193,500.

Unprecedented Peach Crop.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 21.—Investigations regarding the condition of the peach crop show that the yield will be unprecedented, and the growers claim the prices they are likely to receive will not pay for gathering the fruit.

BLUE AND GRAY MEET

Survivors of Georgia Battles Feast at Atlanta.

GORDON AND SHAW SIDE BY SIDE.

Confederate Chief Takes Exception to Union Commander's Reference to Sectional Teachings, but Incident Closed Fraternally.

ATLANTA, July 21.—A genuine Georgia barbecue closed the reunion in this city of the blue and the gray. Although it was given out at its inception that the reunion was for the benefit of those only who participated in the battles around Atlanta and the city's invited guests, veterans from all parts of the south were present, swelling the crowds to large proportions. General John B. Gordon, commander in chief of the United Confederate Veterans, disobeying his physician's orders, was present with the other distinguished guests and sat side by side with General Albert D. Shaw, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. The invited guests made speeches, but the second on the programme, that of General Shaw, did not please General Gordon, and for a time reconciliation was forgotten. General Shaw's speech was for the most part conciliatory in tone and was well received, yet his reference to the manner in which all memories of the great struggle should be blotted out in the families of the south was not received with the favor hoped for.

In his speech he uttered these words, and they went deep into General Gordon's heart:

"What I am anxious to see is the disappearance of all unworthy reminders of the terrible conflict and the culture of present unity and righteousness over all the Union. There can now be but one ideal of American citizenship, one stars and stripes, one bulwark of future national glory and one line of patriotic teachings for all and by all. In this view the keeping alive of sectional teachings as to the justice and rights of the cause of the south in the hearts of the children is all out of order, unwise, unjust and utterly opposed to the bond by which the great chieftain Lee solemnly bound the cause of the south in his final surrender. I deeply deplore all agencies of this sort, because in honor and in chivalry, in American manhood and womanhood, nothing of this nature should be taught or tolerated for an instant."

At the close of General Shaw's speech General Gordon came forward. He had spoken briefly before, and his appearance again caused considerable of a surprise. The enthusiasm quieted instantly. General Gordon said he could not teach his children that he fought for what was wrong. He entered battle for what he believed was right, and "only the judgment day and God himself will ever decide who was right."

"Let us cherish the memories," continued General Gordon, "and history will record and heaven judge that both sides were right in fighting for what they believed was right. Let us settle once and for all this question on a basis commensurate with the manhood of the sides engaged in the great struggle. Let us settle on a basis of that immaculate truth that both sides were fighting for the constitution of their forefathers."

General Shaw responded gracefully to the general's exceptions. He stated that he had prepared his speech with care, and much of the matter was gained from speeches made by General Gordon in the north.

"Our children should be taught," said General Shaw, "the true glory and sublimity of our one country; their fathers will teach them this. Let them be so alike, the children of the north and of the south, that no difference will be perceptible."

The incident closed with three cheers for the blue and the gray.

The speakers of the day were General Albert D. Shaw, General John B. Gordon, Governor James A. Mount of Indiana, Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge, General J. C. Breckinridge, inspector general, U. S. A.; General A. P. Stewart of Chattanooga and General O. O. Howard.

The prohibitive bulletins were posted yesterday in all the shops and offices of the company at its divisional headquarters.

Falling Off in Rural Population.

Although the exact figures are not known, there seems to be a general idea that the census reports will show a falling off in the population of Warren and Hunterdon counties, as well as in other bailiwicks where the agricultural element is predominant. Noting that for the last two decades the population in extensively farming communities of this State has shown a steady decrease, while the cities and towns have exhibited a larger proportionate increase, the Newark News comments editorially as follows:

There are numerous reasons to account for this falling off in the rural population. Foremost undoubtedly is the attraction to young men of city life, with its greater opportunities, its more varied pleasures, and its wider interests. The young blood of the country is being constantly drained into those channels of feverish activity which permeate existence in the larger cities and towns, and which demand such renewed infusion to insure them permanent vitality.

But this is not the sole reason for the loss in population referred to. With the advent of labor-saving machinery it no longer requires as many hands to till the fields and gather the harvests as in days gone by. The modern self-binder does the work of a half dozen men, and so with many other appliances which are now part of the equipment of every modern farm. Since their services are no longer needed, farm laborers have sought other fields of employment, and in large numbers have joined the ranks of city workers.

Another reason for the loss is found in the total disappearance or diminution in importance of numerous small trades and manufactures which in former years were demanded by the needs of an agricultural community. In those times the village blacksmith and wheelwright built all the wagons and carriages of the community, and each employed a number of journeymen. Now the business of these artisans is confined to jobbing and repairs, and their former employes are working in the big factories and machine shops of the cities. The same is true of the country shoemaker, who is now a mere cobbler, mending the factory-made footwear of his patrons, while the village tailor has about disappeared before the almost universal use of ready-made clothes.

These are some of the causes that contribute to make a decrease in country population inevitable. The tide will turn only when the general growth of population compels the cutting up of the present large farms into smaller ones, and renders necessary and profitable a more intensive system of agriculture.

Newark is profiting materially now from the operation of street railway franchises under the ordinance which requires a percentage of the receipts of the corporations operating them to be paid into the city treasury—a system that will reap benefits for the city of Plainfield in time. The North Jersey Street Railway Company yesterday sent a check for $77,390 14 to the City Controller of Newark, being the amount of 5 per cent. on the gross earnings of the company during the year ending April 30th. When the various lines in Newark embraced in the North Jersey system adopted the trolley system it was with the stipulation that for the value of the franchises given by the city the lines should pay to the city 5 per cent. of their gross earnings. Capitalized the annual payments to the city will amount to about $2,000,000, invested at 4 per cent. and that is virtually the price paid to the city for the franchises.

The adjutant general's office at Washington has issued its annual statemeat of the organized militia force of the United States, together with the number of men available for military duty, but unorganized. The grand total of organized militiamen in the several States and Territories is 106,339. Those unorganized, but available for military duty, aggregated 10,343,152.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The Ocean Grove authorities do not seem to keep pace with the ladies—or rather with the ladies' fashions in bathing suits. A few years ago they refused to allow a woman to bathe because she had on a brilliant red bathing suit. Later they objected to anything in the way of a bathing suit that was snug and bright. A few days ago a lady stepped on the beach attired in a natty flannel bathing suit of pure white, and the authorities declared it was "unseemly" and would not permit her to go in bathing. A new rule has also been adopted. For twenty-five years, more or less, bathers have been accustomed to don their suits at their cottages or boarding houses and walk down the streets to the beach. This is now forbidden. Is all this progress or regress, or is it merely advertising?—Elizabeth Journal.

PASSING COMMENT

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

While from the point of view the new open cars of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company are far more desirable than the old, the motormen much prefer to run the old open cars. The new ones are much heavier and it requires a great amount of muscular effort to bring one of the big cars to a standstill than it did one of the old ones. The new cars are considerably faster than the old ones and are capable of taking curves and switches faster and with more safety. The short single truck cars have a great habit of "bucking" like a broncho when they are running fast and come to even the slightest curve. The new cars with double trucks round the corners steadily without showing any disposition to jump the track.

A well-known young man who is now home from college and is spending his summer at his home in this city effected a thrilling little rescue at Boynton Beach Tuesday afternoon. He is an excellent swimmer and spends considerable of his time at any place that offers an apportunity for a plunge. He went to Boynton Beach Tuesday afternoon and was swimming beyond the dock when he noticed a lad of fourteen years trying to swim out to the "barrel-horse" beyond the dock. The lad was evidently a novice. After covering about half the distance, he suddenly became frightened and threw up his hands and sank. A few vigorous strokes brought the Plainfielder to his side. Catching the lad by the back, he held him above water and towed him to the dock. The lad struggled and tried to seize his rescuer but the latter carefully avoided the waving arms and landed the lad safe at the dock. Had the Plainfielder failed to notice the other's sudden collapse, there would have undoubtedly been serious consequences.

Gentlemen:—I must say in regard to GRAIN-O that there is nothing better or healthier. We have used it for years. My brother was a great coffee drinker. He was taken sick and the doctor said coffee was the cause of it, and told us to use GRAIN-O. We got a package but did not like it at first, but now would not be without it. My brother has been well ever since we started to use it.

OPEN TRIMMINGS.

Thin, Transparent Gowns Greatly In Vogue.

Every day confirms the vogue of light gowns of transparent tissue. Hemstitching, drawn work, open embroidery and lace applications and all sorts of analogous decorations are arranged as collars, cuffs, yokes, epaulets, sleeves, etc. When there are to be transparent applications—of insertion, motifs of guipure or similar adornments—the applications are put in position and sewed firmly at the edges before the goods beneath are cut away to leave them open. When the open trimming is to be used over a lining of a brilliant color, one thickness of mousseline de soie is placed between the lining and the outside. The mousseline may be the color of the lining or of the application and serves to soften the contrast.

The edge of many flounces and ruffles is bordered with lace, which forms deep points or scallops. In this case likewise the flounce is cut with a straight edge, and the lace is first sewed on in the desired form before the material is trimmed away to the proper shape.

The illustration depicts a bodice of sky blue surah, which is closely tucked all over. A wide collar of nainsook covers the shoulders and is trimmed with an insertion and edge of lace. A large bow of blue ribbon fastens the collar, and the ends of the ribbon pass under the belt. There are cuffs matching the nainsook collar. The high collar and the plastron are of tucked white surah. The belt of white kid is secured with an enameled buckle. JUDIC CHOLLET.

TRIMMINGS AND COLORS.

They Are Quieter and More Harmonious In Effect.

Trimmings and combinations are less striking than they were last year—that is, they form a less strongly marked contrast. There is an increasing tendency to keep to different shades of the same color, or at least to avoid combining tones which stand out in strong relief. Woolen voiles are incrusted with motifs of silk and cord of the same tint, and when opposing colors are used they are so soft as to melt together with a harmonious result.

The new plaids are characterized by this peculiarity and are wonderfully pleasing. They are seen in lawns, crapes and gauzes of all kinds as well as heavier materials and for country and seaside wear are enjoying a great success.

The masculine vest of the Louis Quinze period is now revived for feminine wear. It is tight and forms a deep point back and front, the decoration being rich embroidery. Over this is now worn a bolero. What a change from the old court coat that is the historical accompaniment! These vests give a touch of elegance to the plainest costume and display a good figure to the best advantage.

The nightdresses illustrated are of French batiste. The first has a square, collarless yoke of lace and beading outlined by a flounce of lace. The sleeves are full and straight, gathered only at the shoulders and trimmed with lace and insertion to match the yoke. The second nightgown has a lengthwise decoration of fine tucks and beading, with a wide band of Irish guipure in the middle. The pelerine of Irish guipure is fastened at the side by a chou of narrow ribbon and is trimmed with a band of plain batiste outlined by beading, through which ribbon is threaded. The sleeves are trimmed with tucks, guipure and beading to match. JUDIC CHOLLET.

SECRET OF BASS BAIT.

The Assistant Secretary to Chicago's Mayor Says Use a Bit of Bacon.

During a heated argument the other day Theodore Mayer, assistant secretary to Mayor Harrison, divulged a secret about catching bass. Mr. Mayer has since been trying to suppress the information thoughtlessly given away by him, but it has gone around the city hall like wildfire, and now it threatens to revolutionize fishing methods among local politicians during the summer.

A dispute as to the best way to catch fish caused Mr. Mayer to forget himself. Secretary Lahiff vowed that an angleworm and asafetida was the best bait on earth, and then Mr. Mayer waxed warm.

"There is only one way on earth to catch plenty of fish—bass, I mean," said Mr. Mayer. "I learned it five years ago from a fisherman up in Wisconsin, and since then I have caught enough bass to fill up the city hall. I went to a Wisconsin lake and fished from sunrise till sunset for six days, but did not even get a bite. Then I hired an old fisherman and made him row me about until he almost died from exhaustion, but still no bite. Meantime we had about used up every minnow in the vicinity, and the minnow market was beginning to jump. Why, people were standing around and paying as high as a quarter apiece for this kind of bait.

"One morning after I had been rowed around the lake for the forty-ninth time the old man suddenly stopped and began weeping.

"'Young man,' said the aged fisherman, 'you've bin purty good t' me since yer stay here, and right now I want t' show ye my appreciation of those clothes and that chawin' terbacker ye give me. I'm goin' ter show yer how to catch fish till ye can't rest.'

"Then the old fellow rowed me ashore, left the boat and soon returned with a piece of bacon. This he cut into a sliver about the size and shape of a minnow. Then he attached the part of the sliver near the rind to my hook and told me to fish with it, just as if it were a minnow. I did so, and had not more than thrown my line in before I got a bite and landed a nice five-pounder. In half an hour I had filled the entire boat with fish. I never saw bass go after anything so greedily before. After I had caught enough fish to ship a car load back to Chicago I departed, and now every year I go to Wisconsin, look up that old fisherman, buy a side of bacon and never lack for fish."

POOR OLD ELEPHANT.

Sad Fate of an African Beast That Tried to Push a Big Locomotive Backward.

It is not only in South Africa, and by statesmen who ought to know better, that the march of civilization is opposed and obstinacy pitted against progress. The elephant has many human qualities, and if the story that comes to us from Perak, one of the Straits settlements, be well founded, occasionally shares with politicians hardly less intelligent their prejudice against the spirit of the age. It appears that a big tusker, which had long been an object of pursuit to the sportsmen of that remote district, wandered on to the railway line and tried conclusions with the engine of a goods train, charging it repeatedly, and keeping up the contest for nearly an hour. The engine was reversed in the hope that the beast would quit the field and allow the train to proceed, but as soon as there was any attempt to renew the journey the elephant returned to the encounter and resumed its obstructive tactics. The driver was afraid to charge the brute, lest the train should be thrown off the metals, and the contest might have gone on much longer had not the elephant backed into the engine, and, setting its fore feet firmly between the rails, endeavored to shove the train backward with its hind quarters.

The driver took advantage of the opportunity and put on steam, gradually forcing the beast off the line. In this maneuver one of the wheels of the engine went over the hind legs of the animal, which was put out of its misery by the guard of a following passenger train. This is not the first time that the engine in question has encountered an elephant on the line. Just about five years ago, while it was drawing a passenger train on a dark night through the heavy tropical forest, a sudden shock was felt, and the train came to a standstill. The engine and tender were thrown off the metals and half way down the embankment, though, fortunately, they did not drag the carriages after them. When the driver, who had been pitched off, went back to ascertain the cause of the accident, he saw a large bull elephant at the bottom of the embankment on the other side of the line. It died a few minutes after the collision from the violent shock and loss of blood, its off fore leg having been shattered and a piece of the trunk torn off. Beyond the fright and shock caused by the sudden stopping of the train, which, luckily, was traveling at only 15 miles an hour, no injury resulted to any of the passengers. In the same month of the same year a similar accident occurred on the Bengal-Nagpur railway in India.

On a pitch dark night a mail train was running at the rate of 27 miles an hour through very thick jungle which was known to hold wild elephants. The driver felt an obstruction and attempted to reverse, but the engine left the metals, dragging with it a brake van, the carriage of the locomotive superintendent and some other carriages, but without causing injury to any of the passengers or officials. At first it was thought that the accident had been brought about by cattle straying on the line, but the officials soon found a dead elephant. Apparently the animal had been crossing the line just as the train came up, and had been struck by the engine and hurled down the bank. The agent of the company sent home one of the tusks to be put up in the board room as a memorial of the occurrence. These instances of a train being thrown off the line through collision with an elephant show that, while such accidents are pretty sure to be "bad for the elephant," they are also attended with considerable danger to rolling stock, and even to human life. The latter consideration completes the analogy we have already drawn.—London Standard.

Big East Indian Trees.

It is reported in authentic works that a banyan tree on the Nerbudda once covered a space so great that it sheltered 7,000 men. The power of the floods has now much reduced it in size, but it is still 2,000 feet in circumference, and the trunks, large and small exceed 3,000 in number. Other trees have been known to cover an area of 13 acres. They are frequently found near temples and on or near funeral mounds. The figs are insipid but abundant. The leaves are of a bright green and form a dense shade. They are five inches long and four inches wide and they are used by the Brahmans as plates and dishes. The wood of the tree is porous and is almost worthless. The natives use various portions of the tree for medicinal purposes.

Is Not Partial to Exercise.

On being asked the other day to what he attributed his long life and excellent health William M. Evarts replied: "I don't know unless it is that I never took any exercise." The questioner regarded this as a joke, of course, but it is a fact that the ex-senator objects to any physical exertion, and often hires a cab to avoid walking a block.

TO PLAY TETHER BALL.

It Is a Popular Game Among Schoolboys, as Well as College Men, Just at Present.

The illustration shows a game of tether ball in full progress. To give the best results the pole should be about 16 feet long. As two feet must be buried to make it stand firmly, 14 feet will be above ground.

Two rackets are necessary, one for each player. If you possess tennis rackets they may be used; if not rackets cut from a pine board will do quite as well.

The cord to which the ball is attached should be 11 feet long. Fasten the ball to the cord by means of a small net. If there is some member of the opposite sex whom you can interest in tether ball (and the game is quite as well suited for girls as boys) she can probably crochet a net for you with very little trouble; but if this kindly aid cannot be secured, a strong and durable fastening may be made as follows:

Cut from a piece of canton flannel or chamois a disc ten inches long. Make a large knot in the end of the cord. Gather the flannel or chamois about the ball and knot. Tie firmly by binding the edges of the disc close to the cord above the knot. Paint a black circle one inch wide six feet from the base of the pole.

Bore a hole three inches from the top of the pole; push the end of the cord through and then knot it. This makes much the best fastening.

To play: Toss up to see which player shall have the choice of court. The courts consist of half the circle about the pole. If the winner of the toss prefer he may forfeit the choice of court and choose in which direction he will wind the ball.

After deciding this point the two players take position in their respective courts. (On no account must either make an off-side play by trespassing into the court of an opponent.) The player to whom has fallen the choice of direction now begins the game by knocking the ball around the pole in either direction he may desire.

His object is to continue the play until the cord is entirely wound round the pole. His opponent's play is to, if possible, interrupt this and start the ball in the opposite direction. The last decisive turn of the cord which brings the ball against the pole must be above the black ring mentioned.

If a player strike the cord above the ball, and so winds it around his racket and stops it altogether, his opponent is allowed a free serve.—Boston Globe.

MONSTER SPIDER WEB.

Many Fine Skeletons of Birds and Lizards Have Been Found in Its Meshes.

Ceylon is the some of the largest species of spider that has yet been made the subject of entomological investigation. This web-spinning monster lives in the most mountainous districts of that rugged island and places his trap—not a gossamer snare of airy lightness, but a huge net of yellow silk from five to ten feet in diameter—across the chasms and fissures in rocks, says Our Fellow-Creatures.

The supporting guys of this gigantic net, which in all cases is almost strong enough for a hammock, are from five to 20 feet in length (as conditions and circumstances may require), made of a series of twisted webs, the whole being of the diameter of a lead pencil. As might be imagined, this gigantic silken trap is not set for mosquitoes, flies and pestiferous gnats, but for birds, gaudy moths and elegantly painted butterflies, some of the latter having a spread of wing equal to that of a robin or a bluejay.

Some extra fine skeletons of small birds, lizards, snakes, etc., have been found in those webs, with every vestige of flesh picked from them. The owner and maker of these queer silk traps is a spider with a body averaging 4½ inches in width and six inches in length, and with legs nine to 12 inches from body to terminal clam.

Wonders of a Rat's Tail.

A rat's tail is a wonderful thing. The great naturalist Cuvier says that there are more muscles in this curious appendage than are to be found in that part of the human anatomy which is most admired for its ingenious structure—namely, the hand. To the rat, in fact, its tail serves as a sort of hand, by means of which the animal is enabled to crawl along narrow ledges or other difficult passages, using it to balance with or to gain a hold. It is prehensile, like the tails of some monkeys. By means of it the little beast can jump up heights otherwise inaccesible, employing it as a projectile spring.

REAL HORSE SENSE.

Displayed by an Old Mare Whose Feet Needed New Shoes and Who Went After Them.

They have at the Russell stables in Pittsfield, Mass., a horse which was purchased from Ex-Senator Dawes and is used on the baggage wagon running from the hotel to the depot.

One morning this spring the old horse was taken out of the stable and on the way to the depot she slipped on the ice and fell. Again during the morning hours about town the horse slipped on the ice. At noon the horse was unhitched and sent into her stall for her mid-day meal.

She is never hitched, and when the men looked for her to make the one o'clock trip to the station she was nowhere to be found. They searched the stable and streets, and finally went to Ex-Senator Dawes' house, but the old mare was not to be found.

Toward three o'clock, however, she appeared at the stable, trotting in briskly, and, looking around, went into her stall.

It was discovered that she had been newly shod, and the employes made inquiry at the blacksmith shop and learned that the horse had arrived there a little after noon and had waited her turn for the shoer. The men at the shop knew her and thought she had been left there by some one of the hostlers.

The old Dawes mare was making her regular trips to the station next day with new sharp corks, and she has won the heart of every stable man by her knowledge of the right thing to do at the right time.

RAT AND ELEVATOR.

Rodent's Appetite for Lubricating Oil Was the Cause of an Accident at Minneapolis.

The greed of one rat caused the fall of a passenger elevator in Minneapolis recently.

Savory as strong as cheese is the lubricating oil used on the mechanism of the elevator. On the morning in question one of them climbed to the well-oiled pulley above the cage.

Meanwhile four men stepped into the elevator. Alex. Lunden, the operator, slammed the door and the car started up.

Before Mr. Rat realized what had happened he was dragged between cable and wheel and his life was crushed out.

His body threw the cable off the wheel. Upward shot the car, and Lundeen realized that it was beyond control.

Tug as he would at the cable the elevator sped to the top of the shaft, where it smashed a wooden platform and dropped.

Lunden hung to the rope, though it burned the skin off his hands, and this helped to lessen the force of the descent. At the bottom the air cushion caused the car to rebound to the first floor and then subside.—N. Y. World.

FIND SEVEN BABIES.

A Pretty Puzzle, Old as the Hills, But of Interest to Each Successive Generation.

Here is an ancient but interesting puzzle:

One and one and one make three, anyone would say upon glancing at this picture of the fine little boys, but it is not what you see first that is the right answer to the question, "How many are there?" Look again and perhaps you will be sharp enough to see that one and one and one make not three, but more than twice three—seven. Look among the squirming arms and legs, among the chubby hands and feet and you cannot fail to make up the puzzling addition. And after you have found all seven of the baby boys take the picture and have some fun with your friends watching them fuss and fume that they cannot see more than the original three babies.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Graves Rented by the Year.

Fancy being evicted from your last resting place if your relatives neglected to pay the rent! Yet this is what happens every day in that island we have been hearing so much of lately, Porto Rico. In the Campo Santo, the consecrated field, which lies on the cliff edge near San Juan, it is impossible to buy a grave right out, except at a price which puts it out of the question for poor people. The graves are leased for a term of years, and if at the end of that time the lease is not renewed, the remains are dug up and the ground relet.

Hibernate Just Like Bears.

An official report of the Russian bureau of statistics, in the department of Paskov, shows that some of the peasants in times of scarcity hibernate in the manner of animals. They lie in bed, or, as it is called in Russia, "lejka." The bed is made on a flat stove, and all they do is to replenish the stove and support life by a diminished ration of black bread dipped in water. They try to keep as immovable as possible so as not to waste their energy or heat. The hut is dark and silent throughout the winter.

BUILDING A ROWBOAT.

Any Bright Boy Capable of Handling Saw, Plane and Hammer Can Do It Easily.

Few amtaeurs pluck up courage to build a boat. Yet, were they to do so, they would find the difficulties they dread vanish very quickly. The tools should consist of a jack and smoothing plane, a tenon saw, a rule, square, hammer and nails, brad awl and gimlet with a couple of chisels. The construction of a board skiff, or of any of its kindred craft—a flatboat, dory, sharpy, flat-iron boat, or bateau—is a simple matter.

The sharpy is one of the best boats for rowing on account of its light weight, light draft and sharp bow. In fact, it is the handiest form of board skiff in America, not excepting the dory, which, however, it very closely resembles, the chief difference between these two rowing boats being that one is adapted for comparatively smooth water, whereas the dory is used on the open ocean and is deeper and has more sheer. In construction, the sharpy is simplicity itself, and is the easiest and cheapest boat in the country to make. First, draw the vessel on paper, to a scale of one inch to the foot. Take off the shape of the midship section, that is to say the section at the widest part of the boat. Make a temporary midship section mold of pine boards. Get out the stem and apron, and the stern board, and the plank for the sides. Hold stem, midship section mold and stern board in position by a light batten nailed to them at the gunwale line. Then spring the planks of the sides around the midship section mold, and fasten them strongly with strong galvanized iron nails an inch apart, first boring a small hole with a gimlet bit for the purpose. Complete the planking of the sides. Turn the boat over and plank her across the floor her whole length. Turn her back again and put in the frames, keelson, thwarts, etc., one after the other. Caulk her, paint her; and if you desire a sail, rig her.

The following specifications may be useful for a 20-foot sharpy: Frames, oak, 1¼x1¼ inches, spaced 18 inches apart; plank of bottom, white pine 1 inch thick, put on in strips 6 inches apart; plank of sides, white pine 1¼ inch thick, put on in one or two widths; stem, oak, with a crook or knee at the bottom of the boat; bedpiece of centerboard well, oak 6 inches wide by 2 inches thick; headpieces, oak, three-quarter inch by 2 inches; plank of well, pine 1½ inches thick; centerboard, 7 feet long, 3½ feet wide, 1¼ inches thick; washboard, 8 inches wide, composed of light pine stuff 1 inch thick; combing, 2½ inches high; thwarts, three in number, a broad one at the stern; skag, 1¾ inches thick; rudder, 4½ feet long and 8 inches wide; fastenings, galvanized iron, riveted or clinched where possible.—F. H. Sweet, in Orange Judd Farmer.

THE HURRICANE TREE.

It Stands in the Public Square of Nassau, B. I., and Is Said to Be of Wonderful Age.

In Nassau, the capital city of the Bahama islands, they say "the tree in the public square"—not the trees. Now, the public square of Nassau is quite as large as that of most cities of the size, but there is only one tree in it, and that tree literally fills the square and spreads its shade over all the public buildings in the neighborhood. For it is the largest tree in the world at its base, although it is hardly taller than a three-story house. It is variously known as a ceiba, or a silk cotton tree, but the people of the low islands of the West Indies call it the hurricane tree. For no matter how hard the wind blows it cannot disturb the mighty buttressed trunk of the ceiba. In the hurricane of last spring all the palms and many of the other trees of Nassau were overturned, but the great hurricane tree, although it lost all its leaves, did not lose so much as a branch. Its trunk throws out great curving, wing-like braces, some of them 20 feet wide and nearly as high. These extend into the ground on all sides and brace the tree against all attack, while the great branches spread a thick shade overhead. In the tropic sunshine of midsummer hundreds, even thousands of people, may gather in the cool of its shadow. No one knows how old the great tree is, but it must have been growing hundreds, if not thousands, of years. A very old picture in the library at Nassau shows the tree as big as it is at present, and even the oldest native in the island cannot remember when it was a bit smaller.—Golden Days.

SPORTING.

GOLF

Among the best of the golf players now assembled in the summer colony at Southampton, Long Island, are Charles W. and Augustus R. Fisk, of this city. Both of these players are considered among the best of the cracks of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club and can be expected make a good showing wherever they go.

This is the first season that the Park Golf Club has had a team to represent it and, considering that fact, the showing of the team is a good one. While the Park Club players are not able to meet with sucess the older and more experienced teams of this section, they have made a good showing and won from teams of their own class. After the return matches with the Morristown Field Club and the Metuchen Golf Club, other matches with the Colonia Golf Club, of Rahway, the Cranford Gold Club and the Brunswick Golf Club are likely to be arranged.

The team of the Park Golf Club went to Metuchen this afternoon to play the team of the Metuchen Golf Club. The Metuchen players have never done any very brilliant thing as yet but are said to put up a fair game of golf. On the team are several of the Rutgers College boys who have been playing with the Brunswick Golf Club team. They have a fair course in Metuchen although it is not equal to either of the local links. Their club is comparatively small but the little coterie of players are just as enthusiastic over the sport as any of the other golf organizations of this section.

The match play in the Boys' golf tournament at Meadow Brook that has been in progress this week will come to an end today. Yesterday the boys continued their play for the Belmont and consolation cups, the pair left in for the final of the first cup today being Frank O. Reinhart, of this city, representing the St. Paul School, and J. G. Douglas, of the Cutler School. The former was the gold medal winner Thursday, when he led Douglas by nine strokes. Reinhart and Frank Talmage were the first pair out in the semi-finals. The latter, by the aid of two 3s, had the match all square at the fifth hole, but he could only halve one hole after that and he was 3 down to Reinhart at the end of the first round. Talmage won the first hole on the second round, after each had made poor drives, in 6 to 8. Thereafter Reinhart had the match secure and he won out easily, by 4 up and 3 to play. Talmage won two of the bye holes. The card was:

Reinhart..	5	5	5	4	4	7	5	6	4—45
Talmage	5	3	6	3	5	3	6	7	4—47
Reinhart	3	4	5	3	5	5	7	7	6—49—94
Talmage	4	4	6	3	5	9	6	8	4—48—95

ROD AND GUN.

A fishing party composed of James Day, Frank Clark, Patrich Muldoon, and captained by Eugene O'Reilly, journeyed to Perth Amboy Thursday and secured 36 fine weakfish. The honors of the day were easily won by Muldoon, who besides catching a good share of the weakfish secured a four pound fluke.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss Kate Kelley, of New street, is the possessor of a new Featherstone wheel.

DAUGHTER MAY DIE OF GRIEF.

Miss Schmitt Overcome by Death of Father and Brother.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 21.—There is danger of another death in the afflicted household of the late Joseph S. Schmitt, of Centre street, where the head of the family and his only son lie dead side by side, the parent dying from grief over his boy's demise.

Last night one of Mr. Schmitt's daughters was prostrated with heart trouble, her symtoms being similar to those with which her father was stricken, and her condition is alarming. Two doctors are in attendance on the patient, and they say unless a change comes in a few hours that her recovery is doubtful. Excessive grief, they declare, has brought on the serious attack of heart failure from which she is suffering. She has never been very strong. This additional trouble has nearly prostrated the remaining two daughters.

LEHIGH VALLEY'S NEW LINE.

Complete From Communipaw to Buffalo—Freight Only at Present.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company yesterday completed its route from Communipaw to Buffalo. The line will be used for freight only at present. Passenger trains will continue to use the Pennsylvania Railroad station because the Lehigh Valley has no ferry accommodations. The connection between Communipaw and the Lehigh Valley's new bridge across Newark Bay could only be made by crossing Communipaw avenue. This the company desired to do at grade, but when the Jersey City Street and Water Board passed an ordinance giving it the required permission, property owners took the matter to the Court of Errors and appeal. In March a final decision in the company's favor was given.

Street Cars Disabled.

Two of the cars of the Plainfield Street Railway were temporarily put out of service this morning. In running through high water out on the Arlington avenue branch, two of the ground wires were burned off. The damage was repaired and the cars are running again.

Must Use Water During Regular Hours.

It has come to notice of the Plainfield Water Supply Company that in the borough several persons have been using lawn sprinklers out of the prescribed hours, and the guilty ones need not be surprised to find their water supply cut off, if they persist in the practice.

Somerville Officials Inspect Local Fire Department Buildings With a View of Patterning After Them.

Somerville is planning to have a new fire department headquarters and a committee composed of two fire commissioners, two ex-chiefs and two present members of the department of Somerville, visited Plainfield yesterday afternoon to look over the buildings of the local department. They were received by Chief Doane and shown through all the buildings of the Plainfield department and then entertained informally.

The visitors were highly pleased with the arrangements in the local houses. The city headquarters on East Second street practically answered their requirements as they propose to have a building to hold four apparatus. Some of the arrangements of the new West End house were more up-to-date and particularly interested the Somervillians. The party included Former Chiefs Gwinette and Coughty, Fire Commissioner Osborne and three others.

IN HOSPITAL TWO YEARS.

John Decker, a Veteran of the Civil War, Finally Succumbs to Cancer on the Face.

John Decker, aged 62 years, a veteran of the Civil War, died at Muhlenberg Hospital, this morning, where he has been under treatment since March, 1898, for a cancer of the face. Mr. Decker was born in Germany, and came to this country when a young man. For many years he lived with Walter Blair at New Market. As he drew a pension he was able to go to the hospital and receive the proper treatment he needed. He was a single man and has not a relative in this country. Up to two weeks ago he was able to be about the hospital, but since that time he was confined to his bed. The remains have been taken in charge by Undertaker Howard Toms, of Warrenville, and they will probably be interred at that place.

WATER BACKED UP ON ROOF.

Then it Found an Outlet and Ran Into Press Composing Room.

A deluge visited the Vanderbeek building, corner of Park and North avenue, early this morning. A miscellaneous collection of refuse, thrown out on the roof of the Vanderbeek building from the upper windows of the hotel next door, was swept into the outlet from the roof gutter by the heavy rain early this morning. The water was blocked and overflowed so that it ran into The Daily Press composing room in the third floor. Many of the cases of type were filled and other damage done. The water also leaked into the insurance office on the second floor, doing more damage and eventually brought up in the basement, spoiling considerable paper belonging to The Daily Press. The cellar of T. S. Armstrong's pharmacy was also flooded.

JERSEYMEN FIGHTING IN CHINA.

Corporal Leary, of Rahway, a Member of the Ninth Infantry.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, July 21.—No braver fighter went to the front from Rahway than John Thomas Leary, whose parents reside in East Rahway. Nearly three years ago he enlisted in the gallant Ninth United States Infantry, in which, as corporal of Company C, he is engaged in the fighting in China.

At the battle of Santiago Corporal Leary, not yet much past his majority, was shot through the knee, on account of which he was furloughed three months after getting out of the hospital in Cuba. He still suffers from that experience, but refused to take a dischare on account of it. His term of service will expire about the first of September.

The matter will probably be taken up very soon and under the direction of Superintendent of Highways Thomas Doud will be promptly attended to. FATAL END TO A FIGHT.

John Henning Died at the Hospital This Morning as a Result of Being Kicked in the Stomach.

Jacob Henning, the canalman who was kicked by John Muldoon, also an employe on a canal boat, died at the hospital at 12:20 o'clock this morning as a result of the injuries he received. From 7:30 o'clock last evening up to the time of death Henning was unconscious. As previously stated, Henning and Muldoon engaged in a fight and Henning was kicked in the stomach. Every effort has been and is being made to capture Muldoon and bring him to account for his action. Thus far he has not been apprehended. Henning had no relatives in this country, his only living relative being a sister who lives in Germany.

As soon as Henning died, Captain Kiely notified the officials of Somerset county, and this afternoon Dr. Wagoner, the county physician, came to Plainfield and viewed the remains at the city morgue.

DEATH OF MRS. MOORE.

Had Been Ill for a Year, but She Bore the Affliction Patiently.

After an illness which extended over a period of more than a year, Mrs. Frederick S. Moore died at her home on Park avenue early this morning. She had been failing rapidly since last April and her death was not unexpected. Mrs. Moore was born in this city twenty-nine years ago and had lived here all her life. She has always had a large circle of acquaintances, everyone of whom will always remember her for her bright and cheerful disposition. During her long illness she made no complaint and bore it all patiently.

Beside a husband she is survived by her mother, who resided with her, two brothers, Joseph, of this city, and Lawrence, of Hoboken, and a sister, Mrs. Bohley, also of Hoboken.

The funeral services will be held from St. Mary's church, Tuesday morning. Interment will be at Hillside.

Property Owners to do Their Share.

The changes are that the upper part of Westervelt avenue will soon be macadamized, as suggested in The Daily Press a few days ago. The property owners along that thoroughfare have taken the matter up and by subscription will do their part in having the work done at an early date. The Council is anxious and willing to macadamize that portion of the avenue if the property-owners will pay their proportionate share.

Still Alarm.

A still alarm was received by hose company No. 3 last evening, notifying the members that the ties on the railroad, near Plainfield avenue, were on fire to the danger of nearby property. They were extinguished without laying any hose.

Rusty Nail Penetrated Foot.

Daniel Hawkins, of West Second street, is confined to his home with a disabled foot, the result of a rusty nail penetrating it. It is badly swollen and very painful, but no serious results are anticipated.

Judge Reserved Decision.

Attacked by Tramps.

Wallace Hetfield, of Plainfield, reported Thursday night at Westfield that two men made an attempt Thursday night to hold him up as he was riding through the woods at Garwood. One struck at his bicycle lamp with a stick, presumably to put it out, and the other tried to grab him. His lamp was smashed, but he managed to get clear. When he reached Westfield he was stopped for riding without a light and exhibited his battered lamp in substantiation of his story.

Isolation for Consumption.

All the doctors of Montclair have decided in future to report to the Board of Health cases of consumption that come under their notice. Although no action has yet been taken by the Board of Health looking to the isolation of consumptives, it is understood that the decision of the doctors to report all cases is a preliminary step to the establishment of an isolation hospital for consumptives.

Visibility of Objects.

At sea level an object one hundred feet high is visible a little over thirteen miles; five hundred feet high it is visible nearly thirty miles. These calculations are based on the assumption that your eyes are all right; if they are not right a call at Collier's will insure their being made right.

HUMIDITY AND HEAT TOO MUCH FOR GOLFERS

Only a Small Turnout at Links of Park Golf Club Saturday Afternoon.

TEAM WAS IN METUCHEN

H. D. HIBBARD WON FIRST HONORS FOR PRESIDENT'S CUP.

Senator Chas. A. Reed is Now Third in Race for That Trophy—His Score was Second Saturday—Green Committee Trophy Play Today.

The thunder storms held aloof Saturday afternoon and allowed a little group of enthusiastic golfers to make the rounds of the Park Golf Club course. The heat and the excessive humidity kept away all but the real golfers and, as five of the most enthusiastic of them were over at Metuchen for the team match, there was a comparatively small attendance at the course.

Several of the team turned out Saturday afternoon to make their rounds for the president's cup but their scores were so high that the cards were not turned in. As a result, the scratch men were not represented in the weekly competition for that trophy. The honors of the day easily went to H. D. Hibbard. He played in great form, making a 48 and a 51, giving a gross score of 98. With his handicap of 12 he was first by a large margain Although he didn't equal Samuel Townsend's record of a week before and make "Butternut" in two, he holed out there in three. The bogey score for that hole is four.

Senator Charles A. Reed dropped into second place for the afternoon with 93 net, thereby putting him third in the race for the president's cup. Morgan T. Townsend still leads with William R. Faber a close second. Faber played but was off his usual game and failed to get a point.

The third place with its single point, went to Henry C. Wells. Wells has departed for the "duffer" class and is rapidly improving his game. There were a dozen who registered for the afternoon's play but only six cards were turned in. They showed the following scores:

	Gross.	Hand.	Net.
H. D. Hibbard	98	12	86
Charles A. Reed	108	15	93
Henry C. Wells	120	25	95
George T. Rogers	111	15	96
Samuel Townsend	112	15	97
Wm. B. Faber	116	15	101

The only change of importance in the standing of the players for the president's cup was the advance of Senator Reed to third place. The points scored for the trophy are now as follows:

Morgan T. Townsend	6
William R. Faber	5½
Charles A. Reed	3½
Samuel Townsend	3
George C. Werth	3
Meredith Dryden	3
J. R. Simpson	3
W. de la R. Anderson	3
Allan B. Laing	3
H. D. Hibbard	3
Herbert S. Rogers	2½
George T. Rogers	2
Edgar I. Serrell	2
Henry C. Wells	1½
Gustavus W. Faber	1½
Donald A. McGee	1
Charles B. Morse	1
S. St. J. McCutchen	½

There was no play for the green committee challenge trophy as G. W. Faber, the holder, and Edgar I. Serrell, the next challenger, were both at Metuchen with the team. The trophy was played for last Monday when Faber won it from W. de la R. Anderson, eleven up. Faber and Serrell will probably meet this afternoon. Morgan T. Townsend is the next challenger after Serrell. The standing for that trophy is as follows:

Morgan T. Townsend	3
W. S. J. Thiers	2
Fred P. Taylor	1
W. de la R. Anderson	1
Gustavus W. Faber	1

The weekly competitions for the Hooley cup ended a week ago and will not be resumed until September. There were a few of the ladies on the course Saturday but they were very few. The usual informal tea was also omitted.

Red Men Growing in Numbers.

The reports received last week by Great Sachem William Newcorn show that the Improved Order of Red Men has made a remarkable increase in its membership during the past year. Over two-thirds of that increase has been made in the last six months when Great Sachem Newcorn went into office. The reports show the net gain in membership to be 1,500, and there are still thirty tribes to be heard from before the record will be complete.

Mrs. Bocap Not Injured.

Miss Bocap, who was in the runaway at Patchogue, L. I., was not injured except for a great shaking up and subsequent stiffness. Mrs. Jenkins, who was one of the party, dislocated the elbow of the right arm and broke a small bone in the forearm.

VICTORY AT METUCHEN.

PARK GOLF CLUB TEAM CAME HOME WINNERS SATURDAY.

Not a Metuchen Player Managed to Make a Score While the Parkites Made 23 Points.

The team of the Park Golf Club, of this city, had no difficulty Saturday afternoon in defeating the team from the Metuchen Golf Club on the links of the latter club. The Plainfield team was victorious by a score of 23 to 0. The last round was played in a heavy rain.

The Metuchen Club has a new course this year, having been compelled to give up the last one with the conclusion of last season's play. The new links are rapidly being put in shape and will be in fair condition before the end of the season. The putting greens are still rather rough.

Not a Metuchen player managed to score in the match. William M. McCutchen, of the Park Club, broke the course record for nine holes doing 46, two better than the old record. G. W. Faber, of the same club, made a new course record for eighteen holes, going in an even 100

The home team was fairly outclassed despite the fact that the course was entirely new to the visitors. When the second round began, a lively thunder storm arrived on the scene and completely drenched the players. The match was continued, however.

The team score was as follows:

PARK GOLF CLUB.		METUCHEN GOLF CLUB.
M. T. Townsend	4	R. B. Corbin	0
W. J. B. Thiers	4	W. Wilson	0
G. W. Faber	6	A. T. Strong	0
W. M. McCutchen	8	T. Fait	0
E. I. Serrell	1	Dr. Potter	0

THE DATE WAS KEPT.

But When He Got Through Philmore Found Himself in the Hospital Badly Battered-up.

In a confidential mood early Saturday evening, John Philmore, of Watchung avenue, imparted the information to a friend that he had a date to fight a man a short time later. The date was kept but from appearances John got the worse of it. He was observed about 9 o'clock running up Somerset street, near Craig place, with two men in pursuit. All three disappeared and a half hour afterward Philmore was found lying unconscious opposite Homan's blacksmith shop.

Dr. Pittis was called and worked over the man for some time but failed to revive him. The ambulance was sent for and he was taken to the hospital, where he was found to be suffering from the combined effects of a blow in the face and a little too much liquid refreshment. A deep cut under the eye showed where he had been struck. He recovered sufficiently yesterday morning to leave the hospital but was unable to tell who struck him or how he got to the place where he was found.

Most All Have Obeyed.

Borough Councilman Robert Clark, Jr., chairman of the street committee, accompanied by Superintendent Thomas Doud and Clerk Rowley, made a tour of the borough Saturday evening for the purpose of seeing how many of the property owners who have had sidewalk notices served on them, complied with the law. They learned that most of the property-owners had obeyed, but there were a few cases among a wealthy class of people who had not complied with the notices.

Work of Lightning at Mt. Bethel.

The home of N. H. Heidloff, near Mt. Bethel, had a narrow escape from destruction by lightning Saturday morning. The house, which was built a year ago, stands in the centre of a grove of large trees. A bolt of lightning struck a large tree just to the east of house, splintering the tree. Another tree to the west of the house, was also splintered by a bolt. The building escaped. A large dog, which stood in the doorway of the house, was knocked senseless.

RULE FOR INTERMENT OF DEAD CATHOLICS.

Rev. Father Smyth Objects to Burial in Ground That is Not Consecrated.

NO EXCEPTION AFTER THIS.

THE DECISION ANNOUNCED IN ST. MARY'S CHURCH YESTERDAY.

Father Smyth Deferred to the Arrangements for the Funeral of Mrs. Moore, Who Will be Buried at Hillside Cemetery.

Considerable of a sensation was caused among the members of St. Mary's R. C. church yesterday when Fer. P. E. Smyth took occasion at both the morning and evening services to refer to the subject of the burial of Catholics in cemeteries that are not consecrated according to the faith and custom of the church. The remarks of Father Smyth were brought about by his dissent to the arrangements made for the interment of the remains of the late Mrs. Frederick Moore, who was a Catholic.

Before her death Mrs. Moore had made a request to have her body interred at Hillside cemetery, and in making arrangements for the funeral her relatives planned to respect her wish. Rev. Father Smyth was requested to officiate at the funeral services which it was proposed to hold in St. Mary's church, but when he was apprised of the intention to have the remains interred in Hillside cemetery he deferred and intimated that he would insist on having the interment in consecrated ground if the services were conducted in the Catholic church. Inasmuch as two prominent Catholics were recently buried at Hillside cemetery, the hesitation to acquiesce in the proposed arrangements on the part of Father Smyth caused considerable surprise.

The result of the incident, of course, was to cause considerable talk and gossip among Catholics and others, and yesterday Father Smyth decided that the matter was of enough importance to bring it to the attention of his parishioners. Although he mentioned no names in referring to the matter of permitting members of the Catholic church to be interred in unconsecrated ground, everyone knew who he meant.

In his statement to the congregation Father Smyth said that hereafter he should insist that the remains of all those over whom Catholic services were held in St. Mary's church should be interred in consecrated ground according to the Catholic faith and tenets. In the present case, however, he said that he had not yet decided whether or not he should insist on the rule.

It appears that in the meantime, however, the relatives of Mrs. Moore had decided not to wait for the decision of Father Smyth, but to make other arrangements so that there would be no question about the interment being made at Hillside. Accordingly, Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of Grace P. E. church, has been asked to conduct the services, and he will do so.

TROLLEY KNOCKED OUT.

LIGHTNING STRUCK AN ARRESTOR AND STOPPED THE POWER.

No Cars Run Between Richmond Street and Picton Saturday Night—Caused Much Inconvenience.

During the storm of Saturday evening the lightning played havoc with the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway and also a part of the local line. A bolt struck an arrestor on a pole west of Scotch Plains causing a ground, and as a result all traffic between Richmond street, this city, and the railroad at Picton, was tied up the entire evening.

Repair men searched for the trouble, but it was nearly 3 o'clock Sunday morning before the break was located and repaired enough to allow the stalled cars to move. Hundreds of people were put to a great inconvenience by the tie-up. Over a hundred passengers were forced to walk from Picton to Westfield as late as 10 o'clock. A large number from Westfield and Scotch Plains, who came to this city early in the day, were forced to take the train, or, as some from the latter place did, walk home. The loss to the company will amount to several hundred dollars. Everything was in the usual running order yesterday.

On the Woodbridge branch a car going at the rate of twenty miles an hour when passing the Rayway Reformatory jumped the track caused by spreading rails. It fell into a ditch, after completely cutting in two a tree twenty inches in diameter, also a wooden trolley pole. The tree fell crashing over the car, while the pole fell on the opposite side of the car. A panic followed among the passengers, all of whom jumped to a place of safety and escaped with a few light injuries.

CHECK WAS WORTHLESS.

While it Was Being Investigated the Woman Who Presented it Suddenly Disappeared.

A middle aged woman, well dressed, walked into Curtis M. Thorpe's store on Park avenue Saturday afternoon shortly after 2 o'clock. She wanted to buy a gas-log. After selecting the one she desired, she asked Mr. Thorpe to cash a check for her, taking the payment out of it and giving her the change remaining. While Mr. Thorpe was investigating the genuineness of the check the woman disappeared. Then he learned the check was worthless.

The check was made payable to Mary B. Taylor and was signed John L. Brown, M. D. It was on the First National Bank and was for $18. The woman said that she was Mary B. Taylor. She gave the impression by her talk that she lived in Fanwood.

Mr. Thorpe asked the woman to wait a minute and he called up the First National Bank. The bank officers wanted to see the check. While Mr. Thorpe was gone the woman disappeared leaving the check in Mr. Thorpe's possession. The matter has been reported to the police.

BOLD HORSE THIEF.

Henry Hummer, of Stelton, the Victim—Protective Society Trying to Hunt Down Thief.

Henry Hummer, Overseer of the Poor in Piscataway township, and who lives at Stelton, suffered a severe loss last night when thieves broke into his barn and stole his horse, two sets of harness and a set of reins. Mr. Hummer discovered his loss this morning, but he has not the slightest clew as to who the thieves are. The Protective Society of Piscataway, which is organized to hunt out such thieves, has been acquainted with the facts of the case, and they will make every effort to trace the stolen property and bring the culprits to justice.

They were tried Saturday morning. The Judge decided that both were guilty and fined them $2 each.

MAYOR SMALLEY SUED FOR $5,000 DAMAGES

Wm. J. Pride, a Colored Barber, Believes That His Honor Caused Him Injury.

ECHO OF BARBER SHOP ROW

PRIDE PUT OUT OF BUSINESS BY MR. SMALLEY.

The Tonsorial Artist Owed the Latter Some Money and Radical Steps Were Resorted to in Collecting It.

Wm. J. Pride, formerly a barber in the city and borough, but now conducting a similar business in Newark, has brought a suit in the Supreme Court to recover $5,000 from Mayor N. B. Smalley, of the borough, for alleged eviction from the store occupied by him on Somerset street, which is owned by the Mayor. Sheriff Schoonmaker served the summons in the case last week. J. Henry Roezal, of Newark, is counsel for the plaintiff, while Charles A. Reed, of the firm of Reed & Codington, represents the Mayor.

The plaintiff swears that last January he went to his barber shop, which he rented from the Mayor, and found it locked. He demanded admittance, and was refused by the Mayor, who said he did not care to have him for a tenant any longer. The declaration states further that the defendant disposed of the shop fixtures and converted the proceeds to his own use.

A representative of The Daily Press saw Mayor Smalley concerning the case and learned that he is not worried very much over it. He stated that at the time the trouble is alleged to have taken place, Pride owed him considerable back rent, and that he had advanced him $35 security for the purchase of cigars. Besides he paid Pride for almost all the fixtures in the shop, which are now being used by Benjamin Johnson, a barber, who has the shop. In addition to the above state of affairs, the Mayor's brother, David Smalley, loaned Pride $25, which he had to sue for, and as a reward he got judgment in one of the local courts.

Mayor Smalley says that he is not anxious for such notoriety, but if the case goes to trial, which he does not believe it will, it will bring out some facts which will not be favorable to the plaintiff. He states further as regards the alleged eviction that a young colored boy named Scott worked for Pride, and that it was Scott that left the keys of the shop in the butcher shop adjoining. Chief Marshal Campbell secured the keys and gave them to the Mayor. It will be remembered that Pride had Scott arrested, charging him with stealing some money from him. Pride got his money, and the case was dismissed in short order. Just why Pride should bring this suit up at this stage of the game it is not clear to Mayor Smalley, but he says that he will fight the case to the end.

Anniversary Rally.

Yesterday afternoon a rally was held at the Mt. Olive Baptist church, which was the first of a series of services that will be held during this week in honor of the twenty-ninth anniversary of the organization of the church. Yesterday afternoon an opening sermon was delivered by Rev. Mr. Vaughan, of New York, and again last evening he preached a strong sermon. Both services were largely attended.

Church to Close for a Month.

The Congregational church will remain open only one more Sunday before closing for the summer. It is customary to close the church during the month of August when the pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, is on his vacation. It will also give an opportunity to install new heating and ventilating apparatus that is much needed.

Desirable Improvements.

Some very desirable improvements are being made in front of the Boice, Runyon & Co. property on Park avenue, opposite North avenue. The flagging and curbing is being relaid and re-set, and substantial cobble stones are being laid where the travel is the heaviest for the wagons in passing in and out of the yards.

Frank-in Place Improved.

The resurfacing of Franklin place has been completed. The steam roller was at work there all Saturday and rolled in the fine top dressing, leaving the roadway in excellent condition. Advantage was taken of the storm Saturday morning to roll the street when it was thoroughly wet.

HILLSIDE PLAYERS WON.

DEFEATED GLEN RIDGE TEAM WITHOUT STRIVING VERY HARD.

The Oppressive Weather Saturday Took the Enthusiasm All Out of The Golfers.

The almost unbearable heat that prevailed Saturday had a very depressing effect on the golf enthusiasts at the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club course. Very few players were out, and if it had not been for the team match between Hillside and the Glen Ridge teams there would have been little or nothing to attract. The individual scores of the players were pretty high, but not one made any attempt to play par golf. As has been the case thus fas this season Hillside won the match 8 to 2, but it cannot be said that the victory came through superior play. Of course the home team wanted to win, and they did all that was possible under weather conditions to do so. But there was a woeful lack of enthusiasm and snap in the game on the part of both teams. Even at the clubhouse, where there is generally found a delightful breeze, it was almost impossible to be comfortable, and there were not many that remained there. During the afternoon a few dropped in at the clubhouse, but they soon left. At night the weather was slightly cooler and a few ventured as far as the clubhouse and enjoyed what little breeze there was to be had. The scores of the match game are as follows:

HILLSIDE.		GLEN RIDGE.
Glenney	0	Place	1
Talmage	0	Thompson	1
Wright	4	Sherman	0
Dumont	2	Broughton	0

DEATH OF MRS. NEEDHAM.

Paralysis of the Throat the Cause of Death—She Had Been Sick for a Long Time.

After many weeks and months of suffering death brought relief Saturday evening to Mrs. Josephine Needham, wife of Former Mayor Henry E. Needham, of 3 Verdon street, in the borough. Death was the result of an attack of paralysis of the throat, and Mrs. Needham has been an intense sufferer, being unable to take hardly any nourishment for a long time.

Mrs. Needham was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Marsh, a well-known resident of Scotch Plains, and was born at that place. She has been a resident of the borough for several years, ever since her marriage to Mr. Needham. She possessed a great many excellent qualities and was loved and esteemed by a host of friends. She was a regular attendant at the First Baptist church until illness prevented.

Besides her husband, her parents, two brothers and a sister survive her. The latter is Mrs. Darby, of Grove street. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the residence on Verdon street, and interment will be in the cemetery adjoining the Scotch Plains Baptist church in the family plot. The deacons from the First Baptist church, this city, will serve as bearers.

Died at Soldiers' Home.

Patrick McDermott, a former resident of Plainfield, died at the Soldiers' Home at Kearney Friday night at the age of sixty-five. At the outbreak of the Civil War he was one of the first to volunteer, entering Company I, Third Regiment, in which a number of Plainfielders served. He fought all through the war and was wounded several times. The funeral services will be held under the auspices of the G. A. R. at Elizabethport tomorrow morning. He leaves a wife and two sons.

Burned by Lightning.

A sharp flash of lightning Saturday evening struck an Italian as he was about to ascend the steps in front of his house on Cottage place. The man was rendered unconscious from the shock. Dr. Browning was called and on examination found the man to be badly burned about the lower limbs. He has been in Plainfield but a week, having just arrived from Italy.

A KNOTTY QUESTION ABOUT "DEAD POND."

To be Decided by a Case Against Fishermen Now in the New Jersey Courts.

IS THE POND FRESH WATER?

IF NOT THEN GAME LAWS DO NOT APPLY TO IT.

Game Warden Acts Upon the Assumption That it is, but the Men Whom He Arrested Will Carry the Case to Higher Court.

The intricacies of the State Fish and Game laws are again agitating the Justices and sportsmen of Somerset county. In their efforts to carry out the intent of the laws the Justices have made some remarkable commitments. The records of the Sheriff's office show that a poor Frenchman, who was ignorant of the laws, was committed to the county jail for 125 days for placing in a bird cage a nest of young robins which fell from a tree, while a German farmhand, who attempted to kill a hawk that was raiding his master's barnyard on the Sabbath, was committed both for carrying the gun and shooting at the hawk under different sections of the Game Law. He remained in jail for several months before the higher courts were able to unravel the complicated ruling of the country Justice who committed him.

A knotty question, in which four citizens, two game wardens, two lawyers and one Justice of the Peace are now involved, is whether a "dead pond" is among the "fresh waters" of the State within the meaning and intent of section 17 of the State Fish and Game laws. The citizens concerned are William Bellis, J. V. D. TenEyck, James Boyle and Henry Frech. Warden Hawkins, of Roselle and Warden Miller, of Somerville are prosecuting them on behalf of the State, and former Judge Cowenhoven and John R. Reger are the lawyers who are defending them in Justice Edward Farley's court.

Bellis, TenEyck, Boyle and Frech, who are among the best-known anglers of the county, are charged with catching fish with a dragnet in dead ponds on the farm of William Snyder, near the Raritan River.

Upon Snyder's invitation Bellis, TenEyck, Boyle and Frech went to his place with their nets July 6th and caught a large number of carp in a pond that was formed by an overflow from the Raritan River. Later they moved their nets to a pond nearer the river and made their first haul, when Warden Hawkins, whom they had left at a hotel at Somerville, suddenly approached on the scene.

Bellis, TenEyck, Boyle and Frech have since been arrested by Warden Miller and placed under $125 bonds. The case will be carried to the higher courts to determine whether a "dead pond" is fresh water.

SYMPATHIZES WITH CHINA.

First Duty of the Powers is Not to Think of Revenge, Says Dr. Lewis.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bound Brook, July 23—Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of Plainfield, filled the pulpit at the Bound Brook Presbyterian church yesterday morning and preached on "China, The Powers, and God." His text was "The Lord Reigneth."

Dr. Lewis presented a new phase to the situation. From the Chinese standpoint, he declared, the conduct of China is justified. For sixty years they have been compelled to open their doors to foreign nations. The first duty of the powers was, he said, not to think of revenge but to act with a higher motive. While bloodshed seemed sure, he believed that the eventual result would be for the betterment of China and Christianity.

SEASIDE POLITICS.

Republicans and Democrats Consult the Breezes at Manhattan Beach.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The leading figures in state politics, both Democratic and Republican, gathered by the seaside yesterday. The Republicans had the Oriental hotel as their Mecca, while the Democrats assembled at Brighton. Senator Platt had a large number of callers yesterday, but no such gathering as was expected in the event of a state committee meeting happening so recently. Very few of the chairmen of the county committees in the state who attended the conference at the Fifth Avenue hotel Saturday were present, but many political leaders were there and had conferences with the Republican leader.

It was conceded by all those who called at the hotel interested in Republican politics that Benjamin B. Odell, Jr., led in the gubernatorial candidacy race.

Postmaster Van Cott voiced the sentiments of many of them when he said, "Odell will be nominated, and I do not think he will decline."

Harry White of Onondaga was mostly spoken of as candidate for lieutenant governor, and it was the general consensus of opinion that the present state officers would secure a renomination.

At the Brighton hotel Richard Croker of Tammany Hall received many Democratic politicians. With him were Corporation Counsel John Whalen, John B. McDonald and Senator P. H. McCarren of Brooklyn. There were many other local Democratic politicians present, but no up the state men were about the Brighton. Mr. Croker was asked what the prospects were, and he said they were all right. He refused to discuss politics, and when asked about what he thought of Odell for governor he referred the inquirer to Mr. Platt. Mr. Croker will remain at Brighton for a few days longer and says that he is not discussing or interested in politics during these hot days.

The President's Day of Rest.

CANTON, O., July 23.—President McKinley attended services at St. Paul's Episcopal church yesterday instead of at his usual place. Bishop Leonard of the diocese of Ohio, a personal friend of the president, conducted the services, and the boys' vested choir of Wheeling furnished the music. "Walk circumspectly" was the theme of the bishop's sermon. The usual prayer for the president was offered, and special prayers were said for those engaged in war, for the diplomats in China and for all in distress on account of the Chinese situation, but there was no special reference to the chief executive in the services. The president and Mrs. McKinley took a drive during the afternoon, and the remainder of the day was spent in a restful manner.

Typewriter Telegraphy.

CHICAGO, July 23.—Telegraphy by the use of typewriters in place of the ordinary clicking keys and receivers familiar in telegraph offices has been made possible by two Chicago men, Zalmon G. Scholes and Alfred C. Gilmore. They have devised a mechanism by which a message written with ordinary spelling on a machine that has a keyboard exactly like the keyboard of the ordinary typewriter will be printed if transmitted over a telegraph wire by another typewriter in the office to which it is sent hundreds of miles away. The instruments have been tested over a circuit of 265 miles of wire belonging to the Central Union Telephone company, connecting Bloomington, Springfield and Peoria.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The division of customs and insular affairs, war department, has made public its regular monthly bulletin on the subject of the trade of the Philippine Islands for the six months ended Dec. 31, 1899. The total exportation from the archipelago amounted to $7,654,626. The export duty collected was $237,856.

All four belong to Tiffin.

Passenger Steamers Collide.

BELFAST, July 23.—In a collision outside Belfast lough between the local passenger steamers Dromedary and Alligator five passengers were killed and upward of 50 more or less seriously injured, in many cases the amputation of legs being necessary. There were 600 passengers on board the two vessels, and terrible scenes followed the collision. It is feared that some others have been drowned.

Three Women Drowned.

NASHVILLE, July 23.—News reaches here from Hamburg, Hardin county, of the drowning near there of three young women, Misses Cora and Ruby Townsend and Pearl Flack. They were wading in Owl creek when one of them stepped from a shelving rock into deep water. The others responded to her cries, and as none could swim the three met their fate together.

in Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. CHINA SENDS APPEAL

Emperor Invokes Friendly Offices of the President.

UNITED STATES' POLICY OUTLINED.

Government Acting on the Strength of Reported Safety of Envoys and Hopes to Obtain Relief Through Friendly Chinese Officials.

WASHINGTON, July 23. — President McKinley has received what purports to be a direct appeal from the Chinese imperial government to use his good offices to extricate that government from the difficult and dangerous position in which it has been placed as a result of the Boxer uprising and the ensuing hostile attitude of the great powers. Although the exact text of the appeal made by the emperor of China to France, as outlined in the cable dispatches of Saturday, has not been made known here, it is believed that the address to the president is similar in terms to that communication. In our case the communication was made through Minister Wu to the state department. Thus far a final answer has not been returned.

The French government answered at once, but that answer will not serve us. The United States government is conscientiously proceeding upon an entirely different line of policy in the treatment of the case. Unfortunately the state department finds itself alone in this, but nevertheless it is convinced that its plan is the best, and it has behind it the consoling assurance that at present all of the European governments have tacitly admitted that an error was made in the beginning in not following the common sense of the United States naval commander at Taku.

The point of difference between the state department and the European governments is that the latter are proceeding upon the belief that all of the foreign ministers and missionaries and guards at Peking have been killed and insist upon dealing with the Chinese government upon that basis, thereby assuming a hostile attitude that tends to destroy the last chance of availing of whatever friendly sentiment may yet exist among the powerful Chinese viceroys and the imperial government itself. Thus the French reply indicated in the four conditions laid down by M. Delcasse Saturday sets an impossible task for the imperial government in its present straits and tends to drive it at once to make terms with the Boxers and Prince Tuan's party.

On the other hand, our government, while not guaranteeing the truth of the advices from the Chinese government as to the safety of the foreign ministers, is willing to accept the statements temporarily, in the meantime remitting none of its efforts to get access to Mr. Conger through the use of military force if need be. By following out this policy the state department argues that it retains two chances instead of one. It may reach Mr. Conger with troops, and it also may secure his deliverance through the friendly offices of some of the powerful Chinese officials, which the powers are not likely to obtain for their own people by following out their present policy. It may be stated also that the United States government has not and does not intend to relinquish any part of its claim for compensation and reparation in the ultimate settlement. Its position in that respect it holds will not be affected unfavorably by prosecuting its efforts to make use of the friendly sentiments of the Chinese officials.

A particularly deplorable effect of the reasoning of the European governments on this point, in the estimation of our government, is the abandonment of the idea that there is particular need for haste and for taking even desperate chances in the effort to get the international relief column through to Peking. It is true that the latest advices from Taku indicate that whereas it was originally estimated by the foreign commanders that the expedition could not be started before Aug. 15 it is now regarded by them as possible to make a beginning about the 1st of August. But the military experts here who have been closely scanning all the reports from Tien-tsin that appear to be worthy of credit feel that even now the way is open to Peking and that the march should begin with the force at present on the Pei-Ho, leaving the powers to bring up re-enforcements to reopen the base should the first expedition be cut off.

According to the latest official reports the country around Tien-tsin is clear of hostile Chinese. The flower of the Chinese army in that section has been defeated at Tien-tsin, and these army experts calculate that its power is broken and that particular army never can be reorganized in season to offer formidable resistance. So they argue that the time is ripe for a stroke of bold generalship, such, for instance, as French's ride to Kimberley.

Further proof of an official character of the mistake made by foreign commanders in the attack upon the Taku forts is contained in a communication just received by the state department from United States Consul Fowler at Chefu. He has transmitted an imperial edict which was supplied to him by telegraph by the Chinese governor of Shangtung, Yuan Shih Kai, at Tsi-han, the capital of the province.

It was issued on July 17 and relates to the present hostilities between China and the foreign powers. The dispatch containing the edict came to the state department in such confused phraseology that it is impossible to do more than approximately state its sense.

The edict appears to state in beginning that owing to the trouble existing between the Christians and the populace and to the subsequent seizure of the Taku forts, which aroused the military to arms, the imperial court was laying great weight upon its international relations.

The Mantchoo generals, therefore, viceroys and governors, are ordered to ascertain whether the merchants and missionaries of the various nations residing in the open ports are being protected, and the assertion is made that prefects and magistrates have been sent repeated imperial edicts to protect the legations. Orders also have been sent to the provincial authorities to protect missionaries.

While hostilities have not yet ceased, the Chinese officials are directed to give protection to the merchants and others of the various nations in accordance with treaties and must not fail to obey. The edict refers to the killing last month of the Japanese chancellor, Sugiyama, which it characterizes as startling. It says that a short time thereafter the German minister was murdered while residing in the capital conducting international affairs. The edict expresses the deepest sympathy on account of his death and asserts that stringent instructions would be issued to seize the murderer, who must be caught and severely punished after the termination of the present hostilities, together with those who have murdered foreigners and missionaries or taken their property without cause.

The language of the edict as given by Mr. Fowler on this subject is very much involved, but it appears to exempt from punishment those who have killed foreigners "connected with war." The governor of Peking and the viceroy of Chili are charged to issue instructions to investigate and then to deal intelligently with each case of wrongdoing. The edict states that recently evildoers created riots, deliberately rebelled and murdered good subjects. Certainly, it says, a deplorable state of affairs. All viceroys, governors and high military authorities are ordered to obtain accurate details, presumably of the outrages committed by Chinese, and to make such seizures and take such action as the cases warrant in order to stop the disturbances.

Besides the reference to the seizure of the Taku forts as one of the causes of the uprising, the significant feature of the edict is the underlying expression of the desire of the imperial government of China not only to protect the foreigners, but to make reparation for the injuries they have sustained. That would seem to be the meaning of the instructions to the Chinese viceroys and magistrates, to take steps to ascertain the extent of these injuries. Otherwise the edict is mainly argumentative and appears to be an effort to extenuate the course of the imperial government. As such it may be properly laid aside for the present to be taken up for consideration in the final reckoning, and such will be the course of the state department.

The administration is determined to keep aloof from any movement that would unnecessarily entangle the government of the United States in Chinese affairs. It of course must join heartily with the other powers in the effort to get to Peking, but it does not follow from that co-operation that it will be led into taking part in any bickerings or dissensions that ensue over the future of China after our people have been taken care of. It is the intention of the administration to withdraw our forces, military and naval, after the Americans in Peking have been relieved and wash its hands of Chinese affairs, looking only to the preservation of such privileges as it has a right to retain for Americans. A brief cablegram was received by Secretary Long from Rear Admiral Kempff at Taku. He announced that the Newark was going over to Nagasaki to be docked and cleaned. Although he did not say so, it is assumed that he is going with her, as she is his flagship.

Five hundred United States marines started from this city yesterday direct for China. They were placed on a special train bound for San Francisco, where they will cross the Pacific on an army transport. This is the largest body of marines that has yet been dispatched to the east, and the departure was made conspicuous by the presence of General Heywood, the commandant of marines, and the full marine band. Major Dickens commands the detachment.

Two Hundred Filipinos and Twelve Americans Slain.

SIGNAL CORPS TWICE AMBUSHED.

Amnesty Resolutions Sent to Aguinaldo by His Mother—Filipinos Will Celebrate the President's Order With a Banquet.

MANILA, July 23.—It is officially announced that last week 200 insurgents were killed and 130 surrendered or were captured. One hundred rifles were taken. Twelve Americans were killed and 31 wounded. This includes the casualties of Colonel William E. Birkhimer's engagement with a force of the Twenty-eighth volunteer infantry, who attacked 200 insurgents intrenched two miles east of Taal, killing 38.

A detachment of the signal corps while repairing wires was twice ambushed.

Captain Charles D. Roberts of the Thirty-fifth volunteer infantry, who was captured by the Filipinos last May, has arrived here on parole. He will not return to captivity.

Senor Buencamino last Thursday sent to Aguinaldo by means of Aguinaldo's mother the amnesty resolutions adopted by the meeting of representative Filipinos here on June 21, together with General MacArthur's answer to them and other documents bearing upon the restoration of peace. It is understood that Aguinaldo will summon his advisers and that a reply may be expected within a month.

Filipinos here will give a banquet next Saturday in celebration of President McKinley's order of amnesty.

Championship Contests Closed.

PARIS, July 23.—The world's amateur championship contests in connection with the Paris exposition came to a conclusion yesterday on the grounds of the Racing club, in the Bois de Boulogne. The weather was cooler than it was last week, though the sun shone brightly. Comparatively few Americans attended, owing to the fact that only three or four of their countrymen were announced to compete in the events, which were for the most part handicaps in which the Americans had received too severe treatment to tempt them to exhaust themselves in running losing races. Six events were decided. The Americans competed in three and won one, their only success for the day.

The Trial of Powers.

GEORGETOWN, Ky., July 23.—The Powers murder conspiracy trial was resumed today. It is said that the prosecution will not allow any of its evidence as to who fired the shot that killed Goebel to come out on this trial. Powers is indicted only as an accessory before the fact, and all of the evidence as to the identity of the assassin is apparently to be held in reserve for the trial of Jim Howard, Berry Howard and others indicted both as principals and accessories. The prosecution may close its direct testimony the latter part of the week. The lawyers for the defense decline to say whether the defendant will be put on the stand.

Glass Factories to Be Moved.

PITTSBURG, July 23.—Henry C. Fry, president of the National Glass company, announces that one of the results following the convention of the officials and salesmen of that company at Chautauqua will be the removal of five of the company's plants from Indiana to the Pittsburg district. The removal will be effected as soon as proper sites can be secured. Negotiations now pending indicate that they will be located in the Ohio valley near this city. The plants to be removed are now at Summitville, Greentown, Dunkirk, Marion and Albany, Ind. They will bring to this section over 30,000 workmen.

Colon Taken by Rebels.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, July 23.—Captain Moller of the German steamer Flandria, which has arrived here from Colombia, reports that the government troops entered Colon from Panama on July 15, the latter city having fallen into the hands of the rebels. He also asserts that Colon also is now in possession of the rebels, having been easily taken on July 16 without a fight. Sabanilla, in the department of Bolivar, is surrounded by the insurgents. The rebels have offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture, dead or alive, of Captain Christensen of the Colombian warship Cordova.

Campania Sinks a Bark.

LONDON, July 23.—A dense fog hung over the Irish channel when the Cunard line steamship Campania, en route for Liverpool from New York, struck the Liverpool bark Embleton, bound for New Zealand, amidships, cutting her in twain. The Embleton sank immediately. Seven of the crew were rescued, but it is believed the other 11 members of the ship's company, including the captain, were drowned. The Campania had her bows stove in, but arrived safely at Liverpool five and a half hours later.

Mr. Bryan's Sunday.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 23.—William J. Bryan yesterday followed his usual Sunday programme of attending church with his family, occupying a pew in the First Congregational church in the absence of his pastor from the First Presbyterian. The remainder of the day was spent in driving and entertaining friends and neighbors in his city home. Mr. Bryan is making good progress on his speech of acceptance, but it is not finished. There were no political visitors at the Bryan home yesterday.

Texas Wool Held Back.

HOUSTON, July 23.—The Post prints reports from various points showing that 2,000,000 pounds of wool are being held in the state because the growers refuse to accept current prices, and there is probably as much more held at uncounted points and on ranches. The growers have held a conference at Lampasas and agreed to hold the entire clip indefinitely. They have come to the conclusion that there is a shortage and that the manufacturers will come to their terms rather than import.

Yellow Fever Treated Successfully.

VERA CRUZ, July 23.—The first patient treated with the yellow fever serum by the young Brazilian experimenter, Dr. Bellinzaghi, is fully convalescent. Other patients treated are progressing favorably. There is intense interest in the experiments. Patients very low with black vomit have been treated, and the effect of the serum is marvelous.

They were, however, beaten off after a sharp engagement before re-enforcements summoned from Heidelberg arrived."

HERE is a matter which touches your comfort. You want a clear, fair complexion. This is really nine-tenths a question of the treatment of the pores of the skin. Some toilet soaps are as nippy and keen as mustard. If you will only use the virtue you call your Judgment, it will tell you that any soap which leaves the hands habitually dry is robbing the skin of its natural oil. Free alkali is the robber's name. Ivory Soap has no free alkali. Try it! It floats.

THE SKIES CLEARING

Communication With Peking Reopened.

CHINA SUBDUING THE MOBS.

These Cheering Assertions Claimed to Be True by Secretary of Legation In London—Yet England Doubts All Chinese Reports.

LONDON, July 23.—Sir Chih Chen Loh Feng, the Chinese minister in London, took the unusual step yesterday of paying a Sunday call at the foreign office. As Lord Salisbury was absent the visit was without special result, but its importance may be gathered from an interview with the secretary of the Chinese legation, Sir Halliday Macartney, in which the legation officials seem to have assumed at last something like personal responsibility.

Sir Halliday admitted that communication had been practically reopened with Peking and that messages from Sir Claude Macdonald, the British minister, and the other foreign envoys might be expected almost immediately. He said he hoped the trouble would soon be over, since the Chinese government was doing its utmost to overcome the difficulties and to control the lawless element. In his opinion the Americans had taken the most common sense view of the situation, and he insisted that China ought not to be misjudged. Against the suspicion that Li Hung Chang had any but a sincere pacific object in view he protested warmly, declaring that all stories about the perfidy and treachery of Earl Li were "absolutely baseless."

With regard to the prospects in the southern provinces the secretary admitted that there might be small outbreaks, but he said there would be nothing serious and that Europeans would be quite safe in treaty ports. The long silence he explained as "due probably to the rebels, who have cut the wires and blocked the roads."

Thus, according to the secretary of the Chinese legation, a few days more should bring a solution of the great mystery. Nevertheless no one in England believes that the alleged dispatches and edicts are anything but subterfuges to hide the real situation as long as possible and to avert retribution by sowing discord among the powers.

From Shanghai comes a report that the empress dowager and the court are moving to Hsian-fu, in the province of Shansi, to which large stores of rice are being sent, and that when these arrangements are completed the remaining viceroys will declare against foreigners.

Li Hung Chang's visit to Shanghai seems to be a complete failure. Except the Chinese customs officials no one has visited him. Sheng, the taotai (chief magistrate), gave the consuls a cordial invitation to meet him at luncheon, but all declined.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Express pretends to have authority for the assertion that Great Britain will repudiate any credentials Li Hung Chang may bring from the empress dowager, and he adds:

"Russia, however, is willing to make terms with Li Hung Chang, whose real mission is to sow dissension among the powers. The British, German and American representatives were resolute against receiving him."

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail declares that the Chinese officials are thoroughly frightened by the fall of Tien-tsin and desire to open negotiations. "Therefore," he continues, "although all are aware of the horrible Peking massacres, every official down to the humblest retainer has been sworn to secrecy upon the penalty of wholesale executions should the details leak out. They hope, if the powers once begin negotiations, to stop the military operations and that matters might cool down."

Soldiers For China.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Companies H and I of the Eighth United States infantry moved off the transport McClellan from the foot of Seventieth street, North river, yesterday and started for Fort Snelling, Minn., on the New York Central railroad. The men will wait for the members of the regiment who are coming north on another transport, and, after the recruiting of the organization to its full number, a start will be made for China. The two companies number about 240 men and officers. The men have been in Cuba 18 months, but they looked in fine condition. About 2,500 persons were at the dock to meet them, many of the men having friends in this city, and the Young Men's Christian association provided coffee and other refreshments for them.

Li Hung Chang Received Coldly.

SHANGHAI, July 23.—Li Hung Chang, who arrived here Saturday on the steamer Anping from Hongkong, was coldly received. The native officials sent an escort of 300 armed troops, but as the French consul objected to their passing through the French settlement they were withdrawn, and Earl Li landed under an escort of 12 French police. Once out of French jurisdiction he was handed over the cosmopolitan settlements' police, who escorted him to his place of residence. The Anping, having munitions of war on board, violated the harbor regulations by entering and was compelled to leave the limits. The consuls have decided not to call upon Li Hung Chang officially.

To Punish Von Ketteler's Slayers.

PARIS, July 23.—The Berlin correspondent of the Temps says: "It is asserted in Berlin that the emperor of China has sent a telegram to Emperor William deploring the assassination of Baron von Ketteler by the rebels and declaring that the murderers are being actively sought and will be punished. He also expressed a hope that the relations of China with Germany would not suffer from this state of things." The German consul at Swatau telegraphs under date of July 21 that all the German missionaries from the interior of the province of Kwang-tung have arrived there safely.

Rush Orders For Battery.

FORT RILEY, Kan., July 23.—Rush orders have come for the Seventh United States battery of heavy artillery at Fort Riley to proceed with all haste to the orient, calling for orders at Nagasaki. General Merriam promulgated the order in Denver. The battery was organized during the Spanish war and since that time has been idle. The equipment embraces the heaviest caliber guns in the service, with a full complement of mortars attended by 250 men and ten officers.

Korea Sending Troops.

YOKOHAMA, July 23.—The Korean government continues to send troops to the frontier, a collision with intruding Chinese having already occurred. The Japanese papers express sympathy with the unfortunate emperor of China, but are unanimous and emphatic in declaring that an alliance between China and Japan is quite impossible.

THE YAQUIS.

General Torres Says They Are Broken Up—Their Valor Praised.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 23.—General Luis Torres, governor of Sonora and commander in chief of the forces against the Yaquis, has come to this city to make a detailed report of the progress of the campaign to President Diaz and Minister of War Reis. From an interview with him it is gathered that the Yaquis have been pretty well scattered and broken up into small bodies and are not seriously troublesome at present. Several batches of prisoners have been sent to Guadalajara and other places with the view of making useful citizens out of them.

The general has followed strictly the policy of the government in dealing with them, which is to give them every reasonable inducement to return to their farms or get them employment elsewhere without being any more severe than absolutely necessary. The Yaquis are really superior people. The large companies operating in Sonora say they make the best workmen, but there are turbulent spirits among them ready to make trouble. The last rising before the present one, which ended by pacification in 1897, was expected to end the difficulty between the government and the Indians, and very generous concessions were made by the government, but the Indians had kept their part of the arrangement less than two years when they were persuaded to take up arms again.

The Yaquis are splendid fighters and, knowing the country well, have in some cases ambushed the troops, doing more or less damage. The whole affair has been a series of guerrilla skirmishes. One great disadvantage is that at certain periods the weather is so exceedingly hot that it is almost impossible to move troops, while the Indians are not especially inconvenienced.

Congressional Possibilities.

The time is drawing near when the Democrats of the Eighth Congressional district will be called upon to nominate a candidate for representative to contest the candidacy of Congressman Fowler. Thus far there has been four names mentioned in connection with the nomination.

They are Former Mayor Peter Bonnett, of Elizabeth; Edward S. Wyle, of Glen Ridge; Frederick T. Park, of Cranford, and Michael T. Doyle, of Montclair. Mr. Bonnett is a prominent and influential citizen of Elizabeth; Mr. Wyle is a lawyer who has made a special study of financial matters and is thoroughly acquainted with the subject in all its phases; Mr. Park practices law in New York, and is an aggressive young Democrat who has of late taken an active part in Union county politics, and Mr. Boyle is a Newark business man who was a delegate to the National convention at Kansas City and will, if nominated, make a hard fight for votes against Mr. Fowler.

The Congressional convention will be held in Bayonne, but the date has not yet been set.

It seems hardly possible that a populous and important city like Elizabeth permits bicyclists to ride in its streets at night without lanterns attached to their wheels, but such is the fact. The question of a bicycle lamp ordinance is being agitated once more, however, and the draft of one will probably be presented at the next meeting of the Council. Elizabeth is the only place of any size in this section which does not require bicycles to carry a light after dark. An ordinance was passed several years ago, but was fought by a number of well known wheelmen, because it did not include in its provisions other vehicles. Several conferences were held with the then Mayor, John C. Rankin, and the ordinance was killed. Wheelmen, as a rule, would have no objection to a lamp ordinance requiring all vehicles to carry lights at night, and would heartily approve of it as a protection to them as well as the rest of the public, but serious protest will be made if the attempt is made to discriminate against vehicles propelled by pedals.

According to the idea of the Philadelphia Record the question of the leadership of the Pekin relief expedition is a matter of comparatively little importance. It says the point is to push on to Pekin with the utmost possible speed. Perhaps the rumors that the Powers are unable to agree upon the choice of a Commander-in-Chief are founded on nothing more substantial than the gossip of ante-room clerks; but if there be any debate pending on the subject between the foreign offices it had better be cut short. It would be preferable to let the expedition follow the lead of a cocked hat on top of a broom-stick rather than to have it delayed one hour by strife over a question of precedence.

Tea drinkers are worried as the turmoil in China has already had its effect upon the tea market. On the early tidings of the serious troubles in China, three weeks ago, the total stock of tea in this country amounted to about 28,000,000 pounds. The first pickings of this year's crop, those made early in June, were on the ocean, but this amounted to only a very limited supply, the heaviest shipments from China being made in July; August, September, October, and early November, by which last time the crop for the year is all aboard ship and on its way to its destination.

The question of a perfectly satisfactory system of sewage disposal seems to be one of the most difficult problems of modern municipal management. Nearly every large town and city in the State is having trouble to find a proper solution of the problem. Plainfield's system was established upon apparently fine scientific ideas, but unless it is operated with better results in the near future the city will find that it has a "white elephant" on its hands, and a costly one, too.

Six Senators are to be voted for in September to represent the counties of Cape May, Burlington, Middlesex, Passaic, Sussex and Hunterdon. Cape May is the only county in the list represented by a Republican.

There will be no general elections this year in New Jersey, Maryland, Mississippi, Nevada and Virginia. New Jersey and Virginia elect Governors in 1901.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

It costs $20 to spit in a man's face in Plainfield. That should be the regular rate for spitting on the floor of a street car in Trenton.—Trenton Times.

It is passing strange that there should be so much ado over the loss of a pump in New Brunswick, when there is practically no limit to beer licenses in that bailiwick.—"Freeholder" in New York Press.

A. Q Garretson, the new Supreme Court Justice, is resolved that the judicial ermine shall not be smerched. He has resigned all his official connections, as president or director, with trust, street railway, banking and other corporations. He probably retains his stock.—"Trenton" in New York Herald.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Rev. Ira B. Hicks predicts one of the warmest periods of the months from the 24th to the end of July. He also predicts very warm weather from August 3d to 6th, from the 9th to 12th, and from 14th to 18th. He also predicts a West India hurricane, which will strike the South Atlantic coast about the 22d to 25th.

The amount of enthusiasm in the the royal and ancient game possessed by the average golfer has long been remarked. Right here on the local courses, players have been known to keep steadily on through a heavy pourdown. Cold weather hasn't the slightest effect on the really enthusiastic golfer. During the hot wave that visited this section the first part of the week, the golfers showed themselves as impervious to heat as to any other visitation of the elements. With the thermometer at 104 degrees in the shade and far hotter in the sun, they played right on and seemed to all appearances to be enjoying themselves. There are some things that the non-golfing public cannot appreciate and that is one of them.

* * * * * *

The strange things that are done every day through sheer absent-mindedness are often very funny and sometimes rather humiliating to the persons concerned. One young woman, who is visiting in this city, attempted to send away a clipping from one of the papers. Before she stopped she began to believe that fate was against her. After writing her letter and cutting out the clipping she carefully laid the letter down on the table, and placing the letter inside the envelope proceeded to seal it up. Then she discovered that she forgotten to enclose the clipping. Tearing the envelope open she addressed and stamped another and carefully sealed it up, forgetting entirely to enclose the clipping. Again the same performance was repeated. On discovering her omission this time she called in her hostess and begged the latter to put the clipping inside and seal up the envelope, as she feared that it would never get to its destination if she tried again.

Garret Dreier, of New Brunswick, spent Sunday with his parents on West Front street. He came to see his brother, Walter, who is very ill.

Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.:

Dear Sirs:—Some days since a package of your GRAIN-O preparation was left at my office. I took it heme and gave it a trial, and I have to say I was very much pleased with it, as a substitute for coffee. We have always used the best Java and Mocha in our family, but I am free to say I like the GRAIN-O as well as the best coffee I ever drank. Respectfully yours,

A. C. JACKSON, M. D.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 23.—The victim of last Friday's runaway, Miss Lizzie Hunter, is still at Taylor's Hotel, her injuries being of such a severe nature as to make her removal impossible. A later and more thorough examination showed the fractured rib to be the worst injury, but in addition to this she is badly bruised and suffers greatly from shock. Considering the experience she passed through she is bearing up wonderfully and Dr. Gaston expects to have her well enough for removal in a few days.

The game of ball between the Bachelors and Benedicts was played Saturday, but with rather reduced numbers. Those who played, however, put up a good game, but the result has not yet been agreed upon, both sides claiming the victory. The batteries were Craig and Giddis for the Bachelors and Frederick and Wynkoop for the Benedicts. Another game will be played in a week or two, when both teams will have all their men on hand.

It was not Ludlow Frazee who left for Providence, R. I., Saturday, but his brother James Frazee. The former is now at work in the borough repairing and painting a number of benches to be placed in the borough park.

In removing a part of the old depot platform Saturday, the railroad employes unearthed a number of pennies, nickles and dimes. A scramble was made by several boys who secured various amounts. Altogether nearly a dollar was found.

John Heil, of Raritan, has taken the agency for the Newark News, formerly held by Clarence Carman. The former is spending the summer with Bernard Sirisky.

Peter Winfeldt, who formerly resided in the borough, has formed a partnership and is now half owner in a meat market at Westfield.

It is expected that Taylor's Hotel will be lighted for the first time this evening by acetylene gas from the newly-installed plant.

Schephlin's bowling green was crowded Saturday with players from the borough, New Brunswick and other places.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Miller and children, of Walden, N. Y., are spending a few weeks with O. M. Hetfield.

The Presbyterian pulpit was very acceptably filled yesterday by Rev. B. J. Morgan, of Middletown, N. Y.

Arthur Craig, who is spending the summer at High Bridge, spent Saturday and yesterday in town.

Robert VanArsdale, of Martinsville, returned home Saturday after a pleasant with Mrs. Apgar.

Quite a number of borough people attended the Central's excursion to Mauch Chunk yesterday.

Mrs. H. E. Coombs, of New York, is spending the summer months at Cedar Cottage.

Fred Blank, of New York, is spending the summer with relatives in town.

Mrs. H. L. Terry, of Westfield, spent yesterday with relatives in the borough.

Harry Zimmerman, of Elizabeth, visited friends in the borough yesterday.

Miss Mabel Jamison, of Raritan, was the guest of friends in town Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Peters spent yesterday with relatives in New York.

Harry Bindlamb, of New York, was the guest of George Trust yesterday.

William Conly, of Reaville, was the guest of Joseph Maier Saturday.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

New Market, July 23.—It is rather premature to think of fall and winter but nevertheless the boys in town are preparing for the long evenings by getting up an athletic club. A part of the apparatus belonging to a well-fitted gymnasium has alredy been secured and more will be gotten as soon as possible. By the time cool weather set in, officers will be elected and the club will be in full swing.

Letter-carrier Charles Glaentzer was the guest of friends in town Saturday and incidentally tried his hand at fishing with fair success.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bonell, of Union, spent yesterday with Abram Nelson.

Miss Lulu Davis entertained company from New York yesterday.

Alfred Osmun enjoyed a pleasant trip to South Branch yesterday.

John Becker, of New Brunswick, spent Saturday with Mrs. Dantz.

John Stein, of Plainfield, was the guest of his mother Saturday.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 23.—Scotch Plains and Fanwood seemed to be the centre of the electrical storm which passed over this section Saturday evening shortly after 7 o'clock. While the heavy downpour of rain was a blessing after such a close and sultry day, the damage done by the lightning was the heaviest we have had in years. One bolt struck the trolley feed wire and traveled along the wire as far as Terrell road before it concluded to run off into mother earth. The damage done crippled the trolley and all business was at a standstill until late into the night. Another stroke crippled the electric light circuit along Park avenue and some of the side streets. This left this part of the town in darkness for the rest of the night. But the worst damage was done by a bolt which struck the bell tower of the fire house at Fanwood. The bolt struck the peak of the roof tearing off the shingles and rafters, flinging them in all directions. From the roof the bolt traveled inside and down the tower and then run off through the earth. The company's loss is entirely covered by insurance and the damage will be repaired at once.

Rev. Dr. Podgson, secretary of the Baptist Ministers Home at West Farms, N. Y., occupied the pulpit of the Baptist church Sunday morning and evening. Dr. Podgson preached two able and interesting sermons and at their close made an earnest plea for the support of the home he is interested in.

Scotch Plains has no regular baseball team, consequently the rooters of the national sport have to journey to Plainfield or Westfield Saturday afternoon to see a game.

Several from town who spent Saturday evening at Boynton Beach did not arrive home until near 3 o'clock Sunday morning, owing to the break in the trolley circuit.

Mrs. Augustus Miller and daughter, Miss Cora, have returned from a week's visit with relatives in Newark.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Haskard, of Elizabeth, were the guests Saturday and Sunday of Mrs. John Haskard.

Mrs. Thomas A. Gere, of Brooklyn, has been visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. M. Paff, Jr.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

South Plainfield, July 23—The carpenter force of workmen on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, Easton and Amboy division, has been reduced. Foreman Williamson and his whole force, who reside at Bloomsburg, have been suspended. The company's officials say this is done to cut down expenses.

The School Board, at their meeting Saturday, received four bids for the new house, ranging from $5,688 to $6,100. Mr. Hummer, of North Plainfield, being the lowest bidder, was awarded the contract. The papers will be signed today and work will begin at once. There is considerable objection by the church people against the new building being placed near their line, as it will have to be unless the old building is moved to make room for the new one.

John Hogan has in mind the erection of a dwelling house on the knoll on Main road leading from here to Park avenue.

Newton Honeyman, of Plainfield, recently sold Thomas Terrell, of the Coal Storage Co., a fine road horse.

Eugene Laing is doing quite a business and is very much liked as a hotel keeper.

Patrick Kaine was home over Sunday for the first time in several weeks.

Miss Byrie Angliman, of Bayonne, is visiting Mrs. J. S. Eckert.

YIELD OF THE PACIFIC.

Everything from Wheat to Pepper and a Host of Things Found Nowhere Else.

Considered from the point of view of what grows in them—which is, after all, the point of view of most people of to-day—the islands of the Pacific present everything from the wheat of Argentina to the pepper of Guiana, and a host of things found neither in the tropics of South America, nor in the hot heart of Africa, nor elsewhere, save within their own abnormal spheres. Beginning with the wheat and live stock and the ordinary edibles and utilities grown in Australia, Tasmania and New Zealand, there is a rapid multiplication of strange and unusual products as the zone of output moves north and west. The Dutch East Indies are like the northern regions of South America, putting forth the best coffees from Java that the coffee world affords, the nutmeg which flavors men's milk punches and women's baked apples, the camphor that cures wives' headaches, the pepper that supplies taste to the far-gone palate, the ginger that brings tears to the eyes of the small boy and balm to his suffering midriff. From the same region comes also the valuable teak to calk ships, and upon which much of the future merchant marine of the South Pacific is likely to depend. From Java and Sumatra, up to the Philippines and Formosa, is the chief source of the world's supply of straw for hats, of ropes wherewith criminals are hung or sails set, of mattings for floors instead of carpets.

Eastward from the coast is the home of the cocoanut and pineapple, and the breadfruit, which does not endure exporting, to say nothing of the universal banana. Along the shores of the farther islands the natives and the Chinese, who from time immemorial have been invaders, gather pearl shells and the long, slimy snails, called beche-de-mer, one of the most popular courses on the tables of the well to do in China. In choice spots among all the islands, spots becoming constantly less discoverable, the oriental food hunters find the delicate birds' nest, for which mandarins and financial potentates of the Mongolian kingdom pay $250 per pound that their cooks may make them soups from it. There are mineral, metal and timber resources as yet little more exploited than those in the Philippines. There are possibilities of agricultural cultivation, which have not been sounded save in the southern islands, where John Bull has put the aborigine beneath his solid foot and ventured to transform the semitropic regions into the likeness of his home country. Tobacco is growing richly in most of the larger islands, and cotton has been tried with such success that the South Sea Island product is a considerable factor in the cotton market price lists. Some sanguine prophets look to a time when this cotton crop of the Pacific will be a serious competitor with the southern states.—Ainslie's Magazine.

Oldenburg.

Oldenburg. Anhier ist ein Geschworener, der zu einer Schwurgerichtssitzung in betrunkenem Zustande erschien, so daß die Sitzung ausgesetzt werden mußte, zur Tragung der entstandenen Kosten verurtheilt worden.

Mecklenburg.

Wismar. Die stattliche und von Kunstkennern vielbewunderte Kreuzkirche St. Georg soll einen Hauptthurm erhalten, dessen Kosten auf 190,000 Mark veranschlagt sind. Als man 1404 den Bau des Thurmes begann, kam er wegen verschiedener städtischer und politischer Wirren nicht über den Unterbau hinaus. Im Jahre 1765 vermachte der Rathsbeamte Wulff sein Vermögen zur Zierde der Kirche, und das Kapital hat sich mit der Zeit so erheblich vergrößert, daß nicht allein das Kupferdach, das Taufbecken und der Altar erneuert, sondern auch vor 12 Jahren 60,000 Mark zu Innenbauten und Ausschmuck verwandt werden konnten. Das übrige Geld soll nun dem Thurm zu Gute kommen.

Braunschweig. Waldeck.

Blankenburg. Die Weiterführung der Harzgürtelbahn von Wernigerode über Blankenburg nach Thale geht ihrer Verwirklichung entgegen. In einer von Vertretern des Eisenbahnkommissariats zu Braunschweig, dem Bürgermeister unserer Stadt und sonstigen Interessenten besuchten Konferenz trat man einstimmig der Ansicht bei, daß der neue Bahnhof in der Mitte des Bahnhofes der Halberstadt-Blankenburger Linie zu Blankenburg errichtet werde.

Holzminden. Die Frau des Gastwirths Seitz in Holzen fiel beim Kuchenbacken in das in dem Fußboden des Backhauses befindliche Kohlenloch, das gerade mit glühenden Holzkohlen angefüllt war. Sie trug dabei so schwere Brandwunden davon, daß sie bald darauf ihren Geist aufgab.

Darmstadt. Da es zwischen der Stadt Darmstadt und der Süddeutschen Eisenbahngesellschaft zu einer Verständigung über die Ausdehnung des hiesigen Straßenbahnnetzes nicht gekommen war, hatte die Stadt beim Ministerium um die Konzession nachgesucht, eine elektrische Linie durch die Grafenstraße und das Blumenthalviertel bauen zu dürfen. Gleichzeitig hatte die Süddeutsche Eisenbahngesellschaft beim Ministerium um die Erlaubniß gebeten, ihren Dampfstraßenbahnbetrieb nach den Vororten von Darmstadt in einen elektrischen Betrieb umwandeln zu dürfen. Das Ministerium hat aber beide Konzessionsgesuche abschlägig beschieden, da es die einzige Lösung der Straßenbahnfrage in einer gütlichen Verständigung zwischen der Stadt und der Süddeutschen Eisenbahngesellschaft sehe.

Bingen. Das hiesige Technikum, eine Lehranstalt ausschließlich für Maschinenbau und Elektrotechnik, hat sich in der kurzen Zeit seines Bestehens zu solcher Größe entwickelt, daß die Stadt bereits zum zweiten Mal einen Erweiterungsbau zum Hauptgebäude in Angriff genommen hat. Die Anstalt wird gegenwärtig von fast 600 Schülern besucht.

Offenbach. In der Offenbacher Portland-Cementfabrik hat der Arbeiter Peter aus Somborn den Arbeiter Schmidt durch einen Stich in's Herz getödtet. Es war beim Essen zu Neckereien gekommen, die diesen tragischen Ausgang hatten.

FASHION NOTES.

Items Concerning the Mode For Summer Attire.

New parasols are shown of plain taffeta, white or colored, having a border composed of three hemstitched tucks and a band of black gauze. Sometimes the tucks are of white taffeta, the rest being colored.

A favorite method of making thin dresses is to fit the upper part of the skirt to the figure by means of many fine tucks instead of darts. These descend half way down the skirt. The lower part of the full bodice is likewise fitted by tucks in the same way.

Chenille is mingled with much of the most elaborate embroidery, enriching the effect. It also appears in fringes, especially those of the long, heavy variety.

Some of the prettiest straw and chip hats have what might be called double faced brims; that is, they are braided or woven in such a way that the outside is of one color and the lower surface of another, and this without a separate facing.

The picture shows a gown of pale green foulard. The skirt forms clusters of plaits, between which are panels of guipure. The bodice is arranged in the same manner, but in front is a V shaped plastron in which the tucks and bands of guipure run horizontally. There is a sort of collar and fichu of pale green mousseline de soie, plaited and bordered with tiny ruches of the same goods. The high plaited collar is of foulard, the tight sleeves matching the plastron. The green silk belt has a gold buckle. The hat of fine straw is trimmed with pink poppies having black centers.

THE MODE.

Charming Costumes of the Thinnest Possible Goods.

Transparent gowns are enjoying an unqualified triumph. First there are the gowns entirely of lace—point de venise, luxeuil and other varieties—which are shaped in the making and appear not only in white, cream, ecru, yellow and black, the usual lace colors, but in tones of faintest pink or blue. Sometimes the lace forms an empire gown over a fitted lining of silk. Then there are gauzes incrusted with lace, which are really more pleasing than those of all lace; then there are the embroidered linen lawns and gauzes with inset lace motifs, bows, ribbons, etc. The chief novelty in these costumes is the fact that the goods are not ornamented in advance of being cut, but the garment is decorated after it is otherwise completed, the decoration following the general lines of the gown.

The cut shows a costume of beige cloth. The skirt has stitched seams, with four plaits let in at the foot. The little coat bodice is double breasted and fastens with two rows of pearl olives. The decoration consists of stitching and straps, and the round revers are faced with white guipure. A blue cravat is worn. The hat of light golden brown straw is trimmed with blue tulle and blue feathers.

Chicago as a Leader in American Fashion Ideas

Some Very Pretty Novelties Which Have Been Prepared for Derby Day

A VISIT to Chicago these early summer days shows one that the western metropolis is giving more attention to dress than has been usual in former years. I do not mean to say that Chicago women have not been in the fashion in past years, but that they have not been leaders. They have waited for New York to set the fashions and have been content to follow in the lead of the eastern city. This season, however, it would seem that Chicago is to have a few styles of her own, gowns and coats and hats imported direct from Paris or from models that have been imported and that have not first stopped at New York to receive the approval of the eastern society leaders.

In a way it is easy to account for this activity in fashion lines. Chicago women wish to honor the equine kings and queens that will compete for the stakes on the day of the American Derby. Great preparations are being made to celebrate this event, the first of the kind in two years, and which Chicago people were very much afraid they were not to witness again.

I have visited some of the fashionable dressmaking and tailoring establishments and also some of the large importing houses of the city within the last few days, and everywhere I found the same busy preparations for this equine event. It reminded me much of the days before the opening of the Newport season, though the preparations can hardly be said to be on such an elaborate scale as those made for the Newport season.

When the great audience has filled the grand stand at the Washington park track on June 23 there will be in the boxes a wonderful display of gorgeous and striking gowns in all the colors of the rainbow from the vivid to the most subdued, though it may be said that the vivid tones will be in the majority to give you an idea of what these preparations are and also to show what the novelties are that are being brought out in Chicago for the first time in America, so far as I have been able to see, I will give a few descriptions and pictures of some of the coats and gowns that will be worn in the boxes on Derby day.

The first will be a gown that is decidedly attractive. It is a foulard carried out in white with a dainty shade of blue to form encircling vandyke stripes. These lines are followed by insertions of ecru net which reveal a tea rose yellow tint of silk underneath. There are edgings of black velvet ribbon on each side of the insertion. At the waist line there is a folded band of palest mauve and pink silk, with two long ended rosette bows. The bodice has three rows of ecru insertion edged with black velvet, and forming a deep yoke.

A second gown that will be worn by the daughter of one of Chicago's numerous millionaires is of pale dove gray satin-faced cloth. The skirt is laid in five deep plaits, with strappings of the cloth over, falling loose just below the knees. A draped bodice of soft cerise silk, with sash ends of the same tied with a loose bow in front. Over this is a cut-away vest of the satin-faced cloth. This is fastened with six gold buttons, then a short bolero covered with cut applique of panne velvet.

A third gown that is attractive is a vivid red muslin cloth. Of this the skirt is made with side plaits in clusters starting from a panel front. The bodice has a French tight-fitting back with stitched bands in front forming a short bolero, and a full vest of Breton net.

Among the coats that will grace the

TWO CHARMING GOWNS FOR THE AMERICAN DERBY.

Washington park track that day none can be prettier or more novel than one of the new and chic short basque coats of Parisian cut in a vivid red trimmed with numerous gold buttons. Another of these is in a bright green, trimmed with very narrow white silk braid. A charming one is in pure white, with wee gold buttons in clusters.

Of the longer coats of which there will be many a three-quarter length garment that is pretty is of a beige colored cloth. It is almost covered with a cuirass of beautiful ivory tinted lace. A high rolling collar, lined with the lace, and a full cascade of ivory tinted chiffon from the neck to the bottom of the coat.

Another that is still longer and designed for just such occasions is in pale fawn silk, made in fine plaits that open out just below the knees to give a flounce effect, while the Empire band is embroidered in lace with a sprinkling of silver and gold pailletes. A double ruching of rosily pink colored chiffon around the rolling collar, and on the bottom of the bell-shaped sleeve.

Another of these long race coats is of mauve silk trimmed with guipure lace down the front, and with a wide border around the bottom. A nobby little shoulder cape, made entirely of the lace, with a high flaring collar lined with the same, and long sash ends at the throat.

The hats that one will see, if those in preparation are to be taken as samples, will be beautiful in their picturesqueness. They will be of fancy rush straw in natural red and blue so arranged as to form a check design, with frillings of poppy red areophane, and a big kilted bow to match is arranged at the side of a high crown. This describes but the general tendency of a portion of those that will be worn, and there will be dozens of others quite as striking and charming.

SARAH M. DAVIDSON.

A RACE COAT OF MAUVE SILK.

The Undefeated Man.

"The men now demanded are those who are not only capable of learning, but who are not ashamed to learn. We must send out men from college with a courageous insight into the future, and a capacity for invention with which to face its problems. We want men to look out straight along the line of their birth and breeding, sinking themselves into their country," says President Tucker, of Dartmouth college, in Success. "It is crime for a college to beget selfish men, for selfishness is the worst kind of littleness. We are now, as a nation, just beginning to get a hold on the years; to secure a control of the ages, and no man must go from college to increase the number of the selfish crowd. Cecil Rhodes was introduced to the audience at a London dinner recently as 'a man of undaunted action.' I would rather hear of a man of undefeated action, and such are the men we must seek to train."

THE BICYCLE RICKSHAW.

Latest Fad for Lazy Women Who Like to See the Summer Man Exert Himself.

The bicycle built for two is to go the way of all things that have had their day. A charming device is to take its place this season, known as the "bicycle rickshaw." The rickshaw is attached to an ordinary bicycle by means of a strong steel vise, and can be adjusted in a few minutes. It has pneumatic tires, and rides as smoothly as a bicycle. The occupant has merely to sit still and allow her husband, brother or sweetheart to propel the bicycle, and with it the rickshaw.

The weight of the rickshaw is only 28 pounds; and, with the easy movement of the light, pneumatic-tired wheels, it requires very little extra exertion on the part of the cyclist to carry it with him. The sight of these graceful little conveyances skimming along the bicycle roads and park rideways will be a most enchanting one. They possess so many advantages over the tandem bicycle that they are sure to supersede these almost entirely.

In the first place, the spectacle of a woman riding tandem has never been one of which the average citizen approved. Then, again, there has always been a doubt about the comfort and sociability of this style of wheel. Conversation was next to an impossibility, except with the accompaniment of a mutual stretching of necks that was disagreeable and often dangerous, for the steersman has his work cut out to avoid obstacles, without trying to carry on a social conversation with the occupant of the rear saddle.

The question as to who was doing the work usually came in to disturb the harmony of the occasion in the event of husband and wife being the tandem riders. When the muscles began to tire and the wheel to drag, the mutual accusations of "You're not exerting yourself at all" were sure to be the prelude to a more or less acrimonious debate that marred the enjoyment of the outing.

Then the tandem was always the direct opponent to social intercourse with friends much on the road. It required too great an effort to start the tandem for the riders to dismount and engage in friendly converse when an acquaintance hailed them. The two were compelled to keep on their road, the rear rider having an uncomfortable time of it trying to stretch her neck to see where the steersman was taking her, and compelled to trust blindly to the care of her escort in the matter of safe steering. Many attempts have been made to obviate the objectionable features of the tandem and still retain its few good qualities. The effort to do this gave us the twin wheel, the riders of which were side by side. It was not a success. The wheels took up too much room.

The bicycle rickshaw solves all these problems at one shot. The lady in the charming little carriage cannot be accused of failing to help the bicyclist, for she has merely to sit still and be wheeled along. Instead of an unsightly double wheel, the rickshaw is one of the prettiest and most graceful conveyances ever put on the road. If a stop is desired it can be made without the slightest inconvenience, and bicyclist and occupant of rickshaw can converse with mutual acquaintances or with each other, and start off again with ease.

For anyone unable to ride a bicycle, and unwilling to learn, the bicycle rickshaw is simply the acme of delight, for all the pleasures of a bike trip can be enjoyed to the full, with the added boon of exertion not being necessary.

The bicycle rickshaw can be used by invalids, but not for long journeys, as the strain on the bicyclist going uphill is rather too much, and it is necessary for the occupant of the rickshaw to get out and walk on the up-grades. She gets her reward going down the decline, for this experience is one to be remembered always with pleasure. The bicycle rickshaws will probably be used by many with menservants to propel the conveyance. The sight of these occupants of the rickshaws meeting and holding social converse will soon be a common one in our parks and fashionable outdoor meeting places.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

MAXIMILIAN'S WATCH.

How Paderewski's Visit to Mexico City Brought the Relic to Light.

Two notable historical articles were brought to light by the visit of Ignace Paderewski to Mexico City recently, says the Jeweler's Weekly Circular. The coming of the noted pianist had been heralded through the country, and music lovers flocked in to the two recitals given in El Teatro Nacional. Among the visitors was a pianist of merit named Tiburcio Saucedo, from the state of Jalisco, and he brought with him the two articles which have revived memories of Maximilian. One of the relics is the watch which the general personally placed in the hands of the officer who commanded the platoon whose office it was to end the earthly career of the three—Mexia, Miramon and Maximilian—on the hill of the Bells, near Queretaro.

The gold watch is a key winder of double case and an old make. On one side of the cover is a view of the imperial palace of Vienna, the luster being somewhat worn; on the opposite cover the Archduchess Sofia is represented seated on a throne in the act of blessing a boy kneeling on the step. It is supposed to represent Maximilian himself at about 14 years of age. It is claimed that a short time after the execution of Maximilian an unknown man appeared at a pawnshop, called the "Monje Negro," or Black Monk, in the city of Guadalajara, asking that a certain amount of money be loaned on the watch. A lawyer, Don Urbano Gomez, happened to be present. Senor Gomez examined the watch and bought it. After his death it was sold to Senor Saucedo by the sister of Gomez' widow.

TELEGRAPHED UP ONE FLIGHT

California Man Wires a Message Up One Pair of Stairs While in the East.

That New York is a big city, which the stranger seldom learns very well, was quite forcibly expressed upon a certain well-known Californian a few days ago. He comes here twice a year, and has long since learned to find his way about, says a New York correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle.

He was charging about the business district and suddenly remembered that he wanted to telegraph to a friend whose offices are at No. 195 Broadway. The Californian dashed into the nearest telegraph office, wrote out his dispatch, and, covering it with the coin, passed it through the wicket to the receiver. The receiver smiled.

"What is the matter?" demanded the Californian.

"Why, this is No. 195 Broadway," said the receiver, "and your man is up just one flight of stairs."

There was a confused period that lasted about a second, and when the Californian got his nerve back he calmly said: 'I know that. Let it go, anyway. I guess I can telegraph across this room or this counter, if I want to, and have the money. We do that thing out in California every day for a joke."

The receiver may have been bluffed, but as receivers go they are hard to impress.

TESTING CANNED MEATS.

How It Is Done in the Woolwich Reserve Depot in England.

Among the most incomprehensible proceedings to be observed within the vast area of Woolwich reserve depot are the doings of a small party of officials, one of whom appears to do nothing all day long but sit at a table and tap on the top of tin canisters with a couple of bits of stick something after the manner of a child beating on the upturned end of his drum, says the London News. The tins are passed before him about as fast as he can tap them, and absolutely nothing seems to come of the game. To the unenlightened onlooker it is quite unintelligible. The tins contain meat, and before they are passed into store it is, of course, important to examine the condition of what is inclosed, and this, in fact, is the way it is done. The trained ear of the expert examiner can tell whether the meat is in a wholesome or a putrid condition by the sound emitted when rapped with the stick, just as the examiner of railway carriage wheels is supposed to be able to tell whether the wheel he taps with his hammer is cracked or not. The rapidity with which the business is gone through and the seeming inattention of the performer with the sticks and his total indifference to all sorts of noises about him render the procedure a very curious one to watch. The test is said to be practically infallible.

CANNON'S WEDDING RING.

Boy in Tuscola, Ill., Digs the Circlet Lost for Thirty Years Out of Dust Heap.

The wedding ring which Congressman J. G. Cannon gave to his bride in 1862 was found by a small boy who was digging in a dust heap in Tuscola, Ill. The ring, a plain gold band, had been lost for 30 years. It was thrown out of the ground by some workmen who were digging a ditch in the rear of the First national bank. It bears this inscription: "J. G. to Mary, January 6, 1862." W. A. Wallace, president of the bank bought the ring from the boy for one dollar, and will send it to Mr. Cannon.

Can't Find an Antidote.

Seven doctors have been unable to find out what ails a certain Atchison man, but, says the Atchison Globe, they suspected his wife's apple dumplings.

A FRONTAL ATTACK.

One Kind That Has Often Been Made with Success by English Forces.

There is one class of frontal attack which history tells us has often been made and made with success, but which nowadays is thoroughly indefensible, says the Saturday Review. We mean where a commander, after a superficial reconnoissance of an enemy in position, bewildered by the difficulties which apparently crop up to hinder any scheme he can evolve for outmanœuvering him, reverts to the good old English custom of just "going for him." Doubtless such elementary tactics have before now won us brilliant victories or saved us from almost inevitable defeat and disaster.

Unfortunately the time for such crude ideas of handling troops is past and gone. To simply launch men in an attack across the open under the storm of magazine rifle and Maxim fire, not to speak of machine shell guns which the Boers so much affect, is to be guilty of a wicked waste of life and, further, is only courting disaster. True it is that the extraordinary pluck and determination of our officers and men may and have rendered such desperate "tactics" (if such an operation is worthy of the name) a success, but at what cost?

We can recall to our mind a certain low kopje which suddenly loomed up before a company of our infantry—the summit swarming with the enemy's marksmen—but up it our men went and onward and with a loss of over one-third of their numbers. All honor to the men who thus nobly did their duty. But a general action carried out on such lines would render a victory only one degree removed from a defeat.

HAT TRIMMED WITH FIRE.

A Baltimore Woman's Bonnet Catches Fire and Is Consumed Upon Her Head.

A curious accident, which attracted a number of people, occurred shortly before midnight in front of the jewelry store at the southwest corner of Baltimore and Charles streets, says the Baltimore Herald.

A handsomely dressed woman and her escort were looking at some jewelry which was displayed in the window when the man struck a match and lit a cigarette. In some way the match ignited the feathers of his companion's hat, and in a moment the top of her head was ablaze. But even this did not divert the attention of the couple; they continued to gaze raptly at the treasures behind the plate-glass window.

Sergt. Thomas Kirby was standing in front of the other window, and, happening to look inside, saw a mass of glowing flames, which he thought was in the interior of the store. But, looking toward the other window, he saw the cause. He hastened to the lady, touched her on the shoulder, and informed her that her hat was on fire. At the same instant he gathered the quickly disappearing remains of the hat between his hands and snuffed out the flames.

In the meantime the man stood mutely by. He did not seem to realize the peril of his companion. The crowd which had gathered were making things embarrassing for the couple. They moved away.

IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Playing of the Star Spangled Banner by a Band Composed of Natives.

Dean Worcester, one of the best authorities on the Philippine islands, told a story recently at a dinner party in Washington to show the feeling which the Filipinos entertained for the late Gen. Lawton, says Youth's Companion.

A town had been taken, and as usual in Lawton's command, there was no burning or looting, and the head man of the town was greatly affected by the difference between the American occupation and a Spanish occupation some years before, when everything had been destroyed and the inhabitants massacred.

"I was sitting one evening with Gen. Lawton in his little house," said Mr. Worcester, "when a native band came to serenade the officer. I called the leader in, and said that he ought to know the 'Star Spangled Banner,' and whistled it over for him a few times.

"Inside of an hour the band was back again, and playing the American air in good form. A native priest asked Gen. Lawton and myself to attend mass at the church on the following day. We were surprised to hear during the solemn music the strains of America's native air. We were afterward told by the priest that he should always, in memory of Gen. Lawton, include the patriotic air in his sacred music at the church."

Mule and Grizzly.

According to a man in Washington state the proper steed for a grizzly bear hunter to ride is a mule. He was wandering near a camp on a mule, when he saw a big bear on the trail. He fired and the bear tumbled over and out of sight. It looked like a clean kill, and the hunter started for the place, and was nearly in sight of the hollow where the bear had disappeared when the beast climbed up over the edge and went at him. It was then that the mule showed his value. He rose on his hind feet, turned sharp around and headed for camp. A horse or a mustang would have pranced around, and wouldn't have been quick enough, the bear was so close. But all the hunter had to do was to hang on, and the mule carried him to safety.

OVER A MILLION WORDS.

A Chicago Actress Who Has Memorized That Many in Studying Her Parts.

Many women of the stage have had their health permanently ruined by overstudy. In the past year a half dozen of well-known women have been sent to sanitariums because of overstudy.

Miss May Hosmer, leading woman of the Hopkins Chicago stock company, who has played more parts than any woman of her age in America, has never lost a week during the past five theatrical seasons, and has played over 200 different parts.

Many of these parts, closely typewritten, formed a manuscript of from 50 to 200 pages, and in theatrical manuscript there are an average of 90 words to the page.

In memorizing "Fanchon," Miss Hosmer learned 18,000 words. In memorizing "Camille" she learned 7,000 words, and in the course of her five years' connection with Hopkins' stock company in Chicago she has memorized more than 1,400,000 words. In all this time Miss Hosmer has never been out of the cast from any cause except the ordinary ills such as fall to actors and actresses in the course of their season. She has felt no evil results from this enormous tax on her mental powers, and is to-day a brighter and more vigorous woman than she was ten years ago.

TOO SMALL FOR POLICE.

Shooting of American by a Cuban Officer Brings Up a Peculiar Problem.

Considerable discussion has grown out of the recent killing of an American by a Cuban policeman. The American, it appears, was intoxicated and attacked the policeman, taking away his club. Thereupon the policeman shot him dead. The policeman, a youth of 19, was promptly discharged from the force by Chief Cardenas on the ground that he was not fit for such service, but the question still remains as to whether such young and inexperienced persons should carry revolvers.

Under the Spanish regime the police worked in pairs, thus rendering less likely a recourse to firearms. Many of the members of the present force are of slight physique, and would probably be unable to control an arrested person without the moral support of firearms. Chief Cardenas says:

"If the physical requirements of the police force are made more stringent it may prove very difficult and perhaps impossible to get men who are up to the standard. There would also be a great outcry, owing to the fact that only Spaniards and Americans, as a rule, would be able to fulfill the conditions. In most cases the Cubans, being smaller and of less robust physique, would fall short of the requisitions."

SING SONGS AND WASH DISHES

This Account Says London Servants in the Salvation Army May Tell White Lies.

It appears that a considerable number of domestic servants in London are members of the Salvation Army and several of them have recently been much troubled in their minds respecting their obligations to polite society in the matter of "white lies." The army has apparently considered the subject and in the official War Cry the following reassuring counsel is given: "The expression 'Not at home' is not understood to mean not in the house, as you understand it, by worldly society. To the caller it only means not receiving visitors to-day, and no doubt your mistress would think it discourteous to speak more plainly. To say she is 'engaged' when she is only unwilling or unequal to see visitors would not be more true than to say 'Not at home.' Of course it would be an untruth to say the latter if those who called on your mistress understood it in the sense you do, but we think they quite understand how much or how little it means. A lie is anything spoken with intent to deceive."

BUSINESS WOMEN IN GERMANY

In Spite of Many Discouragements They Are Patient and Persevering.

In spite of many discouragements, the women of Vienna continue their slow but persevering efforts to fit themselves for posts hitherto filled only by men, says the London Telegraph. The first woman doctor allowed to practice in Austria was Frau Dr. Kerschbaumer of Salzburg, who has settled there as an oculist and enjoys the confidence of a large clientele among the women and children of that charming town. Vienna has two woman practitioners, one being Frau Dr. Roth, now officially appointed resident doctor to the great and important Imperial Institute for Officers' Daughters. The second, Fraulein Passauer Von Ehrenthal, has a large practice in many respectable families.

The Vienna women are also making efforts to emancipate themselves from masculine supremacy in the world of music. A society for the advancement of female culture recently arranged a musical evening, at which only works by female composers were allowed to be performed.

IS A BRAVE LEADER.

Gen. MacArthur, Who Succeeds Otis as Commander of the American Army in the Philippines.

Maj. Gen. Elwell S. Otis, who returns from the Philippines at his own request, will have as his successor in Maj. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, an officer who has proved his valor and ability by almost as long a series of courageous deeds and skillful campaigns. Both Gens. Otis and MacArthur were officers in the civil war, the latter being the youngest commissioned officer of the line in the entire volunteer army. Gen. Otis has had the longer experience in active command, as Gen. MacArthur ever since he became major ten years ago has served in the adjutant general's department.

In the service of the two men in the Philippines the successful conduct of the campaign, managed always, even in its details, by the senior general, has been matched by the vigorous field work of the junior, and his uniform success in handling divisions over which he held command.

Gen. Otis is a man of 61 and will have only two years to serve before army regulations cause him to be retired. MacArthur is six years younger and his present high rank in the regular service insures him a very prominent place in the army for the full eight years which remain to him of active service. Gen. Otis was commander of the departments of Columbia and Colorado before being assigned to the command, at first second to that of Gen. Merritt, in the Philippines. On his way to his field of duty it fell to him to raise the American flag at Honolulu.

Gen. MacArthur saw service at Tampa and Chickamauga in the adjutant general's department before his assignment to the line in the Philippines, and he assisted in the mobilization of the army of invasion of Cuba.

EVERYBODY LIKES HIM.

Senator Charles A. Culberson's Modesty Has Made Him Immensely Popular at Washington.

A very pleasant impression has been made by Charles A. Culberson, the smooth-faced young senator from Texas who has come to succeed Roger Q. Mills. In spite of his brilliant political record, he is modest. And that counts heavily in the senate in favor of a new member. In announcing his intention to speak on the Porto Rican question Culberson said he would permit all his distinguished colleagues to select their own dates and he would take what was left. He said he considered this was the proper course in a new and youthful member.

Senator Culberson is the eldest son of David B. Culberson, for 22 years a member of the house of representatives from Texas. In 1890 he was elected attorney general. He served four years, and then was elected governor, which office he held two terms.

They tell a story of Culberson, says the Chicago Evening Journal, to show what kind of a young man he is. It was while the Corbett-Fitzsimmons prize fight was in the way to be pulled off and the managers were cavoorting around the country to find some suitable place. Gov. Culberson was determined that it should not occur in Texas, and he called out the Texas rangers, a military organization of the state under the governor's personal command, and told them so. "You may encounter resistance," he said, "but bear in mind what I say. Don't under any circumstances injure any of the spectators, but make sure you kill the principals in the fight." The orders were made public and the scrappers withdrew from Texas.

SPORTING.

ON THE DIAMOND

Warren McLoughlin, of this city, who has been pitching on Philadelphia base ball nine for the past week, has resigned his position and returned home.

Nearly a thousand spectators were present at the baseball game on the Washington avenue grounds between the St. Mary and Pond Tool Works' teams Saturday. The game has been a subject for discussion in the West End for several weeks and the merits of the two teams have been thoroughly gone over by their respective followers. The result Saturday was a great surprise to many as the odds had been on the Pond team up to the last minute. At least $150 changed hands on the game, some of the bets being as high as fifteen and twenty dollars. Both nines did excellent work, and although a large number of runs were made on each side it was done by hard playing. The final score was 29 to 24 in favor of St. Mary's. The batteries for the Pond team were Scott and Owens and Scott and Dodd, and for St. Mary's Montross and Barry. Another game will be played in a short time when it is expected the losing nine will regain their lost laurels.

DRESSING AN ACTRESS.

Her Clothing Is So Made That It Can Be Put On in a Minute.

While the actress is on the stage her maid has carefully laid out the gown that is to be put on, with all its accessories. The dresses are made with a view to celerity. Hardly anything is left to be fastened on. Knots of ribbon, draped sashes, pieces of jewelry, even corsage bouquets, are attached beforehand, in case there is not a minute to spare. A very modish and complete evening gown with everything belonging to it may be a single construction. The maid inspects it carefully to see that it is in complete good order and deposits it on a chair. Close by she places the shoes, stockings and whatever of millinery is to be worn. When the actress comes in she is deftly relieved of the gown which the audience has last seen her in. Next she sits before her mirror, and, if there is need of great haste, makes whatever rearrangement of hair or headdress is necessary while the maid takes off the shoes and stockings. Under the latter are different ones already on. By the time that the second pair of shoes are buttoned the coiffure is readjusted. Then the actress stands up and the new dress is adjusted in a jiffy. If the change has had to be made while an act is in progress it may have occupied no more than five or six minutes. But that is exceptional. If done between acts, with ten minutes allowed to it, the job has no appearance of furious speed, so thoroughly is it prearranged. —Franklin Fyles, in Ladies' Home Journal.

Pretty Bad.

There have been many American humorists, good and bad, but only of late has the very worst one been discovered.

"How's Johnny?" asked one of the neighbors.

"Well," replied Aunt Ann Peebles, "he's got the hives this time. When he was a baby he had the nettle-rash. When he got over that he was troubled with a breakin' out that looked like measles. Then he had a ringworm on one side of his face. He has a bile every spring, and once in awhile he gets somethin' the matter with his hands that the doctor says is salt rheum."

"He must have some kind of humor in his blood," suggested the neighbor.

"Yes," said Aunt Ann, shaking her head gloomily. "He's the worst humorist for his age that I ever see."—Youth's Companion.

WHIP AND PILLORY.

How They Are Applied by the Sheriff in Dover, Del.

Antiquated Modes of Punishment for Petty Larceny, Wife-Beating, Etc., Are Still Quite Popular in the Little State.

The recent whippings at the Delaware whipping post, at Dover, of criminals who have been indicted and found guilty by the court of petty larceny and other crimes where the post and pillory are the penalty, have created no little interest and talk. The efficiency of this mode of punishment for criminals has been discussed perhaps more than ever in the last few years, owing to the fact that there has been an effort made to have both post and pillory abolished from the statute books of Delaware, on the ground that they are a most barbarous and inhuman method of punishment of criminals; also because Delaware is the only state in the union which still holds to these relics of olden times.

Much can be said, however, in favor of the whipping post and pillory in Delaware. While not an absolute preventive of petty larceny, yet their success in this direction is appreciated by the law abiding citizens of the state, for the reason that seldom does a criminal, sentenced by the court for the larceny of chickens or anything else in that line to suffer 10, 15 or 20 lashes at the post before a crowd of several hundred people, come back for the second dose.

While undergoing the punishment of the pillory the victim is almost perfectly motionless, hardly being able to move his head or hands. In some instances, however, where the neck of the prisoner is small, he can move it enough to keep him from getting the cramp in it, as is often the case. There have been cases where a prisoner has chewed tobacco during the whole time of his incarceration, which is never less than one hour, and in aggravated cases sometimes is two hours. While in the pillory the prisoner is allowed to wear his coat and hat, which serves to lessen his shame to the eyes of the gazing public, who generally flock around the prisoner as soon as he is placed therein.

THE PILLORY AT DOVER.
(A Form of Punishment Obtaining Only in Little Delaware.)

If the pillory were the only punishment inflicted upon the violators of the law at each session of the courts, little if any objection would be offered, as this part of the infliction is nothing compared to the whipping which immediately follows. The prisoner in this case is stripped of his shirt and coat, and, with his back exposed, his hands in iron cuffs, fastened with spikes, he leans forward hugging the post, as it were, while the sheriff applies the lash. The mark of the rawhide is plainly left on the culprit's back, who endeavors to bear up under it, but coming as it does in rapid succession and almost in the same spot, invariably he squirms and twists, as if to stay off the effects of it. When the last lash has been laid on by the sheriff the victim at the post gives a sigh of relief, as if a load had been lifted from his heart and mind. For cases of minor larceny the sentence of the court is not over 10 or 15; occasionally, however, when an old offender is arraigned before the court, he gets 20 or sometimes 30. The highest number ever given in Delaware was 60 lashes, but they were laid on lightly by the sheriff then in office. The order of the court used to be that a man should be whipped according to the gravity of his crime, to be either "well laid on" or "laid on light." This, however, is not observed here any more, but the sheriff uses his discretion in the applying of the lash, according to the enormity of the crime.

Rest for the Congregation.

One of the strange infelicities which are sometimes found on gravestones in ancient churchyards seems to have been perpetrated in the inscription on the tablet erected in memory of the late Rev. Dr. John Hall, which has been placed in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church in New York. After giving the name and mortuary record of Dr. Hall, the inscription says:

For Forty-nine Years
A Presbyterian Minister.
Pastor of This Church
From Nov. 3, 1867, to Sept. 17, 1898.
There Remaineth, Therefore, a Rest to the People of God.

If Dr. Hall could read it, he would not feel flattered. No man who had preached 49 years would like to have it said that the people enjoyed a rest after his departure to the skies.

SEWAGE BEDS O. K., SAYS MR. FROST

All They Need, He Declares, is a Little Repair and Careful Attention in the Future.

SEPTIC TANK NOT NEEDED.

HE WOULD ADVISE DOUBLING THE NUMBER OF DRAINS.

To Do This Would Not Cost More Than $500—Mr. Frost Says That the Construction of a Septic Tank is Not Required.

It was largely through the influence of Former Councilman George T. Frost that the intermittent downward filtration system was adopted for the disposal of Plainfield's sewage. Mr. Frost devoted a great deal of time to overseeing the construction of the sewage disposal beds. He is therefore better acquainted with the possibilities and limitations of the Plainfield system than most other men. Mr. Frost was, at that time, an engineer of repute and had made a special study of sewage disposal systems. Since that time he has spent two years abroad and has been placed in an unequalled position to study the methods in vogue in different parts of England.

A Daily Press reporter interviewed Mr. Frost this morning concerning the present situation at the Plainfield beds, his belief as to the causes and his recommendations for the future.

"The Plainfield sewage disposal system," said Mr. Frost, "is just as good as it ever was. It was worked with success at first and can be done so again. The only thing wanting here is to give it additional drainage or see that the present drains are working properly, and to follow the intermittent downward filtration system and depend less on evaporation.

"The sand in the Plainfield beds is inclined to be too fine and needs more thorough drainage than would an equal area with coarser sand."

If the present drains were not enough to properly answer the purpose, Mr. Frost explained that it would be an easy and not expensive matter to double the number of drains and clean out the old ones. The whole cost to the city would not be over $500. If the beds were then given constant and intelligent attention, he was confident that they would be perfectively successful. In England, he added, an expert chemist is employed to take charge of the disposal plant and give it his entire attention.

Mr. Frost expressed his opinion that the adoption of the septic tank system was not necessary as the beds could be worked under the old method with success and without the great expense that would be incurred by the adoption of the new system.

He told something of his stay in England when he visited Exeter, England, to see the working of the septic tank system and how he also inspected the more famous bacteria beds at Sutton, these latter being considered the very latest and most improved device for the purification of sewage. Among the other places he visited was the Barking works at London where a million gallons are successfully cared for on an acre of ground. This plant has been in successful operation for five years. Comparing this with Plainfield, he explained that the daily flow on the Plainfield beds was less than half a million gallons a day. He told of a personal inspection of the Birmingham disposal plant which occupies 2,600 acres of land.

FLOODED WITH BOGUS COIN.

Bad Half Dollars Freely Circulated in Jersey Towns.

Counterfeit silver half dollars are in circulation in the towns along the Central Railroad. The coins are made of silver and resemble the genuine in ring and weight. They stand the acid test and would be taken without question by most people unless examined closely. The lettering is poor and not in line, and in the word half, owing to a defect in the die the final letter F looks like E. The bogus coins were first noticed last week.

Paid Their Fine.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, July 24.—J. V. D. Ten-Eyck, Wm. Bellis, Henry Frech and James Boyle, the four men who fished with a net in a pond on Wm. Snyder's lowlands, and who were apprended by Game Wardens Hawkins and Miller, settled today by paying $50 and costs. They attempted to bluff the game wardens off at first by hiring counsel and putting up a fight, but they soon found that it was cheaper and easier to settle than to carry it through the courts.

MISS RAND NOW A MRS

POPULAR SOMERVILLE BELLE MARRIED QUIETLY A WEEK AGO.

Her Husband is Robert W. Smith, an Employe of the Central—Bride Now Visiting in Plainfield.

A host of friends, both in this city and Somerville, will be surprised to learn of the recent marriage of Miss Maude M. Rand, daughter of Mrs. Emma J. Rand, of Somerville, and of the late William F. Rand, who was for thirty one years a conductor on the Jersey Central. Miss Rand was married last week Thursday to Robert W. Smith, also of Somerville, by Rev. Mr. Bryan, pastor of the M. E. church, at Somerville.

The wedding took place at the parsonage, owing to the illness of the bride's mother. The bride was gowned in white, with trimmings of lace and ribbon, and was attended by her sister, Miss Lizzie Rand, who was gowned also in white, with trimmings of the same. The best man was William VanFleet, of Somerville.

After the ceremony the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's mother, where an informal reception was held and the bride and groom received the hearty congratulations of their friends, who had gathered to meet them.

The bride is a well-known and very popular young woman, who has many friends throughout Somerset county. Her husband is employed as a fireman on the Jersey Central. At present Mrs. Smith is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Richter, of 21 Pearl street, and it was soon after her arrival that her marriage became known. Although no attempt was made to conceal the fact no announcement had been made of it, and to many the bride was still known as Miss Rand. After the marriage was known Mrs. Smith was showered with congratulations by those who called to see her.

FORMER SHERIFF DEAD.

Wm. A. McMurtry Dead at His Home in Somerville—He Was a Popular Democrat.

Ex-Sheriff Wm. A. McMurtry is dead at his home in Somerville. Mr. McMurtry was born and lived the greater part of his life at Bernardsville. He formerly owned and for many years resided on the farm now the home of George H. Gaston, vice-president of the Metropolitan Insurance Company, of New York.

Mr. McMurtry was born in Bernards township 76 years ago. Most of his life was spent on a a farm near Bernardsville.

He was for a number of years tax collector of Bernards township and held other positions of trust. He at one time was the proprietor of a store in Bernards township and in 1883 he was elected sheriff of the county on the Democratic ticket by a generous majority. He moved to the county seat with his family at the time of his election and has since resided at Somerville.

After the expiration of his term of office he engaged in the dry goods business, which he continued until a few months ago, when he retired from business.

Early in life Mr. McMurtry married Miss Elizabeth Day, of Mendham. The aged couple have four children now living, Calvin D. and Miss Annie, who reside with them, Logan, who lives in New York city, and Mrs. Geo. H. Taylor, who resides at Gladstone. Oscar McMurtry, of Belvidere, the only living brother of Mr. McMurtry, is now at the McMurtry residence.

The funeral of the late Mr. McMurtry was held from his late residence on Bridge street this afternoon, and was largely attended. Rev. Dr. E. G. Read officiated. The remains will be taken to Mendham tomorrow morning for interment.

Contest Over Bond Issue.

The contest over the question of a bond issue to pay Summit's share of joining the joint sewer plan, which is to be decided by a special election on July 31, promises to develop into a more bitter and energetic struggle than the elections for local officers, always vigorously contested. A number of large property owners have instituted a fight against the bond proposition, and arrayed with them are several who will oppose the plan because the question of an issue for fire department purposes that they consider unnecessary was incorporated with the bond issue. The fight is not divided on party grounds, but the election will probably be close.

A Proud Town.

Hackettstown's new municipal building is expected to be ready for occupancy by October. The contract will be awarded July 30. When the building is completed the firemen of the town will have a celebretion and parade, and all neighboring companies will be invited to participate.

TURNING AND WRESTLING.

EXHIBITION OF AGILITY AND STRENGTH BY THE GERMANS.

Given in Saengerbund Hall Last Evening—Several Wrestling Matches Witnessed.

A concert, dance and exhibition of turning and wrestling was given last evening at Saengerbund Hall for the purpose of raising funds to send a team of eight men to the prize turn festival to be held in Brooklyn August 4th and 5th. There was a good attendance. Several selections were given by the Liberty Singing Society, of Elizabeth, and by the Plainfield singing section. There were also vocal solos by Prof. Louis Schnepel, the blind baritone, of Elizabeth, and John Moran, of this city.

There was some very fine work on the horizontal bars by a team of eight men from the Newark Turners, and the turning section from the Plainfield society performed well on the side horse. It was expected that Gus Troxler, of Newark, would be present to give an exhibition of club swinging and the lifting of heavy weights. A recent injury prevented him from taking part, and it was a great disappointment to all.

The wrestling matches were features of the evening. It was arranged that George Wehnert, the 105 pound State champion, should wrestle with Chas. Bopp, but the latter had a sprained shoulder and could not take part. Frank Shipman, the 115 pound State champion, took his place, and a six-minute bout was given, which resulted in a draw. Another wrestling exhibition was given by Frank Shipman and John Inderweiss. Three three-minute bouts resulted in a draw, so evenly matched were the contestants. The work of the wrestlers was very fine and considerable enthusiasm was aroused among those present.

Following the exhibitions dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. Those who had charge of the affair are quite well pleased with the receipts and there is no doubt but what a sufficient sum will be realized to send the team to Brooklyn next month.

The invitation was accepted and the members will go in a body.

DISTRICT COURT MAY BE ESTABLISHED HERE

Plainfield Will be Entitled to it if the Population Reaches 17,000 or Over.

W. S. ANGLEMAN FOR JUDGE.

HE IS SAID TO BE SLATED FOR THE PLACE BY POLITICAL POWERS.

District Court Would Do Away With Most of Business of the Justices of Peace—Salary of the Judge is $2,000 Per Year.

It now looks as though Plainfield is to take a long step forward by securing the establishment of a district court—something that has been needed for a long time. The question of Plainfield having a court of this kind now rests entirely with the returns of census for this year, for if it shall reach an even 17,000 the court is possible. Ten years ago the census showed a population of 13,626, and so far as can be ascertained at present, unofficially, Plainfield's population will be over 17,000. Up to last year the law stated that Plainfield would have to have a population of 20,000, but a new law was passed this year, approved March 23d, and took effect immediately, changing it from 20,000 to 17,000.

A district court consists of a Judge, who must be a counsellor-at-law. He is appointed by the Governor for a term of five years, and the appointment has to be confirmed by the Senate. The court serves for the whole city, and it takes away all civil jurisdiction from the Justices of the Peace. The jurisdiction is the limits of the county, and is for the process of all civil suits, exclusive of cost, where the amount sued for does not go over $300. In the question of the title of real estate it has no jurisdiction. Other cases that can be tried in a district court include landlord and tenant, forcible enter and detained, replevin and attachment. There is appeal from this court only on questions of fact; then the case can be taken upon a writ of certioria. It is a court of record and seal, and punishment is provided for contempt of court. Only lawyers can practice in the court, and Judges can exchange when requested to do so. It is also a continuous court of record.

In addition to a Judge, the court is provided with a clerk and a sergeant-at-arms. The salary of the Judge is $2,000 a year, and that of the clerk $900 a year, while the seageant-at-arms gets $1 a day. Court is usually held twice a week. All processes and summons must be issued by the clerk under the seal of the court. The salaries in this court for the Judge, clerk and sergeant-at-arms are paid by the city.

The practice of the circuit court applies to the district court. At present there are ten district courts in New Jersey, and it has always been the aim to select such Judges as would be a credit to the State and court. It serves as a stepping stone for higher positions, as in the case of Judge Fort, of Newark, who was for years Judge of a district court, and is now in the Supreme Court Some of the district court Judges include Judge Beadle and Judge Parker, of Jersey City; Judge Atwater, of Elizabeth; Judge Relistabb, of Trenton; Judge Storrs, of Orange, and Judge Joline, of Camden. Judges McCarter and Guild, who recently resigned, held similar positions for a long time.

Now, in the case of the establishment of a district court in this city, it is stated on the best of authority that Winfield S. Angleman will be appointed Judge, and that he has the promise and support of the "powers" for the place. In fact, it is understood that if he would allow his name to be withdrawn for the position of Councilman he was virtually promised the position of Judge, if the district court is established, and there seems to be no reasonable doubt now but what it will.

Mr. Angleman is a counsellor-at-law and in a great many ways particularly fitted for the place. He has the support of a majority of the lawyers in the city, all of whom want to see such a court established. It would give a higher dignity to the practice of law and the settlement of cases which are not now satisfactorily settled in other ways.

Nearly Ten Hours There.

Nearly ten full hours at the beach is what you will get by attending the excursion of the Trinity Reformed church and Marconnier chapel Sunday-schools to Asbury Park Thursday. NO CAUSE FOR WORRY.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST MISSIONARIES ARE IN NO DANGER.

Cablegram Received From Workers in China Says all are Well and Nothing to Fear.

The Seventh-Day Baptists of this city have watched the happenings in the Far East with great interest as there is a mission station of that denomination located at Shanghai, China, many of the American workers at which are well known here. Rev. Dr. D. H. Davis, who is the head of the mission, is a brother-in-law to W. H. Rogers, of Central avenue. Last Friday Rev. Dr. Davis' sixteen-year-old son, Theodore, sailed from Shanghai for the United States, where he will enter Alfred University in the fall. He was born and educated in China. He is accompanied by Miss Burdick, the head of the school for Chinese young women, supported by the Seventh Day Baptists at Shanghai. She will make a short visit in this country.

A cablegram was recently received from the mission in Shanghai stating that all the occupants were well and in no danger. The work of the mission was about to be extended by the erection of a hospital some distance outside of Shanghai, but that improvement will probably have to be given up on account of the troubles there. There are nine adult Americans connected with the mission, of which three are either in this country or on their way here.

While all that denomination are greatly interested in the situation in China, particularly on account of the mission there, no great apprehension is felt for the safety of the mission and the workers there.

MORE MONEY NEEDED.

Unless it is Forthcoming the Free Open-air Band Concerts Will End Next Friday Evening.

In spite of the appreciation of an interest taken in the newly inaugurated band concerts, it now seems as if the one next Friday night would be the last. The promoters of the concerts had contemplated giving them in the city park park provided enough funds could be raised to defray expenses. Their appeal for aid has met with so little response that they are forced to give them up, unless before next Friday the people show a willingness to contribute something toward their support. As it is now Mr. LaVere, leader of the band, is under considerable expense himself for each concert given. He has offered to continue them through August and September for his expenses only. Mayor Rockfellow and Edward White have already pledged $10 each as a starter and in a few days Mr. LaVere will circulate a subscription list himself when it is hoped enough money can be secured to warrant the continuance of the concerts a short time longer at least. Any amount, however small, will be gratefully accepted, so don't be afraid because you can't give a large sum.

POSES AS FIREMEN'S FRIEND.

Rogue Collects Funds in Name of the State Home.

General Bird W. Spencer, president of the New Jersey State Firemen's Association, received a letter from Col. Charles A. Sterling, of Orange, one day last week, setting out that a man representing himself as John Cornell, of Bayonne, was collecting donations for the home.

Col. Sterling subscribed a check for $10 and stated that many other subscriptions were recorded in a somewhat dilapidated book.

Gen. Spencer at once telegraphed Col. Sterling to stop payment on the check, as the man was a fraud. The New Jersey State Firemen's Association has plenty of men left after buying and remodeling the house at Boonton. It has $10,000 in one bank in Trenton, consequently is in no need of charitable donations and has no solicitors on the road. In response to a telegraph from Gen. Spencer, the Mayor of Bayonne said no such man as Cornell resided there.

Burglar at Westfield Escaped.

A message was recived here yesterday from Westfield at the police headquarters that a burglar had entered a house there and carried away two two ladies' gold watches, $5 in money and a number of other articles. The thief did not come this way, as the police were on the alert to intercept him.

Hospital Appointment.

Dr. Norman H. Probasco, son of Dr. John B. Probasco, of East Front street, has been appointed to the Infants Hospital on Amsterdam avenue, New York. This position is one of honor and very creditable to the young doctor, as he secured it by competitive examinations.

HAPPY HOME NO MORE.

VERNY WHITEHEAD ACCUSED OF DESTROYING DOMESTIC TRANQUILITY.

John VanDoren Alleges That the Scion of Wealthy Brick Manufacturer Has Led His Wife Astray.

New Brunswick, South River, Milltown and, in fact, all Middlesex county, are agitated over the arrest of Verny Whitehead, son of a millionaire brick manufacturer of South River. Whitehead is well-known in Plainfield and is accused by John VanDoren, of Milltown, of having wrecked the happiness of his domestic life. A warrant has also been issued for Mrs. VanDoren, against whom her husband has preferred charges. The VanDorens have one child, a son. VanDoren does not know where his wife is, but he declares Whitehead does.

Whitehead appeared before Justice Housell yesterday, but the hearing had to be adjourned on account of Mrs. VanDoren's absence, and Whitehead gave bail to appear in two weeks. Mr. VanDoren consulted Prosecutor Voorhees at New Brunswick recently and wanted his wife and Whitehead arrested. The Prosecutor ordered the complaint made, and Whitehead was arrested.

A society woman who spent much of her time with Mrs VanDoren appeared yesterday to testify for the husband, and it is expected that many of the most prominent residents will be witnesses. Mr. VanDoren said that his home had been a happy one until a year ago, when his wife became acquainted with Whitehead, and since then she has not been home very often. He said:

"There is no use of using violence, if the law will punish them both, and as soon as this case is disposed of I will see about a civil suit for damages before asking for a divorce."

Mrs. VanDoren is a handsome woman of thirty-five.

CONCRETE FOUNDATION.

Freeholders Decide to Lay a Solid Bed for New Bridge to Rest On.

Owing to the great amount of water that has appeared in Green brook near the point where where excavations are being made to locate a bridge to connect Madison avenue and Duer street, it was found necessary for the Union and Somerset County Boards of Freeholders to send their bridge committees to that place yesterday afternoon to decide whether a concrete wall should be placed there for a foundation. Messrs. Westphal, of this city; John Robinson, of Fanwood; John Farrell, of Rahway; Mulford Scudder, of Westfield, and Augustus Gerstung, of Elizabeth, represented the Union County Board; while Director William Logan, of Somerville; Andrew Lutkins, of the borough, and Augustus Mobus, of North Plainfield township, represented the Somerset County Board.

After making a thorough examination, it was unanimously agreed that a concrete foundation should be laid, it being considered the best, safest and cheapest. The Somerset county members, in company with Mr. Westphal, then went to Farragut avenue, to examine the bridge at that point which has been reported to be in a bad condition. It was decided to patch the bridge where needed, and that was considered to be all that was necessary.

TRACK ELEVATION FOR BAYONNE.

Central Offers to Do the Work and the Council Authorizes a Contract.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bayonne, July 24.—At a special meeting of the City Council last Friday night, Mayor Seymour submtted a letter in which it was announced that the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey had agreed to elevate its tracks through the city in accordance with contracts which were submitted to the Council for action.

The Council at once authorized the the Mayor and City Clerk to execute contracts between the city and the Central Railroad, and the city and the North Jersey Street Railway Company, for the work of elevating tracks, depressing Twenty-second street and the building of the Thirtieth street bridge.

Some time ago the city brought suit in the Supreme Court to compel the Central Railroad to place a bridge over its tracks at Thirtieth street. The present move on the part of the company is a direct result of that action.

Freeholders to Meet.

The bridge committees from the Union, Somerset and Middlesex County Board of Freeholders will meet tomorrow on Jefferson avenue to take definite action regarding the bridge at that place which has been condemned.

MULDOON DIDN'T KNOW HIS VICTIM WAS DEAD

Henning's Assailant Arrested and Now in Somerset Jail for Manslaughter

CORONER'S JURY DRAWN.

WITNESSES OF THE FIGHT WILL TESTIFY ITOMORROW EVENING.

Inquest Being Conducted by Coroner DeMott—Officers Hunting for Witnesses When They Apprehended Muldoon.

John Muldoon was arrested in South River yesterday charged with causing the death of Jacob Henning, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital last Friday from injuries alleged to have been administered by the accused. Muldoon was shocked at the news of Henning's death, as he was not aware that he had seriously injured him.

He was taken to the Somerville jail last evening and will be held on the charge of manslaughter.

Soon after Henning's death an autopsy was performed on his body by Dr. VanD. Hedges. A careful examination of all the vital organs were made to show, if possible, whether death was due to the kick administered by Muldoon or to some organic trouble. The result showed that the injuries were sufficient to cause death and there was no organic trouble of any consequence apparent.

Dr. Wagner, county physician, of Somerville, gave a permit for burial being satisfied with the findings of the autopsy and saw no reason for delaying the interment of the body.

Coroner Henry DeMott was instucted to empanel a jury of six and these were sworn in at Cole's undertaking rooms after viewing the body. The jury was L. W. Hammond, foreman; Meyers Compton, John Kline Mark Lees, Adam Seader and Morgan Stites.

The jury met last evening at 7 o'clock at the rooms of Coroner DeMott in Somerset street, and listened to the evidence presented by Drs. B. VanD. Hedges and Long, of this city, and Dr. Wagoner, of Somerville, the county physician. Prosecutor John L. Griggs, of Somerville, was also present.

The evidence given by the doctors agreed perfectly and they stated that without a particle of a doubt Henning met his death as a result of the kick given him by Thomas Muldoon, the man mentioned by Henning before his death.

There are two witnesses, shantymen, employed on the Raritan canal, whom, it is said, saw the fight between Muldoon and Henning, and the inquest was adjourned until tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock when these two men will be present to give their evidence. The Somerset county officials were on their way for the two witnesses when they reached Bound Brook, and were informed that Muldoon was working in a brick yard at South River. At that time a warrant had been issued for the arrest of Muldoon on a simple charge of assault and battery. This charge was changed to manslaughter. Muldoon was not aware that Henning was dead, or he would probably have made his escape.

At the inquest last evening Dr. Hedges explained the exact findings in the operation following death, and gave the jury an unusually clear conception of the cause of death.

TO CONTEST DURNING WILL.

Relatives From Newark and Ireland Want Part of the Estate.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 24.—A contest is about to be started to try and break the will of the late Michael Durning, who, when he died last year, was Elizabeth's richest undertaker. He left an estate to his wife estimated at over $200,000. He did not make his will, it is said, until an hour before death, and it is claimed by the contestants that he was not then in a condition, physically or mentally, to devise it.

Mr. Durning had one son living, it is said, by a former marriage, but there was no child by his last union. Now a number of relatives want to get a share of the estate, and among them are several cousins living in Newark and others in Ireland.

Among the claimants is said to be Archbishop Logue, of Armagh, Ireland.

A YELLOW FEVER OUTBREAK.

A Number of Cases In the Barracks of American Troops In Cuba.

HAVANA, July 24.—Yellow fever has broken out in the barracks of the Seventh United States cavalry and the First United States infantry in Pinar del Rio. There have been nine deaths during the present month, and 11 cases are now under treatment in the hospitals. General Lee has ordered the camp moved three miles into the country, and quarantine will be strictly enforced.

The chief surgeon has received orders to institute a thorough investigation into the cause of the outbreak, and special preparation is being made for a thorough disinfection before the First infantry embarks for the United States.

The revolutionary element will probably protest against any provision in the proposed constitution giving a veto power to the United States government with regard to the making of commercial treaties and the contracting of debts. El Cubano, the organ of the National party, says:

"There are some advantages in the way of treaties that are due to the United States in return for the American interest in Cuban welfare, but these should be attained through mutual agreement rather than by the dictatorial policy of Washington."

CONDENSED DISPATCHES.

The machinery of Lieutenant Peary's steamer Windward has broken down.

Archie Lawson, aged 21 years, was drowned in Chautauqua lake outlet.

McKinley's Visit to Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 24.—President McKinley, who was scheduled to reach Chicago on Monday, Aug. 27, for the purpose of attending the thirty-fourth national encampment of the G. A. R., yesterday notified Executive Director William H. Harper that, inasmuch as it would necessitate Sunday railroad travel to reach here on that date, he had decided to change his plans. He will arrive in Chicago on Saturday, Aug. 25, and attend the patriotic religious exercises scheduled for Sunday at the new Coliseum, Wabash avenue and Fifteenth street. The president will review the parade of naval veterans and ex-prisoners of war on Monday, the Grand Army parade on Tuesday and probably will leave Chicago on Wednesday.

The Right Thing Has Been Found, A Plainfield Citizen Shows the Way.

Once more we are indebted to a Plainfield citizen for a public statement that throws more light on a subject of ever increasing interest. People have been deceived by false misrepresentations from time immemorial. No wonder they are skeptical of all claims endorsed by strangers residing in far-distant parts of the Union. It is no longer necessary to accept such endorsements, for local citizens are giving their testimony and 'tis an easy matter for any reader to investigate the correctness of such evidence as the following:

Mrs. Wm. H. Ludlow, of Jackson avenue says:—"I had backache and a sort of dull pain across my loin for several years. If I sat for any length of time and tried to raise I had a sharp pain in my kidneys. Walking any distance or standing aggravated the difficulty. I could not rest well at night from the fact that I had to be constantly changing about from one position to another trying to free myself from pain. I used quite a number of remedies but got no permanent relief. I was prevailed upon to get Doan's Kidney Pills from L. W. Randolph's drug store. I must say they did me a great deal of good. It is seldom that I feel any pain in my back and when I do a few doses of this remedy never fails to relieve me. I know others who have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results."

BRIDGE WORK
In Dentistry is the best substitute for nature's work that can be done. Sound roots may be built up and crowned and thus fill up an unsightly space. It has to be made of a material that has strength and durability and one that will not discolor. Gold is the one that stands the test. That is the secret of the expense. THE KUMASSI RELIEF.

Colonel Willcocks Returns With the Garrison In a Pitiful Condition.

FUMSU, July 24.—The Kumassi relief column has just arrived here from Kumassi, which it left July 17, bringing the old garrison, about 20 fairly fit men, 70 broken down invalids and some women and children in a pitiful condition.

The success of Colonel Willcocks was due to his choice of a route not suspected by the Ashantis, who had concentrated in thousands along the eastern route, but in much smaller numbers along the western route via Pecci, which Colonel Willcocks adopted

Even as it was the Ashantis were active and the roads knee deep in mud Colonel Willcocks took a couple of villages by bayonet charge. Beyond Ekwanda he found the tribesmen in a strong position behind stockades. It was a large war camp with the chief commander of the Ashanti army, estimated at 4,000 men.

After a heavy fire on both sides for nearly an hour Colonel Willcocks ordered a bayonet charge, and the troops rushed the thick bush, cheering vigorously. The Ashantis did not wait for the bayonet, but fled in confusion.

The casualties of Colonel Willcocks were two officers wounded, two natives killed and 17 wounded.

On finding Kumassi in such a terrible condition Colonel Willcocks, after cutting bush and burning the bodies, placed the whole force upon half rations, an arrangement cheerfully borne. No opposition was met on the return journey.

Horrible Sight In Kumassi.

LONDON, July 24.—Advices just received here say that Colonel Willcocks, the commander of the relief column in Ashanti, describes his entrance into Kumassi July 15 as presenting a scene of horror and desolation, burned houses and putrid bodies being visible on all sides. He adds that the native soldiers were too weak to stand and that the British officers thanked God for the relief, as a few more days, they declared, would have seen the end. Colonel Willcocks left the garrison well supplied with food and ammunition.

Paris Awards.

ALBANY, July 24.—The state department of public instruction has received the first announcement of educational awards to the United States made at the Paris exposition. The awards are grouped in order of merit, beginning with the highest, the grand prizes. In three instances, on the personal motion of a French juror, distinguished merit was recognized in the case of individuals as follows: Professor H. A. Rowland, Johns Hopkins university; Professor Nicholas Murray Butler, Columbia university; Director Melvil Dewey, University of the State of New York. Grand prizes were awarded to the University of the State of New York, Congressional library, Washington; Harvard university, Harvard observatory, University of Pennsylvania, Johns Hopkins university and American Library association.

Freighthouse and Cars Burned.

BUFFALO, July 24.—The Lehigh Valley freighthouse at East Buffalo, together with 50 cars loaded with merchandise, was destroyed yesterday during a fire which was difficult to combat and which at one time spread out for a quarter of a mile. It originated from an explosion, the nature of which is not definitely known. The loss is estimated at $150,000. A number of yard and train employees were badly burned while making brave efforts to couple on cars and draw them from the burning structure. None of the injuries is of a fatal nature.

New Cement Factory.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 24.—Ithaca is soon to have another immense manufacturing industry. The Portland Cement company has signed papers for the purchase of land at Lakeside, a short distance north of the city, for the construction of their plant. The plant will cost $200,000 and will employ 300 men. Work will be begun immediately on the plant, and when completed it will turn out 1,500 barrels of cement daily.

Bicyclist Crushed to Death.

BLOOMSBURG, Pa., July 24.—John Cole, aged 27 years, of Coleton, this county, was knocked from his bicycle by a team of horses and then crushed to death by the heavy wagon drawn by the team. Cole's companions declare that he met his death through the deliberate and willful act of Ritter Goss, the driver of the team. Goss, who, it is alleged, was intoxicated, was arrested and committed to jail.

Scotch Steamer on the St. Lawrence.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., July 24.—The steamer Seafield, from Glasgow, passed up the St. Lawrence river yesterday, drawing 12 feet of water fore and aft. She is built of steel, regular ocean steamship style, and is loaded with Scotch iron for the upper lakes. This is the fifth steel steamer of this type passing up to the lakes within a few weeks. She will return to Scotland next fall.

Notable Shipment of Cotton.

SAVANNAH, July 24.—The shipment of 1,000 bales of cotton from Savannah to New Orleans created considerable interest in cotton circles. Except 100 bales shipped to New Orleans last week no cotton has been sent from this port to the latter in many years. New Orleans prices caused the heavy shipment.

ENGLISH REVERSES.

Three Days' Severe Fighting With Heavy Loss.

PRETORIA IS AGAIN CUT OFF.

Boers Capture a Supply Train and One Hundred Highlanders—General Broadwood Thinks He Is on President Steyn's Trail.

LONDON, July 24.—The Daily Express has the following from Machadodorp, dated Monday, July 23:

"There has been severe fighting during the last three days, and the Boers have inflicted heavy losses upon the British at Derdepoort. Six hundred women and children from Pretoria, including Mmes. Kruger, Botha and Meyer, have arrived at Barberton."

General Broadwood reports to the war office from Honingspruit that he followed a Boer commando from July 16.

There was a sharp engagement at Palmiefontein on July 19. The British had five casualties, and eight dead Boers were found.

Broadwood asks that General Knox send him supplies for 300 men and horses to pursue the enemy. He believes that President Steyn and General De Wet are with this commando.

The railway and telegraph lines to Honingspruit have been cut.

General Kelly-Kenny reports from Bloemfontein that a supply train with 100 highlanders has been captured by a large force of Boers who are moving on Honingspruit. He also states that communication with Pretoria has been cut.

The war office has received the following dispatch from Lord Roberts, dated Pretoria, July 22:

"Methuen continued his march after the occupation of Heekpoort and engaged the rear guard of the enemy near Zandsfontein on July 20. Our losses were one killed and one wounded. On July 21 he again attacked and completely dispersed the enemy's forces at Oliphant's nek, inflicting heavy loss. Our casualties were slight.

"Rustenburg has been relieved, and Methuen and Baden-Powell have joined hands. Hamilton secured on July 21 a strong position at Stitzray. We had three killed and many wounded."

The London morning papers feel compelled to recognize General De Wet's clever strategy in baffling all efforts to catch him, while constantly harassing the British lines of communication.

Only the scantiest details have been allowed to come through. Apparently when nightfall stopped the engagement with Colonel Broadwood General De Wet's forces divided into small parties, one of which cut the railway and captured the highlanders, the Boers afterward reuniting at Rhenoster river.

The latest advices from Pretoria announce that General Stevenson's brigade has occupied Elands river and that General Hamilton has occupied Doorn kraal.

Charges Against Brockway.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 24.—The board of managers of the Elmira reformatory has preferred charges against Hugh Brockway, transfer officer of the institution and a brother to the superintendent. Hugh refused to resign when the managers requested him to do so, urging that he was a veteran soldier and could not be summarily removed. The hearing before the managers will take place here on Tuesday, July 31. He has retained counsel and says that if he is defeated before the board he will take the matter to the courts for review, as the law provides in the case of a veteran. Superintendent Brockway, it is now generally understood, will on the day of his brother's hearing tender his resignation.

An Alabama Lynching.

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., July 24.—Elijah Clark, the negro who Sunday assaulted Susan Priest, a 13-year-old girl, was taken from the jail in this city last evening and lynched near the spot where his crime was committed. His body was riddled with bullets. Sheriff Fulgham defended his prisoner to the last, but a dense smoke from a combination of tar, feathers and oil fired by the crazed mob was too much for him, and he was dragged from the jail and placed under a physician's care. William Vining, an employee of the street railway company, who attempted to rush through the crowd and up the jail steps, was shot and dangerously wounded.

Roosevelt at Jewish Chautauqua.

ATLANTIC CITY, July 24.—Governor Roosevelt yesterday afternoon delivered a lecture on "Americanism" for the benefit of the Jewish Chautauqua, which is holding its usual summer session. An audience of about 2,500 people greeted Colonel Roosevelt and exhibited much enthusiasm. The gathering was in the large auditorium on the Steel pier, and the lecturer, who spoke for about an hour, had some difficulty in making himself heard. When the colonel had concluded, an enthusiastic youth called for "three cheers for Teddy Roosevelt," and they were given with a will.

American Athletes Dined.

PARIS, July 24.—Commissioner General Peck entertained at dinner last evening the American athletes who contested in the world's amateur championship contests in connection with the Paris exposition. The table was laid in the United States National pavilion, which was tastefully decorated. United States Embassador Porter, Consul General Gowdy and many other guests were present. Several speeches were made, all emphasizing the great success of the American competitors.

The Monsoon Favorable.

LONDON, July 24.—The viceroy of India, Baron Curzon of Kedleston, telegraphs to Lord George Hamilton, secretary of state for India, that the monsoon continues favorable this week except in Gujerat, Kathiawar, Baroda and Rajputana West, where cultivation is at a standstill and rain is greatly needed for fodder. The number on the famine relief list now reaches 6,281,000.

Eleven Negroes Drowned.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., July 24.—Eleven negro men were drowned in the Warrior river near Akron, Ala., by the capsizing of a skiff. The accident occurred at government lock No. 5, now under construction.

Autos For Emperor William.

BERLIN, July 24.—Emperor William has accepted from the manufacturers three automobiles in which he intends to ride during the August maneuvers.

ALL SAFE, ALL KILLED.

Latest News From Peking Very Contradictory.

NOTHING DEFINITE REACHES LONDON

Chinese Legation Secretary Asserts That the Foreigners Will Soon Proceed to Tien-tsin. Russia's Plans.

LONDON, July 24.—The Chinese minister, Sir Chih Chen Lo Feng Luh, has communicated to the press the following dispatch from Sheng, director general of Chinese railways and telegraphs and taotai of Shanghai, dated Shanghai, July 23:

"Information from Peking, dated July 18, says that the tsung-li-yamen deputed Won Jui, an undersecretary of the department, to see the foreign ministers and he found every one well, without any missing, the German minister excepted.

"General Yung Lu is going to memorialize the throne to send them all under escort to Tien-tsin in the hope that the military operations will then be stopped."

Sir Halliday Macartney, counselor and English secretary to the Chinese legation in London, asserted last evening that the Peking legations were safe and about to proceed to Tien-tsin.

The Shanghai correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing July 22, says:

"A letter from a Chinese official in Shangtung has been received by a native functionary here containing the following passage:

"'At the beginning of the month the foreign missionaries (?) made several attempts to send messages out of Peking, but, thanks to the strict watch kept on the city, the bearers were all caught and executed. On the 4th inst. only 400 foreigners, much exhausted, were left alive in Peking, and one night, when the big guns were incessantly fired, it was known that all the legations and the foreigners were finished, although pretended telegrams contradict these facts.'"

The St. Petersburg correspondent of The Daily Mail asserts that there are differences of opinion in the Russian council of war. The minister of war, General Kouropatkin, wishes to send 100,000 men and to clear the rebels out of Manchuria. On the other hand, according to this correspondent, Emperor Nicholas wishes the operations limited to the defense and pacification of the frontier districts. Let two strong armies, one of the allies in the south and the other of the Russians in the north, confront the Chinese, and the rising, so the czar is said to argue, would be bound to collapse. "We want no conquests," he is reported to have declared at the conclusion of a sitting of the council. "What we desire is to protect our frontiers and to steer into smooth waters the Chinese ship of state, now buffeted by the waves of civil war."

There is nothing further this morning that throws any light upon the mysterious situation. Two urgent dispatches were addressed yesterday by the Chinese minister to the Peking government and to the director of telegraph administration strongly advocating the necessity of restoring telegraphic communication with a view of enabling the powers to obtain proof of the safety of the foreign ministers. Until such proofs are secured no one here is inclined to alter the opinion that the Chinese are merely juggling to gain time.

Germany Still Doubts.

BERLIN, July 24.—The German government and press continue to disbelieve the assurances of the Chinese authorities that the Peking legations are safe. The foreign office surmises that the Conger dispatch was either sent about simultaneously with the dispatches of Dr. von Bergen, secretary of the German legation, and Sir Robert Hart, but suppressed, or was captured from the messenger to whom it was intrusted and is now produced to create the desired effect in Washington, or, on the other hand, that the whole dispatch was concocted for purposes of deception with the aid of a cipher key somehow obtained.

United States Embassador White said that the latter theory was quite plausible, for if the American legation had been captured and the records there seized the cipher key would likewise be secured, and then it would be an easy matter for anybody to do the rest.

At all events the German foreign office will continue to regard the report that the legations still exist as a myth until the communication, now cut off nearly a month, shall have been re-established in the most indubitable fashion.

A Critical Situation.

ST. LOUIS, July 24.—Captain Robley D. Evans, U. S. N., who has been at Hot Springs, Ark., for two months, passed through this city yesterday en route to Washington. Regarding the Chinese situation, he said: "In my estimation the great powers of the earth are facing the most critical situation that has arisen in modern history. The partition of the Chinese empire can only be prevented by the United States. I approve of the policy of the administration as now outlined. This country cannot afford to stand by and see China divided up among the European governments without making a protest that will shake the world and announce to all the earth that this nation must be supreme in the east because it holds the Philippines."

All Ministers Safe.

PARIS, July 24.—M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs, has received a telegram from the French consul at Chefo, dated July 21, saying: "The governor informs me that, according to reliable news from Peking, all the foreign ministers are safe, and the government is taking all necessary steps to deliver and protect them."

Missionaries Safe.

REDWING, Minn., July 24.—A cablegram has been received here announcing the safe arrival at Shanghai of the missionaries of the Hauge Norwegian Synod of America from their stations 750 miles inland.

Defrauded Insurance Company.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Miss Margaret Sheehan, former financial secretary of Illinois council, No. 420, Knights and Ladies of Security, a fraternal insurance order, pleaded guilty in court yesterday to a charge of conspiracy to defraud that organization of $6,650. It is said that, hoping for leniency, two more of the persons indicted will today plead guilty. Pauper cadavers were used as a basis for the collection of money alleged to be due on policies.

SEYMOUR'S EXPEDITION.

Extensive Report of the Attempted Relief of Peking.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—There is nothing in the extensive report of Admiral Seymour just received here by the American steamship Maru to prove the sensational story that was circulated the earlier part of this month to the effect that Admiral Seymour, who commanded the Peking relief expedition, killed his wounded to save them from the Chinese.

Commander S. W. Very, U. S. N., who returned from the orient on the steamer, and others who were at Hongkong when Admiral Seymour returned from Tien-tsin did not hear the story, and the admiral's report, which is an elaboration of the cablegram published on the 30th of June, makes not the slightest mention of the affair; but, on the contrary, goes into particulars of the bravery of the allies in guarding the wounded, who were placed in flatboats and towed down the river by details of soldiers and marines while the main body of the troops fought the Chinese off with rifles and Maxims.

In the fight at Tang-fang, where the Boxers attacked the forces with great vigor, twice the Italian contingent bore the brunt of the fighting on the right flank and lost five men killed and a number wounded. The Chinese retreated, leaving a large number of dead on the field. In the afternoon a detail of British marines who were stationed to guard the railroad house at Tang-fang were attacked, and re-enforcements had to be rushed forward to save them. It was in this engagement that the enemy lost about 100 killed. An advance was then made to Ren-ting, where the forces halted, as the tracks for miles had been torn up. The Chinese advanced in great numbers, and a desperate battle was fought. The column fell back to Yong-song, so that the rest of the trip might be made by stream. Seymour said:

"Prior to our departure from Tang-fang I ordered two trains to stop there in order to enable part of our men to proceed later, but these trains were attacked after my departure by the Boxers and the Chinese troops who had come from Peking, and fighting ensued, in the course of which 400 to 500 were killed on the enemy's side. Six of our men were killed and 48 wounded.

"At Yong-song I was joined by the men who came there in three trains. All the trains were completely destroyed, and not a single one could be used for further work. Moreover, the want of provisions, together with the presence of numerous wounded soldiers, compelled us to retreat to Tien-tsin. Communication with Tien-tsin remained entirely suspended for six days, and accordingly we were deprived of the means of obtaining supplies. We accordingly marched back, though constantly attacked by the enemy, along the river, escorting at the same time the wounded soldiers carried in boats."

Chinch Bugs Try City Life.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 24.—Chinch bugs have come into the city in large numbers, much to the surprise of entomologists and in direct violation of their theories. Just why they should leave the fields, where they are always confined, in books, has not yet been explained. Scientists approached on the subject were unable to give any satisfactory explanation. Some were unwilling to attempt to account for the visitation. They were blown hither and thither in the air by every wind and stuck persistently to buildings or sidewalks. Pedestrians found their clothing covered with the little pests, and it was with great difficulty that they were removed.

Wire Nail In Appendix.

BOSTON, July 24.—Isaac Lipson, 9 years old, who lives with his parents at 20 West Third street, Chelsea, was taken ill a day or two ago. He had all the symptoms of appendicitis, and early Monday morning he was taken to the Frost hospital in that city. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon Dr. William R. Chipman performed an operation on the boy. He found the appendix was badly ulcerated, and on cutting away the growth Dr. Chipman ran across a wire nail one inch in length. The nail was firmly driven through the appendix, and it required considerable skill on the part of the physician to successfully remove it.

A Youthful Burglar.

DANBURY, Conn., July 24.—By his own confession 12-year-old Charlie Kelley of Lee, Mass., is the worst boy who ever fell into the hands of the Danbury police. For over two weeks Danbury has been alarmed by a series of bold daylight burglaries, and the police have been keeping a sharp lookout for the burglar, but when a big policeman appeared in the police station leading a little tow headed boy who wore a shirt waist, knee trousers and cap it did not seem possible he could be the one who had committed all the burglaries that had baffled the police.

Democratic Headquarters.

CHICAGO, July 24.—Headquarters for the campaign have been established by the Democratic national committee at the Auditorium in this city. Senator James K. Jones arrived in Chicago yesterday and completed the arrangements whereby the national headquarters will be located in the suit of rooms on the second floor of the Auditorium hotel which were occupied by the Paris exposition commissioners. There are 14 rooms in the suit, providing ample space for the business of the campaign.

A Treasure Ship.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 24.—The richest Klondike treasure ship of the season, the steamship Amur, has just arrived here with 90 passengers, who, among them, had gold dust valued at $1,000,000 and drafts for another $1,000,000. Most were claim owners. A few of them have sold out, but the majority are just out after a holiday. They estimate the output of the Klondike at $25,000,000, the recently discovered claims turning out as rich, if not richer, than the oldest ones of El Dorado and Bonanza.

Island Transferred to Naval Control.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The island of Basilan, department of Mindanao and Jolo, has been transferred from the control of the military to control of the naval commander on the Asiatic station, and all the United States troop stations on that island have been transferred to other garrisons. The establishment of civil government on the island will be conducted by the naval authorities.

Texas Midroaders.

FORT WORTH, Tex., July 24.—Jerome Kerby of Dallas will be nominated for governor by the Populist state convention at Waco today. The convention will be strictly middle of the road and opposed to fusion. A full state ticket will be named.

POSSIBLE MEDIATION

President McKinley Answers China's Appeal.

WILL ACCEPT UNDER CONDITIONS.

United States Still Proceeding on the Supposition That Recent Reports of the Safety of Legations Are Accurate.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The president has listened to the appeal of the Chinese government as transmitted by Minister Wu and has signified his willingness to mediate between the imperial government and the powers, but only upon conditions which first must be met by the Chinese government.

The exact nature of the terms proposed by the state department cannot be stated now. It is expected that publication will be made today of the text of the Chinese appeal and of the president's answer. It is known, however, that the answer is entirely consistent with the statement of principles laid down by Secretary Hay in his note to the powers, and moreover it accepts as truthful the Chinese statements relative to the safety of the foreign ministers at Peking.

It would not of course be possible to take even the initial steps toward mediation were either party to the negotiations to entertain openly distrust of the accuracy of the statements of the other. There must be confidence between them. The United States' answer does not go to the length of the French answer to a similar appeal in laying down conditions which the Chinese government could not meet, even if so disposed, if it actually is struggling for its own existence. It does, however, look to the immediate relief of the foreign ministers in Peking and moreover to the protection of all foreigners, missionaries and traders in China and to the restoration of order.

With that much accomplished the state department feels that it can properly approach the powers with the Chinese propositions for a settlement for what has occurred. The Chinese appeal came to Secretary Hay Sunday through Mr. Wu. The secretary promptly telegraphed it to the president at Canton, and after taking a full day for its consideration the president's answer came yesterday afternoon to the state department. It was put in the proper diplomatic form and a copy delivered to Minister Wu, who was to forward it to his own government. Appeal and answer will be made public here today.

The imperial edict made public at the state department shows that the imperial government already has taken the first steps toward doing what the United States requires as the principal condition for the exercise of its good offices in enjoining the viceroys, magistrates and leading men to stop the disorders and protect foreigners. Our government will await the result of this before proceeding further.

It is expected that adverse criticism upon the action of the state department in this matter will be heard from Europe, where the governments are acting upon the belief that all of the foreign ministers in Peking have perished, but our government nevertheless regards its course as the correct one. All of the European governments have taken the stand above indicated. The last of the answers to Secretary Hay's note reciting the Conger message have come, and all of them in terms polite and diplomatic express utter incredibility in the authenticity of the Conger message. Consul General Goodnow himself, a man of good judgment, also cabled a warning to Secretary Hay against the acceptance of the message without confirmation. But the state department has fully considered the message in all of its aspects, has carefully weighed the numerous objections and suspicions put forth here and in Europe and, without guaranteeing the authenticity of the message, feels it to be a matter of prime duty to act upon the theory that it is genuine.

Admiral Remey's notification to the department that he had gone in person up the Pei-ho from Peking to Tien-tsin is attributed to the receipt by him of Secretary Long's urgent message to hasten the efforts to get to Peking, and important news from him is expected soon.

The war department, it appears, underestimated the time that would be required for the Grant to arrive at Nagasaki. She sailed on the 1st inst., so that she is not yet quite due at that point with General Chaffee.

The Goodnow cablegram reciting the message from Prince Tuan as vouching for the safety of the foreign ministers on July 18 caused a ripple of excitement for a time at the state department, but the officials soon concluded from the context and other circumstances surrounding the message that Yuan was meant instead of Tuan, so that the message lost the value it would have had if it had come from the redoubtable Boxer leader.

Although the orders have not been issued, it is pretty generally understood in military circles that Brigadier General Frederick D. Grant, U. S. V., and Brigadier General Thomas H. Barry have been selected for assignment to duty with the military division in China. Their assignment, together with that of Brigadier General James H. Wilson, U. S. V., already announced, will give Major General A. R. Chaffee, commander in chief, three general officers of recognized ability to assist him in the management of military operations in China.

The transport Grant is expected to arrive at Nagasaki early this week, possibly today or tomorrow. She left San Francisco on the 1st inst. with Major General Chaffee, two troops of the Sixth cavalry and a battalion of marines. It was originally intended to transship these troops at Nagasaki to other vessels of the transport service, by which they were to be taken direct to Taku, and the Grant was to have continued on to Manila. The urgent need of these re-enforcements in China has necessitated a change in the plans, and orders have gone forward for the Grant to proceed direct from Nagasaki to Taku with the utmost speed, stopping only long enough to take on coal.

The officials of the war department calculate that General Chaffee and his re-enforcements will join Lieutenant Colonel Coolidge and the Ninth infantry at Tien-tsin before the end of the month. It also is expected that the troops from Manila, consisting of two battalions of the Fourteenth infantry and a battery of artillery, will arrive at Taku today or tomorrow at the latest. The arrival of these troops will give General Chaffee an effective fighting force, including marines already there, of about 4,000 men.

Need of a District Court.

The news columns of today's Press tell the story of a movement under way to secure the establishment of a district court in Plainfield if the census returns show that the city has a population of 17,000 or over, so as to conform with the requirements of a law enacted by the Legislature at its last session. From unofficial estimates it is confidentially believed that the census returns will show considerable more than 17,000 population, and so it seems that with proper support and careful action on the part of those who advocate the plan the establishment of a district court ought to be consummated without great trouble.

A district court would be of great advantage to the city in many ways, but there is nothing to commend it to the respect and approval of people who love to see justice meted out in a dignified rational manner than the fact that its establishment will wipe out the pettifoging and erratic action which is too often witnessed in the courts of justices of the peace. If a district court was maintained in Plainfield most of the cases which are now taken into the judicial realm of these petty dogberries would be brought before tribune of the district court and there settled by judgment from a carefully trained mind whose knowledge of law points far exceeds that of justices of the peace, and whose sense of propriety would not permit such burlesques to be carried on in the name of law and justice as have been witnessed from time to time in some of the justices' courts of Plainfield.

Keep Cool.

This is trying weather in which to argue fervid politics, and so the Trenton Times offers the following breezy advice to those who "talk politics:"

Gently, my boy, gently, there, don't get unduly excited over politics. Don't work yourself into a passion; the weather is too hot. Don't lose your head; it's the only one you'll ever get. Don't denounce your friends as enemies of law and order. Some of them may be bigger than you are. Don't make a political monkey of yourself; the authorities may find it necessary to remove you to the big stone building where the inmates wear straw hats and linen dusters.

Keep cool; argue for your party honestly and candidly; post yourself by observation and reading; use your memory and your good common sense and on election day vote as your judgment and conscience dictates. The chances are that the country will survive the administration of which ever party is placed in control, the direful predictions of all other parties to the contrary notwithstanding, and there is really no occasion for anyone attempting to burden himself with all the political cares and responsibilities of the universe.

We thought it would come—that report associating the name of James E. Martine in one way or another with the Democratic Congressional nomination in the Eighth district. It would not seem like a political campaign unless someone linked the "Farmer Orator's" name and a Congressional nomination together, so here it is from today's New Jersey page of the Tribune: "The remark, said to have originated with the 'Farmer Orator' himself, that 'there is no chance that James E. Martine will accept the nomination for Congress' in the VIIIth District of New Jersey is significant. It may mean that he wouldn't have it if he could get it, or that he couldn't get it if he would have it. But it probably means that Mr. Martine, wise old political war horse that he is, thinks that the outlook for defeating Charles N. Fowler is not encouraging to a Democrat who has any reputation for political sagacity or for knowing enough to get under cover when a cyclone is approaching."

In seeking to enforce the Anti-Trust law of Texas the State officers have hit upon the simple plan of asking the Trusts if the law is being violated, and if a negative reply is made under oath that is regarded as a final settlement of the issue. Of course, no Trust officers would make affidavit that they were breaking State laws; and thus it comes about that the statute has already been stigmatized as a failure. The Philadelphia Record thinks "it is quite probable, however, that the real difficulty is in the drastic provisions of the law, obedience to which would crush the life out of every Trust in Texas. To destroy is not to regulate; and so authority quibbles and compromises over terms and methods of enforcement, while for all practical purposes the law is so much unmeaning jargon on waste paper."

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

It has generally been supposed that Christopher Columbus settled the egg problem, but new phases of it are now bothering the great minds of Passaic. The first question upon which public sentiment became divided and upon which there was a diversity of expert opinion was as to whether the shell of a new-laid egg was soft or hard. Before this had been definitely decided an "Old Subscriber" in a communication to the Passaic News interjected a new issue by wanting to know which came first in the order of creation, the hen or the egg. In the presence of these perplexing and vital questions neither 16 to 1 nor anti-imperialism can get a patient hearing now in Passaic.—Newark News.

The State of New Jersey has developed a most amazingly large crop of Republican bosses in the last five years. There is General Sewell at the top; Senator Kean, Governor Voorhees, Congressman Fowler and Frank Bergen crowded into Union Union county; Barker Gummere and Comptroller Hancock in Mercer; Gardiner in Atlantic, and many little ones in other parts of South Jersey; Barbour and Griggs in Passaic; Dickinson, Woolley and Company in Jersey City; Pitney in Morris, and our own select dozen or two in Essex. That one State should produce all these great men is almost past belief, but the number appears to grow with each recurring season.—Newark Call.

Cordial Action Necessary.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—It must be conceded by fairminded citizens of both city and borough that the present acrimonious discussion of relative tax rates and benefits received, is most unfortunate and only tends to create a spirit of antagonism instead of the reciprocity which should exist. In other parts of the country adjoining municipalities with relations similar to ours, have found it expedient and profitable, not to consolidate or annex, but to co-operate in the ownership and management of municipal works, such as providing water, electric lights, sewage disposal, etc. It is not certain, by any means, that economy would result from consolidating the present city and borough departments, though at first thought this seems assured. The officers, having a larger field, naturally expect larger salaries and more assistance, so that little, if any, saving might be made. Then, as Mayor Smalley says, it is easy to watch the North Plainfield Council, and the people feel that they are represented; if combined with their larger neighbor this feeling of security and independence might be lost. But why should not all thoughts of jealousy and antagonism between neighbors who have so much in common be put aside, and instead, have the authorities on each side of the brook strive to maintain the most friendly relations, and be always ready to cordially combine in any work for mutual improvements; this has been done heretofore in the opening of Watchung and Madison avenues; and, until such time as an overwhelming majority of the citizens of North Plainfield desire it let all talk of consolidation be dropped. Peace and Reciprocity.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 24.—During the thunder storm Saturday evening a bolt struck an electric light wire opposite the residence of A. F. Warden on Prospect avenue, and running along the wire, shattered the globe on the pole opposite Mr. Wirtz's house. The shock was felt by nearly the entire family of Mr. Warden. Mrs. Warden felt it most as she had gone up stairs to close some front windows and was the nearest to it. She was thrown back against a door and still feels the effects of the flash. Mr. Warden, who was in the yard, was also heavily shocked.

The death occurred in Brooklyn Sunday of Miss Margaret Williams after a short illness from typhoid fever. She was nineteen years old and was a sister to Mrs. Paul Reusch of the borough. The remains were brought to Dunellen yesterday and thence to Warrenville, where the funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon. Beside Mrs. Reusch she leaves several other relatives in the borough and a large circle of acquaintances, having lived here for some time.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Scotch Plains, July 24—Mr. and Mrs. George Schick and family spent yesterday at Boynton Beach. While in bathing Mr. Schick rescued from drowning a man by the name of Westervault from Brooklyn. Young Westervault and a companion had been sporting around in the deep water when he was suddenly taken with cramps. His companion, who could swim but little, called for help. Shick dove for the man and caught him as he was going down the second time, and after a struggle landed him in a boat which had been sent to their rescue.

NEAT, CLEAN AND ATTRACTIVE.

Sun Brothers' Show Makes a Pleasing Impression.

Today was Sun Bros.' show day in Wooster, and while the show had but little reputation in Wooster, it drew a much larger crowd to the city than was expected. The spread of canvas is by long odds the cleanest, neatest and prettiest ever pitched on the fair ground. Everything about the outfit is new, and a prosperous air pervades everywhere.

The performance given this afternoon was well attended, and as a whole was quite satisfactory, and well worthy of patronage. The strongest feature of the program were the four highly-trained stallions; juggling act of Geo. Sun was the best ever seen here, and pleased the audience immensely.

The menagerie, while small, is attractive and clean. All in all, the show is well worth the small admission fee charged.—Wooster, Ohio, Republican.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Ludwigshafen. Wegen Wechselfälschungen zum Betrage von 20,000 Mark ist der Kaufmann Wilhelm Reuther verhaftet worden. Ueber sein Vermögen wurde der Konkurs eröffnet. Durch die Schwindeleien Reuthers hat ein hiesiger Klempnermeister 10,000 Mark, die Pfälzische Bank 7000 Mark eingebüßt.

Rockenhausen. In einer Nacht ist die hiesige Pfarrkirche vollständig niedergebrannt. Ein in der Nähe der Kirche stehendes Magazin und ein Anwesen wurden ebenfalls ein Raub der Flammen.

Waldmohr. Der Tagner Johannes Bröhmer, ein dem Branntweingenusse stark huldigender Mensch, kam kürzlich wiederum einmal betrunken nach Hause. Als ihn seine Frau wegen seines liederlichen Lebenswandels zur Rede stellen wollte, mißhandelte er sie. Da kam der jüngste Sohn dazu, und nun schlugen Mutter und Sohn mit Holzscheiten so lange auf Bröhmer ein, bis dieser todt war. Der Mörder und die Mörderin wurden verhaftet.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Hierorts hat der Bankier Eduard Becker, nachdem er sein ganzes Vermögen an der Börse verspekulirt hatte, seine Frau und sich selbst erschossen.—Das Komite für Errichtung eines Denkmals für den schwäbischen Dichter J. G. Fischer hat beschlossen, die von dem Bildhauer Kiemlen-Stuttgart geschaffene Büste mit dem von den Architekten Schmohl und Stähelin entworfenen Postament ausführen zu lassen. Das Denkmal soll am Geburtstag des Dichters (25. Oktober) fertiggestellt sein.

Geislingen. An dem hoch über der Stadt stehenden „Oedethurm" wurde 1848 von dem damaligen Lammwirth Wagner ein Wappenschild mit dem doppelköpfigen schwarzen Adler auf rothgelbem Grunde angebracht, als ein weithin sichtbares Zeichen für die damals erhoffte deutsche Reichseinheit. Im Laufe der 52 Jahre ist das Wappenschild verwittert, und ein Großneffe des Stifters, Kaufmann Emil Allgöwer, hat nun mit Genehmigung der bürgerlichen Kollegien als Ersatz für das alte Wappen ein neues gestiftet und zwar den deutschen Reichsadler, als Wahrzeichen des neuen Reiches.

Heilbronn. Dem hiesigen Gerichte hatte sich der wegen Diebstahls vorbestrafte Schneidergeselle Albert Klaile von Pforzheim freiwillig mit dem Geständniß gestellt, daß er drei Diebstähle begangen habe. Er gab dann aber bei der Gerichtsverhandlung eine derartige Darstellung der Diebstähle, daß das Gericht zu der Ueberzeugung kam, daß er dieselben überhaupt nicht begangen haben könne, weshalb er freigesprochen wurde. In der That stellte sich denn auch heraus, daß Klaile nur in's Gefängniß kommen wollte, um als Strafgefangener sein 20. Lebensjahr zu vollenden und so in der ihm drohenden und von ihm gefürchteten Ueberweisung an eine Erziehungsanstalt zu entgehen.

Herrenalb. Vor Kurzem stürzte ein Kurgast Namens Bloch aus Stuttgart vom Felsen Falkenstein ab und wurde kurze Zeit darauf todt aufgefunden.

Baden.

Karlsruhe. Bei der letzten Anwesenheit des deutschen Kaisers in der badischen Residenz drängten sich zwei „Soldatinnen" der Heilsarmee, Lina Geyer und Emma Meyer, an den kaiserlichen Wagen heran und warfen den „Kriegsruf" und die „Kriegslieder" hinein. Das Schöffengericht erblickte hierin einen Akt groben Unfugs und dictirte den beiden Damen je 10 Mark Strafe zu.

Freiburg. Letzthin ist der Geistliche Rath Professor a. D. Dr. Joseph König, der Senior der Freiburger Universität, der er 40 Jahre als Lehrer der alttestamentlichen Theologie angehört hatte, gestorben. König erreichte ein Alter von 81 Jahren.

Heidelberg. Die im hiesigen Josefshaus verstorbene Frau Katharina Raum aus Kirchheim hat ihr über 60,000 Mark betragendes Vermögen je zur Hälfte dem akademischen Krankenhaus und dem Josefshaus zum Besten armer Kranker überwiesen.

Ihringen. Die 45 Jahre alte Gattin des Oberlehrers Höflin, war mit Bügeln beschäftigt und wollte das Bügeleisen, welches dem Erkalten nahe war, wieder erhitzen. Um zu dem Behufe das Feuer im Ofen wieder anzufachen, schüttete sie Benzin auf die noch glimmenden Kohlen. Dadurch entstand eine hoch auflodernde Flamme, welche die Kleider der Frau erfaßte. Letztere erlitt so schwere Brandwunden, daß sie bald darauf starb.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Mülhausen. Bei der Reichstagsersatzwahl dahier wurde der Industrielle Schlumberger (national-liberal) mit 17,670 Stimmen erwählt. Sein Gegner, der Sozialdemokrat Emmel, erhielt 7688 Stimmen. Der bisherige Vertreter des Wahlkreises war der Sozialdemokrat Bueb, der sein Mandat niederzulegen gezwungen wurde, weil er sich mit den Tendenzen der Partei in Widerspruch gesetzt hatte.

FASHION NOTES.

Children's Styles—Revival of Ancient Fashions.

For very little children there are dresses of white or very light colored pique, with large collars and scarfs of crepe de chine incrusted with lace.

Ruffles bordered with baby ribbon or with fine, round soutache are used for trimming children's dresses. For tailor made costumes of cloth, diagonal or pique stitching and straps are used, as in grown up gowns of the same kind.

FOULARD GOWN.

plain skirt and a loose sack, more or less long and single or double breasted, is the usual tailor made style for girls.

There is already talk of reviving the styles of 1830 in all their amplitude—full, wide skirts, sleeves tight at the top and forming a puff below the elbow. So long as the shoulder seam of the bodice is kept short everything can be borne, but if the ugly and inconvenient fashion of a shoulder seam running half way down the arm again comes up it must be that human nature will rebel at being so hampered.

The cut shows a gown of blue foulard with white dots. The skirt is gathered all around the waist. The tight bodice has a point back and front and a yoke of plaited white silk. Around the yoke is a scarf bordered with two ruffles of guipure. The scarf forms a bertha and crosses in front under a chou of foulard, passing around the figure and tying behind at the waist. The tight sleeves terminate at the elbow with a deep flounce of guipure. The hat of golden brown straw is trimmed with dotted foulard and a cluster of forgetmenots.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.

Novelties For the Wardrobe of Little People.

The latest mode for children's skirts is to have them tucked from the waist half way down, the lower part being allowed to flare out freely. In striped goods this often has a very pretty effect if the tucks are so arranged that stripes of one color are on the outside and the other color shows only in the free portion of the skirt.

Lawn, lace and embroidery collars are more used for children than ever. Tiny tucks, insertion and ruffles of guipure are combined in all sorts of fashions, forming sometimes a plain round or oval collar, sometimes one which falls in four or six points. There are also shawl revers and revers of other kinds which are adjustable and form a pleasing addition to summer frocks.

Little loose sacks of cream, beige or pale gray cloth are much used for very small children, the collar and cuffs being of white, blue or pink pique. More expensive sacks are of taffeta, with tiny ruches of gauze.

The picture illustrates a dress of white pique for a little girl. The skirt and bodice are both laid in large box plaits, and the plaits in front are connected by round pearl buttons and loops of white cord. The yoke is of white guipure and is framed in a bertha of white pique, cut in scallops and bordered with a little plaiting and a line of stitching. The cuffs of the sleeves match the bertha, and the belt is of white kid. The white straw hat is trimmed with taffeta and a bow of white tulle. JUDIC CHOLLET.

While discussing the merits of Ripans Tabules recently, in a conversation with a friend, a surgeon who is employed by the Long Island Railroad, and who has a large private practice among people of social and business prominence in Brooklyn, the City of Churches, expressed himself quite forcibly, saying: "I don't wish my name to appear as an indorser of a medicine that is advertised to the public at large, but there are several of my private patients who have not required my services as much this spring as has been usual, and two of them I found had been taking Ripans Tabules, and were said to have been so much benefited by their use that I became very much interested in their cases, because the illness from which they had suffered was of a sort from which a doctor is no more free than other people are. It was dyspepsia, and I knew by my own experience just what that was and how difficult it is to treat it successfully. I finally tried Ripans Tabules myself and, 'by ginger,' they are all the circular pretends them to be. They are a first-class article. I can heartily indorse them. The formula is an old one, but with one or two slight changes that seem to add an effectiveness that was never before to be relied upon with so much certainty."

NAVAL SECRETS.

Are Jealously Guarded by Officials in Charge of the Torpedo Service.

In no department of service under any government—even the foreign office is not excepted by naval men—are there so many secrets to preserve as in the torpedo service; and with such absolute exactitude is every article connected with torpedo stores kept that men have been removed from employment and reduced in rank because a single common iron bolt—of course, of a particular kind—worth the minutest fraction of a cent, has been missing.

Just at this time, says a London exchange, England is unusually strict. Every pattern of tool, bolt, pin, screw, spanner, wheel or cog has its own separate locker at the great depot at Portsmouth, where there are always 1,000 torpedoes of the latest kind, worth about $2,500,000 as to mere prime cost. Every item must be produced on demand at a moment's notice. On one occasion when the stock taking took place it was found that instead of 6,000 little screws—these particular screws cost about five cents a gross—being accounted for by the man who was told to count them there were only 6,997. An animated correspondence took place about these three screws, and certain important changes were made in the department through their loss.

The incident is cited in a government handbook, distributed among torpedo officers and men alone, to convince them of the importance of not losing sight of a single object that could give a clew to certain secrets. When a torpedo is from any cause broken up, every part of it is separately melted or crushed to pieces, and this in the presence of an official who can declare that he personally saw each particular part destroyed out of all recognition.

PRETTY BACK YARDS.

Dwellers in Cities Need Not Be Without an Attractive Spot Resembling a Real Garden.

Even if a country garden is denied us, it is possible to obtain much pleasure with what we possess, and it is surprising that the back yards of city houses are the forlorn, neglected places that they generally are, at best being only a square grass plot utilized for drying clothes, and a narrow border planted with a few straggling perennials. If there are children in the family sometimes abortive attempts are made at a flower bed. As the majority of people who own town houses seldom leave the city before the middle of June, returning by the middle of September, and as the head and bread-winner of the family practically stays all summer in town, it is a wonder that these back yards are not generally made beautiful by a little care and attention, especially as the dining-room windows are apt to overlook the inclosure. Not infrequently there is either a small porch or balcony, where it would be pleasant to sit if the outlook were attractive.

Where two houses of the same caliber back up against each other in adjacent streets, the space left open is an elongated square 25 feet wide. This might, if properly utilized, contain much beauty and sweetness. If the clothes posts are a necessity they could (despite the laundress' probable objection) be arranged so as to leave the center space free. If there is an even brick wall the task of rendering it beautiful is an easy one. Generally, however, ugly board walls form the boundaries, but it is possible to get over this difficulty with the aid of the wire netting which is used for chicken yards and which could be quickly covered with vines—annuals, and what is more satisfactory, perennials, which are of slower growth, but which could be planted at the same time.

If there are children in the family an arbor is a source of great pleasure as a playhouse, and might form the center of the wall. This also could be constructed of the wire netting, if supported by a wooden frame, and should have a small table in the center, surrounded by a wooden bench. A pretty and effective grouping for either side of the summer house would be sunflowers, hollyhocks, lilacs and, as the autumn and spring should chiefly be considered, chrysanthemums and the brilliantly flowering shrubs that bloom in the early spring. It is possible to enjoy the lovely procession of bulbs in a town-yard garden. The crocuses, hyacinths, daffodils and tulips all come to maturity before the exodus to the country begins, while in the autumn the garden will be gay in geraniums and later summer flowers until frost.

The accompanying sketch shows a simple plan for beautifying the regulation inclosure, in which it will be seen the clothes poles are not forgotten. It is to be hoped, however, that Biddy will be limited as to their use, and that the lines will not remain stretched for more than two days of the week.—Chicago Daily News.

Some Good Things to Learn.

Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine.

Learn how to tell a story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room.

Learn to keep your own troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to care for your ills and sorrows.

Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in this world, keep the bad to yourself.

Learn to attend strictly to your own business. Very important point.

Learn to hide your aches and pains under a pleasant smile. No one cares whether you have the earache, headache or rheumatism.

Learn to greet your friends with a smile. They carry too many frowns in their own hearts to be bothered with any of yours.—Rural World.

Children and Their Teeth.

An experienced dentist says that the carelessness of parents frequently sacrifices the personal charm of their children to an extent wholly unnecessary. The first teeth should be preserved until actually pushed out by the second, as the jaw contracts when they are removed any considerable length of time before the second. The first set should be brushed with the softest possible brush and a good paste, and when signs of decay appear the child should be taken to a competent dentist for advice and treatment. In this way the child is almost assured of sound, evenly growing teeth when womanhood or manhood is reached.

RAILWAY STOPPED BY LIONS.

Two Savage Beasts Ate Twenty-Eight Men and Delayed Construction for Months.

Speaking in the house of lords of the progress of the Uganda railway, Lord Salisbury mentioned that among the unexpected difficulties encountered were a pair of man-eating lions, which stopped the works for three weeks before they were shot, says the London Spectator. As some 5,000 men were at work on the line, their intimidation by two lions seems almost incredible. Yet it is a fact that so dreadful was the pressure exercised by the constant attacks of this pair of man-destroying wild beasts, and so cumulative the fear caused among the Indian laborers by the sight and sound of their comrades being carried off and devoured, that hundreds of these industrious workmen, trained on similar duties under the service of the government of India, abandoned their employment and pay, and, crying out that they agreed to work for wages, not to be food for lions or devils, rushed to the line as the trains for the coast were approaching, and, flinging themselves across the metals, gave the engine drivers the choice either of passing over their bodies or of stopping to take them up and carry them back to Mombasa. Many of these were not timid Hindoos, but sturdy Sikhs. Yet the circumstances were so unique, and the scenes witnessed from week to week so bloody and appalling, that their panic and desperation are no matter for surprise. Lord Salisbury understated the facts.

Though the works were stopped for three weeks, the lions' campaign lasted, with intervals of quiet when one or the other had been wounded, from March till the end of December. In this time they had killed and ate 28 Indians, and it is believed at least twice this number of natives, Swahilis and the like, besides wounding and attacking others. They attacked white engineers, doctors, soldiers and military officers, Abyssinian askaris, sepoys, bunniahs, coolies and porters. Some they clawed, some they devoured, some they carried off and left sticking in thorn fences because they could not drag them through. At first they were contented to take one man between them. Before the end of their career they would take a man apiece on the same night, sometimes from the same hut or campfire. The plain, unvarnished tale of this "prehistoric revival" of the position originally held by man in the struggle for existence against ravenous beasts is set out at considerable length and detail in the Field of February 17 and February 24 by Mr. J. H. Patterson, one of the engineers of the line, who, after months of effort and personal risk, succeeded in breaking the spell and killing both the lions, which the natives had come to regard as "devils;" that is, as equivalent to were-wolves, and guided by the local demons.

THE FREIGHT BUSINESS.

It Is Not a Haphazard Thing as Many of the Uninitiated Suppose.

Most people have an idea that freight is the last thing that railroads look after. Many profess to believe that a piece of freight once started on its journey is allowed to loaf along at its own sweet will and pleasure, stopping where it wishes and staying as long as it likes, and only bringing up at its destination when there is nowhere else to go, says the Lewiston Journal.

When you have waited day after day for that piano which was shipped a month ago, you are ready to adopt that opinion. But don't be in a hurry. When that piano box shows up in Poughkeepsie at the time it should be in Portland, the Poughkeepsie agent does not uncase the instrument and give a series of box car recitals for the next two months. You may think he does, but he doesn't. Not a bit of it! There is no welcome anywhere for the Wandering Willies of freightdom. No agent wishes to be caught with missing freight piled up in his yard or house. The truth of the matter is, the railroads are constantly punching laggard freight in the ribs and admonishing it to move on.

It is an interesting study to see how the railroads handle their immense freight business. To the outsiders a freight office seems like confusion worse confounded, but to the men who have been trained to the work it is all as simple as a problem in short division. No matter how far from home a car is, it is always in touch with the home office. If the car has had bad luck and one of its trucks is sprained, the home office knows about it and sends an order to have it placed in the nearest car hospital and doctored up to working condition. The office knows just what the car is earning, and if it thinks its traveling expenses are getting too big it shifts its route or calls it home. It is only once in awhile that a car gets away from the home office altogether, and when one does there is no sleep for anyone till the runaway is found and started in the right direction.

After you have listened to a freight agent's description of the elaborate plans taken to look after freight you will marvel that a single package ever goes astray.

But—the man who is waiting for that piano knows that it does.

"Ma, haven't I been a good boy since I began going to Sunday school?"

"Yes, darling."

"Then what makes you keep the mince pie locked up in the pantry the same as ever?"—Collier's Weekly.

ELEVATORS IN THE CAPITOL.

Two Statesmen to Whose Efforts Is Due the Credit of Their Introduction.

"I came here," said the veteran ex-member of congress, "when elevators were unknown. Not long afterward they made their appearance in several of the large cities. They were considered an expensive luxury, and nobody dreamed of placing them in the capitol. Singular as it may seem, the first man to propose and advocate their introduction was a member from Texas. He was the heaviest man in the house, and represented the San Antonio district. His name was Gustave Schleiger, and he was born in Germany. At the time of his introduction of a resolution providing for an elevator in the south wing Watchdog Holman was chairman of the committee on appropriations. He fought the resolution, tooth and nail, on the score of economy. He regarded it as the acme of extravagance. Schleiger, however, was persistent. He fought Holman to a standstill, and was finally beaten by the strategy so characteristic of the Hoosier statesman. Even the city members voted against the resolution. The big German, however, had attracted the attention of the whole country. This pleased his constituents, and he was reelected. He came back to the Forty-fifth congress and continued the agitation for an elevator. He died near the close of the third session, much regretted.

"In the Forty-sixth congress Robert Klotz, of Mauch Chunk, a Pennsylvania Dutchman, championed Schleiger's hobby. He was so persistent in advocating it that one of his colleagues said to him one day: 'You want to be hoisted to your seat, do you? Well, the people will hoist you next fall. You will get all the hoisting you want then.' The prediction failed. Mr. Klotz was returned to congress, after he had succeeded in securing an appropriation for an elevator. It was made in the Forty-sixth congress in the sundry civil bill. Holman was no longer chairman of the committee on appropriations. His successor was Hon. John De Witt Clinton Atkins, of Tennessee. The fact remains, however, that the introduction of the elevators in the capitol was due to the efforts of two statesmen of German extraction."—Washington. Cor. Philadelphia Record.

SUNDAY ON THE VELDT.

How English Troops in South Africa Attend Divine Worship While in Service.

Every man on entering the army is asked his religion, and according to his declaration he is marched to a place of worship every Sunday. The war office recognizes four denominations: Church of England, Presbyterian, Wesleyan and Roman Catholic. Chaplains of each denomination are maintained during peace and accompany forces on active service. Moreover, the government supplies every soldier with a Bible. Divine service is held every Sunday on campaign wherever possible. It is, of course, in the open air, and in hot countries the service is held in the early morning.

At the appointed hour the bugle sounds, the men fall in armed with rifles, side arms, and carrying ammunition. They are inspected by their officer, and parade off, according to their declared religion, to the various places appointed for each denomination, the Anglicans to one place, the Wesleyans to another, and so on.

At each place the men form up in three sides of a square. On the fourth side a small desk is erected by placing a big drum on three kettledrums. Over the top a red circular cloth, provided by the government for the purpose, is thrown.

Here the service is held. In the Anglican service a shortened form of the morning prayer is read, and a five-minute address given. Owing to the absence of hymn books singing is rarely possible. The whole service hardly lasts more than 20 minutes.—London Mail.

SMOKING A CRIME.

A Prohibition in Abyssinia Dating Back Two Hundred and Fifty Years.

The French Anti-Tobacconist society is hoping to secure no less a recruit than Emperor Menelik.

Several months ago, at a reception at the Military club, M. Decroix, president of the society, learned in conversation with Maj. Marchand that smoking is unknown in Abyssinia and is, indeed, a crime. Foreigners have to conceal themselves even to smoke cigarettes.

M. Decroix naturally at once became desirous of securing so precious an adherent, and addressed a letter to Emperor Menelik begging him to accept the diploma of honorary member of the society, a title already accepted by one emperor, namely, Dom Pedro of Brazil.

Menelik is not the originator of the banishment of tobacco from his empire. It appears that a bull of Pope Urban VIII. in 1642 is responsible for the privation of the Abyssinians. In reality the bull was only intended for priests who smoked or took snuff in the churches, but it was taken very literally in Abyssinia, with the result that even to-day an Abyssinian caught smoking would be severely punished.—Paris (Cor.) London Post.

WIRELESS ELECTRICITY.

Famous Electrician Talks of the Possibility of Communicating with the Nearer Planets.

Writing in Century, Nikola Tesla makes an interesting prediction as to the transmission of electric power without the use of wires:

"While I have not, as yet, actually affected a transmission of a considerable amount of energy, such as would be of industrial importance, to a great distance by this new method, I have operated several model plants under exactly the same conditions which will exist in a large plant of this kind, and the practicability of the system is thoroughly demonstrated. The experiments have shown conclusively that, with two terminals maintained at an elevation of not more than 30,000 to 35,000 feet above sea level, and with an electrical pressure of 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 volts, the energy of thousands of horse power can be transmitted over distances which may be hundreds, and, if necessary, thousands of miles. I am hopeful, however, that I may be able to reduce very considerably the elevation of the terminals now required, and with this object I am following up an idea which promises such a realization. There is, of course, a popular prejudice against using an electrical pressure of millions of volts, which may cause sparks to fly at distances of hundreds of feet, but, paradoxical as it may seem, the system, as I have described it in a technical publication, offers greater personal safety than most of the ordinary distribution circuits now used in the cities. This is, in a measure, borne out by the fact that, although I have carried on such experiments for a number of years, no injury has been sustained either by me or any of my assistants. * * *

"From that moment when it was observed that, contrary to the established opinion, low and easily accessible strata of the atmosphere are capable of conducting electricity, the transmission of electrical energy without wires has become a rational task of the engineer, and one surpassing all others in importance. Its practical consummation would mean that energy would be available for the uses of man at any point of the globe, not in small amounts such as might be derived from the ambient medium by suitable machinery, but in quantities virtually unlimited, from waterfalls. Export of power would then become the chief source of income for many happily situated countries, as the United States, Canada, Central and South America, Switzerland and Sweden. Men could settle down everywhere, fertilize and irrigate the soil with little effort, and convert barren deserts into gardens, and thus the entire globe could be transformed and made a fitter abode for mankind. It is highly probable that if there are intelligent beings on Mars they have long ago realized this very idea, which would explain the changes on its surface noted by astronomers. The atmosphere on that planet, being of considerably smaller density than that of the earth, would make the task much more easy."

ANCIENT FISHES.

Types That Had Jaws Set with Long Rows of Bristling Teeth.

There can be little question that in all of their forms, large and small, they were ravenous and sharklike in habits. The large Dinichthys was certainly a dangerous neighbor, says the American Museum Journal, easily the master of all other kinds of animals living in his time. That they quarreled among themselves is known almost positively, for a specimen has been taken from the rock whose stout back-plate had been completely crushed in two, bearing in its solid bone deep imprints and gashes which fit the jaw-tips of this species. In another case a portion of a jaw was found separate in the rock, with marks of having been broken off during the animal's lifetime. The particular form, Dinichthys, appears to have been nine feet or more in length, but it was by no means the largest member of the family. Titanichthys was probably half as large again, but its jaws were less formidable.

Other types of these ancient fishes had jaws which were long and delicate, set with a bristling row of teeth. It may be noted that in all of these forms the mouth parts appear to have been capable of a certain degree of independent movement, so that the tips of the jaws could be opened or drawn together like finger-tips—in this regard differing widely from any living fishes. Another curious feature is the well-marked socket they show in the middle of the forehead; this may possibly have been occupied by a "pineal eye," which lizards have retained up to the present day.

Electricity for Public Use.

In the business of manufacturing electricity for public supply, where steam power is used, the only available by-product is exhaust steam. This steam contains much of the heat of the furnaces which are fired to produce it when it is discharged into the air, and is entirely available for steam heating purposes. In certain towns in the western states, notably in Wisconsin and Minnesota, where the winters are long and severe, the electric light stations have laid systems of underground pipes and have supplied steam heat and hot water to citizens through them. The experiment has been an unqualified success.—Indianapolis News.

QUEEN OF SWAZILAND.

Next to Power This Savage Potentate Loves the White Man's Rum and Scotch Whisky.

The crafty and cruel dowager empress of China has a very striking counterpart in Nabo Tsebeni, the ruler of the Swazis. Along with the war news from that part of the world have come recently many accounts of the high-handed doings of the Swazi queen. Swaziland is an independent native kingdom under the protection of the South African republic. As the Boers have just now enough to do protecting themselves, Nabo Tsebeni is not interfered with in her little diversions. Only the other day news was received of how Queen Nabo had cleared the political atmosphere of her dominion by eliminating in the most approved Cromwellian manner a number of objectionable court officials, one among the number being her own son.

Queen Nabo is about 50 years old, and is not handsome according to the debased standards of the white man, but in Swaziland she is accounted "a fine figger of a woman." When she was married she was a slim young woman and was a great belle. She looks taller than she really is, owing to the method by which she, in common with the other women of her country, dresses her hair. By some mysterious process the royal tresses are made to grow, trellis fashion, over a wickerwork arrangement of circular shape. Round the forehead she wears the royal insignia, a band of wood possessing innumerable medicinal virtues, attached to which in the center of the forehead are a snake's bladder and a brilliant red feather of the laurel bird.

Like other monarchs, Queen Nabo can be very suave and nice when she pleases, and she can also be exceedingly haughty and frigid of demeanor. It is a harsh thing to say about a royal lady of Nabo's ability, but the truth is that, next to power, her majesty loves rum, or drinks that go under that generic term. She drinks no native distillation, but the white man's good imported liquor, and lots of it. In fact, Nabo Tsebeni is a great drunkard. Her enemies say she is "fuddled" most of the time. She does not seem to let rum interfere with business, however. Apart from the firewater, the queen has no particular regard for the products of civilization. She prefers the native rug or blanket as a costume to the finest creation of Worth, and her food and manner of living have never changed, but remain as they were in the days when Umbandine first took her, a slim young girl, for wife.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

CURE FOR IVY POISON.

Of the Many Remedies Suggested None Are More Efficacious Than the Simple Ones.

Probably no poisonous plants are more dreaded than poison ivy and poison sumach, and probably no other one plant has so many remedies, said to be good, recommended for it. The poisoning principle in these two plants is the same and can be combated with the same remedies. But few of the people who are poisoned take this into consideration. They use often the first thing that suggests itself.

The cause of the trouble is a recently discovered non-volatile oil called toxicodendrol. It is very irritating to the skin in a manner only too well known. Since it cannot be dissolved in hot water, washing is of little use. It can, however, be dissolved and converted into a soap by the action of alkalies such as ammonia, washing soda and caustic potash or soda. It is also readily dissolved in alcohol. All these may be used in case poisoning should occur, but there is a better remedy which may be made as follows: In a bottle of alcohol put and shake as much acetate (sugar) of lead as will dissolve; then add a little more lead, so that when shaken the mixture is milky. When needed rub the shaken mixture upon the parts affected several times a day until all irritation ceases. If too strong the mixture may be diluted with water, but more lead should be added. Should poisoning occur and this preparation not be obtainable, hot soapsuds, with some soda or other alkali added to it, may be used. This should not be relied upon unless the poisoning is very fresh; advanced cases should be treated with the above remedy.—National Rural.

The Anti-Cigarette Fight.

An English school board has prepared a circular on the evils of cigarette smoking, which is to be distributed among the parents of the school children. It points out that smoking by boys impairs the eyesight, upsets the nerves, disturbs the digestive organs, and stunts growth. Local doctors are to be asked to go to the schools and address the boys on the evils of smoking.

PLUCKY YOUNG WOMAN.

How a Texas Girl Captured an Enraged Mountain Lion and Hauled Him Home.

The girl of the southwest, if reports are to be credited, is a marvel of personal bravery. One girl in Texas has just been made famous in the country around Marble Falls by an achievement that would daunt the hardiest frontiersmen in the land. Her name is Norma Diorn and she lives with her father near the headwaters of the Guadaloupe. She, with two sisters, was accustomed to go out on the range to look after her father's cattle. One Sunday morning recently Miss Norma, who is the oldest and most daring of the three, started to ride the fence of a small pasture, expecting to return in time to attend church, and not wishing to desecrate the Sabbath she swung her Winchester on a gate post, remarking that she guessed that she would not have any use for a gun as she was not going very far.

She had traveled hardly out of sight of the ranch house before she seriously regretted that she had left her weapon at home. A monster Mexican lion sprang over the wire fence just in front of the girl's pony, and, after looking at her for a moment out of glaring eyes it uttered one of its wild shrieks and sprang away in the direction of a small bunch of cows and calves.

The old cows instantly charged the lion and the mother of the calf gave him such an ugly thrust with her sharp horns that he was forced to relinquish his hold on his prey. The sight of the frightened little calf aroused Miss Norma's ire, and swinging her rope over her head she rode at the lion, which started to beat a hasty retreat.

Summoning all the strength of her lungs, the girl screamed at the lion and urged her pony to pursue him. The beast frequently looked back and snarled threateningly, but he failed to find courage enough to offer battle. Suddenly it occurred to the girl that there was no reason why she could not choke the lion to death. An attempt was worth making, for this one monster was capable of destroying a hundred young calves and yearlings in a single night.

TEXAS GIRL'S BRAVE DEED.

Suiting her actions to her thoughts she swung her lariat over her head, and as the trained pony sprang forward at his greatest speed, she sent the rope hissing through the air and dropped the noose with certain precision about the lion's neck. The pony instantly braced himself on his haunches, digging his forefeet in the ground, and the lion turned a somersault, striking the earth with his head toward his pursuers. Crouching and emitting a roar that chilled the blood of the young girl, he sprang into the air with all his strength, expecting to land on the pony's neck and tear his pursuers to fragments. The agile little horse turned just in time to feel the claws of the lion grazing his haunches. Realizing that her life depended upon the strength and speed of her pony, for she had not time to release the lariat from the saddle, she leaned forward and urged her frightened pony to do his best.

She reached the ranch gate at her home just as her sisters, accompanied by two young men of the neighborhood, were about to pass through it on their way to church.

One of the young men put a bullet through the animal's head. As a reward for her bravery the Texas Cattle association has presented Miss Norma with a handsome silver-mounted revolver.

Queen Victoria's Long Reign.

As illustrating the wonderful long reign of Queen Victoria it may be stated that her majesty has seen 11 lord chancellors, ten prime ministers, six speakers of the house of commons, at least three bishops of every see and five or six of many sees, five archbishops of Canterbury and six archbishops of York and five commanders-in-chief. She has seen five dukes of Norfolk succeed each other as earl marshal and has outlived every duke and duchess and every marquis and marchioness who bore that rank in 1837. She has outlived every member of the Jockey club and every master of the hounds who flourished in 1837. She has seen 17 presidents of the United States, ten viceroys of India, and France successively ruled by one king, one emperor and seven presidents of a republic.

A New Luncheon Delicacy.

Eggs poached in tomato sauce make an excellent variation for luncheon or breakfast. Put into the frying pan a tablespoonful each of butter and flour, and heat until bubbly and frothy. Stir into this mixture one cupful and a half of canned tomatoes, heated and rubbed through a strainer, salt and pepper to taste and just a pinch of soda. Cook until smooth and creamy, drop in the required number of eggs and cook until the whites are firm, basting often with the sauce. When done lift the eggs carefully on to slices of toast and pour the sauce around them.

GOLF

The final round in the Interscholastic tournament at Meadow Brook last Saturday was played between Frank Reinhart, of this city, representing the St. Paul School, and J. Gordon Douglas, of Cutler School, and was won by the latter after a lively finish. It was a most exciting contest, for Reinhart was 1 up at the end of the first round, while the two were tied at the end of the second round. Playing the second half of the match in the afternoon Douglas was 6 up and 8 to go. Then Reinhart made a most determined effort to save the seemingly hopeless match. For the next five holes he was three under 5s, winning them all. The seventeenth was halved, when, from the changed condition of being only dormie, Douglas won on the home green with a par 4. Douglas played very creditably, twice getting the fourth hole in two, and on the round in which he took the decisive lead scoring a 40. The card for the final play was:

Douglas	6	4	8	2	5	6	6	7	5—49
Reinhart	6	3	8	3	5	6	6	6	5—48
Douglas	4	3	7	3	4	6	6	6	5—44—93

ON THE DIAMOND

The heavy rain Saturnay morning was the innocent cause of about forty employes of the Pond Tool Works being late at their work and losing fifteen minutes pay. The men were on a Front street car when the trolley wheel came off and dropped to the ground. On account of the downpour they were all forced to wait in the car until the crew repaired the break. They arrived at the shop just too late and as it is a rule in the works that a tardy employe cannot enter until fifteen minutes after the regular commencing time, they were just that much out.

A PORCH PARTY.

Pleasant Party Given by Ernestine Richter to Her Little Friends.

A pleasant event of last evening was the porch party given by Ernestine Richter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Richter, of 21 Pearl street, in honor of her guests, Marie Miller, of New York, and Lulu Huefel, of New Brunswick. It had been arranged to hold the affair on the lawn, which had been beautifully decorated with bunting, flags, Japanese lanterns, etc., but the rain came as a disappointment to the young folks. They were obliged to seek the large porch.

The young folks played games, enjoyed a magic lantern and many other forms of amusement helped to pass a pleasant evening. After the games ice cream and cake was served in an abundance and a social time was enjoyed.

The young hostess was assisted in entertaining her guests by her mother, Mrs. Richter; Mrs. Miller, of New York, and a few others. Those present included Marie Miller, of New York; Lulu Huefel, of New Brunswick; Belle Mantz, Rosa Hook, Pauline Smith, Mamie and Lizzie Davenport, Raymond Mantz, Ernest Mantz, Martin Mantz, Charles Feller and George Beggs, all of the borough.

INTO AN OPEN SWITCH.

Engine on the Central Plunged Into a Sand Bank Near Bound Brook This Morning.

An engine belonging to a loaded coal train going east near Bound Brook this morning ran into an open switch and plunged into a sand bank. The wrecking train was summoned from Elizabethport, but it was several hours before it was replaced. The wrecking train was returning shortly before noon and was just passing the Clinton avenue station when a car on a westbound coal train jumped the track. It was replaced in a few minutes.

The Right Property Line.

A complaint has been made by several residents in the vicinity of Richmond street and Cottage place concerning the new building which Alexander Kane has erected on that corner. He will open it up in a few days as a flour, feed and general merchandise store.

CHAMPAGNE.

John H. Tier, Sr., Wants Pay for Eighteen Bottles That He Furnished Mrs. Elizabeth VanVelsor.

On account of illness, Judge Nash was unable to continue an interesting case yesterday and it was adjourned until August 1st. The case is that of John H. Tier, Sr., against Benjamin A. Vail, administrator for Mrs. Elizabeth VanVelsor, on contract. The plaintiff asks for $200 for services and supplies furnished Mrs. VanVelsor previous to her death while she was a boarder at his home. Among the supplies are mentioned eighteen bottles of champagne and ten bottles of whiskey.

At the trial yesterday Mr. Tier claimed to have been up constantly for the nine days and nights running errands. Judge Nash has been indisposed for the past few days but attempted to hear the trial through. He was unable to continue, however, and made the adjournment.

Mr. Tier is represented by Codington & Swackhamer while Frank Bergen, of Elizabeth, is looking after Vail's interests.

Railroaders Had to Buy Badges.

The conductors and motormen of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Company are much put out over the fact that they were compelled to pay over to the company the sum of $2.50 for their badges. Many of the men threatened to leave, but there was no alternative and so all had to pay for their badges. Some of them are old-time railroaders and say they never before heard of the men having to buy their badges.

EXTENSIVE HAIR CUT.

Some Forty Thousand Sheep Being Shorn at New Brighton, Minnesota.

Nineteen professional sheep shearers have begun shearing 40,000 sheep at New Brighton. The task will keep them busy for over a month. The men use especially designed power instruments, and they will each draw from seven to ten dollars per day, says the Minneapolis Journal.

The trusting sheep are enticed into pens where they are at the mercy of the shearers, who are paid by the piece, and consequently work with all possible speed. The up-to-date shearing instrument operates on the same plan as a barber's hair clipper, and makes a clean sweep of several inches in its trips back and forth across the body of a sheep. The most skillful shearers work the clippers with great dexterity, and as they proceed the wool falls away in a solid bunch as though the animal had been skinned instead of shorn. When the clipper has finished its work the wool lies on the floor in a bundle, the naked and indignant sheep scampers away and a man with a hand car goes up and down the long row of operators and gathers up the wool, takes it to the packing-room, where it is trampled down into large burlap bags, which, when filled, weigh about 235 pounds each.

The men are paid from seven to nine cents per head for the sheep sheared, and 125 is a good day's work, although there are men who claim to have sheared as many as 250 sheep in a day. When the 40,000 now at New Brighton have all been deprived of their wool the band of shearers will move on westward, the most industrious of them finally ending up in Nevada and California, where there are single ranches with as many as 300,000 sheep belonging to one man. From there they will come up through the south to Minneapolis, whence they will start out to cover the circuit again next March.

"Can you give any evidence in regard to the character of the deceased?" said the judge.

"Yes, my lord," replied the witness. "He was a man without blame, beloved and respected by all men, pure in all his thoughts and—"

"Where did you learn that?"

"I copied it from his tombstone, my lord."—Harlem Life.

Death of a Young Woman.

Miss Catherine Williams, aged 20 years, a sister of Mrs. John Skellinger, of Elmwood place, died Sunday morning at the home of relatives in Brooklyn, where she had been living. Death was due to spinal meningitis. Miss Williams had been ill only a few weeks. This is the second death in the family in about six months, another sister having died about the first of the year. The remains were brought to Plainfield yesterday afternoon and taken to the former home of the deceased, from which place the funeral services will be held.

On Their Way to China.

A special train bearing a battalion of the Fifteenth United States Infantry passed through South Plainfield over the Lehigh Valley Railroad early this afternoon, closely following the Black Diamond Express. The battalion has been quartered at Governor's Island and has been preparing for its journey overland and then across the Pacific for service in China. Today at noon the special train left Jersey City. It will go to SanFrancisco where the soldiers will be transferred to transports and taken to Shanghai.

Has Quietly Disappeared.

A young colored girl named Emma Ryan disappeared from the home of Peter G. Wyckoff, of Sandford avenue, Sunday night. The police traced her to New York and there lost track of her. The young woman was brought here from a Camden institution and placed in the charge of Mr. Wyckoff as a domestic. She was sixteen years old. Sunday she quietly packed up her property and left without notifying the family of her intention. An effort will made to find her.

A Costly Disagreement.

Frank Vermeule and Edward Dooley came before City Judge Runyon this morning. They had a little exchange of blows on East Second street Saturday afternoon. Dooley had been working for Vermeule and something was said that Dooley thought reflected on his honesty. There were words and a couple of blows. The circumstances were explained to the Judge, who fined the participants $5 each.

Gutter for a Bed.

Michael O'Neill, hailing from Bound Brook, drank so much yesterday afternoon that when Patrolman Watson found him at 6:30 o'clock, he had lost all track of his whereabouts and showed a decided preference for the gutter as a sleeping place. He was locked up for the night and haled before the Judge this morning. Judge Runyon suspended sentence with a lecture.

FOSTER FATHER SAID TO MALTREAT BOY.

William B. Hall, a Willow Grove Farmer, Accused of the Offence.

LITTLE FELLOW RAN AWAY.

NOW BEING HID BY THOSE WHO TOOK PITY ON HIM.

Boy Says That a Whip was Broken Over His Back and That He was Clubbed with a Barrel Stave —Case to Heard Soon.

With his arms, legs and body badly bruised, Willie Hodges, a lad no more than nine years of age, is hid away in a farm house not far from Westfield trembling in every muscle for fear his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hall, will get him and whip him.

About three years ago the boy's mother died, and the father left home, leaving five children to battle alone. The oldest boy was adopted by a lady in Cranford, but she died shortly afterwards and the boy was legally adopted by William B. Hall, a milkman, who lives on the Allen farm in the Willow Grove district.

According to the story told by the boy he was compelled to get up in the morning at 4 o'clock, get his milk on the wagon and go over the route, getting back about 8 o'clock, when he would have to go into the fields and work all day and sometimes until far into the evening.

He was sent to school about two months in the winter. The boy had to sleep in the corn crib in the summer and on a broken couch in the house during the winter. The little fellow, according to the neighbors, worked hard from morning until late at night, but if anything went wrong he was beaten by either Hall or his wife. The boy, it is said, was even made to do the family washing and has been seen in the field plowing with a team of horses and a heavy plow.

Wednesday of last week, so the boy says, he came in from his milk route and Hall complained about some of the milk bottles being dirty, and before the little fellow could say a word the man caught him by the arm and broke a whip over his back. Not satisfied with this he grabbed a heavy barrel stave and beat the poor boy.

The next day the boy ran away and since has been hidden by some kind people living near Mountainside. A reporter found him yesterday morning and saw the big black and blue spots on the boy's legs and back where he had been hit nearly a week ago.

The boy says he was not allowed to go to church or Sunday-school; instead, Sundays, when his work was done, he was made to take the cows out and watch them while they grazed at the side of the road.

So far as can be learned the boy is industrious and always willing to do as he is told. It is said that he nursed his mother and did all the house work just before she died.

A prominent official of Westfield township has interested himself in the boy and this evening at the township rooms Hall will have to appear and answer to the charge of cruelty to children and if found guilty is liable, it is said, to a sentence of one year at hard labor in the State prison at Trenton.

Chancery Chambers Closed.

The Chancery Chambers at Jersey City have been closed for the summer. The following notice was posted yesterday: August 13 Vice-Chancellor Pitney and another Vice-Chancellor will sit in Jersey City. While the court is not in regular session and there are no appearances in chambers, one of the Vice Chancellors can always be found at home to attend to matters of moment where delay would be fatal, as in injunction case.

NOT TO IMPEDE TRAFFIC

IN LOWERING THE GRADE STREET WILL NOT BE CLOSED.

It will Take a Month to Complete the Improvements—Total Cost will be $3,000.

The improvements in progress on Watchung avenue at the railroad bridge will not be completed inside of a month. The tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company have been lowered successfully and traffic has not been interrupted an instant. At the north side of the bridge the rails were lowered six inches, the amount of drop decreasing either side until the old grade was reached. Now comes the job of reducing the grade of the roadway, curbing and sidewalks to correspond with the new level of the tracks.

Contractor Conover, after conference with the officials of the street department, has decided not to close Watchung avenue to traffic at any time. One-half of the roadway will be lowered and resurfaced and put in condition for use. Not until then will the other side be touched.

Contractor Conover has a gang of thirty men at work at present removing the extra earth from the east side of the street which will be lowered first. A passageway, wide enough to allow a vehicle to pass, will be left on the west side of the street. It has been necessary to remove entirely the macadam surface of the street. A new foundation will be laid and the usual six inch macadam road built.

Third street will be lowered for fifty feet so as to give an easy grade down to the new level of Watchung avenue. The present crosswalk across North avenue, at Watchung avenue, will be moved ten feet nearer Watchung avenue, and North avenue will be graded to the east from that point, removing a hummock that now stands where Watchung avenue and North avenue meet.

Both sidewalks and curbing will have to be lowered to conform with the new grade. One side will be completed, however, before any changes are made in the other.

The work is being done by the day instead of being let out by contract as no contractor could tell how much time would be lost in stopping work to allow the cars to pass. This frequent delay will considerably increase the cost of the work but the officials of the street department would not agree to the temporary closing of Watchung avenue, even for a few days, and the Street Railway Company was anxious to have the change made under almost any circumstances. It is estimated that the total cost to the company will be $3,000.

STATE SEAL CHANGED.

Its Color Made Ivory White, Instead of Blue.

A new form of the great seal of the State affixed to commissions issued by the Governor and to other important State papers, has recently been put in use. It is ivory-white instead of blue, and has scalloped edges instead of points.

The new seal is very effective, although it does not show as plainly against the white background of the paper used as the old blue seal did. Of course the die on the seal itself is the same as of old.

Governor Voorhees is much pleased with the new seal, and so expressed himself recently while signing a number of commissions of notaries of public bearing them. To John L. Hendricks, of the State department, is due the credit for the change in the seal, he having proposed it and secured the ivory paper for its use. Mr. Hendricks is a resident of Trenton, living with his family his family on Edgewood avenue.

Another change made during the past week, or since the new supplies have been issued, is in the official paper of the Governor's or executive office, as it is styled. The old paper was white and contained the coat of arms of the State and a number of fancy letters. The new paper is severely plain, a rich vellum blue, with nothing but the words, "State of New Jersey, Executive Department." The new paper the Governor also commented upon very favorably. To Edward Fox, executive clerk, is due the credit for design and selection.

CLOTHES WERE BURNED.

The Owner Was in Swimming When a Match in One of the Pockets Became Ignited.

The habit of carrying matches in pockets, as practiced by most men and boys, proved disastrous to a suit of clothes belonging to a West End young man last evening. In company with several companions he went to New Market for a swim. The clothes were left on the bank and in some way some one stepped onto those belonging to the young man and ignited a match, which was in the pockets. It sprang into a blaze but was not noticed until the suit had been nearly consumed. As soon as the blaze was seen, it was stampled out, but not before the clothes were ruined.

MORE WAGES ARE PAID.

OFFICIAL REPORT SHOWING STATE'S PRESENT PROSPERITY.

The General Condition of the Working Classes is Said to be Better All Over the State.

The New Jersey Bureau of statistics yesterday issued a circular showing increase in wages of employes in certain industries of the State for 1899. Four hundred and fifty-one establishments made reports, which affect 384,132 persons, or 26 per cent. of the total number employed in the State. The amount added to the weekly payroll is $48,390.43. The reports only cover those who are employed in mills, factories and workshops which employ not less than ten persons. Railroads and many other industries are not included. The circular says:

"If wages were increased among all these in the same ratio, and there is good reason for believing that they have done better, the year 1899 was indeed one of great prosperity for New Jersey."

In iron and steel the advance was above the average. In no case has the increase been less than 5 6 per cent. The average increase is 9 8 per cent. Many establishments which did not report any increase in wages reported large increases in the working force, and in a number of cases the hours of labor were reduced, making a virtual increase in pay, but of this fact no account was taken in the figures given to show an actual advance in wages.

"There is no question," says the circular, "but that had the period covered by the inquiry been extended up to a recent date in this year the number of establishments in which wages were advanced would be greatly increased. The reports dealt only with voluntary increases. Strikes were, however, so comparatively frequent since the beginning of 1900 that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to separate wage advances which have been influenced by strikes from those that have been given voluntarily.

MOTHER SAW SON KILLED.

Terrible Tragedy in which Three-Year-old Boy Lost His Life by Being Struck by a Train.

The eastbound passenger train that reaches this city at 8:37 o'clock in the morning struck and killed a three-year-old boy at Springtown, near Phillipsburg, this morning. He and his small brother were crossing the tracks to go to their mother who was standing at the Springtown station waiting for the train. One boy just escaped being struck, and the other little fellow, being a few feet behind him, was struck full force by the engine and instantly killed. The mother saw the horrible accident and became frantic with grief. Her friends at the station gave their assistance and the boy's remains were taken to the home of the parents.

YOUNG MEN IN A SUICIDE CLUB.

Some of the Members Say it is Only For Fun.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, July 25.—A suicide club has been organized in this city. It is composed principally of a coterie of young men of congenial but by no means morbid tastes, and a number of them are of a literary turn of mind. A meeting will be held at an early date, when the conditions will be agreed upon.

Some of the members declare that the club was only organized in a spirit of fun, while others say it is no joke.

The one next Friday night will be better, if possible, than the preceding ones. By special request Alfred Sweet, the cornet soloist, will play the "Holy City." Those who heard Mr. Sweet give the "Palms" last week should not fail to hear him Friday. The following is the subscription list to date:

MANY MOURNERS.

Large Attendance at the Funeral Services Over the Remains of the Late Mrs. Frederick Moore.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. Frederick Moore were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the residence on Park avenue. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of Grace P. E. church, conducted the services, reading Scripture selections and offering prayer

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, consisting of several set pieces. "The Gates Ajar," upon which rested a white dove, and a handsome pillow from the husband bore the words "My Dear Wife." There was another pillow from the brothers bearing the words "Our Sister," and several other tributes of flowers in bunches, wreaths, etc.

The interment took place in Hillside Cemetery, according to the request of the departed before she died, and those who served as pall bearers were Edward Campbell, Edward Searing, Wm. Townley, Fred Breem, James Loughlin and David Angerbauer.

To accommodate the many friends who desired to go to the cemetery to witness the burial, a special trolley car was engaged for that purpose and it was filled with people. At the grave prayer was offered by Dr. Rodman and the usual committal service used.

Built in a Hurry.

On June 28 the Gordon Press Works of Rahway received a rush order for a special printing press to be shipped to the Congressional Library at Washington. July 18 the article was sent over the Pennsylvania Railroad to its destination. It was one of the handsomest of the kind ever turned out by this concern. Superintendent and Manager Vanvliet was at the works almost night and day during its construction. It was nickel-plated wherever nickel plate would show. The table was of solid mahogany, to correspond with the furniture in the library, and it had a special Glastaeter distributer attached. A special shaft was also furnished for electric power use.

To be Closed Five Weeks.

At a recent meeting of the board of trustees of the Congregational church it was decided not to open the church until the second Sunday in September. The church will therefore be closed for five weeks during which time the new heating and ventilating apparatus will be installed. The pastor, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, leaves this week for the White Mountains, where he will spend his vacation with his family. Rev. A. E. Main, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, will occupy the pulpit next Sunday morning.

Want County to Release Road.

Now that the scheme of the county boulevard is practically killed, the Westfield Township Committee will request the Board of Freeholders to release North avenue as a county road so that the township can put it in repair. CORONER'S JURY TO HEAR.

Inquest Into Cause of Death of Jacob Henning Will be Continued This Evening.

The jury drawn by Coroner Henry DeMott to hold an inquest into the cause of the death of Jacob Henning, who died in the Muhlenberg Hospital Friday from injuries alleged to have been inflicted by John Muldoon on the repair boat of the Delaware and Raritan canal, will meet this evening. Prosecutor John L. Griggs will be present, and it is expected that two witnesses who saw the alleged assault committed on Henning by Muldoon will be present and testify. It is believed that the coroner's jury will declare that Henning came to his death by injuries inflicted by Muldoon.

NOTED LAWYER DEAD.

JAMES R. ENGLISH WELL-KNOWN THROUGHOUT UNION COUNTY.

He was General Sewell's Chief Aid in the Blaine Campaign—Born in Somerset County.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, July 25—James R. English, who for many years was the Republican leader of Union county and one of the county's foremost lawyers, died yesterday at his home, 1,393 North avenue, in his sixty-first year. His health began to fail two years two years ago, when he suffered a stroke of paralysis.

Mr. English was General Sewell's right-hand man in the Blaine campaign. For twenty-five years he was attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad, and for many years attorney for the National State Bank, of Elizabeth. He was a warm friend of the late Col. John Kean, father of the present United States Senator, and the latter studied law in Mr. English's office. Mr. English for a number of years conducted all of Colonel Kean's large business interests.

The grandparents of Mr. English founded Englishtown, in South Jersey. He was born at Liberty Corner, Somerset county, and was graduated from Princeton University. He studied law with Theodore Little, in Morristown, and was admitted to the bar in 1864. He formed a partnership with his brother, Nicholas C. J. English, now Prosecutor of the Pleas for Union county.

Mr. English was twice married. His first wife was killed about ten years ago by being thrown from a carriage in a runaway. He leaves four sons and one daughter. The sons are Dr. James R. English, of Irvington; John Kean English, Assistant Prosecutor of Pleas for Union county and clerk of the Grand Jury; George R. English, who is now in the United States Navy in the Philippine Island, and Nicholas C. J. English, who is in the banking business in New York city. The daughter is Mrs. A. M. Maddock, of Trenton.

TOKENS OF ESTEEM.

Beautiful Display of Flowers at Bier of Late Mrs. Needham.

Many friends and relatives from Plainfield and Scotch Plains attended the funeral services of Mrs. Henry E. Needham yesterday afternoon at the home on Verdon street. Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated, and after reading appropriate Scripture selections, he spoke very briefly of Mrs. Needham's Christian trust and worth of character, as Mrs. Needham had requested a very simple burial service.

There was an impressive display of floral tributes from friends and relatives, sincere tokens of esteem and love. The interment took place in the family plot in the cemetery adjoining the Baptist church at Scotch Plains. The pall-bearers, deacons at the First Baptist church, were George F. Brown, J. B. Probasco, George H. Batchelor, Frank Jones, E. L. Bonny and L. W. Randolph.

Kean's Road Not Yet Sold.

The trolley line owned in Elizabeth by Senator Kean, and which, it was said, was to be consolidated with the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway on July 20th, is still in Mr. Kean's hands and its receipts were collected Thursday as usual by John W. Whelan, who is Senator Kean's representative. The latter on Saturday paid the employes of the road their weekly wages. Senator Kean does not deny that negotiations are in progress with the Westfield company, but the deal apparently has not yet been fully consummated.

Application for the appointment of a receiver for the Carteret Steel Company, of Hackettstown, has been deferred until September 5th. It is reported that Senator Jones, of Nevada, has guaranteed the running expenses of the plant, and work will be resumed.

PLANNING FOR CARNIVAL

CRANFORD GETTING READY FOR THE RIVER FETE.

The Affair Will be a Spectacular One, and Will Conclude With a Display of Fireworks.

The Cranford Boating Association has appointed the various committees for the Venetian Carnival to be held on the Rahway river on the evening of August 11th. The carnival this year, it was resolved, should exceed anything attempted in former years, for it will be the last held in the nineteenth century. More boats will be seen in the parade, the decorations and fireworks will be more elaborate, and there will be accommodations for upwards of 5,000 people.

The carnival will begin at 8 o'clock in the evening with a grand open air concert by Bartow's New York Military Band of twenty pieces. The concert will last for an hour, and at its conclusion a signal will be given by a discharge of rockets and the water parade will start. The procession of gaily decorated boats will pass down the river toward the dam, where the return will be made to the judges' stand, where three disinterested gentlemen will be stationed to decide the best decorated and most unique boats in the parade. The whole will conclude with a display of fireworks.

At the meeting arrangements were made to decorate both sides of the river along which the line of boats will pass, a distance of about two miles. The decorations will consist of Chinese and Japanese lanterns, and over 3,000 will be used. In addition colored fires will be continually burned. The procession will be led by Commodore G. H. Miller's and Vice-Commodore D. Smock's boats, and the others will follow them. A reception and dance will bring the evening's festivities to an end.

The committees appointed were as follows: Programme, H. S. Thomas; music and band stand, G. H. Miller; lanterns, H. Cox and H. S. Thomas; wire, D. P. Smock; candles, G. S. Miller; fireworks, H. Cox and J. P. M. Joseph; judges, Messrs. Miller, Smock and C. R. Williams; decorating river, Messrs. Smock, Thomas, M. Reimann, S. Austin, J. Joseph, W. Hueston, D. H. Hopkins, E. B. Farren, G. Miller, E. K. Adams, Mrs. F. E. Bates, S. T. Marshall, W. Chamberlain, F. Blauvelt, M. E. Newcomb and C. J. McIntyre; police, J. H. Thompson; decorating streets, Captain Halsey.

WILD MAN SCARES EYLER'S GIRLS.

Jersey State Home Inmates Have a New Worry.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, July 25.—An entirely new worry confronts the girls of Mrs. Eyler's New Jersey Home for Girls. Mrs. Eyler has asked the police of this city to capture a wild man or lunatic who lives in the woods adjoining the institution and frightens the girls when they roam abound the grounds for exercise. Policeman Dennis Lane describes the intruder as a crazy man, a big, broad-shouldered fellow, wearing a full shaggy beard, with overhanging eyebrows above his small black eyes.

The girls of the institution say the man has been in the woods for several weeks. He came suddenly upon a group of the girls out for an airing in the woods Monday evening, and when they screamed and ran he gave chase.

Search parties have endeavored to find his haunt at night, but so far without success. However, he regularly turns up suddenly when the girls are out walking and attempts to seize them.

Drought Hurting Corn.

The continued dry weather is playing havoc with the corn crop in Hunterdon county. Unless rain comes soon in some sections the crop will be almost a failure. Apples are reported to be dropping as a result of the drought, and the crop is likely to be cut short. The blackberry crop will only be one third as large as first predicted. The peaches, however, are growing nicely, and have not been damaged, although a rain would greatly benefit the yield.

In Honor of a Guest.

Miss Alice Maynard, of West Fourth street, gave an invitation party last night to about twenty of her young friends in honor of Miss Dixon, of Brooklyn, who is spending a short time with her. Dancing was the feature of the evening and it was kept up until a late hour. Before leaving for home those present enjoyed a social hour with the aid of refreshments and it was with regret that they bid their hostess and her guest good night.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR NEW STATION.

McMillen Construction Co., of New York, Will Supervise Erection of New Station.

WILL SUBLET CONTRACT.

STATION WAS STAKED OUT BY ENGINEERS SATURDAY LAST.

No Application Yet Made for Building Permit—Lowry Will Get Contract for Mason Work—Work to be Started Soon.

Work is soon to begin on the new east-bound station of the Jersey Central station and the other improvements planned by the railroad company for Plainfield. The contract for the erection of the station has been awarded to the McMillen Construction Company, of New York, with offices in the Havemeyer building. Last Saturday the engineers of the railroad visited Plainfield and staked out the site of the new building on the south side of the track.

None of the work will be done by the McMillen Company itself but the mason work, carpenter work, painting and plumbing will be sublet, principally to local contractors. The representative of the McMillen Company has already visited Plainfield several times and secured a schedule of prices of materials.

It is stated by good authority that the contract for the mason work will go to Lowry, of this city. The other contracts are not yet settled and a number of the local men are considering them and preparing their bids.

It will only be a short time, therefore, before work is started on the new station. It is currently reported that the railroad officials stated that the station would be completed within ninety days after work was started. Local contractors expect, however, that the work will not be finished until January 1st.

No application has yet been made by representatives of the railroad company or the construction company to Building Inspector Doane for the necessary building permit. It will only take a short time to secure the permit, however, as there is no danger of the railroad company erecting a building of such cheap construction as not to comply with the building ordinance.

Crop Report.

The following in John Naegle's crop report for the past week: The intense heat and absence of rain until 21st seriously affected growing crops, especially potatoes and sweet corn; oats all gathered and housed in fine order; a heavy shower on 21st very beneficial; field corn in tassel, and on high ground is badly twisted; rainfall, 1.73 inches.

GENERAL JONES DEAD.

A Soldier of the Civil War and Prominent In Affairs of State.

NEW YORK, July 25.—Patrick Henry Jones, brigadier general of United States volunteers, retired, is dead at his residence on Ann street, Port Richmond, S. I., after an illness of four years.

General Jones was born in Westmeath, Ireland, on Nov. 20, 1830, and came to America in 1840 with his parents, who settled in the upper part of New York state. After working on a farm for a few years he read law and was admitted to the bar in 1856. At the outbreak of the civil war he entered the Thirty-seventh New York volunteers as second lieutenant and subsequently became adjutant and major of the same regiment and later colonel of the One Hundred and Fifty-fourth New York volunteers. On Dec. 4, 1864, he was commissioned brigadier general of volunteers and remained in the service until the close of the war, when he resigned and resumed the practice of his profession at Ellicottville, N. Y.

At the state election in 1865 he was elected clerk of the court of appeals in this state, which position he held for three years. On April 1, 1869, he was appointed postmaster of New York city and served as such during Grant's first term, after which he again practiced law, and in 1875 he was elected register of the city and county of New York and held that position for three years. He is survived by his wife and four sons.

Troops to Quell Fishermen's Strike

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 25.—Three companies of the Duke of Connaught's Own have been called out to maintain order at the fishing village of Steveston at the mouth of Fraser river, 14 miles from this city, where 1,500 fishermen attached to the 47 salmon canneries are on strike and are preventing 4,000 Japanese and Indians from fishing. Three companies in charge of Lieutenant Colonel Worsnop will protect those nonunion fishermen who are willing to accept the terms offered by the canners of 20 cents per fish, the strikers demanding 25 cents. Fifteen hundred Japanese started out fishing from Steveston yesterday morning under the protection of 200 militiamen drawn up on the wharf. The strikers did not interfere.

President Has Many Callers.

CANTON, O., July 25.—Callers are rapidly increasing in number at the McKinley home in this city. Scarcely a moment passes from early morning until late at night but that one or more persons may be seen on the porch awaiting an audience. Those who come to pay their respects are still in the majority, but those asking attention on personal matters are rapidly increasing. As the president's time is largely taken up with matters pertaining to the Chinese problem his callers frequently have long waits. Ohio state officials, Republican candidates and members of the Republican committees headed by Governor Nash are expected here on Saturday.

Chinamen Arrested.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 25.—Over 50 Chinamen are in the Malone jail awaiting examination on the charge of illegally being in this country. Of the eight Celestials captured Commissioner Paddock has ordered five of them deported, they having no defense. It is evident that some one was steering them through from Montreal to Malone. They were hidden in the woods during the day and driven to the station in a covered meat wagon at night. The driver arrived too late to catch the train for New York. Had they boarded the train they would have gone through to New York unmolested.

WAITING FOR CHINA.

Chances For Mediation Not Considered Bright.

UNITED STATES TO UNDERTAKE TASK

President's Reply to the Emperor's Appeal Not Expected to Bring an Answer For Several Days—Text of the Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The state department is again in a waiting attitude regarding China. It has frankly, promptly and fully answered the Chinese emperor's appeal for mediation, and the next move is for the Chinese government. It is expected to accept or reject our terms at once, and in either case the answer must convey tidings of the state of affairs at Peking and the welfare of the legationers.

The belief is not concealed here that the chances for successful mediation are slight. Mediation cannot be forced upon a party to a cause. It must be acceptable to all the parties. If the United States is to mediate in China's interest, she must first secure the assent of all the powers who have suffered in life or property at Peking. The difficulties in the way of such an undertaking are likely to be many and serious in view of the exhibition of feeling in Europe. But it is said here that the United States will cheerfully undertake the task provided its conditions are met. If it does not succeed in inducing the European powers to be lenient in their treatment of the imperial government of China, the United States government will not be drawn into further hostilities after we have taken care of our own affairs, but we will withdraw, taking care, however, to let it be understood that this government will not allow its proper interest in China to be injured by the action of any of the powers that may choose to remain obdurate.

At least one of the greatest of the powers is under strong suspicion here of acting cold bloodedly and without regard to sentiment or anything more than the most material of considerations. It is believed here that this power is quietly taking measures to drop out of the league at Tien-tsin and conduct a campaign on its own account against Peking, and it is even suspected that this power is already moving troops toward the Chinese capital.

One fact regarded as now beyond need of further demonstration in view of the Chinese appeal is that the Chinese officials at the coast ports are actually in communication with whatever remains of the imperial government at Peking, and the text of Kwang Su's appeal appears to establish the fact that the Chinese government itself is sanctioning the resistance to the international advance upon Peking.

The state department and the Chinese legation substantially agree in the estimate of six to eight days as the time necessary to get a reply to the president's answer to the appeal of the Chinese government. According to the best information here urgent messages are being transmitted between Peking and Shanghai by the "flying express" mentioned in Consul Fowler's cablegram a few days ago. This, according to the Chinese, is a relay system of mounted messengers similar to the old pony service across the plains and is used when the wire communication is interrupted. The relay riders make about 200 miles a day. It is 400 miles from Shanghai to Peking, and this seems to agree very well with the speed made in forwarding and returning the Conger message.

Secretary Root said yesterday that he supposed the Fourteenth infantry had arrived at Taku. By the end of this month the United States would have 5,000 troops in China. He said the reports of yellow fever among the soldiers of the First infantry would not prevent the departure of that regiment from Cuba.

The following correspondence between the president of the United States and the emperor of China has been made public by the state department:

Translation of a cablegram received by Minister Wu on July 20, 1900, from the taotai of Shanghai, dated July 19, 1900:

"Have received a telegram from Governor Yuan of Shanghai dated 23d day of this moon (July 19), who, having received from the privy council at Peking a dispatch embodying an imperial letter to the president of the United States, has instructed me to transmit it to your excellency. The imperial message is respectfully transmitted as follows:

"'The Emperor of China to His Excellency, the President of the United States, Greeting:

"'China has long maintained friendly relations with the United States and is deeply conscious that the object of the United States is international commerce. Neither country entertains the least suspicion or distrust toward the other. Recent outbreaks of mutual antipathy between the people and Christian missions caused the foreign powers to view with unwarranted suspicion the position of the imperial government as favorable to the people and prejudicial to the missions, with the result that the Taku forts were attacked and captured. Consequently there has been clashing of forces, with calamitous consequences.

"'The situation has become more and more serious and critical. We have just received a telegraphic memorial from our envoy, Wu Ting Fang, and it is highly gratifying to us to learn that the United States government, having in view the friendly relations between the two countries, has taken a deep interest in the present situation. Now China, driven by the irresistible course of events, has unfortunately incurred well nigh universal indignation.

"'For settling the present difficulty China places special reliance in the United States. We address this message to your excellency in all sincerity and candidness, with the hope that your excellency will devise measures and take the initiative in bringing about a concert of the powers for the restoration of order and peace. The favor of a kind reply is earnestly requested and awaited with the greatest anxiety.

"'Kwanghsu, 26th year, 6th moon, 23d day (July 19, 1900).'

"It is, therefore, my duty to transmit the above with the request that your excellency, in respectful obedience of imperial wishes, will deliver the same to its high destination and favor me with a reply.

YU LIEN-YUAN,
"Taotai at Shanghai.

"Kwanghsu, 26th year, 6th moon, 23d day (July 19, 1900)."

This cablegram was at once communicated to the president at Canton, and the following is his reply:

"The President of the United States to the Emperor of China, Greeting:

"I have received your majesty's message of the 19th of July and am glad to know that your majesty recognizes the fact that the government and people of the United States desire of China nothing but what is just and equitable. The purpose for which we landed troops in China was the rescue of our legation from grave danger and the protection of the lives and property of Americans who were sojourning in China in the enjoyment of rights guaranteed them by treaty and by international law. The same purposes are publicly declared by all the powers who have landed military forces in your majesty's empire.

"I am to infer from your majesty's letter that the malefactors who have disturbed the peace of China, who have murdered the minister of Germany and a member of the Japanese legation and who now hold besieged in Peking those foreign diplomatists who still survive, have not only not received any favor or encouragement from your majesty, but are actually in rebellion against the imperial authority. If this be the case, I most solemnly urge upon your majesty's government to give public assurance whether the foreign ministers are alive, and if so, in what condition; to put the diplomatic representatives of the powers in immediate and free communication with their respective governments and to remove all danger to their lives and liberty; to place the imperial authorities of China in communication with the relief expedition so that co-operation may be secured between them for the liberation of the legations, the protection of foreigners and the restoration of order.

"If these objects are accomplished, it is the belief of this government that no obstacles will be found to exist on the part of the powers to an amicable settlement of all the questions arising out of the recent troubles, and the friendly good offices of this government will, with the assent of other powers, be cheerfully placed at your majesty's disposition for that purpose.

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

"July 23, 1900.

"By the President:

"JOHN HAY, Secretary of State."

Capture of the Chinese Arsenal.

TIEN-TSIN, July 13, via Chefu, July 17, and Shanghai, July 25.—After fighting all day a force of 2,000 Japanese, supported by British and Russians, captured the Chinese fortified arsenal two miles east of the city, making a night attack. The foreigners charged under a very heavy fire from the arsenal, following the Chinamen and killing 400 of them. The foreign loss was heavy, but is not reported. The Chinese bombarded the foreign city of Tien-tsin heavily for three days and killed some British sailors on a tug, besides several Frenchmen. The foreigners are mounting heavy guns from the fleet, among them being four 12 pounders and four 4 inch guns, and will attempt to locate and silence the Chinese guns. An explosion of dynamite killed 20 Russians.

Russia Hears From Sheng.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 25.—The Chinese embassy in St. Petersburg has received a dispatch from the tsung-li-yamen through Sheng, director general of railways and telegraphs, to the effect that the foreign ministers in Peking were safe on July 18 and that it was proposed to send them to Tien-tsin under the protection of imperial troops. Advices from Manchuria indicate that the Chinese had concocted careful plans to cut off and annihilate various small Russian detachments, but, according to the latest report, the Russian operations are being successfully carried on. The Russian general staff considers the information received reassuring and hopes for a speedy restoration of order on the nearer sections of the Manchurian railway.

Belgium Hears of Legations' Safety.

BRUSSELS, July 25.—In the chamber of deputies yesterday the minister of foreign affairs, M. de Favereau, read a telegram from the viceroy of Nankin, Liu Kun Yi, declaring that the foreign legations were safe. M. de Favereau added: "Only a dispatch, however, from the Belgian minister in Peking can calm the legitimate emotion felt throughout Belgium. Meanwhile the Belgian government has given the Belgians in China an authorization to enlist in the international corps and to place themselves under the protection of the foreign armies. The government favors sending a Belgian expedition to China, which appears to be the desire of the country."

President Gompers In St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, July 25.—Samuel Gompers, president, and James O'Connell, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, held a conference with local labor leaders yesterday in an effort to fix the responsibility for the breaking of the agreement of July 2, which led to the second street railway strike declaration. Mr. Gompers said that, having learned who is at fault, he will exhaust every resource to bring about a settlement of the strike. If he finds adjustment is not possible, he declares, he will take steps to make the fight on the company more effective.

The Boston and Albany Transfer.

BOSTON, July 25.—According to President William Bliss of the Boston and Albany railroad the formal transfer of that company to the New York Central under the terms of the recently approved lease is not likely to occur much before Oct. 1. The failure of the legislature to approve the lease before July 1 brings up certain legal questions that will require to be adjusted before the transfer can take place.

Colonel Bryan Accepts.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Colonel William J. Bryan has accepted an invitation to attend the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic in this city next August. General John C. Black, chairman of the committee on invitations, received this formal acceptance yesterday, settling a question over which there has been considerable controversy.

The Windward Repaired.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., July 25.—The repairs to the machinery of the Peary exploring steamer Windward, it is expected, will be completed by tonight, and she will then attempt to proceed through the straits of Belle Isle, which will probably be free of ice ere long. This would enable her to save a couple of days.

Afraid of Their Tea.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., July 25.—Fear that the Chinese Boxers will poison the tea which is exported from that country has led several aged people here to discontinue using that beverage.

LONDON HAS DOUBTS.

Assertions of Chinese Minister Not Believed.

LITTLE HOPE FOR SAFETY OF ENVOYS

Sir Claude MacDonald's Letter of July 4 Only Strengthens Conviction That Massacre Took Place In Peking Soon After.

LONDON, July 25.—The Chinese minister, Sir Chih-Chen Lo Fang Luh, had a long interview with Lord Salisbury yesterday afternoon. The general situation was discussed, and the Chinese minister reiterated his belief that the British minister to China, Sir Claude MacDonald, and the other foreigners at Peking were safe. Lord Salisbury reiterated his demand for direct communication with the minister at Peking. To this request the minister could only renew his protestations that it would be speedily accomplished if feasible. He adduced no new facts to prove his assertions. The interview closed without result.

Despite the Chinese minister's statements and despite Sir Claude MacDonald's letter of July 4, a strong impression continues to prevail at the foreign office that the ministers at Peking were massacred July 6. Not one scintilla of evidence is yet in the possession of the foreign office leading them to disbelieve the reports of the murders. Sir Claude MacDonald's letter, with its account of severe fighting in progress, merely confirms the government's forebodings. Mr. William Pritchard Morgan, member of parliament for Merthyr Tydvil, whose knowledge of and interests in China are extensive, said that he was positive, from cable messages from his agents, that the members of the legations were alive July 9. When the foreign office was told this the rejoinder was made: "Mr. Morgan has submitted no evidence to convince us of the truth of his statement, however anxious we may be to believe it."

Consultations are in progress between cabinet ministers and officials as to the course to be pursued should the ministers prove to be alive. The contingency of China holding them as hostages is uppermost in the minds of all. The Chinese diplomats have not yet hinted at such action.

Negotiations between the powers have brought out mutual assurances that the military expeditions to China are for the sole purpose of relieving the legations and that there is no intention to partition China. Hence, should China agree to deliver the ministers alive no power will have a reason for continuing aggressive military operations except Germany, whose minister is undoubtedly dead, and even Germany, to quote a high British official, "will have to forego the emperor's assertion that he would not stop till the German flag floated over Peking."

As for the other powers, it is emphatically stated that they have unanimously agreed that with the safe delivery of the ministers the aggressive campaign ends. All rumors of an international agreement regarding the future of China subsequent to the return of the ministers are false. The agreement is purely negative and based upon the lines stated by Secretary Hay, of which the independence and integrity of the Chinese empire are essential features. No territorial propositions will be considered. In common with the other powers Germany must, through arbitration or otherwise, gauge the damages by the loss of the life of her minister by a pecuniary standard. The same rule will apply as to the loss of other lives and destruction of property.

A GERMAN VIEW.

No Stock Taken In Recent Chinese Assurances—Americans Criticised.

BERLIN, July 25.—The Berliner Post prints an important article on the Chinese situation understood to emanate from the German foreign office. The article discusses the close relation between Chinese politics and Chinese military plans and points out the significant fact that the peaceful assurances of Chinese statesmen did not begin until after the success of the allies at Tien-tsin, suggesting that this is something more than a mere coincidence, as is shown by a reference to the similar tactics of the Chinese in the Anglo-French war with China in 1857-60.

The writer strongly argues that hitherto the course of events in China utterly contradicts the tactical position of Chinese officialdom, which is that the government is blameless for the warlike steps of the Chinese against the allies. "At Taku and Tien-tsin," says the article, "it was almost exclusively a force of regular Chinese troops that fought the allies. The leadership of these troops was in the hands of imperial generals, and it is also a fact that the troops which compelled Admiral Seymour's retreat were imperial soldiers commanded by an imperial general.

"According to all the information we have from Peking the regular soldiery have made common cause with the so called rebels. Otherwise the present anarchy there would have been impossible. Considering the usual Chinese system toward foreigners, it is highly probable that this anarchy is gladly tolerated by the actual authorities in order to prove to the powers the impotence of the government. At any rate the government massed large bodies of troops at Peking and Tien-tsin ostensibly to quell the rebellion, but these joined the rebels against the foreigners."

Last evening's papers devote considerable attention to President McKinley's consent to mediate, and the comment is all unfavorable. Surprise is generally expressed that Washington takes Chinese official news seriously. The Berliner Tageblatt complains that the United States government is "so convinced of the wisdom of its Chinaphile policy that it is preparing in advance to lay the blame for its nonsuccess upon governments less credulous than President McKinley and Secretary Hay." The paper goes on to show that "the United States has been taken in tow by China."

The semiofficial Berliner Post says: "Singularly enough, Washington takes the dubious Chinese news for truth."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung remarks that it actually appears that "Washington was only waiting for a pretext to disconnect the United States from the powers."

Peace In Venezuela.

CARACAS, July 25.—President Castro has officially proclaimed the re-establishment of peace throughout the republic of Venezuela. All political prisoners have been set free. The outcome has been received with great enthusiasm in Caracas.

EDWIN FORREST was once drilling a stupid "super." In despair Forrest exclaimed: "Can't you say it as I do?" "No," said the man; "if I could, would I be working for $5.00 a week?" If you asked a cheap yellow soap to do the work of Ivory Soap the reply might well be: "If I could, would I sell for half as much?" Ivory Soap, being pure, costs money, but not more than a pure soap has to cost.

NEW MEXICAN RUINS.

Archæologists Unearth a City of Stone—Houses Found.

SANTA FE, July 25.—Dr. George L. Cox and Fay C. Cote of Los Angeles, Professor R. W. Bullock of Greeley, Colo., and the Rev. G. S. Madden of Bland, who have just arrived here, reported that in the excavating of a number of large stone ruins situated in Pajarsto canyon between Bland and Espanola they made startling discoveries. The building discovered was 560 by 450 feet, entirely of stone, carefully dressed. It was two or three stories high originally, but now only walls six to ten feet remain standing. The upper story evidently was open to the sky, and upon this the dwellers in the building probably spent both night and day.

But it is the finds made in a room 9 by 12 feet in size that are the most suggestive of the civilization of the ancient people. An old furnace for smelting was found, near which was a large iron bar deeply incrusted with rust; also pieces of rich copper ore, as well as gold ornaments and a piece of beautiful turquoise. Twenty-five pieces of pottery of great beauty and brilliancy were in the room. They were heavy, fully one-quarter of an inch thick and decorated inside and outside with unique designs, showing some degree of uniformity.

Several baskets in the room were more beautiful than those woven by the Navajoes today, but they crumbled to dust when touched. Iron knives, stone battle-axes and polished stone reflectors and several musical instruments, including a fife, were in evidence and well preserved. Many human bones were found in the regulation burial mounds.

In the building are 1,200 to 1,500 rooms, only one of which was excavated. There are hundreds of similar ruins in the 25 miles from Bland to Espanola, showing that in that district at one time lived more people than are in New Mexico today. The region has not as yet been touched by scientists and explorers. The Rev. Mr. Madden's theory is that about 500 or 600 years ago the dwellers in that region, who left their records in numerous hieroglyphic inscriptions, had been driven out either by an earthquake or by the invasion of a stronger force.

The relics that were found were sent to the Northwestern university at Evanston, Ills.

RAILROAD ROBBERS.

Systematic Thievery Carried on For Two Years.

ORGANIZED GANG BROKEN UP.

Detectives Make Arrests In Wilkesbarre, Pa.—One of the Party Said to Have Made a Complete Confession.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 25.—Railroad detectives stationed at Wilkesbarre, Williamsport, Elmira and Rochester have just succeeded in running down a gang that have been systematically robbing the railroads for nearly two years past. Within the last year large quantities of brass valued at thousands of dollars have been stolen from the Pennsylvania, Lehigh Valley, Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna and Central Railroad of New Jersey.

Last March the detectives in the employ of these roads held a conference, and it was agreed to make a concerted effort to run down the thieves. Chief of Detectives Verne of the Pennsylvania railroad, stationed at Williamsport, had charge of the case. It was not long before he discovered that large shipments of the stolen brass were being made from Wilkesbarre. Detective Hefferson of Wilkesbarre was notified, and he watched the movements of the shippers. It was then discovered that a great deal of the stolen brass was being sent to Rochester.

The party to whom the goods were consigned in that city was taken into the confidence of the detectives, and this caused the shippers to fall into a neat trap. The stolen brass instead of going to its destination was shipped to Williamsport, where it was taken charge of by the Pennsylvania railroad officials. The shippers, however, were none the wiser. They received their money just the same. Yesterday the first arrests in the case were made, three junk dealers of this city being taken into custody. They are John Fisher, Anthony Steiner and Samuel Steiner. They were charged with larceny and receiving stolen goods and were obliged to furnish bail for a further hearing.

More arrests are expected to follow in Williamsport, Elmira and Rochester. The detectives are positive that they have succeeded in breaking up the gang of jobbers who dealt in stolen brass. It is alleged that the jobbers bought at a very low figure and sold to wholesale dealers at a big price. It was said last night that one of the parties who was a shipper of the stolen brass had made a confession in which he exposes the whole plot organized to rob the railroad companies.

No Fusion, Says Boutwell.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 25.—A letter received here from George S. Boutwell, president of the National League of Anti-imperialists, declares that the writer has no knowledge of the proposed fusion with the gold standard Democrats at the meeting of the latter's national committee here today. He indicates that he would oppose such fusion. Many gold standard Democrats have arrived. Sentiment regarding the nomination of a third ticket is mixed. The Indiana contingent has declared against such a course.

Embassador Draper Resigns.

MILFORD, Mass., July 25.—General William F. Draper of Hopedale has sent to Washington a letter tendering his resignation as United States embassador to Italy. General Draper made no statement as to the reasons he has for taking this step other than that his business at Hopedale demands his entire attention. He refuses to speak of the matter in detail until a reply is received from Washington. The interests of General Draper in Hopedale engage about 3,000 hands.

This privilege is accorded to our soldiers in the Philippines and Cuba and imposes on the mails sent by these soldiers to the United States or sent to them from points within the United States only the ordinary domestic rates charged on mails circulating within this country.

COMING EVENTS.

July 29—Rev. James McLeod, D. D., of Scranton, Pa., will address the Y. M. C. A. rally at 4:15 p. m. All men are invited.

According to the views of "Trenton," the observing and well-informed New Jersey political writer of the New York Herald, the affairs at the State Industrial School for Girls are serene and satisfactory in all respects. "Trenton's" column this morning says: "Nothing new is heard about the State Home for Girls, because there is nothing to exploit but what is good in the management of the institution. Kindness is the ruling principle in the administration. The girls are treated as victims of misfortune, and not as hardened criminals. Every possible means of making them happy is employed. On Thursday of this week a party of fifty of them are to be taken on a trolley ride beyond Lawrenceville, where they will have a picnic in the woods; next week another party of fifty will be given the same holiday, and the following week still another. Even the incorrigible girls are not made to feel that they are incorrigible. They are treated as though they had within them the germs of true womanhood, and even the worst are responsive to this treatment."

Prompted by the editorial note in the Newark Sunday Call giving a list of alleged Republican "bosses" in New Jersey, the Elizabeth Journal suggests the name of several Democrats who might be designated by the same title in their own political sphere. It names several men who have been active in Democratic councils, but makes an exception of James E. Martine as far as applying the appelation of "boss" to him. The Journal says that "Mr. Martine is a statesman and not a 'boss.'" The Journal is undoubtedly sincere in its regard and estimation of Mr. Martine's political make up, but whenever he has been a candidate for office the Journal was never willing to be as frank in its admiration of him as it is under the present circumstances.

The story told by little Willie Hodges, as reported in the news columns of today's Press, pictures his foster-father as a veritable fiend. Until the case is heard in court, however, it is not fair to criticise the accused man, as there the alleged offender may be able to clear himself of the charge of mercilessly beating and abusing the unfortunate little fellow whose lot has been thrown in with him. If it is proven that the boy's story is true the whipping-post would be too good for the man who would treat a helpless child as this one has been treated.

The fact that the name of G. D. W. Vroom, of Trenton, was mentioned in connection with the appointment to the vacant place on the bench of the Supreme Court of New Jersey, is regarded as sufficient reason for a Trenton correspondent to trot out the gentleman as a prospective candidate for the Republican nomination of Governor next year. No one imagines, however, that Mr. Vroom will figure very conspicuously in the Gubernatorial affair when the time comes for decisive action.

Democratic Chairman William B. Gourley has called a meeting of the Democratic State committee for Saturday. The meeting will be held at Newark. It will be its first meeting to discuss plans for the Presidential campaign. Chairman Gourley has mapped out a line of work that will be acted upon, and he expects that before the end of August the Democrats in every district and county in the State will be thoroughly organized.

The tax rate for the city of Newark has been fixed at $2 24 on each $100 of valuation. It was expected that the rate would be $2.30, but the tax commissioners brought it down six points by increasing the valuation on property owned by corporations. And yet it is safe to venture the statement that the corporations are not now assessed as high as they should be in comparison with other taxable property.

In Chicago 2 000 out of the 5,000 saloons are to close in consequence of the increased price of lager beer. The municipality will thereby lose $1,000,000 in revenue from licenses.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The shirt waist is the coming summer garb for men. It is the only fashion devised for women that the male mind regards as "sensible" and fit for the sterner sex. Think how much more comfortable millions of men would be during the torrid weather this month if they could go about uncriticised in cool shirt waists just as women do.—Newark Advertiser.

* * * * *

Frederick W. Park, of Cranford, according to the Plainfield Press, is spoken of in connection with the nomination for Congressman for this district. The Press says that "he practices law in New York and is an aggressive young Democrat who has of late taken an active part in Union county politics." Mr. Park, it is said, is in the race to win. If nominated he will make a hard fight for votes against Mr. Fowler.—Cranford Chronicle.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Despite the fact that the trolley line from Plainfield to Elizabeth has been in operation for several months there has not been a single trolley party from this city. Of course, a number of people have taken advantage of the line to spend their evening riding to and from the county seat, but the parties with specially chartered cars, which were generally expected when the line should be opened, are yet to be seen.

* * * * * * *

Some of the small boys along the line of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railway Companys have a little habit that is likely to prove dangerous some day to the passengers on the cars of that company. The small boys think it no end of fun to hurl small stones at the passing cars. A few evenings ago one of these missiles struck the hand rail on a car, glancing off, narrowly missing the head of a young woman who happened to look out of the car at that moment.

* * * * * * *

A remarkable feature of the last open-air concert held on North avenue in front of the Hotel Kensington was the great number of strangers who turned out to hear the music. They came principally by trolley and a few by wheel. It is estimated that there were several hundred of them, and hardly one failed to stop at one of the local soda water fountains or somewhere else for liquid refreshments before returning home.

* * * * * *

The good folk of New Brunswick and Bound Brook occasionally take advantage of a pleasant summer day for a canal-boat party. These affairs have become quite popular and a number of Plainfielders have participated in them. The promoters of the party make arrangements with the captain of some canal-boat, about to make the trip through the Delaware and Raritan canal to take them as far as Princeton. At Princeton a dinner is enjoyed at one of the well-kept hostelries in that place and then the party make their return in the same fashion. There is nothing wildly exhilerating in a canal-boat ride with its peculiar kind of motive power but the rides have the advantage of novelty and those which have been held in the past, have been declared very successful.

Motorman John Powers, of the street railway, who has been enjoying a vacation of two weeks, will return to duty the last of this week.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence to The Press.)

Dunellen, July 25.—The locomotive which jumped the track at East Bound Brook yesterday morning was in charge of John Logan, of the borough. The engine leaped across an open switch and went into a sand bank. Engineer Logan saw it just in time to save himself by jumping and escaped without injury. The engine was partly wrecked and was taken to Elizabethport by the wrecking crew. Although Mr. Logan has been engineer a trifle over a year, he is regarded as a careful man and no blame is attached to him for yesterday's accident.

It was reported in the borough yesterday that Charles Wood, who is in St. Michael's hospital, Newark, was dead. The report was untrue, however, but his condition is serious. It was stated at the hospital last evening that the young man was resting easily, but a change for the worse might occur at any moment.

The funeral services of Miss Margaret Williams were held from the residence of her parents at Martinville at half past one this afternoon. Among those who attended the funeral from the borough were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reusch, and the Misses Kate and Pauline Kratzel, all relatives.

A jolly party, composed of Mrs. Wm. H. Terry, Mrs. Annie Abbott, Percy Abbott, Miss Ethel Moore, of Brooklyn, Mrs. Wm. E. Terry and Mrs. H. L. Terry, of Westfield, left by trolley this morning for Boynton Beach, where they will spend the day.

There are advertised letters remaining in the postoffice for Miss E. Ingraham, M. C. Young, Mrs. W. Hawkins and Theodore Voorhees.

It is expected that the long-delayed trial of French against Zimmerman will be tried before Justice Warden tomorrow afternoon.

New Market, July 25 — Osborne's track is getting to be quite a place for bicyclists in the evening and large numbers of them go out there every night. Several interesting races were held there last evening between New Market boys and a few visitors in which the former came out ahead.

Zum gleichen Zwecke spendete ein ungenannter Wohlthäter den Betrag von 2000 Kronen.—Aus unbekannter Ursache war im Hofe des Gärtners Kremer in Simmering ein Düngerhaufen in Brand gerathen. Die beiden Kinder des Gärtners, ein 2½jähriges Mädchen und ein 4½jähriger Knabe, spielten in der Nähe, und beide Kinder wurden von den Flammen ergriffen. Ehe noch Hilfe herbeieilen konnte, hatten die Kinder schwere Brandwunden erlitten. Das Mädchen war so schwer verletzt, daß es nach wenigen Augenblicken starb.

RIBBONS AGAIN IN VOGUE.

Fashionable Garments Trimmed With Dainty Loops and Bows.

BY HENRIETTE ROUSSEAU.

It is a matter for congratulation that ribbon is coming into use again, for nothing ever was prettier than ribbon for trimming, and nothing ever sets off a garment so well as bows and loops of ribbon. The use of ribbon is likely to make up for lost time if we can judge by an importation for Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt for fine days at Newport. The whole dress is made of ribbon sewed on over rather stiff brussels net and trimmed with silk Russian fishnet in the accessories of cuffs, revers, collar and belt. The skirt of net was cut to fit around the hips and to a demitrain at the bottom. On the upper part were sewed rows of mauve satin ribbon so closely as to almost entirely hide the foundation. These reached to the knees, and from there the ribbon went around the skirt instead of up and down. The ribbon around it was in different widths and of striped taffeta, the stripes being narrow and black. The ribbon was set on straight, and it required much skill to get it on neatly and so that no folds show. The waist had the striped ribbon around the lower half and up and down on the lower part, and the sleeves have only the satin ribbon around. It opens in front over a guimpe of lace in the form of a vest, and a line of fine white lace is set on the edge. The Russian fishnet is white wrought with black chenille in cross stitch. Of this the revers are made and the deep mittlike cuffs. At the waist line there are two folds of the net over satin to match the shade in the ribbon. The high collar is of the net and has three narrow lines of lace at the very top and arranged so that one overlaps the other. In the front, where the waist fastens, there are 16 small gold buttons. If one said that the dress was made of brussels net and trimmed with ribbon, it would give very little idea of the real value and beauty of this gown, which must have cost half a fortune, for all the work is done by hand and most exquisitely. Not one stitch shows anywhere.

NET AND RIBBON GOWN.

Some of the new and specially designed dresses and light wraps intended for Newport wear are of such simple material that it is almost ridiculous to think of the prices set upon them, but it is the work that counts. We see gauzes painted with all sorts of flowers, and this made up over silk, with any amount of lace ruffles at the bottom, and naturally the finished dress is going to cost a lot of money. Hand painting is seen on many things, among them being crepe de chine, swiss muslin and fine broadcloth. Enormous quantities of lace are used on dresses, and there are scarfs and barbs of lace, in black mostly, though there are many in butter and ecru as well as pure white. All sorts of devices are shown made of lace, the principal ones being the motifs and the figaros and the things just mentioned. The scarfs in black chantilly are mostly used as sashes and ties, which are fastened loosely at the neck and left to float. Spanish lace is having a new popularity. Lace and ribbon are taking so large a place in all of the midsummer toilets that one must be forgiven for talking so much about them.

Every season sees a host of new colors and tints brought out, but after all few are really chosen for general popularity. Those oftenest seen out of all those offered this season are white in its different shades, mauve, pale blue, with a little tan and its kindred shades and red in so many shades that I will not attempt to enumerate them. A taking fancy is to have a whole suit of red all in different shades of red. This makes a person look like a stick of peppermint candy.
